SITES CHOSEN FOR 165 NEW SCHOOLHOUSES

0 Year Program to Cost $170,000,000.

Erection of 165 new school buildings at an approximate cost of $170,000,000 in the next ten years is recommended in a building survey, just completed, by Supt. William McAndrew and his staff of building experts. The survey represents seven months' work and will be submitted to the board next Wednesday.

The report recommends erection of twenty-five junior high schools; seven senior high schools, and eighty-three elementary schools. It is expected that the program will wipe out the present seat shortage of 54,000 in five years and adequately provide for the increase in attendance in the future.

Where Schools Are to Be.

Sites for the schools are named and are based on the trend of population in various sections of the city. The majority of the new elementary schools are to be erected in the outlying districts where the population increase now is far ahead of the buildings available, and where the seat shortage is the acutest.

In the older districts, the new schools will be fewer, but many additions will be built.

The junior high schools are uniformly distributed throughout the city. Sites for the new high schools were chosen to relieve and adjust areas where the present high schools are located. A few of the present high schools will be converted into junior highs because of their poor location and new ones built on sites that will better serve the districts' needs.

Urge Immediate Purchase.

The report urges the immediate purchase if possible of the sites named. Where the board is unable to obtain the exact location recommended the nearest available property should be procured, it says.

Elementary schools are to be so located that children will walk six blocks at most and in most cases only four to school. The standard distance for the junior high school is one mile and the maximum one and one-quarter miles. Senior high school students will be required to travel at the most two and one-half miles and the standard distance will be two miles.

The elemeneary school will serve an average area of one-half square mile; the junior high two square miles, and the senior high school eight square miles.

Favor Unit Buildings.

A unit type of building is recommended for the elementary schools. It will consist of the first unit to which wings and auditoriums can be added from time to time. This saves duplication of detailed plans, and, where modifications are necessary, supplemental plans and specifications can be furnished. The first unit is a complete school in itself and is arranged to serve community activities without opening the entire building. It is suggested that as far as possible the same standardization be applied to the junior and senior schools.

The building program is based on the 6-3-3 plan—six years elementary, three years junior high school, and three years senior high school.

No Bonds Required.

Chicago, the report says, in contrast with other cities, has no outstanding school bond issues, except for some minor amounts contracted through the annexation, and all building funds are available for current expenditure. It is estimated that the school board has each year approximately $16,000,000 for building and the program outlined can be carried out without bonded indebtedness.

Members of the board, it is understood, plan to put the program into operation at once. It is urged that the survey staff be maintained to keep [illegible] pace with the changes in population that cannot be estimated so far in advance.

Chicago in the past has developed a school plant under pressure of immediate needs and local influences, according to board members. In many instances it worked an injustice to communities. Some districts had a surplus of accommodations and others were left without relief because funds were expended with a general grasp.

NEW SITES

Following is a list of the sites, selected after careful surveys throughout the city, which are to be considered for the establishment of new elementary schools. Many of them are to be built at once. Others will be constructed as plans are furthered. In

LINDSEY AHEAD BY 149 VOTES IN OFFICIAL COUNT

Denver, Colo., Nov. 8.—Judge Ben B. Lindsey, Denver's nationally known juvenile judge, retains the bench he has occupied for twenty-three years, barring unforseen developments, it was indicated tonight when the official count of votes cast in Tuesday's election was completed. The count gave him an official lead of 149 votes over his opponent, Judge Royal B. Graham, Republican.

But two eventualities may bar Judge Lindsay from the bench, it was pointed out—a change in result when the mail vote, estimated at 250, is counted, and court proceedings to correct alleged errors in the official certified tally.

GIRL DESCENDANT OF 9 GOVERNORS WEDS SECRETLY

New York, Nov. 8.—Sylvia Grinnell Van Rensselaer, 25, grand daughter of Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer, and descendent of nine colonial governors, was secretly married last Wednesday to Harold I. Sewall, 53, wealthy sugar refiner of Boston and Porto Rico, at the municipal building here, it became known today. The civil marriage was followed by a religious ceremony at the home of Mrs. Van Rensselaer Thursday morning.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer said today that the reason for the hurried marriage of her granddaughter was that Mr. Sewall was called suddenly to Porto Rico.

Dolfing is held at the detective bureau on a charge of shooting Mrs. Kline.

BIG DROP IN COST OF GOVERNMENT

Below 3 Billions in 1925; Credit Thrift, Budget.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The cost of running the federal government in the fiscal year beginning next July 1 may fall below $3,000,000,000, or $500,000,000 less than the estimated expenditures for the current fiscal year.

On the basis of estimates prepared by the budget bureau and on which its conferences with the spending departments of the government practically have been completed, the anticipated appropriations for the year beginning next July 1 stood tonight at $2,980,000,000 exclusive of the postoffice department, the receipts of which are expected to balance the expenses.

All Figures Cut to Bone.

Officials of the budget still have work to do on the "budget of 1926," which will be submitted by the President to the forthcoming short session of congress. But they have gone so thoroughly into every estimate, great and small, submitted to them by the several branches, that they feel any changes to be made hereafter will be in the nature of thousands rather than in millions of dollars.

Brig. Gen. H. M. Lord, director of the budget, will go over the figures and tabulations with President Coolidge some time next week and after that, it is expected, the government estimates will be ready for the public printer as the next stage in transmission to the President and to congress.

On the basis of tonight's figures the ordinary expenditures, exclusive of the postoffice, are expected to fall below $1,700,000,000. This contemplates retention of the present basis of income.

Mellon's Work Bears Fruit.

The great reduction in the public debt accomplished by the treasury in the last few years has begun to show its effect on expenditures, and for the fiscal year 1926 the interest is calculated not to exceed $830,000,000. This item alone in the current year will run about $870,000,000, and for the fiscal year ended last July 1 it approached a billion dollars.

Operations of the sinking fund, which work to the retirement of the great war debt, will require about $450,000,000 actual appropriation in addition to the payments by foreign nations in liquidation of their debts to the United States.

Budget figures at this time, therefore, show less than $3,000,000,000, but attention was called that congress may launch new policies which may call for additional funds.

How Estimates Compare.

Present estimates for the fiscal year 1926 present the following comparison with those of the last few years: For 1925 (estimated), $3,500,000,000; 1924, $3,506,000,000; 1923, $3,697,000,000; 1922, $3,795,000,000, and 1921, $5,538,000,000.

To place the figure below $3,000,000,000, the budget bureau is said to have employed the blue pencil to a greater extent than ever before. In few of the estimates have the totals remained as submitted by those who are to spend the money.

M'CARTY AND GRANGE SHARE HERO HONORS

32,000 Cheering Fans Jam Stadium.

BY ROBERT M. LEE.

If all the superlatives could be summoned together by some witches' trick and each encouraged to smite a gong extolling the grandeur of yesterday's football game between Chicago and Illinois wherein they strove to a tie of 21 to 21, even such a multiplicity of the utmost were doomed to fade idly in the human ear as a sound too frail and insufficient to express the emotions of the 32,000 and more in Stagg field.

The poor words and paragraphic artifices of the journeyman newsmonger tick off all too feebly, maunder too hopelessly in the search of the soul for sounds and symbols descriptive of that primal bond that makes one man with a football jerk upright some thirty thousand of his kind and hold them there bellowing noises that could come only out of the azoic.

A Maniac Unaware.

One may not sing this football game. It is nothing for gentle voices and tinkling harpsichords. Have down, rather, the brazen trumpets, the clash of cymbals, roars of throaty men; think of human billows, rolling high in the Circus Maximus, glimpse there, by way of prelude, the chariot of Messina careening freakishly over the cobbles of the arena; think of the spectacle!

What is it to be done here today? Is it some play, or some competition in which there is a mixed interest; something that matters so little that the result may fall this way or that and no one a whit disturbed?

Think again. One may come into this west grandstand seeking only entertainment. But the moment he arrives he is swallowed up. He is in a Maroon quicksand. And so swiftly does he absorb the spirit of Chicago, the tradition of college, that he is a maniac unaware.

Does he sit in the east grandstand? Then in that same celerity he is welded into the mass, contributing his mite of screech and bellow. Does he sit in a north or south stand? No matter. He is one way or the other. There is the rift. There is the close packed human quadrangle, row on row, and not the slightest cat's paw of a movement on that gridiron below that does not fetch its roar in proportion as it bears upon the outcome.

Grange, the Mighty.

On the Chicago side they are a bit timerous while yet boldly hopeful. This timidity is inspired by one Harold Grange. Young Grange's name hits upon the eardrums like the mention of some ogre who may eat little children. He has vanquished the mighty on many fields. He can run like a deer. He can perform that most magnificent of all athletes' contortions—change direction while going at top speed. The Grange specter undoubtedly is present. But in spite of it the Chicagoans have brought with them hundreds of toy balloons. For what purpose?

"They are going to be released at the first touchdown for Chicago," a gentle young man confidingly explains.

Who said there was going to be a Chicago touchdown? One smiles indulgently for such gentle hopefulness.

Everything Set.

It is drawing on towards 2 o'clock. The grandstands have been packed to cold storage completeness these many minutes. The cheer leaders strike dramatic poses and attract the attention of the mass by their charming grotesqueries. The chorused yells that strike so helplessly in accurate type now begin cracking out like goliath whips swung by these cheerfully and fantastically clad cheer leaders. Valiant youths who are not playing but are comfortable in the grandstand with their new fall hats and snug coats develop vast belligerancy. Well, they are safe. They demand that Illinois do her stuff and let's see what it looks like.

The air is damp and chill. It bites through overcoats and gloves. It will be warmer presently. The Chicago band, garbed as French troops campaigning in Africa, or perhaps like Scotch Highlanders after looting a storehouse of the late confederate army, bustles lustily into a tune that billows out over the throng like some filmy banner and gets 'em all a-singing and a-humming and swaying. The music stops. A roar from the Illinois side. The Illinois eleven, all in yellow headgear, trot out upon the field.

Illinois Band Does Its Bit.

In the flicker of an eyelash the Illinois grandstand is a fluttering back-

Mrs. Harding Operated on in Emergency

Marion, O., Nov. 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—Mrs. Florence Kling Harding, widow of former President Harding, who has been ill with kidney trouble for several weeks, underwent an exploratory operation this evening.

Mrs. Harding withstood the operation with but little shock, according to the announcement of her physicians and tonight was said to "manifest her usual courage and hopefulness."

The operation was performed at 7 p. m. at White Oaks farm a sanitorium conducted by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, where Mrs. Harding has been making her home.

Cleveland Physician Called.

Throughout the day Mrs. Harding's condition had grown steadily worse. Late in the day Dr. Sawyer summoned Dr. J. C. Woods of Cleveland, and it was decided to operate at once. Dr. Sawyer stated they were forced to take a chance to bring relief. The following bulletin was issued:

"The important manifestations in Mrs. Harding's case early in the week necessitated an exploratory puncture, which, it is hoped will afford temporary relief.

Condition Causes Anxiety.

"Her general condition, while not immediately critical, is such as to cause the greatest anxiety because of the condition of her heart and because of the complications which have developed in the upper part of her abdomen.

"Radical surgical work at this time is quite out of the question.

"Mrs. Harding went through the palliative operation under local anesthesia with but little shock."

LODGE IS SINKING; HIS PHYSICIANS FEAR FOR WORST

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 8.—The outlook for the recovery of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, who suffered a stroke at Charlesgate hospital here Wednesday, was declared less favorable tonight by his attending physicians. A bulletin issued tonight announced he had failed perceptibly since morning.

The announcement tonight followed a bulletin at noon today which stated that the senator was somewhat weaker than he had been, although his condition at that time was essentially the same as it had been for the preceding seventy-two hours.

Although in a state of coma during the greater part of the day, Senator Lodge had brief periods of consciousness. Late tonight Dr. Cunningham issued a bulletin in which he said: "The outlook remains unfavorable. Lost ground during the last twenty-four hours."

POLICE HERO AND BANDIT SLAIN IN DUEL

Harry Crowley Shot by Robber.

Detective Sergeant Harry J. Crowley, who won THE TRIBUNE award for heroism in September, 1921, was shot and killed last night when two men attempted to hold up the quiet saloon of John Quail, 538 West Polk street.

Sergt. Crowley shot and fatally wounded H. Hernandes, 28 year old Mexican, one of the bandits. The second bandit escaped. Hernandez died soon afterwards.

Crowley was off duty, as he was on the night in 1921 when he encountered two holdup men and in the ensuing struggle displayed heroism that won THE TRIBUNE award.

Visiting in Saloon.

The shooting last night occurred shortly before 11 o'clock. Crowley, who was in civilian clothes, and Miss Margaret Price, 23 years old, 1032 Dakin street, were sitting in the rear of the saloon drinking beer. At other tables were a dozen men and women, all drinking beer.

Quail and two men were sitting in the front of the room playing cards.

The front door swung open and two short men entered. Blue handkerchiefs covered their faces and they carried heavy pistols.

Holds Up the Patrons.

"Throw up your hands," one of the bandits commanded.

The command was heard by the detective sergeant. He drew his pistol from the shoulder holster, sprang from the table and jumped through the swinging doors.

Crowley's pistol and the bandit's exploded at the same second. A bullet pierced the detective's heart. The bandit was shot in the right chest. Both men fell, but as Crowley went down he continued firing. The other bandit fired three shots at the detective and fled out of the front door.

Dead When Police Arrive.

When the police from nearby stations arrived Crowley was dead. The bandit was taken to the bridewell hospital. Several men and women, the latter hysterical, were placed under arrest and taken to the detective bureau. Thirty minutes after the shooting Chief of Detectives Michael Hughes, Capt. John Schoemaker, and Deputy Superintendent Zimmer arrived at the saloon.

At the bridewell hospital Detective Sergeants Miller and O'Neil attempted to question Hermandez, but he died.

Sergt. Crowley was 40 years old. He was not married. He had been a policeman for nineteen years. He lived at 4021 Kenmore avenue. For many years he was assigned to the detective bureau.

Shows His Mettle.

At 5:15 on the morning of Sept. 14 while on his way to his home after completing his tour of duty, Sergt. Crowley met two armed holdup men. Both men pressed pistols against the policeman's breast.

"Crowley backed away, pulled his gun and started firing at the holdup men," said the official police department report at the time. "Both men ran and after a long chase Crowley arrested both of them."

For that bit of valor the policeman was awarded the $100 monthly prize awarded by THE TRIBUNE.

HERO AWARD FOR OCTOBER

Bravery seldom equaled in the police department, according to Chief Morgan Collins, was displayed by Motorcycle Policeman Charles Blaul of the Grand Crossing command, when, single handed, he captured a desperate bandit after a gun battle in a dark basement.

In recognition of the unusual courage which led him to undertake the duel in the face of great odds and at the risk of his life, THE TRIBUNE awards Policeman Blaul its October $100 hero prize.

South Shore police were scouring their districts for the home bandit who was successfully raiding drug stores in the neighborhood at the point of a revolver. About noon, on Oct. 25, Howard G. Higgins, druggist at 2166 East 75th street, reported to the Grand Crossing station that he had exchanged shots with the man.

Bandit Starts Running.

Blaul rushed to the scene and after obtaining a description of the robber started in pursuit. Within ten minutes, while cruising about the vicinity, the policeman sighted a suspicious character slinking from a drug store at 73d street and Paxton avenue. At the same moment, the bandit—was he—spied the officer and broke into a run.

The bandit, revolver still in hand, rounded the corner with Blaul on his motorcycle in pursuit. A few feet, and, as the policeman came abreast of him, the man suddenly dodged between two buildings and momentarily was lost to sight.

Blaul, surprised by the trick and racing his cycle at top speed, narrowly escaped death as his machine swerved to the curb. A fortunate leap and the policeman continued the chase on foot as the motorcycle crashed into the curb and was wrecked.

Through building areaways, alleys, over fences, and for nearly a half a mile the fleeing bandit led Blaul. Half a dozen times Blaul might have shot and probably killed the man, but held his fire for fear of wounding passersby, who, attracted by the shouting, came into range. And at any moment the bandit might have turned to shoot Blaul.

Rushes Into Basement.

Instead, at 72d and Bennett avenue, the man scurried into the basement of a building under construction, through the only apparent entrance. Here he found refuge in the dark and a point of vantage which enabled him to command the entrance unseen from outside. As long as his ammunition lasted the bandit could have withstood a corps of police, shooting them down one by one as they approached the doorway.

His man cornered, Blaul might well have sent for reinforcements to aid in the capture. But without hesitation the policeman advanced to the doorway and, thanks to the poor marksmanship of the bandit who fired a half dozen shots at him, darted inside unhurt. Then began the duel.

With flashes from the other's gun as their only target, the policeman and the bandit exchanged shots in rapid succession until a scream and a thud told Blaul that one of his shots had taken effect. Creeping cautiously along the basement floor, Blaul found the wounded bandit, huddled in a corner.

Bandit May Survive.

Dragging him outside, Blaul called an ambulance and rode to the Jackson Park hospital, with his prisoner, later identified as Clifford Mills, 28, living at 6150 Dorchester avenue. Among other druggist-victims, H. G. Higgins, 2160 East 75th street and M. M. Outen, 73d and Paxton avenue, identified Mills as the bandit who had robbed them of $80 and $200 respectively.

Mills, who it developed, is a well known police character, is hovering between life and death at the hospital.

Blaul's duel with Mills was not the policeman's first experience under fire. Similar devotion to duty won him distinction as a motorcycle dispatch rider for the 7th division in France, where he was seriously wounded in the St. Mihiel engagement. Policeman Blaul, who is married and the father of two small children, lives at 6444 South Washtenaw avenue.

Three Notables Fail to Sail Abroad; Reason Unknown

New York, Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Three well known passengers booked to sail today on the White Star liner Majestic for Cherbourg and Southampton canceled their accommodations without assigning any reason so far as could be ascertained from the officials. Mr. Mortenson said that he heads a firm having 700 taxicabs constantly on the streets of Chicago and he said it is his intention to so direct them as to assist in the development of the city.

COOLIDGE SEEN A NEUTRAL IN SPEAKER FIGHT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Supporters of Representative Martin B. Madden [Rep., Ill.], who already has entered the field as a candidate for speaker of the house in the sixty-ninth congress, take no stock in reports that the administration will throw its support to Representative Nicholas Longworth [Rep. O.] for the post.

Friends of Mr. Madden assert that inasmuch as the Illinois veteran and Majority Leader Longworth have both supported President Coolidge in all legislative emergencies, the administration will undoubtedly keep hands off in the fight for the speakership. They insist that unless there is an unforeseen development the contest will be limited to the two members named.

They expect Mr. Longworth to be put forward by the Ohio delegation, thus heading off any ambition for the speakership that may be entertained by Representative Burton [Rep. O.].

HUGHES PICKED TO REMAIN AS COOLIDGE AID

Secretary Will Not Quit, Is Capitol Belief.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—Several changes in the cabinet by next spring are looked for. It is reported that some members intend to retire and believed that President Coolidge, after March 4, will prefer a cabinet of his own selection, although upon assuming the presidency after the death of President Harding, Mr. Coolidge requested all members not to submit their resignations.

It is confidently expected, however, that he will urge several members of the present cabinet to continue in office after his inauguration.

Hughes to Stay, Belief.

Although Secretary Hughes is understood to have indicated to friends that he would prefer, for private reasons, to return to the practice of law, it is the general view that he will continue at his post for a year, if not longer, while Secretaries Mellon and Hoover as well as Attorney General Stone are regarded as fixtures.

Hubert Work, secretary of the interior, has intimated to friends he wished to retire. Friends report that Secretary Weeks, because of ill health and for personal reasons, would like to step out of official life.

There are persistent reports that Secretary Wilbur is being considered for a federal judgeship in California. He came from the bench to head the navy department and is one of the two members in the present cabinet selected by Mr. Coolidge.

The postoffice department portfolio is mentioned as a post that may be offered to William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee.

Agriculture Chief in Doubt.

Mr. Coolidge is centering his attention on the vacant post of secretary of agriculture. Some believe it probable he will retain Howard M. Gore, acting secretary, in that office until March 4, when Gore will become governor of West Virginia.

Either Secretary Hoover or Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming are considered by some as likely to be named as head of the interior department should Secretary Work resign. Mr. Hoover has completed his reorganization of the department of commerce and some requests have been made that he perform a similar service in the interior department.

For secretary of agriculture the President is understood to be looking for a farmer. Louis J. Taber, master of the National grange, of Columbus, O., is among those most prominently mentioned in this connection.

Should Secretary Davis leave the labor department, it is said that John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, would be advanced by many as a successor.

WELCOME TO FLYERS

Lowell Smith (left) and Leslie Arnold, world flyers, arrived in Chicago yesterday. They will be guests at a great reception tonight at the Auditorium.

TAXES IS TOPIC AT WHITE HOUSE PARTY CONFAB

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—There soon will be conferences between Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Republican leaders in congress, at which the party's attitude toward tax reduction will be decided. President Coolidge has said that his tax recommendations to the next congress will be dependent on this decision.

Representative Martin B. Madden [Ill.], chairman of the house appropriations committee; Senators Wadsworth [N. Y.] and Watson [Ind.] called on the President today to discuss with him his legislative program. They all learned that he is still undecided when to recommend tax revision.

Senator Watson said congress undoubtedly would follow recommendations of Secretary Mellon and would endeavor to get through tax revision bills in the short session if the administration desires it.

YALE COMMITTEE HALTS BUILDING OF DORMITORY

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 8.—Erection of a new dormitory on Yale college campus, beside and as a duplicate in design of old Connecticut hall, which once sheltered Nathan Hale, student and patriot, has been temporarily stopped. The vigorous opposition of the student body and alumni brought the question before the university corporation. The fellows of the corporation met today and afterwards the secretary of the university, Mr. Hutchins, issued a statement declaring that the work would be suspended "in order that the committee on architectural plans may meet with the dean or other representatives of the college to give the latter further opportunity to present their views in the matter."

CITY WILL OPEN ARMS TO WORLD FLYERS TODAY

Great Reception for Crew of "Chicago."

Capt. Lowell H. Smith and Lieut. Leslie P. Arnold, pilots of the ship Chicago in the famous flight around the world, spent yesterday afternoon at the Illinois-Chicago football game watching the one man in the middle west whose name is as much of a household word as theirs—Red Grange. Last night they were guests at informal receptions and received visitors at the Drake hotel, where they will spend at least part of their stay of a week in Chicago.

The real reception to the airmen will start today. This afternoon there will be a reception at the Army and Navy club from 5 to 6 p. m. Admission will be by invitation only.

Public Reception Tonight.

The public welcome will come tonight at the Auditorium, where Mayor Dever and dozens of city officials will join with Chicago citizenry in letting the two officers know what Chicago thinks of the men who piloted its aerial namesake around the world.

At this reception the flyers formally will be presented with an automobile apiece—gifts of Chicago people. The first local showing of the motion pictures of their flight will be made and the two pilots will be called on for short talks. Tickets to this reception may be obtained at the Auditorium box office.

Monday noon Capt. Smith and Lieut. Arnold will be guests at a luncheon given by the Advertising post of the American Legion in the Hotel Sherman and that night there will be a formal ball and reception at the Sherman. This will be by invitation only.

Gen. Patrick Expected.

Maj. Gen. Patrick, chief of the air service, is expected from Washington to attend the ball and almost every one prominent in Chicago civic and social life has been invited.

While Gen. Patrick is here plans will be discussed with him for bringing the plane Chicago here to remain forever. Gen. Patrick is said to favor this plan, but President Coolidge is understood to feel that all the world flight planes should be kept in the Smithsonian institution.

The two airmen were met at the train by Col. C. P. Mills and Stanley Adams of the Army and Navy club who will be their personal escorts through the week's stay. The airmen expect to take part in Armistice day celebration here before returning to Belleville, Ill., to take their plane eastward.

EEK TO AVOID PERIL OF CHAOS IN ELECTION TIE

hange Provided in New Amendment.

Y ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

How may of the 18,000,000 men and men who voted for Calvin Coolidge Tuesday did so for no other rea- than to register their choice be- een "Coolidge and chaos" probably er will be known. Doubtless it was large number, for it was well nigh iversally recognized for a fortnight fore the balloting that neither Davis La Follette could be elected at polls, and that the only question maining was whether the election ould give Coolidge a majority of the ectoral college or would be dead- cked and the choice projected into ngress.

It was clear that the utmost Davis La Follette could possibly achieve an electoral vote sufficiently large deprive Coolidge of a majority, and was equally clear that if they suc- ded the election would be dead- ked in congress as well as in the ctoral college. None of the candi- tes for President would be able to ter the constitutional majority in house. It also seemed likely that senate would be unable to elect a e President.

Chaos in the Offing.

The prospect, therefore, was that re might be neither a President nor e President chosen to take the ns of government on March 4, the nstitution having failed to provide the succession under such circum- nces. The country would be with- a regularly chosen chief executive d governmental and economic chaos uld ensue. Hence arose the cry to people to take their choice between olidge and chaos.

If this alarm over the preservation the continuity of government has oved a lesson taken to heart by the erican people they will see to it that danger is removed before the next sidential election by an amendment the constitution providing for the ccession in case of a deadlocked elec- n.

An amendment correcting this and er defects in the constitution is now nding in congress. It has been ap- oved by the senate and is before the use with a favorable recommenda- n by the committee on election of esident. If it is approved by the use at the approaching short session will be submitted to the states for option.

Leaves Succession to Congress.

The proposed amendment authorizes congress to designate by law what officer of the government shall act as President in the event that there is no regularly chosen chief executive to ceed the outgoing President. Con- possesses already, and has exer- d the right to provide for the suc- sion in the case of the death, remov- or resignation of the President or inability to discharge his duties, lacks the power at present to say shall serve in the case of a fail- to elect a President.

In discussing the proposed correc- of this constitutional defect the ate committee, in reporting favor- y the amendment, of which Senator rris [Rep., Neb.] is the author, said: The importance of this can be un- stood when we realize that under present constitution if the election President and Vice President should thrown into congress on account of failure of the electoral college to t, and that the house should fail in the time specified in the consti- on to elect a President, and the ate should likewise fail during such to elect a Vice President, the ntry would be left entirely without chief magistrate and without any ans of selecting one. This condition , it is true, never happened in the tory of the country, and while it y never happen, it does seem very ortant that some constitutional pro- on be enacted by which this most gerous emergency may be avoided."

Might Select Old President.

If the proposed amendment becomes part of the constitution it will be up congress to designate the officer to as President in the event of a fail- to elect. Congress then might pro- that the outgoing President should over until the election and quali- tion of a successor or that the out- g Vice President or the secretary state should take the helm tempor- y.

Under other provisions of the Nor- amendment the date of the inaugu- ion of the President would be nged from March 4 to the third day in January, and the begin- of a new congress to the first nday in January following the elec- n. Congress thus would assemble months instead of thirteen months r it is elected. There would be no rvening short session of the old, frequently repudiated, congress, a ion which generally is only so ch wasted time and a marking of pending the change of policy de- d by the election.

New House Would Elect.

Under this provision also, if the elec- of President should be thrown into ngress, the choice would be made the newly elected house, and not, at present, by the house elected two rs before. Under the present sys- the candidate of one party might chosen by the outgoing house, al- gh a new house of the opposite ty complexion had just been chosen. Senator Norris and other support- of the amendment argued that the nge would make congress more re- sive to the electorate. It would rate to eradicate the "lame duck."

In the final short session of a gress there always is a certain ber of lame ducks, senators and esentatives defeated for reëlection, diated by their constituents, but for four months afterward having oice in determining legislation. metimes this "hangover" session the opportunity for a repudiated y, administration, and congress to through legislation contrary to the of the electorate as expressed in preceding election, and lame ducks rewarded with appointments to ad- istrative office for their services supporting such legislation before old order changes.

[illegible] would be ended by the proposed amendment. The new congress would come into office and assemble two months after the election. In a presidential election year it would canvass the returns, immediately proclaim the President elect, or proceed to choose a President in the event of an electoral college deadlock. Two weeks after the meeting of congress the President, elected at the polls or by the house, would be inaugurated, or the acting President, designated by congress in the event of a deadlock, would take office.

"In a government by the people," says the committee report, "the wishes of a majority should be crystallized into legislation as soon as possible after these wishes have been made known. These mandates should be obeyed within a reasonable time."

New Body in Power.

The congress under the proposed new plan would end two months after the election of its successor. The passage of appropriation bills for the next fiscal year would devolve upon the new instead of the old congress, and there would be no reason that the old congress should not finish its work and adjourn sine die before the election.

The lame duck evil and the filibustering evil, which is notorious in the short session at present, would be minimized. Incidentally the lame duck argument has come home to roost in the present congress. The radicals have been loud in their denunciation of the participation in legislation of lame ducks who were regular Republicans and Democrats. In the coming short session there will be a radical lame duck in the senate—Magnus Johnson [Far.-Lab., Minn.], and it will be interesting to observe to what extent his participation in legislation this winter stirs indignation, if at all, in the radical breast.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94 PER CENT AIR

Beats Electric or Gas.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke, or noise—no pumping up; is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent air and 6 per cent common kerosene [coal oil].

The inventor, L. P. Johnson, 609 West Lake street, Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on ten days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Adv.

PROVIDING A HOME FOR MOTHERLESS CHILDREN

LEGALLY ADOPTED

When Mrs. John Redmond, wife of a wealthy Sycamore [Ill.] farmer, learned that her schoolmate of girlhood days, Mrs. William P. Ward, had died and left four small children to be cared for in an orphanage, she at once took them into her own home.

Yesterday, before County Judge J. L. Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. Redmond adopted the children as their own. The children are: Robert J. Ward, 7, George W., 5, Mary P., 3, and John F., 2 years old. Their father, who lives at 2970 Indiana avenue, consented to the adoption, saying it was impossible for him to care for them.

Court attachés said the adoption of four children by one couple is extremely rare.

MICHIGAN HAS SNOW; BUT IT'S TO BE FAIR HERE

While Old Man Winter stalks over Montana and the Dakotas with icy breath and withering hand, Chicago and vicinity may expect at least several days more of fair, clear weather. The nearest snowfall came in the upper peninsula of Michigan and none was in sight for the Chicago or lower middle west sections for some time.

The official report indicated it would be slightly warmer today, but cooler tomorrow.

Assistant State's Attorneys Emmet Byrne and Harry Pritzker argued against the motion for rehearing.

NELL GWYN 'AS VENUS' PORTRAIT IS SOLD IN N. Y.

New York, Nov. 8.—A portrait of Nell Gwyn, famous English stage beauty and favorite of King Charles II., painted by Sir Peter Lely, court painter during the reigns of Charles I. and Charles II. of England, has been sold by Grosvenor Clarkson to Mary Coleman, Inc., it became known today. Since authentic pictures of the "Orange Girl of Drury Lane" are said to be rare, the transfer of the portrait has aroused interest in art circles.

The picture, now on exhibition in Miss Coleman's studio, is twenty-five by thirty inches and represents Nell Gwyn as Venus resting on silk draperies. A cupid at the right of her is believed to be a portrait of one of her sons.

CONGRESSIONAL CRUMBS PORTION OF BOB'S CROWD

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—The radical bloc, led by Senator La Follette, which definitely took itself out of the Republican party in the last election, will be considered as representatives of a new party in the Sixty-ninth congress. They will get committee assignments only in proportion to their strength.

Senator Watson today said La Follette and all those "who read themselves out of the party" would lose their places in committees upon reorganization of the congress. Senator Smoot is inclined to let the recalcitrants alone, but this policy of compromise is not expected to be followed.

Representative William S. Vare of Philadelphia, with thirty-six Republican members from Pennsylvania behind him, proposes that the old-time caucus shall be revived in order to compel party election and eliminate radicalism from the legislative halls. He proposes that the Republican caucus of the house in the Sixty-ninth congress should bind themselves in an agreement to eliminate blocs.

AUSTRIAN STRIKE MAY BRING NEW EUROPEAN STORM

Rome, Prague Threaten Armed Intervention.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Nov. 8.—Serious complications which may embrace partial military occupation of Austrian territory by Italian and Czecho-Slovak troops are feared will result from the strike of Austrian railway workers and the resignation last night of the Seipel cabinet.

Confidential information in political circles here states that the Rome and Prague governments are in accord that rail communications across Austria must be preserved, regardless of the railway men's attempt to paralyze traffic through a strike, and if necessary Czech and Italian trains, conveyed by soldiers along the main trunk lines, will be operated.

Italians Threaten to Act.

Premier Mussolini is determined to keep open the main line from Vienna via Brenner and Kufstein to Munich, and thence to Prague. The line traverses the Tyrol, and Italy depends on its operation for coal, coke, foodstuffs and imports and exports. Czecho-Slovakia requires constant operation on this line for communication with Italy and tidewater.

THE TRIBUNE is informed that pressure will be brought on both the Prague and Rome governments not to violate Austrian soil by sending troops across the frontier as the railway strike is purely a domestic problem for the Vienna government.

Germany Will Aid Austria.

Austrian officials here assert they are assured by Berlin that the reich government will cut the line and prevent communications via Munich if either Prague or Rome take military measures.

The league of nations may interfere in the problem, as one of the Geneva subcommittees deals with international transports. A Dutchman Herr Zimmerman, league dictator of Austria, has unofficially warned the Czecho-Slovak and Italian envoys in Vienna not to interfere with the railway situation.

GERMAN STRIKE NEAR

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—A meeting of German railroad workers Monday will determine whether Germany will follow the Austrian example and proclaim a general railroad strike. All trains running to Vienna have been stopped.

German railroaders while demanding more wages, also are angry over the continual diminution of employés which the interallied control board under the Dawes plan is carrying out. Communist railroad workers are using the high cost of living to agitate a strike. Moscow has ordered the German communist party to do its utmost to sabotage all the Dawes plan works. In this activity the communists have the support of the nationalists and monarchists.

Many Americans Marooned.

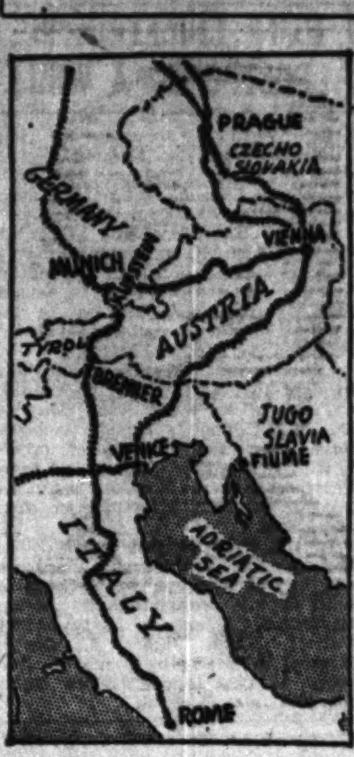
Hundreds of Americans planning to visit Vienna are marooned here. The Italian and Bavarian transit lines are stopped and food supplies also are ceasing to come over Brenner pass. German border stations are filled with all trains which the Austrians cleared from their country. The Orient express, which runs via Vienna, also has been ordered stopped at Salmburg. The German railroads have ordered passengers and goods routed via Switzerland for Italy.

Havana Street Cars Tied Up.

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 8.—Street car traffic was paralyzed here today when union platform men of the Havana Electric Railway Light & Power company went on strike. Union leaders announced that the strike would last for twenty-four hours as a protest against the suspension of six employés charged with minor fractions of rules.

The strike, which affects about [illegible] employés, came entirely without warning to the public.

MORE TROUBLE



Europe faces new troubles as Italy and Czecho-Slovakia threaten to use armed guards on trains traversing Austria, whose railways are tied up by a strike. Germany is reported ready to cut train service at Munich, should other nations intervene in Austria.

I'M GOOD AS KING! HARSH WORDS BY GEN. LUDENDORFF

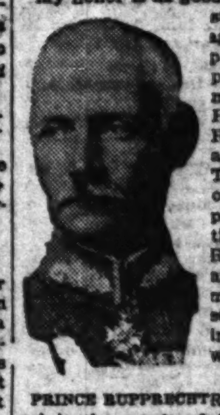
BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—The only humor in the present German general election campaign is being furnished by Gen. von Ludendorff, who is fighting Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria. Nothing fazes Gen. von Ludendorff. Although boycotted by the conference of Bavarian army generals and invited to leave Bavaria, Gen. von Ludendorff is clamoring for revenge.

GEN. LUDENDORFF

He demanded an apology from Crown Prince Rupprecht today, saying: "My honor is as good as any king's. I stake my word against King Rupprecht's. Rupprecht offended me and Gen. von Hindenburg asked Rupprecht to apologize to me. The generals and officers who have passed a resolution in favor of Rupprecht and against me are making themselves the laughing stock of the whole world."



PRINCE RUPPRECHT

The Ludendorff-Rupprecht quarrel is the result of Gen. von Ludendorff's fight for the restoration of former Kaiser Wilhelm and a Protestant dynasty, against Crown Prince Rupprech's Catholic dynasty plan.

SELECTION OF NEW FIRE CHIEFTAIN IS POSTPONED A WHILE

Selection of a successor to John C. McDonnell, the retiring deputy chief fire marshal and head of the fire prevention bureau, will not be made for several weeks, Fire Commissioner Joseph F. Connery said yesterday. Chief McDonnell, while officially on a leave of absence until his resignation becomes effective on Nov. 20, is aiding Commissioner Connery in the compilation of a revised regulation code for the department.

Considerable pressure has been brought to bear for the appointment of Eighth Assistant Fire Marshal Daniel J. Carmody. Equally vigorous have been the protests of others against a selection which would jump Carmody over the heads of seven assistant marshals, his senior in years of service.

In the order of their standing on the seniority list the deputy marshals, any one of whom may be chosen as chief deputy, are as follows: Arthur Seyferlich, Jeremiah J. McAuliffe, Patrick Egan, James J. Costin, Michael J. Corrigan, Daniel J. Carmody, William Dillon, Andrew Gillespie, and John P. Stahl.

FOUR BOYS TO BE ARRAIGNED FOR DEATH OF PAL

New York, Nov. 8.—Arraignment of the four boys, ranging in age from 8 to 13 years, who are being held in connection with the fatal shooting of 13 year old Earnest Schwer Jr., whose body was found last night hidden in a swamp near Richmond Hills, Long Island, today was postponed until next Tuesday. They will be arraigned on charges of juvenile delinquency.

Meanwhile, detectives continued to question the four youths, who have held to their story that the Schwer boy was shot accidently and that they hid his body because they feared they would be blamed.

Arthur Meighan, 13, who is alleged to have accidently pulled the trigger that caused his chum's death, showed no signs of nervousness as the detectives examined him. Harold, his 8 year old brother, is one of the boys being held. The others are Adam Rotunda, 12, and Charley Hirshfield, 8.

Gen. Garibaldi Seeks Duel with Premier Mussolini

ROME, Nov. 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—Seconds for Gen. Peppino Garibaldi, grandson of the Italian patriot, who was challenged to a duel yesterday by Gen. Varini, commander of the Tenth zone of the Fascist militia, today asserted their principal would not accept a duel with Varini. He is ready to accept a duel with Premier Mussolini, whom Gen. Garibaldi considers responsible for the attack by the Fascist militia upon former soldiers on Tuesday, Nov. 4, when Italy was celebrating the sixth anniversary of her armistice with Austria.

2 MOONSHINERS KILLED IN FIGHT WITH DRY SQUAD

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 8.—Fillmore Sexton and Lee West, alleged moonshiners, were slain and a third man, Howard Griffith, severly wounded in a battle with prohibition officers near Huntsville, Tenn.

Members of the prohibition squad today gave a thrilling account of the battle in which eight moonshiners were pitted against fourteen enforcements officials. The battle started when the raiders approached Sexton's home when several men stepped from the house and opened fire. More than 100 shots were exchanged.

When the raiders reached the barricade they found Sexton dead with his wife and five children huddled about him. Other members of the band had fled except Griffiths, who had been shot through the arm, and West, who died a short time later.

Baroness Answers Ad for Nurse; Now She's a Bride

New York, Nov. 8.—Baroness Helene von Korzun-Parondiadis, a sister of Albert Karl von Korzun, minister of finance for Latvia, was married in the city hall today to Dr. J. Lawrence Cigale, formerly an officer in the medical corps of the Russian czar's army. It was through an advertisement for a nurse that he met the baroness, who had taken up nursing for a livelihood. The first husband of the baroness was killed in the Balkans during the war. She gave her age as 27 years.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Severe restrictions on the sale of veronal as a drug were advised by Sir William Wilcox, medical adviser to the British home office, today. The English health official declares veronal is responsible for an enormous number of deaths, many of which are diagnosed as accidental or from natural causes. He wants the drug abolished as far as possible.

NEW HUNT FOR PLACE, MISSING FOOTBALL STAR

earn New Facts; Make Search Nation-Wide.

st when Wheaton college authori- had concluded that the mystery of disappearance of Danny Place, end of the school's football team, cleared up, new facts were uncov- which last night brought a na- wide search for the missing stu-

Place disappeared from the campus the Congregational school three ago. The only reason for his den disappearance was given by 's former fiancée, Mrs. William nfritz, of McKeesport, Pa. She Wheaton friends that she had ed the youth last summer by him of her wedding.

Bomb Explodes in Car.

Four weeks ago Ilgenfritz had a nar- escape from death. He opened door of his automobile and a bomb ploded.

This much, and the news that Mrs. ank Place of Blossburg, Pa., the ssing youth's stepmother, had wired she had received a letter from and that the reason for his dis- pearance was the jilting by Mrs. Il- fritz, was known.

And so the college authorities pre- ed to drop the search for Place. feared talk about the jilting, they cluded.

But yesterday certain new facts re brought to light.

In the first place the explosion was re serious in its consequence than been supposed. Ilgenfritz was un- rt, but Nelson Lebreton, 10 years , who was with Ilgenfritz, lost an y in the blast. The parents of the ld, moreover, are said to be plan- g a suit for damages.

Police Made Inquiry.

A second fact newly revealed yester- y was that a checkup has been de on Place's whereabouts at the e of the explosion. McKeesport po- asked Chief of Police Sullivan of eaton to make the check. He rned that Place was absent from college from Oct. 10 to 13. The plosion occurred on Oct. 12.

The third fact: The parents of the ured boy have publicly asked that ry effort be made to find Place.

So the search for the missing stu- t has been renewed and extended.

JAPAN TESTS 2 DORNIER PLANES SENT BY GERMANY

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 8.—Two Dornier Wal monoplanes brought to Kobe as samples when the Dornier patents were purchased by the Kawasaki dock yard for manufacture in Japan were given test flights on Nov. 4 with German pilots. The planes were assembled in view of the arrival in Japan next week of Dornier, whose coming has been kept secret. The reason for his trip is not known. The machines assembled are of the same type as those built for Roald Amundsen's intended flight to the north pole.

Discussing Henry Wales' recent story from Paris regarding Japanese plans for naval and airship expansion, Capt. Fujita, aide to the minister of the navy, denounces it as inspired by some one seeking to embroil Japan and France.

He says Mr. Wales' reference to Japanese and American warships ratio are erroneous inasmuch as there is no ratio except for capital ships. Japan is seeking a rapprochment with France, says Capt. Fujita, and therefore the statements that France suspects the Japanese navy are wrong.

$15,000 Fire Imperils Vast C., B. & Q. Lumber Stores

Fire, breaking out in a box factory shed owned by Maxwell Brothers, 2300 South Morgan street, endangered hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of lumber in the Morgan street yard of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad last night. Prompt action by the fire department and Fire Marshall Edward J. Buckley, who sent out a 4-11 alarm, confined the flames to the shed and saved the adjacent lumber. The damage was estimated at $15,000.

CHARGED WITH HITTING OTHERS' CHILDREN; SUES

Choir Singer Asks $100,000 for Slander.

Spanking another person's children is a serious breach of the peace, according to Noble Cain, 2511 Eastwood avenue, Evanston, music instructor at Senn High school, choir singer and chorus director.

So serious a breach it is that "when one is falsely accused of such a thing" the accusers ought to pay $100,000 damages, he declared yesterday as he filed two suits, each for that amount.

One suit is directed against Samuel Vernon Jr., 2507 Eastwood avenue, Evanston, a science teacher at the New Trier High school. The other accuses Justice of the Peace Max Witkower of Evanston.

Attorney Gives Details.

The story about the spanking and what followed is supplied by Cain's attorney, Hart E. Baker, who filed praecipes in the suits in the Circuit court.

It seems that Mr. Cain has two daughters, one 4, the other 2 years old. And that Mr. Vernon, almost a next door neighbor, has a daughter, aged 3, and two sons, aged 6 and 4. They used to play together.

One day, Attorney Baker declares, the Vernon heirs went home crying and told their father that Cain had administered a spanking. The enraged father caused Cain to be haled into court before Justice Witkower.

The justice, according to Mr. Baker, dismissed the charge and told the two families to "go home and forget about it." Later, Mr. Baker charged, Justice Witkower announced he had found Cain guilty of chastising the Vernon children, and had placed him under a $200 peace bond.

Sues Them Both.

So, says Mr. Baker, Justice Witkower is guilty of libel and slander, to the tune of $100,000. And so, says Mr. Baker, Vernon is guilty of $100,000 worth of malicious prosecution and slander.

Mr. Vernon yesterday reiterated his charge that Mr. Cain struck Samuel Vernon Jr., aged 4, with his open hand, knocking him to the ground.

Mr. Vernon's Story.

"The Cains did not want our boys to play with their children," he said. "Once Mr. Cain pushed our little girl, Barbara Jean, and talked in an ungentlemanly manner to Mrs. Vernon, saying: 'Why, I'd give $100 to take a crack at one of your brats.' He struck the little boy on Oct. 20 when my boys were playing next door to his yard."

Justice Witkower says this: "Mr. Cain was arrested and found guilty as charged, and upon the pleading of the plaintiff was placed under a peace bond of $200 for six months. He has appealed to the Criminal court, signed the appeal, and paid the fees thereof, but has as yet not completed the bond for approval. All this happened Nov. 1, 1924."

Attorney Baker, for Mr. Cain, declared the appeal bond is illegal.

HELD FOR WOMAN'S MURDER.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 8.—Walter Sadawski, 33, of Detroit, was arrested today for the murder of Mrs. Elizabeth Tvasko, 42.

FREIGHT CARS CHANT PRELUDE TO PROSPERITY

Record Loadings Sign of Good Times.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

As a barometer of prosperity, the present record breaking traffic on the railroads reveals that "good times" are not only here, but that they are pretty evenly spread over the whole United States, rural and urban.

For twelve weeks and more, shipments of grain have reached an unprecedented volume. The money has been rolling back into the countryside. The farmer has started buying. Business and industry are feeling the stimulus. As the grain trains roll out of the west they meet other trains loaded heavily with goods from the industrial centers.

Merchandise shipments and miscellaneous freight are now the largest in the history of American railroading. The demand upon transportation is the greatest the railways have ever experienced. As a climax it has been met without any car shortage, which is pointed out as a testimonial to the progress made by the railroads in betterment of equipment and service since the government turned them back to private operation early in 1920.

Record Car Loadings.

A few figures will suffice to show how the movement of freight has smashed old records in recent weeks. Total loadings for the week ended Oct. 25 were 1,112,345 cars. The week before they were 1,102,236. Up to that time the record was 1,092,567 cars for the last week in September, 1923.

Up to this season, grain shipments never ran above 65,000 cars a week, except for three weeks in 1921, which held the old record. This season, for eleven consecutive weeks, the weekly grain loadings exceeded 65,000 cars. The last week in October they ran up to 72,474 cars.

Miscellaneous freight shipments in September crossed the 400,000 carload mark for the first time since rail statistics were started. For the last week in October they climbed to 422,890 cars. Less than carload lot shipments ran up to 257,629 cars, the last week in October, a gain of 5,600 cars over a year ago. In 1920, the peak year, the same week they ran 213,000 cars.

Predict Growing Prosperity.

Experts who live on statistical tables say this means growing prosperity this winter.

"A heavy increase in fall freight," one authority says, "invariably presages a period of brisk winter and spring business."

The absence of any car shortage this year, which is almost a phenomenon in face of the growth in traffic volume, is ascribed to improved and increased rolling stock, more efficient operation, and to the activities of the regional shippers' advisory boards. There are eleven of these, organized at the suggestion of the American Railway association, and they are reported to have performed great work in aiding distribution of cars, especially in the northwest.

There has been no car shortage since early 1923. Before that time, especially during government operation, shortages were the habit when the peak load was piled on by shippers—1920 was an especially bad year in this respect in the agricultural states.

400,000 New Cars.

In the last three years about 400,000 new freight cars have been put into service. About that number of old cars were scrapped, so there was not much increase in number of cars. But there was in carrying capacity and in serviceability. The average capacity per car is now 44 tons, as against 41.6 tons in 1918. When that gain is spread over 2,400,000 freight cars it amounts to considerable.

Western roads alone today have 50,000 new freight cars still on order. Last year 4,037 new locomotives were installed, the largest gain since 1913. Some 3,600 old engines were retired. In number there are not many more locomotives today than in 1919. But the tractive power has risen. Slason Thompson estimates a net increase of 1,652 pounds of tractive power per locomotive between 1919 and 1922, and in the last two years this has grown considerably.

Rolling Stock Rebuilt.

Much of the rolling stock had to be rebuilt after its severe usage under government control. Gradually the roads have got equipment back into shape, although handicapped by the shopmen's strike two years ago. In October, 1922, about 13 per cent of the freight cars were listed as in bad order. Last month it had been cut to 8.9 per cent.

The shippers, it is pointed out, can aid greatly by loading more into a car. In 1918, when the government pressed shippers, the average paying load was 26.9 tons per loaded car. This year it is only 24 tons, although the average car has 2½ tons more capacity than in 1918. Samuel O. Dunn of the Railway Age estimates a saving of $250,000,000 would have been made in 1923 if the average load had been as great proportionately to the capacity of the car as in 1918.

What rail experts account a "triumph of management" has occurred in the reduction of operating expenses. In September, 1920, the peak year, operating expenses of the railroads aggregated $509,700,000. Last September this figure had been cut to $381,600,000, a reduction of $128,000,000.

Cut Number of Employés.

It amounts to a reduction of $4,200,000 a day in operating expenses alone. This was brought about by several factors. For one thing, in September, 1920, the roads had 2,100,000 employés. Last August they had 1,788,000. This was a reduction of 311,000 in number of workers, yet the smaller force handled a tremendously increased business. It lopped $41,540,000 a month off operating expenses.

Since the peak year 1920 wage changes have occurred from time to time. The average wage is given by the Bureau of Railway Economics as $134 a month, as against $156.30 in 1920. Thus of the total reduction of $128,000,000 a month in operating expenses, not more than $39,000,000 came from a lowering of wages from the 1920 level.

Gross income, of course, has also fallen. In September, 1920, total railroad earnings were $618,936,000, while last September they were $540,741,000. But the net operating income has grown. It was $79,000,000 in September, 1920; last September it was $116,000,000, indicating growing prosperity.

COOLIDGE AND DAWES NOT SO BAD AT THAT, ADMITS BRYAN (BILL)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—In a statement issued here tonight, William Jennings Bryan declared the Democratic party remains "the only hope of the progressive element of the country."

"The Republican victory, he said, was not as disastrous to the Democrats as that of 1920, when overwhelming Republican majorities were returned in senate and house. He counseled Democrats to "find consolation in the fact that the high character of President Coolidge and Gen. Dawes insures that the country will have the very best service that they can render."

"The third party, even under the able leadership of Senator La Follette," Mr. Bryan said, "polled such a small percentage of the total vote that his supporters must be convinced that it is impossible to build up a class party in the United States."

STEPFATHER HAS INDIAN WHO WED DAUGHTER HELD

Edward Thompson, full blooded Indian, is in jail, his bride of a week is at the home of her step-father, and charges that Thompson has contributed to the delinquency of his bride soon may bring an annulment of the marriage.

Thomas J McNichols of Edison Park is the step-father. He had the Indian arrested on Sept 18, in an attempt to keep him away from his ward, Joy Gubbins, 17 years old. Judge William L. Morgan placed Thompson under probation.

Last week the separated pair eloped to Waukegan, where they were married. Judge Morgan will decide the delinquency case on Nov. 15. McNichols says he will begin annulment proceedings.

COREANS TO SEEK INDEPENDENCE BY ECONOMIC CLUB

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

HONOLULU, Nov. 8.—Syngman Rhee, president of the Corean provisional republic, who has returned to Honolulu from Washington, announced today the Corean nationalists' plans for a new independence movement.

"The struggle for Corean independence will assume a new aspect, dealing primarily with economic conditions," he said. "We aim to build Corean trade by financing business and agriculture, making my country economically independent of Japan."

ITALIAN VARIETY OF KLAN SMASHED BY ROME POLICE

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, Nov. 7.—The police here are busy breaking up a secret society which was formed to smash Fascism. The plans of the society were revealed by the arrest of Sig. Bellini, former captain of cavalry, who studied Ku Klux Klan methods in the United States, and twenty of his followers.

The society, called Amici de Polchoi, met in a cave which once held the bones of thousands of Christian martyrs. Sig. Bellini provided mysterious initiation rites, which embraced solemn oaths and the donning of mask, cloak, and red shirt.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of Calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The Calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

CONTINUED BOOM IN 'CHANGE O. K.'S G. O. P. LANDSLIDE

Stocks Go to New Highs in Record Market.

New York, Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Belief that the election results have set the stage for one of the most prosperous periods in American history was translated again today into one of the biggest days the securities and commodities markets ever have had.

In stocks, in bonds, and in grains there was another upward surge of prices accompanied by such tremendous volume of trading that market followers were surprised "The public is in the market," was the explanation.

The stock market had a day such as it never before had witnessed. An avalanche of buying orders appeared at the start. In the first fifteen minutes the volume of transactions reached 150,000 shares and more than twenty issues jumped to new peak prices for the year.

700,000 Shares in Hour.

At the end of the first hour the volume of trading had reached nearly 700,000 shares. The second hour brought even heavier trading and at the close of the market the official report showed 1,415,400 shares dealt in. But as no trades of less than 100 shares are reported, it was estimated that the day's total business ran close to 1,500,000 shares. No such trading as this had ever before been seen in a Saturday two hour session.

On the tidal wave of buying seventy-seven issues rose to new high levels for the year. Of these forty-three were railroad shares. The general level of the rails soared to the highest point in seven years. The industrial shares also attained a new high average for the year.

Rails Lead the Advance.

The railroad shares again led the advance. Brokers reported buying orders from every section of the country ranging from a few shares to blocks of 6,000 to 8,000 This buying embraced both the high grade dividend payers and the low priced speculative issues.

New York Central touched 116⅝, the highest price since 1912, but closed unchanged at 115¼. Southern Pacific crossed par for the first time since 1912. Among the other issues to move into high ground were Pennsylvania, Southern railway, Baltimore and Ohio, Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville and Nashville, and the Frisco, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific, and Wabash issues.

U. S. Steel Reaches 113.

But spirited bidding also took place in the standard industrial issues. U. S. Steel common led the advance in this group, touching 113, the highest price in five years. American can and U S. Cast Iron Pipe sold at their highest prices in history, while American Tobacco "B," H. R. Mallinson, United Drug, Corn Products, and a score others bettered their previous 1924 maximum quotations.

Railroad bonds moved upward in the wake of stocks, and with such impetus as to bring the general level of bond prices to the highest point of the year and to establish a new record in volume of trading for a Saturday session, with total sales of $13,700,000.

Speculative Rails Soar.

The semi-speculative railroad line led the advance. New high prices for the year were established by New Haven 7's and convertible 6's, Seaboard Air Line refunding 4s, adjustment 5s, and Consolidated 6's, Frisco income 6's and New York Central 6's, which moved up from fractions to 2 points.

Corresponding gains were registered by an assortment of both high and low priced liens, including Atchison adjustment 5's, St. Louis Southwestern Consolidated 4's, St. Paul Convertible 5's, Convertible 4⅛'s, and 4¼'s of 1932, Baltimore and Ohio 4's, and Pere Marquette 5's.

Wheat, Corn Advance.

The Chicago grain market also caught the fever of speculative enthusiasm. Wheat scored 2⅛ cents a bushed at one time and the December delivery was only half a cent below the season's highest price, reached Oct. 16

Wheat futures for all months, from December to May, closed at net gains of 1⅝ to 1⅞ cents a bushel. The advance in corn prices ranged from 1⅛ to nearly 2 cents a bushel.

The foreign exchange market also showed strength. Demand sterling rose to above $4.60, the highest price since July, 1923. Two issues of United Kingdom bonds, the 5½s of 1929 and 1937, reached new high prices for the year.

Publication of the government report, estimating the cotton crop at 12,816,000 bales, brought about a flurry of selling in cotton futures, but this was followed by a sharp rally, leaving closing prices 40 to 53 points higher.

Coffee futures spurted 35 to 90 points at the opening, but heavy Brazilian selling cut down the gains, final quotations showing net gains of 15 to 30 points.

Beaten, She Says; Sues

FLORENCE LEE.

New York, Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Hugo Corby Fox, president of Fox Brothers, dealers in railroad supplies, is defendant in a suit for $100,000 for alleged damages, brought by Miss Florence Lee, an actress. Mr. Fox, after being arrested on a civil warrant, put up $1,000 cash bail and was reported to have sailed today for Cuba, where he has large sugar interests.

The suit grew out of an alleged beating given the actress on Oct. 26, when she and Fox were returning from Fox's summer home in Babylon, L. I., where Miss Lee says she went on invitation of Fox. Miss Lee says that motoring back to New York, she sat next to Fox on the rear seat. All at once, she avers, Fox called her a "dirty little bum," struck her in the face and continued to beat her for several minutes.

LOOT CIGAR STORE TILL.

Two bandits looted the cash register in A. Schulte's cigar store at 200 South Michigan avenue of $75 last night after they had forced Leo Eike, 6450 Kimbark avenue, the clerk, into a rear room.

HUNGER, BLACK DEATH STALK IN SOUTH RUSSIA

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 8. — Starvation equaled only by that of the days of the Volga famine is paralyzing Stavrapol, in the Caucasus, according to an official report of a commission sent to Stavrapol by M. Rykov to investigate food conditions in the stricken area.

In the Stavropol district alone, 112,000 peasants are listed by the government as actually starving. Cattle are dying since they have no feed. There are 3,000 cases of "black death," the Russian equivalent to black pest, in Stavropol.

Both peasants and workers refuse to obey the orders of the doctors, and demand that the money given to doctors be spent on food for them and their families. They tried to chase the doctors from town, and broke into the isolation barracks, where black pest cases are isolated.

Obregon Plans Amnesty for Political Prisoners

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—All political prisoners in Mexico will be given their freedom by President Obregon on Nov. 20, the date that marks the beginning of the Madero revolution, according to the newspapers Excelsior and El Universal of Mexico City.

REDS' FLAG BAITS YANKEE BULL IN CHINA—TROTZKY

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

RIGA, Nov. 8.—There remains today only one real enemy of bolshevism, and that is America, War Commissar Trotzky told the quartermaster department of the Red army in a recent Moscow meeting.

Trotzky's speech lasted two hours, and three-fourths of it was devoted to the "insane military orgy in America which capitalists called a day of defense." Trotzky argued that it was impossible to make further cuts in the strength of the Red army, because American interests were sure to clash with the soviet government in China, where the Red flag is flying over the Peking embassy, baiting the American bull.

"American capitalists have apoplexy from too much gold," Trotzky says. "America has reached the high point of industrial development and must seek foreign markets. Therefore, the American fleet now equals that of the English, America is first in aviation, and first in war chemistry, and this is only the beginning of the development of a Kaser Wilhelm spirit in the United States."

HUNT KIN OF GUN VICTIM.

Abraham Tilzer, a jewelry salesman, believed to have relatives in Chicago, was found dead with a bullet wound in his head in Danville, Ill., a week ago. Danville police yesterday asked the Chicago force to assist in finding relatives of the victim.

ROTTERDAM ASKS U. S. NOT TO MOVE CONSUL GENERAL

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

THE HAGUE, Nov. 8.—The Rotterdamsche Courant an influential newspaper has started a campaign against Washington's decision to transfer the American consulate general from Rotterdam to Amsterdam. The paper supports its opposition by pointing out that Rotterdam in 1923 was a port of call for 369 ships from the United States, while Amsterdam received only 19.

Regarding ships under the American flag, the paper says, 186 with 3,000,000 tons entered Rotterdam and 29 with 500,000 Amsterdam. Further, Rotterdam is the seat of the Holland-America line, Henry Ford's Dutch factory, of the Dutch offices of the Black Diamond, Tampa Interoceanic, Cosmopolitan and Northern States lines, all of which are affiliated with the shipping board.

Do Not Meet U. S. Creditor; Roumania Orders Officers

The Roumanian government is a debtor to the Baldwin works and for a long time has refused payment.

THE ELECTION MANDATE AND THE COMING CONGRESS.

In December congress will meet—the old congress which will go out of existence by operation of law on March 4th. It will meet, we hope, in a somewhat chastened mood. The election has indicated, it would seem, and very clearly, that the nation is not disposed to radical legislative experimentation and would like to have a congress which takes its line from Mr. Coolidge rather than from impatient minority leaders. The latter were able to assert during the last session that they spoke for the people, and no one could prove they did not. Well, the people have spoken for themselves now, and it has not been an indorsement of congress, much less of its extremists, but of the President.

Mr. Coolidge, at the last session, had the weakness of a responsibility acquired, so to speak, in another's right, through the death of Mr. Harding. This was not a fair distinction, for as a matter of fact and of law, Mr. Coolidge was chosen by the people to be President, in such event, when he was chosen by them to be Vice President. But he did not, and could not, have any such authority as he now possesses, direct from the extraordinary tribute of confidence and approval given him at the late election.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that congress in the coming session will leave off the hopelessly controversial subjects carried over from the last session and spend the few months of its existence in some common constructive effort to meet immediate needs. The election showed congress what the nation wants. It wants good times, and it believes it can get them through men who are experienced in achievement, not merely orators, men who are conservative, but doers, builders, not tearers down. The nation has served notice on congress that it wants economy in public expenditure, security and justice for private enterprise, common sense, not class hatred in taxation, continued protection for American industry, continued freedom from European complications.

As to the latter we have something to say elsewhere. As to internal questions, we believe the nation can and will take heart in certain important assurances, and they are these:

The President will direct his sound judgment to the problem of agricultural stability and progress, beginning with his proposed conference to work out a program. In this, we think, the Vice President-elect can apply his genius for practical results with good effect.

Second, we can be assured that economy in government expenditures will continue and that adjustments of taxation, if any are possible, will follow the line of common sense. The La Follette idea that the heavier you tax profits the more the common people will prosper, is dope which the good sense of the nation has refused to swallow, and the strenuous demands of a vociferous minority for a return of the mischievous excess taxes can be ignored.

A third important assurance, which has a wider bearing upon the nation's prosperity than is realized, is that the Esch-Cummins railroad act will be given a fair chance to show its merits or demerits, and the railroads will have protection from unwise raids by the railroad baiters. This by no means precludes the possibility of proper reduction of rates, but such as may be made will be made by the agency fitted to pass upon the matter and maintained for that purpose, the interstate commerce commission. If the railroads are given a chance to earn an adequate revenue, as they will under fair regulation, with due regard for the interests of the public, shipper, investor, and employé, their prosperity will be reflected in agriculture and commerce. With the danger of confiscatory political action removed, at least for a while, our great system of transportation should prosper and improve for the common benefit. The farmer especially is interested in this, for he needs not only moderate freight charges but efficient service, and he has shown his good sense and foresight in repudiating government ownership, which means control by politicians, which means high rates and poor service.

The election, we trust, will also moderate bloc tactics, if not destroy blocs, so far as they represent narrow conceptions of legislative action rather than fair coöperation for the legitimate defense and furtherance of common interests consistently with the general good.

Radicalism, class intolerance, narrow class or sectional partisanism, have been rebuked, and a clear mandate has been given by the people. The nation does not want radical experimentation or change for the sake of change. It does not want restrictions and burdens on enterprise.

But of this we are equally certain, that the nation does not want, and will not tolerate, reaction or the control of the great resources of our country by a favored few or a favored section. If the new administration should fall under the undue influence of great organized financial or sectional interests, the reversal of Tuesday's splendid indorsement would be swift and overwhelming. In 1908 Taft and the Republican party swept Bryan and the Democratic party before them to crushing defeat, but before a year had passed the Taft administration was in full retreat, the house was lost at the next congressional election, and the Republican party was split wide four years later.

Mr. Coolidge's administration is going to meet some severe tests. Business and agricultural revival, which may now be counted on, cannot be expected to be permanent. There will be ups and downs. There will be conditions in our international commerce, and perhaps in our international politics, which will make trial of our statesmanship and of our national temper and wisdom. To weather these experiences with credit and advantage to the nation will call not only for good judgment at Washington but for a confidence in that judgment as broad based as the nation. The President's administration should be not merely of high quality but highly representative of all the United States. If it is, it will command the confidence of the nation and its policies will represent the larger views of our national concerns and not be the sport of special interests to the discredit and defeat of his party, and, what is even more important, to the injury of the peace and prosperity of the American people.

THE POLITICAL PREACHER.

The Better Government association ran Hope Thompson for state's attorney. The Better Government association is a name back of which are some professional zealots. The campaign was totally discredited before it came to its end, and its end was almost ignominious. This association was an organized raid of church on politics.

THE TRIBUNE has the greatest regard for the church, but not for the church in politics. It is a fundamental part of our government to separate the two. The political conscience of the people ought not to be in the church, whether Protestant or Roman Catholic. If the one tries to elect a state's attorney it is just as bad as if the other tries to defeat the child labor amendment to the constitution.

A minister has a particular training. It is in theology. He has a particular mission. It is as the interpreter of the spiritual life. He is a part of the most solemn forms of life. He christens the child. He says the words which unite the young man and the young woman in marriage. He says the words with which the dead are buried and the living are comforted.

Birth, marriage, and death are the great periods in life and at each the spiritual mentor is needed. The theology in which a minister is trained is special training for these supreme events. It is a self-sacrificing and necessary service to mankind. Worldly rewards are outside of its domain. They are outside of its conception.

There are thousands upon thousands of clergymen devoted to this service. They work for righteousness and are unknown beyond their parish. Their names are never in the newspapers. We in the newspaper business incline towards the clergyman who goes outside his special training and his special service. The ministerial faces and words which are familiar to the people of Chicago are those of ministers who have entered a large field of activities for which they were not trained.

That is our disservice to the clergy. We always portray to the people the ministers who are most active in the fields in which they know the least. It is as if we constantly sought the advice of an electrician on a question relating to the near east, as if we always asked a chemist what he thought of the league of nations or a physician what he thought of plumbing.

When the preacher gets into public life he carries over with him a great mass of inhibitions and prohibitions which are contrary to the general rule of public conduct. Men who respect the minister do not respect him when he says they may not go to a boxing match without moral sin. They do not respect him when he endeavors to rule them in matters of habit and custom in which they think their conscience is sufficiently acute. They cannot consider him an expert on preparedness or an authority on foreign affairs with its involvement of war and peace.

People know that the church has tried temporal power all through history and that the progress of the human race has been away from the political control of the church. Therefore when the minister enters politics the instinct of people is to feel that the church is trying again to assert itself over the temporal control which has been found necessary to the political freedom of mankind.

This impression of the minister undermines the strength of the ministry and it is created by the political preacher who is the creation of the newspaper. It is not created by the real regiments of the church. There is need of both more and less of the Puritan in American life. There is need of his real character, of his self-respect and his scrupulous honesty. These are elements of his strength and America needs them. It does not need the weakness of Puritan intolerance. It does not need a revival of the Massachusetts theocracy.

NOW A STRONG FOREIGN POLICY.

Roosevelt still dominates Republican foreign policy. Its pedigree runs back through Blaine to Grant. It is a long tradition. It is a consistent and a sound tradition.

With the league once more repudiated; with the Dawes plan indirectly approved; with the understanding that foreign debts will remain debts until paid off; America is free to develop a Rooseveltian policy in the Caribbean and the Pacific.

Europe, after all, is chiefly to be let alone. The southern and the western oceans are our more natural destinies. A policy of consolidating our interests from our south frontiers to Panama should be followed. Trade with South America should be encouraged. Capital investment in the regions south of us should be furthered.

In the Pacific a more trying problem awaits American settlement. China has been broken. Russia has been drawn into Japanese association. All eastern Asia reels with change and upheaval. The Philippines demand independence. The fragmentary Nordic peoples, Australia and New Zealand, call in alarm for solidarity of the white stocks in the Pacific. This is America's most pressing foreign problem.

With the conservatives of England returned to power and promising a naval base at Singapore, with the conservatives of America overwhelmingly predominant, there is chance for a strong coöperative policy of the English speaking peoples in the Pacific. They will intelligently appreciate their mutual problem, and the chances are that they can work together well.

The revival of the Singapore base project is good for America. The plan to retain the Philippines yet a while is good for British peoples in the orient. The elements of power possessed by Britain and America should be pooled to balance growing Asiatic power in the Pacific.

Beyond all this the Republicans should pledge themselves to a strong navy. That is the key to foreign power. Our cruiser program should be expanded. Our air forces should be greatly developed. Our ships should be modernized. Shipping should be encouraged.

A strong policy in the west, a constructive and friendly policy in the south, a passive policy favorable to reconstruction in Europe, and a strong navy, that is modern Rooseveltism in foreign affairs.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

In hut happiness we have potted paper white narcissus. And the cardinal is back in the oaks. All seasons have their charm. Who would now trade November for March or the memory of October for that of April? The Darwin tulip came up in May and was red in June, but the pure white of the narcissus will be perfume in the south room when the sun comes up slowly from the north and when at early candle light it goes down red. Snowstorms will come and the gay cardinal, of whom not a sound has been heard for months, will sing in them. The last leaves of the wych hazel will be on the ground, but the cardinal will sing over a two foot drift. Life has this charm.

PIGEONS.

Pigeons are the follow up of living in Chicago. They come in like souls to watch where men and women once have been. Two pigeons sat on the sill above the river of the old Kinzie street station this morning. The sills were stained with white debris. The broken pane behind them had recently been closed. They had inhabited the place since the thunder and puff of trains had withdrawn down the river. Now they, too, were barred.

The corn of the streets, stray peanuts, and the frazzled edge of living in Chicago become pigeons. They are plump consumers with a buxom breast and imperturbable eye. Their step is portly on the elevated platforms, and they accept a peanut with some graciousness. One is privileged to tip a pigeon with a peanut, and the pigeon lets him know it.

Pigeons drop down like blue bombs from the cornices and housetops. Crumbs and lost doughnuts turn into pigeons. Popcorn grows wings and coos decorously to its mate. They are fragments of life blooming from the detritus of the streets. They are bits of the wind of being eddying among the cracks and stones.

Their wings rustle and there is solemn flapping about the punctured sack of rice on Wells street. A melon cracks on South Water and there is regional convention. Congress is called over a broken bag of beans on Market. Small disasters feed them and the gratuities of urban waste. They lead a life of calm endeavor and much waiting. They choose the streets for love and life.

CHINA REVERTS.

What Price Feng is still going strong in Peking. His technique is expert. His resources seem to be increasing. Feng has consolidated his treacheries with new success. Chang of Manchuria supports him. Japan, it seems, is complacent.

This slant-eyed Constantine has driven his old leader from Tientsin. Wu has fled to Taku, a refugee. When asked to save his life and property by entering the legation, Wu replied, "I have no property and I don't care about my life." Wu is still the great Chinaman. Tomorrow he may be a dead one.

Feng will now be unencumbered. The rigors of Wu's nationalism will be dissipated. The Anfus and corruption will return. Those are the signs today. Tomorrow they may have vanished, to be replaced by others.

Feng jumped on Wu's back the other day while Wu was pushing Chang's armies back from the Manchurian gates. Feng was Wu's lieutenant. He took Peking. It was a great coup and Wu came trundling back from Shanhaikwan to punish him. Wu made a few futile gestures with a fragmentary army and fled. That, it may be, is the end of Chinese nationalism.

Seven powers seem to be left in China. They are Feng, the traitor; Chang, the Manchurian war lord who probably made Feng what he is today; Japan, who supports Chang; Russia; the Anfus, for good reason expelled from government a few years ago; Wu; the Canton government of Sun Yat Sen, said to be honest, loyal to democracy, usually wrong, and limited to the south. This is China. Indications are that it will grow more so.

Something is stewing in China. And the chief cook, we suspect, is a yellow man across the Japan sea. The Anfus, once pro-Japanese and in all likelihood pro-Japanese still, are returning to power. Chang of Manchuria and Feng will have a hand in the new government. It should be sweet for Japan. If it isn't it will be Japan's fault. It may be rather pleasant for Russia. It will be nice for Feng and Chang and Kun and Sen for a while, at least. It will not be so nice for China or perhaps for America.

Japan, it would seem, is getting her back yard ready for the war in her front yard with a certain occidental power.

Editorial of the Day

THE CHICAGO STADIUM.

[The Grand Rapids Press.]

The middle west looks up to Chicago. It expects to find in the interior's metropolis both inspiration and instruction, as from a big brother who knows no obstacle his strength cannot bowl over. Sometimes the middle west is disappointed, but in the dedication of its great classic stadium on the lake front Chicago met and fulfilled the promise of its size and progressiveness.

Football stadiums are restricted to the use of one sport four or five times a year, their choice greens carefully preserved for a few tests between picked teams of collegians. No such venture is this. Seating 60,000 on stone steps beneath twin temple colonnades in the manner of the Greeks, Chicago's new public amphitheater was built for the people. It is a true year-round municipal institution, at the service of the civic, health and recreational activities of an entire city.

It will draw to the lake front for exercise and competition, for civic assembly or for athletic spectacle, thousands who have never attended or entered a similar event before. It will encourage, as the ancient Greek stadia encouraged, that all-round development of the body which should accompany, and alone can properly serve and preserve, the building of the mind.

Incidentally the Chicago amphitheater made possible recently the first American game of polo on a popular scale, presented to a tremendous audience of "common folks" instead of the little society gatherings ordinarily vouchsafed the chance to view this sport of kings. The civic stadium is a great democratizer.

Many a city in the middle west might borrow this page from Chicago's book. Grand Rapids, with its magnificent hollow ready formed by a kindly nature, awaits an inexpensive and handsome development of the same sort. We shall be even less wise than other cities if we do not turn our attention to the Chicago experiment.

CONQUERING INSOMNIA.

Sleepless writes: Allow me, first of all, to state that if there is a hell on earth, it's located in my sleepless chamber. If there is a bottomless pit of cruel, never ceasing, silent, tormenting punishment this side of the River Styx, it's my insomnia. Of all the dim, dark, unknown chambers of horrors; of all the haunted, hated, hideous, distressing halls on earth, it's my bedroom filled with wakefulness. For three long, weary years I have been struggling to crush this horrible insomnia which has shattered me mentally and physically. Is there no relief or cure for insomnia? What is the cause of insomnia?

REPLY.

You've got a plain case of "high strikes"; are in a frenzy; are working hard at it kicking your own head off. Of course, so long as you continue in this egocentric fashion punishing yourself there is no hope for you. The first thing for you to do is to get your shirt on and keep it on. Throw your dictionary away, forget you're mad and get on a basis of common sense. If you will train yourself in equanimity you will be all right.

Go to bed quietly, resigned to sleep or, not to sleep—it matters not which, at peace with yourself and with the world. If you do that 100 per cent you will fall to sleep rather promptly and sleep as long as you need. If you do it 75 per cent you may not fall to sleep at once, but you will get a lot of rest from the period of physical and emotional rest. Your great job is to get over your hysterics. Do that and the sleep part of the job can be worked out.

Dr. D. A. Laird has recently published an article on sleep which was based on considerable research work. Laird has something to say about training oneself to sleep. One must coax sleep by complete relaxation — physical, mental, and emotional. The best sleeping position is lying partly on the side and partly on the stomach. The head is turned to one side and the face points rather downward. The theory is that the face must be so placed that the mouth keeps shut naturally when the muscles of the lower jaw relax. This is the sovereign remedy for snoring.

The second essential is that the bed and the room make for physical and mental comfort. Monotony is a requisite. The best monotony is that of the dark and the quiet, but noise and light can be monotonous to some. Aside from these factors, which are principally physical, Laird's plan of training relates to the mental and emotional and to what may be called habit for want of a better name.

He advocates a noon nap following shortly after the noon meal. At that time one can drop at once into a deep sleep. Laird holds that about the only worth while sleep is the deep sleep. When one sleeps through an eight hour period there is about two hours of very deep sleep during which the eyes are almost fluid, the ears almost deaf and the touch sense almost absent. Then follows about four hours of fairly restful sleep in which it is easier to record light, sound, and feeling. Then follows about two hours of shallow sleep which Laird says does little good and may do harm. He suggests that many children learn to become lazy and self-indulgent through being induced to indulge themselves in the lazy self-gratification of this final shallow sleep period.

Laird says people can teach themselves to stay up until they are tired, then to fall quickly into a deep sleep and finally to awaken at the beginning of this shallow sleeping period and to get up then and go to work.

WANTS ANOTHER CAMPAIGN.

S. S. writes: Some business colleges have stands to hold the pupils' copy work. I have frequently seen papers joggled right off these holders by the pounding on the typewriters and shaking of the typewriter tables. The eye strain must be terrific. I wish you would start a campaign against shaky holders—think of the many hundreds of pairs of eyes endangered!

REPLY.

Bad time to start a campaign. Political campaigns have the country fed up. Your letter may persuade some one to start one after the country rests a bit.

BOOKS FOR THE MOTHER.

C. A. K. writes: I am three months pregnant. Some time ago I noticed you advised an inquirer to write for certain books to Washington. Will you repeat this information?

REPLY.

"Prenatal Care" and "Infant Care"—Children's bureau, United States department of labor, Washington, D. C.

Probably you could get booklets on the same subjects from either your state or your city health department.

ANNOYING DOGS.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—[To the Friend of the People.]—What is the law regarding annoying and vicious dogs? The dogs molest passersby and the owner doesn't seem to care. F. C.

Section 1063 of the city code is in part as follows:

"At the time and place set for trial in any branch of the Municipal court of the city of Chicago for annoyance referred to in this chapter, if it shall appear that any dog has in any manner disturbed the quiet of any person or persons, or caused an abrasion of the skin or attempted to bite or snap at any person or persons within the city, the owner or keeper shall be fined not less than $5 nor more than $200."

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TENANT SHOULD MAKE REPAIRS.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I rented a flat and signed a year's lease. I have had so much trouble with the agent. In the first place all the locks on the place were broken and the agent sent a man to fix them, but they were taken off and never replaced and I have to nail up the doors or leave them open. I notified the agent that if the locks were not fixed I would move. Could they hold me to the lease if I have these grounds for breaking it? T. D.

The landlord is, in general, under no legal obligations to the tenant to clean or repair parts of the premises that are under the exclusive control of the tenant.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

REAL ESTATE LICENSE.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Is it necessary to have a real estate broker's license if the owner lives in one state and the real estate that is for sale is in another state? G. P.

No license is necessary for one to sell his own property.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

60 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 9, 1864.

CHICAGO.—Yesterday's election was a Union victory of gigantic proportions and Abraham Lincoln is reëlected. Because of difficulties in telegraph transmission election news is meager, but enough is known to warrant the belief that the Copperheads and peace sneaks were utterly routed. There is little doubt Lincoln and Johnson will have the electoral vote of every northern state. Kentucky is the only state that may fairly be conceded to McClellan.

SPRINGFIELD.—It's a clean sweep for the Union in Illinois. The Republicans probably will even have a small majority in the legislature. The Democrats lost congressmen in the Seventh, Eighth, and Thirteenth districts, and probably in the Fourth or Quincy district.

CHICAGO.—Chicago is redeemed. Abraham Lincoln for President and Richard J. Oglesby for governor have carried the city and county and the Union county ticket is triumphant. Lincoln's vote in the city is 14,388, and McClellan's 12,691, giving the President a majority of 1,697.

CHICAGO.—More confessions were made in connection with the rebel plot to free prisoners at Camp Douglas, arm them and raid Chicago. Among them were Thomas J. Prater and John Lorenz Myer of Christian county, and James A. Robinson. The latter's father also was arrested. He carried a large knife and the son said it "was intended to cut the throats of the damned Lincolnites." Secretary of War Stanton wired Col. B. J. Sweet, commending his vigilance in thwarting the plotters.

NEW YORK.—Thomas H. Dudley, consul to Liverpool, in a letter received here, says that the notorious Capt. Semmes of the Privateer Alabama fame, with eight other confederate officers and 100 men, has put to sea from Liverpool in the steamer Laurel on a new piratical cruise.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 9, 1899.

BERLIN.—German papers of all beliefs give the czar the heartiest welcome to Berlin and emphasize the fact that the relations between Germany and Russia have greatly improved under Nicholas. The czar spent the day with Emperor William at Potsdam palace.

LONDON.—According to arrangements now perfected Emperor William of Germany will land at Portsmouth on Nov. 20 for his visit to Queen Victoria. He will be met at the pier by the Dukes of Connaught and York and escorted on the Royal Special train to Windsor.

LONDON.—Nothing has been received from Gen. White to confirm rumors of great British successes at Ladysmith or to strengthen belief in stories of appalling Boer losses.

WASHINGTON. — Admiral Dewey took out a license to wed Mrs. Mildred M. Hazen. In his application the admiral declares he is a sailor and is 61 years old. The age of his bride-to-be was given as 43.

NEW YORK.—Julia Arthur stopped her play "More Than Queen," went before the curtain and told the audience she could not proceed until a couple in a box stopped talking and laughing. She refused to proceed until the couple left the theater.

CHICAGO.—Robert G. McGann, 18 Walton place, sued Mrs. T. M. Baxter of Evanston, wife of a board of trade operator, for $15,000 on a charge of slander. He claims she told stories that reached the ears of a south side society girl to whom he was attentive.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 9, 1914.

ROME.—It is learned from a diplomatic source that the Russians have succeeded in separating the German and Austrian armies, besides enveloping the left flank of the Austrians and cutting off their retreat to Cracow.

LONDON.—The Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Telegraph learns of a decisive Russian victory that has not been reported to the press. He declares the combined Austrian and German armies have been dealt a staggering blow along their line of communications.

PARIS.—A general battle has been proceeding along the entire front from the sea to the Vosges mountains for the last three days. The Germans are concentrating in Flanders all the men they can get and hurling them against the allies' lines.

LONDON.—The allies, who for two weeks have been hurling back furious attacks by the Germans in Belgium and northern France, have taken the offensive and made important advances. The losses have been terrific. Around Ypres alone the German casualties are reported at 100,000.

MILWAUKEE.—Lloyd Tilghman Boyd, a founder and for years publisher of the Milwaukee Journal; Charles S. Forsythe, president of the C. S. Forsythe Tanning company, and Mrs. Alice Murray, a widow and representative of an Iowa insurance company, were killed and Miss Elysian A. Thomas, superintendent of nurses at the Lakeside hospital, was injured when Forsythe's big automobile overturned four miles south of the city.

CEASE THE CHAFF ABOUT CRICKET.

Cicero, Ill., Oct. 31.—Lorrimore Hammond chooses a particularly inopportune time to pass out his misleading information regarding cricket games.

The touring Sox and Giants are apparently finding English crowds "open to conviction," and it would seem apropos at this moment to cease the chaff about cricket games adjournments for lunch or tea or frequently being continued until the next day. English sporting crowds are quite accustomed to games which do not continue until the next day, so that your correspondent's reference to the "novel experience of attending a ball game in the afternoon and still having a chance to take their tea before bedtime" is out of order.

Baseball is a game which can be better compared with association football. The games last about the same length of time, the crowds are noisy and demonstrative and intensely partisan. Cricket spectators are much more restrained, not nearly so much as are golf galleries, but the comparison with them is much more logical.

The big cricket matches, however, last three days and are billed for that length of time. It would seem to the writer just about as funny to start "kidding" Hoppe and Kieckhefer for taking three days to decide their match.

GEORGE O. DAWE.

SHE WANTS THAT A.-N. GAME.

Sterling, Ill., Nov. 3.—I wish to commend the sentiments of Congressman Fred A. Britten in his letter of Oct. 22.

As the mother of one of "the pick of America's finest," I wish to say that I hope we may see the Army-Navy football game in Chicago in 1925.

I believe this voices the sentiments of the rest of the mothers and fathers of Illinois, and the entire middle west, whose sons are attending these two great universities, and who have a desire to witness this great game.

Few people who have never witnessed this spectacular event can comprehend the wonder of it, as the "Pointers" and "Middies" parade before the game.

Many of us never will, unless it is played in the middle west.

I, for one, want to watch those vast columns of cadets in gray, and midshipmen in navy blue and gold, march down Michigan avenue.

I want to sit in Chicago's great stadium, with the rest of the proud and happy mothers and fathers, and watch "our own" do their stuff.

I know how my pulses will throb, and how my heart will thrill, when the Naval Academy band strikes up the inspiring strains of "Anchors Aweigh," and I look out in that vast body of blue and gold and see my first born in line.

I believe that my ecstacy, pride and joy will help the Navy win.

Here's hoping we may see that game in Chicago soon. MRS. A. D. JENSEN.

ABOUT HAROLD THE RED.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—About Harold the Red. When Illinois defeated Michigan the news reports stated that Grange, playing back on defense, allowed punts to drop to the ground, "walking around in a circle until the ball had stopped rolling." It is taken for granted that he was coached to do this in order to avoid injury to himself. That may be art, but it isn't football. A football player is supposed to catch a punt and try to carry it back as near his opponent's goal line as he can. If he gets mussed up as a result it is all part of the racket. He is playing football.

When the Illini played De Pauw, Grange, hale and hearty, was kept out of the game altogether. As the ranking player at Illinois, we take it for granted that Grange is a member of the varsity eleven. If he is, why wasn't he representing his school?

If the game has reached the stage of professional development where a coach can insult a competing school by deliberately "saving" a player for a later game it is about time to turn it over to McGraw-Landis & Co. C. C. G., '05.

RING AROUND THE ROSIE.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—I want to compliment the "Ring Around the Rosie" editorial. It hits the nail on the head.

What does the city want to bother with the elevated or surface lines for? What the city needs is an absolute subway, in no way connected with the other lines. New York did not bother about the surface or elevated, and the only time they used the elevated line was over Manhattan and Williamsburgh bridges. The only time they use the elevated part is when they build them over low grounds or out in the outskirts.

The city should build a four track road in four directions—north, south, and two west—to be connected with two being branched northwest, say Milwaukee avenue, and southwest, Blue Island avenue and Ogden avenue.

The main lines should continue as a four track, branches as two. To commence or begin with, the main lines should be four miles north and south; east and west, about four, Grant park to Western avenue.

Wm. H. Britigan's Budlong Woods Golf Club Addition

Bounded by Foster Avenue, Balmoral Avenue, N. Rockwell Street and N. California Avenue

THIS tract, long known as the Budlong Farm, was held for years by an estate, while all about and far beyond it, modern apartment and business districts have occupied all available land, forcing subdividers into the outskirts and suburbs.

The last big piece of close-in apartment property in Chicago resulted in a re-sale of over 30% of the lots at profits of from 40% to 120% in less than one year.

And now this is the only tract so large, restricted exclusively to apartment and business development, that remains within the city.

Located ½ block from Lincoln Avenue and 1½ blocks from Western Avenue, it is served now by these two car lines as well as by the elevated with a station at Rockwell Street. It is within 5 blocks of the transfer corner of Lincoln, Lawrence and Western Avenues—one of the most important and fast growing business, shopping and amusement centers of the North Side.

With all property South and East to the lake built up solidly—with the modern buildings of West Edgewater bordering the golf club to the North of it, and Albany Park with its tremendous apartment and business development to the West of it—it is hard to imagine property better located.

Now this tract has been purchased on an acreage price basis for cash and is being subdivided by Wm. H. Britigan.

Opening Sale Today

All improvements—paved streets, sidewalks, sewer, water and gas are being put in and paid for. There are 296 lots, ripe for immediate improvement with business and apartment buildings. There are:

11 Business corners ranging from 58 x 125 to 108 x 125 feet to alley.

58 Inside business lots—25 and 50 x 125 feet to alley.

24 Apartment corners — 58 feet and up to requirements in width by 125 feet to alley.

203 Inside apartment lots—30 and 60 x 125 feet to alley.

Here is a property that in every conceivable way measures up to the Britigan Standard—it has most excellent transportation now [not merely expected transportation]. It has complete improvements being installed and paid for; it has convenient public and private schools, churches, clubs, theatres, etc.; it is surrounded by a high grade apartment and business neighborhood that will support the high-class development to take place in this subdivision. This is further assured by careful and farsighted protective restrictions, and building lines.

These lots, which are priced below the general market price for lots in neighborhoods of comparable character, are bound to increase in value most substantially—even at a faster rate than the surrounding territory where values are climbing ever higher.

Apartments and stores in this neighborhood are renting right now [and will rent in this subdivision] for as much as they do in sections where lots sell for over twice as much as these lots are priced. Values here must increase—and there will be even a greater market for re-sales, we believe, than in any of the subdivisions previously sold by Britigan.

Remember there are only 296 lots—remember that every subdivision ever marketed by Britigan is now a fine built-up community, that every one of over 15,000 lots sold by Britigan has increased substantially in value, that thousands of buyers of Britigan lots have secured profits ranging in many cases over 100% and in some cases as high as 1000%.

The terms are the usual convenient Britigan terms.

There are only 296 lots—they will sell fast.

So if this opportunity interests you, act today. Come out, rain or shine.

TRIBUNE RADIO ELECTION NEWS SETS PRECEDENT

Nice Little Problem Raised by A. P. Rule.

On last election night THE TRIBUNE carried out an enterprise that may be reflected in the history of the times as the most distinctive distribution of news ever attempted. The feat may be most simply described by permitting it to fall into its three natural divisions.

1. Broadcasting, through its radio station, W-G-N, located on the Drake hotel, and through the Sears-Roebuck station W. L. S, a double stream of election bulletins covering everything from national to city results.

2. Distribution, by telephones to various meeting places, of a vast number of election bulletins as well as running comment upon the results.

3. Circulation, through its presses, of 764,451 copies of THE TRIBUNE, containing complete statistical tables, reports, and illustrations—a peak in daily newspaper distribution.

Sit by Fireside; Get Returns.

But it is the result achieved through its radio station, W-G-N, that THE TRIBUNE has found most interesting; because for the first time in the history of national elections the new and mysterious force which all but sets time at naught, made it possible for the whole nation to gather at one fireside, in a manner of speaking, hear the thriller of all the bedtime stories, bank the fire, and toddle off to rest.

Those who find pleasure in reflection may recall that it was THE TRIBUNE that first announced its determination to make use of the radio in broadcasting the election results. Likewise they may remember that other newspapers, successively, felt impelled to contribute a similar service to the public. This phase of the subject is introduced in order to picture more accurately the nice problems involved.

Rule of Associated Press.

One of these problems was and is the relation of the Chicago newspapers to the news disseminating agency generally known as the Associated Press. All Chicago daily papers, excepting one evening paper (the American) are members of the Associated Press. And the Associated Press has rules of conduct. One of these rules expressly forbids the circulation of news matter except as to certain forms to be observed. For example, here is a rule:

Sec. 7.—No member shall furnish, or permit any one to furnish, to any one not a member of this corporation, the news which he is required by the by-laws to supply to this corporation.

In other words, the Chicago newspapers are required, under their franchises in the Associated Press, to give to the A. P. all local news arising in the so-called Chicago district. And they are forbidden to give out such news in any other way, except in their own columns.

Broadcasting Violates Rule.

Now, giving out local news by radio is in direct violation of the A. P. rules because, thrown on the air, the news may be harvested, so to speak, by any nonmember throughout the country who has a radio receiving set. And yet THE TRIBUNE proposed to broadcast all election returns, national, state, and local!

Well, if THE TRIBUNE was going to do it, so would the others. And they all said they would! And they all did, in greater or less extent!

The Chicago Daily News did it. The News is a member of the Associated Press. How could the News avoid the rule against distributing local news? It's a mystery.

All Chicago newspapers got their local election returns from the City News bureau, which is a sort of a pocket edition of the Associated Press. It is maintained by the joint efforts of the Chicago newspapers. But just because the Chicago papers get news from the city press it is no less their own effort; and such news belongs exclusively to the Associated Press just as much as spontaneous news produced in any other way.

Thirty-five Copies of Reports Made.

Ordinarily the City Press makes a dozen manifold copies of each sheet of election returns. On last election night the reporters gazed in astonishment. There were thirty-five spindles all standing soldier-like to receive as many copies. Evidently there was an added demand for City Press returns.

Ordinarily the office of the election commissioners has no special telegraph service with the outside world. But on last election night there was a special wire chattering away like the dickens in the commissioners' office. And on the big table in the commissioners' outer room there were seventeen spindles for City Press election returns.

A commissioner explained about the telegraph wire. "The telegraph people," he said, "offered to give us the outside returns if we would let them have the Chicago returns. It worked great. You see, the City Press doesn't own the Chicago returns. The returns belong to the people and we represent the people."

How the Post Worked It.

Well, that was that. But the Chicago Evening Post also broadcasted the returns. Its radio station announced returns by the International News Service. The local anchorage of the International News Service is in the Hearst building—Herald & Examiner and the Evening American. Both the Herald & Examiner and the American have access to the City Press spindles. And the Herald & Examiner is subject to section 7 quoted above. But, it will be seen, all the brothers were broadcasting.

And THE TRIBUNE? Well. THE TRIBUNE in addition to being a member of the Associated Press likewise is a subscriber to the United Press. This is not forbidden by the rules of the Associated Press. The United Press has no relation to the A. P. On the contrary, it is a definite competitor. And the United Press furnished THE TRIBUNE with a comprehensive special election news service; from nation, state, and city.

Where did the United Press get its Chicago election news?

From the election commissioners' office, which is a public bureau.

His body lay in state surrounded by tall candles in the gorgeous surroundings of the Church of the Madeleine, which was built by Napoleon on the lines of a Greek temple, and was originally intended as a temple of glory. His imposing funeral cortege passed through the Rue Royale, lined with bayonetted soldiers, and up the Champs Elysees to Passy cemetery. KLAN CIVIL WAR OPENS HERE IN ARMORY TODAY

160 Cyclops in Battle to Oust Czar Palmer.

Illinois Ku Klux Klan factions come to grips today in a battle for control. Charles G. Palmer, Illinois grand dragon, against whom charges of graft and despotism are understood to have been made, faces a struggle designed to strip him of office.

This, like earlier information of a threatened breakup of the klan in this state as a result of Palmer's methods, comes from admitted klansmen. The internal battle today will be staged at the Broadway armory.

W. H. Evans of Atlanta, Ga., imperial wizard and national head of the Ku Klux Klan, has been called here by anti-Palmer leaders, who say the organization in Illinois is headed for the rocks and has already suffered serious disruptions. With Evans are several other high officials of the order, including Imperial Kleezeek Brown Harvard.

160 Cyclops in Assembly.

It is understood that more than 160 exalted cyclops, voting in the "klorero" at the armory, will decide whether the Illinois klan gets a new régime. Cyclops from the back country began arriving in the city last night, it was said. The meeting is scheduled to begin at 10 a. m.

O. W. Friedrich of Pekin is said to be the choice of the anti-Palmer forces for the job of grand dragon if they can oust Palmer. Cyclops holding the votes of sixty-nine counties were said last night to be ready for battle against Palmer. Fear was expressed last night, however, that Palmer might succeed in packing the meeting against his foes.

Deposed Official Leads Battle.

The fight over Palmer came to a head several weeks ago when Charles D. McGhee, former great titan of southern Illinois, preferred charges against him before the imperial wizard. McGhee is one of the 14,000 Illinois klansmen said to have been "beheaded" by Palmer.

The armory in which the klansmen assemble today is headquarters of the 202d field artillery. The regiment is a unit of the Illinois National Guard, whose state controlled cavalry horses were used by klansmen several weeks ago during a parade and klan meeting on the state fair grounds at Springfield.

ONE BOY KILLED, ONE INJURED IN R. R. COAL YARDS

Emil Kalata, 12 years old, 1345 Bradley street; Teddy Szynator, living at the same address, felt the sting of the cold yesterday and told their parents that they would go gather in some coal. Their mothers warned them not to go near the railroad tracks. They promised to obey.

A few minutes later one of them was carried home dead. The other was taken to the county hospital. Both his legs had been crushed. The Kalata boy was the one who lost his life. The two boys were picking coal beneath a box car in the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul yards at Blackhawk and Hickory streets. The cars were moved and the boys were caught under the wheels.

Why Is It?

Why is it that so many families prefer to call Hursen than to call the funeral director in the neighborhood? Why is it that there are so many living many miles away who prefer to call Hursen, regardless of distance?

A big business like "Hursen's" could not be built merely from the business secured in a neighborhood, nor in several neighborhoods. "Hursen's" serves not a part, but all of Chicago. Hursen funerals are seen in every nook and corner of Chicago. They are seen in the far suburbs, many miles out. Why?

When a funeral is conducted by Hursen it means that it is, first, a "quality" funeral. You never see the same elegance and quality of materials elsewhere that you see at a "Hursen" funeral. You never see elsewhere such an unusual method of service, nor such generosity of service.

You have never seen such superb limousines for the use of passengers. You have never seen limousine hearses before. They are a Hursen revolution in funeral equipment, built especially for Hursen. Besides all this, "Hursen" funerals cost but a fraction of the charges made elsewhere. All Chicago has helped to build the largest establishment of its kind in America—"Hursen's." Call Hursen, of course!

JONES BLAMES BALLOT SYSTEM FOR HIS DEFEAT

Under N. Y. Plan He'd Have Won, Belief.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

With the New York ballot system operative in Illinois, Judge Norman L. Jones, defeated candidate for governor, believes he would have won last Tuesday's election from Gov. Len Small, even in the face of the Coolidge landslide.

In New York, where the popular Al Smith is elected governor while his party goes down to defeat under an avalanche of 1,000,000 votes, the voters are not required, as they are in Illinois, to wrestle with a big blanket ballot containing the names of all candidates in the election. The national and state tickets are on separate ballots.

Returns Support His Belief.

There is much in the Illinois returns to support Judge Jones' belief. It is estimated that complete official returns will show him at the finish line about 500,000 votes ahead of his party.

Judge Jones had banked his hopes on the belief that Coolidge would not pile up a plurality of more than a half million votes.

He finds in the returns evidence that between 400,000 and 500,000 Republicans voted for him.

"The election returns conclusively show my defeat and it is wholly unnecessary to say that I sincerely regret the outcome," he said in a statement yesterday.

Gets Big G. O. P. Vote.

"I was quite confident that I would be elected and I repeatedly said that I could win if the Coolidge majority did not exceed 500,000. The returns justify the belief I had. I probably received between 400,000 and 500,000 votes from Coolidge Republicans. This was in part offset by the La Follette vote for Gov. Small. An election law like the one in New York, which provides for separate ballots in state and national tickets, in my opinion, would have insured my election.

"I am keenly appreciative of the support of Democrats, Republicans, and independents. My appreciation would not be sufficiently expressed without special acknowledgement of the splendid service of the women, who, without regard for their party affiliations, aided my cause, nor can I forget the valuable assistance rendered me by so many newspapers of the state.

"The vote I received in my own county and judicial circuit and in neighboring counties is without parallel in political history and fully compensates for whatever disappointment might otherwise attend my defeat."

What Late Returns Show.

With only 71 precincts missing President Coolidge has a plurality in Illinois of 851,407 over John W. Davis and a majority of 434,827 over the combined Davis and La Follette vote. The missing precincts are in Cook county. Here is the vote:

Coolidge, 1,427,624; Davis, 576,217; La Follette, 416,580.

Returns on the gubernatorial race show 261 precincts missing, 71 in Cook county and 190 downstate. The vote: Small, 1,303,002; Jones, 960,393; Small's majority, 342,609, or 508,798 less than the Coolidge margin over Davis.

With 298 precincts missing, 71 in Cook and 227 downstate, the vote on United States senator is:

Deneen, 1,335,209; Sprague, 653,336; Deneen's majority, 681,873.

HOPE TO TRACE SIGNAL GIVEN BEFORE 10 DIED

Switchmen of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul freight train—the rear end of which crashed into a street car with a loss of ten lives at North avenue grade crossing a week ago, were reëxamined yesterday by the coroner's jury in an effort to place the responsibility.

Among the men recalled were James E. Finn, Nathan Gaskett, John Steinhauser, and J. A. Meisenhelter, all of whom were either on the freight train or at switches along the route when the tragic accident occurred.

The question principally interesting the jury during the session concerned the washout railroad danger stop signal that was said to have been given by some of the railroad men and never received by the engineers of the train a half mile from its rear end.

When it was brought out that a switchman named McGraw was in the course supposed to have been traveled by the washout signal and that McGraw was not at the inquest to testify, the further hearing of testimony was postponed until 2 o'clock tomorrow.

Fines Woman Who Battled Cops, Then Pays It Himself

Mrs. Mary B. Connor was fined $1 by Judge Alfar Eberhardt yesterday for battling police sent Friday to evict her from her flat at 1708 Prairie avenue. After rebuking the woman the judge gave her a present of $2, and Assistant State's Attorney Joseph L. McCarthy gave her $10. She said she had fought the police because she was penniless and had no place to go when forced to give up her lodgings.

BIG NAVY FRIENDS BACK 2 BILLS IN NEXT CONGRESS

Want More Warships and Gun Elevation.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Advocates in congress of appropriations sufficient to establish the American navy on the 5-5-3 basis plan a drive at the December session in behalf of two pending navy bills.

In view of recent statements by Secretary Wilbur in favor of additions to the fleet to bring it closer to the strength of the British navy, confidence is expressed by greater navy advocates that this year's budget will carry larger naval appropriations.

One of the pending measures, the Butler bill, now on the senate calendar, provides an appropriation close to $150,000,000 for cruisers and certain small craft and the overhaul of war vessels now in course of construction. This bill was passed by the house, but failed in the senate last session. It has the approval of the administration and the indications are that it will be passed.

Provides Gun Elevation.

The other measure, a bill introduced by Representative Britten of Illinois, provides for the elevation of guns on thirteen battleships at a cost of $6,500,000. Whether the administration will indorse this ball is not known.

President Coolidge probably will have to decide whether the United States shall elevate guns in face of British protests. Secretary Hughes is understood to agree with Great Britain, whereas Secretary Wilbur is said to hold that the United States would be entirely within its rights in elevating guns. In a recent speech Secretary Wilbur favored elevating guns as a matter of naval policy. Statements made by President Coolidge have been interpreted as foreshadowing a decision on his part deferring the work for the present. This was taken to mean that the administration might not ask for such authority during the forthcoming session.

Budget Chief Has Bill.

The Britten bill, which proposes to increase the elevation and range of turret guns on the battleships Florida, Utah, Arkansas, Wyoming, Pennsylvania, Arizona, Oklahoma, Nevada, New York, Texas, Mississippi, Idaho, and New Mexico, is now before Gen. Lord, director of the budget.

Announcement was made today by Representative Britten that he would ask for a hearing on the bill before the house committee on naval affairs the first or second week in December. He believes the house can be induced to adopt the measure, although that body rejected the policy of gun elevation when it was offered as amendment to the Butler bill.

France Increases Navy.

Every shipyard and plant in France is being kept busy by the determination of the French government to build up its naval armament, reports reaching Washington indicated today.

The naval program which is causing so much activity is largely devoted to turning out such craft as submarines, light cruisers, torpedo boats, and destroyers, all craft which are unlimited under the present armament treaties.

On Oct. 1 the submarine Souffleur, the largest type yet designed for the French navy, was launched at Cherbourg. This is the second such boat to be added to the forces, and is to be followed by four others of the same class.

Besides these submarines, two torpedo boats are under construction at Blainville, near Caen, and are a part of a group of twelve to be completed between January and April, 1925. A fast cruiser of 8,000 tons was launched in May at Brest, and was the last of this class to be launched, as her sister ship will be completed before January.

In 1923 the French government authorized a second program of construction, to be completed between 1925 and 1931, which is even more comprehensive.

TWO ROB TAILOR IN SHOP.

DAPHNE FIELD MARRIED

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kelley leaving St. Chrysostom's church. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Society Nuptials

Countless Easter lilies grown on the Stanley Field estate for the occasion of the marriage of the daughter of the house were banked in St. Chrysostom's church yesterday. Chicago's most representative society was gathered there for the wedding of Miss Daphne Field to Russell Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. William V. Kelley of 1550 State parkway.

The bride's gown was of white satin embroideerd in pearls and her billowy tulle veil falling over a court train was secured with a pear cap outlined in pearls. The bridal bouquet was of lilies of the valley and roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. T. Clifford Rodman, and the bridesmaids, Miss Ruth Keeley, Miss Alice Carpenter, Miss Mary Meeker, Miss Madeline Childs, Miss Josephine Underwood and Miss Elizabeth Brown of Baltimore, wore powder blue gowns of chiffon, with two layered skirts edged with crystal and rhinestone trimming.

Large hats of violet velvet and bouquets of purple and lavender sweet peas completed their costumes. The church was lit with candles.

Following the wedding was a reception at the apartment of the bride's parents.

WORKERS' REIGN OF TERROR OPENS IN BARCELONA

Many Die as Plots Against Spanish Rule Mount.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BARCELONA, Nov. 8.—A reign of terror here, dormant since the Primo de Rivera dictatorship was installed, broke out today when in a series of bloody encounters between police and labor leaders one officer was killed, two wounded, and a number of suspects, heavily armed with revolvers and bombs, were arrested. The arrested men are to be tried by court martial, and will be executed immediately if found guilty, in order to stamp out any attempt at a revolution. This marks the resumption of warfare between labor and capitalists, both sides having recruited gangs of gunmen—one faction seeking to assassinate factory owners, and the other attempting to slay labor leaders.

Six Die in Fighting.

MADRID, Nov. 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—An official statement was issued by the military directorate today dealing with what are called the "apparent revolutionary happenings in Spain caused by anarchists from France acting in concert with syndicalists in Spain."

About thirty armed individuals from France, the statement says, engaged in a battle with police at Vera, Navarre, one policeman being killed. One of the men was killed, one was gravely wounded, and six were arrested. Later twenty-two more were rounded up, and of this number four were killed.

Revolutionist Is Killed.

BORDEAUX, France, Nov. 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—French gendarmes at St. Jean-de-Luz captured six Spaniards today after an exchange of shots. A seventh man escaped, but in running across the railroad tracks was killed by a Bordeaux-Hendaye express train. All the men were heavily armed.

Jail Many Spaniards.

PERPIGNAN, France, Nov. 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—The arrest here yesterday of a number of Spaniards, after an alleged attempt to carry arms across the border, has increased the agitation which Spanish circles in this department have been showing for several days. One of the men arrested was said to have confessed that he intended to shoot one of the members of the Spanish directorate.

A local paper here declares that the Spanish colony is excitedly discussing reports concerning a plot against the Madrid government to bring about a revolution. The newspaper says:

"Spaniards have been arriving in great numbers since Sunday, coming from various French cities. Of the many persons arrested along the frontier, two—Erpado Clement and Benito Estrada—are declared to be anarchists from Paris. They were found to be carrying several loaded Browning machine guns and a quantity of anarchist tracts."

Ibanez Aids Cause.

PARIS, Nov. 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—Spain will be bombarded shortly after Nov. 20 by two airplanes carrying Vicente Blasco Ibanez's anti-King Alfonso pamphlets, the Spanish author announced here today.

TURKEYS WILL SELL AT NORMAL PRICE IN CHICAGO

Thanksgiving turkeys will remain at approximately normal prices this year, according to Louis C. Snyder, secretary of the Chicago Poultry board. The price has dropped 10 cents a pound in New York, due to a surplus, but the holiday fowls have been raised at the usual rate in the Chicago district.

It is predicted that dressed turkeys will sell on the retail market at 50 cents a pound, up to Thanksgiving day. This price is about 3 cents higher than it was last year.

Prize Winning Baby Eats Insect Powder and Dies

New York, Nov. 8.—Mary Schaefer, 2½ years old, who won a silver medal in a health prize contest last year, died in a hospital today, poisoned by roach powder placed on a piece of bread, which the child found beneath an icebox and ate.

Why pay more when the finest Bacon and Eggs in the World cost only 30c at the North American?

Elsewhere you can only pay more—you can't get any finer quality no matter how much you pay. For instance: A North American portion of Bacon and Eggs consists of two strictly fresh, "select" eggs, fried in butter to give them the finest flavor imaginable, and four strips of a brand of bacon known all over the world. It is not at all unusual to pay twice our price for a portion of equal size and quality.

And this extremely low price for the finest quality of food is typical of all the food values here.

For in this Common Sense Restaurant you "serve yourself." Consequently we don't need to add one penny to our prices to cover the cost of "service"—an item which is often as costly as the food itself. And the absence of waiters means that here there is no one to be "tipped"—another saving.

Among other Quality specialties at low prices are:

Fried Oysters: 7 big New York Counts fried to your order, with tartar or chile sauce or ketchup 40c

Pork Tenderloin: 45c

Fried Premium Chicken: Breast of Premium Milk-fed Chicken, with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce - 65c

Special Whitefish Dinner: (5 to 8 on Week Days—All Day Fridays) A fine portion of Broiled Whitefish, French Fried Potatoes, Lettuce Salad 65c

Tenderloin Steak: A thick, juicy steak, with potatoes and vegetables. 85c

GRAZIELLA WINS FAME IN OPERA OF "PEARL FISHERS"

Score Heard in Chicago for First Time.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

For about as marked an operatic contrast as one is likely to find, try the bills yesterday at the Auditorium, Bizet's "Les Pêcheurs des Perles" in the afternoon and Verdi's "Aïda" in the evening. They were as different as a line drawing and a circus poster.

"Les Pêcheurs des Perles" never before has been given by the Chicago Opera company in any of its manifestations. For that matter, it has seldom gone on anywhere else, though the Metropolitan Opera company once staged it for the use of Caruso at a time when Giorgio Polacco, who conducted it yesterday, was a member of that organization.

The Simple Pearl Fishers.

It is a delicate affair, with a slowly drawn out episode of plot developed into three acts of libretto full of gentle, sustained tunes and not much else. It deals with a colony of pearl fishers in Ceylon, who apparently live in the crevices of a rocky cave temple, ready to boil out and do violent deeds against any one who interrupts the privacy of their priestess. Those who make travelogues a portion of their annual activities may possibly, when they see the opera, recognize the place, the customs of the people, and their dances, but the chances are that they will not.

Several interesting matters developed in the course of the performance yesterday afternoon. One was the dainty, accurate, vocal filagree ornamentations of Graziella, who appeared as Leila, the priestess. It is a part that fits her to perfection, for few can warble coloratura delicacies more charmingly than this artist, and the light scoring sustained without overwhelming her voice.

Picturesque as Nadir.

Another point war concerned with the statuesque and well displayed proportions of Charles Hackett. He had the rôle of Nadir, which should by no means be interpreted in the sense in which it is found in cross-word puzzles. One member of the audience insisted that in the item of knees, his only rivals are the Duncan sisters. But outside of his pictorial qualifications, he did a first rate job of singing, once a tricky and difficult episode in the first act was passed.

There was another good performance by the talented singing actor, Giacomo Rimini, and another by Edouard Cotreuil, who, with but little to sing, made a small part stand out definitely. The choristers were on their mettle, the orchestra likewise, and Mr. Polacco did what has come to be his wizardly custom in making the music in performance sound much better than it looks in the score.

"Aïda" came in the evening, with its pomp and circumstance, its crowds, pageantry, and resounding melodies. Rosa Raisa was in the name part, in which she always commands wholehearted admiration, and last night more than ever. Charles Marshall, who had sung splendidly the night before, was in equally fine form here as Radames. A newcomer, Augusta Lenska, made her first appearance with this company as Amneris. She evidently is a valuable addition to the mezzo soprano ranks, having a voice of great beauty, though somewhat lighter in weight than those of her associates. More great singing came from Virgilio Lazzari and Alexander Kipnis, bassos, and Cesare Formichi, baritone. Roberto Moranzoni conducted with spirit, though at times a bit more leisurely than the circumstances seemed to warrant.

DIVORCED IN PARIS

Wrigley Gives $1,000 for Crippled Children

William Wrigley Jr. gave $1,000 yesterday to the campaign fund of the Illinois Society for Crippled Children, which is seeking to raise $100,000 in Chicago. A total of $500,000 is to be collected in the state.

The Rev. Josiah Sibley will speak at the campaign luncheon at the Hotel La Salle on Monday, at which Dr. Lena K. Sadler, chairman of the women's division, will preside. Boy Scouts throughout will entertain the crippled children of Chicago on Nov. 15.

FIND BODY OF MAN; UNIDENTIFIED.

The body of an unidentified man was found yesterday in a deserted room at 31 North Curtis street. The man, who was about 45 years old, had been dead for more than a week when the body was discovered.

DRURYS SHOCK CAPITAL SOCIETY BY SEPARATION

Wife, 1918 Debutante, Honored by Wales.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Capital society, which was surprised yesterday by the news from Paris of the divorce of Senator and Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, the latter formerly Miss Mathilde Townsend, was shocked anew today by the separation of Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Drury Jr. of Washington.

Mrs. Drury was Miss Marguerite Simonds, who received nation-wide attention by reason of the marked attention paid her by the Prince of Wales on his first visit to Washington in 1918.

Wife Admits Separation.

Today Mrs. Drury cheerfully admitted that she and her young husband had come to a parting of the ways.

"We have agreed to disagree," she said, smiling. "It is all perfectly amicable. Although I may have something to add to this statement, later."

With her two children, Peter Arthur Drury III. and Andrew Simonds Drury, Mrs. Drury is established in an apartment at Wardman Park Inn. Mr. Drury, who has taken a bachelor apartment downtown, is out of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Drury spent the summer together in Maryland and returned to town about a month ago.

Prince Called on Her.

Mrs. Drury, then Miss Simonds, was a debutante in 1918, the season when the Prince of Wales first came to Washington. She was one of the most beautiful and charming of the debutantes of that year, and the prince not only requested an introduction to her but paid her the signal honor of calling on her at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Clarence Crittenden Calhoun. Miss Simonds was invited to be one of the party of young people who went to White Sulphur Springs during the prince's stay there following his visit to the capital, but declined to go.

The following year Miss Simonds and Peter Drury Jr. were married, in spite of parental objections on both sides. So strenuously had Mrs. Calhoun opposed the marriage that she sent her daughter to Europe in the hope of breaking the engagement. Miss Simonds returned unexpectedly, however, and married Mr. Drury in New York. Mrs. Calhoun was said to have forgiven her daughter, but the Drury family never became reconciled. Mr. Drury is the son of Peter Drury, president of the Abner Drury company and the Merchants' Bank and Trust company.

H. C. Bay

gives you everything you desire at a price you can afford—Tone—Quality—Finish—Beauty. It is electrically operated—the simplest and finest in mechanism—faultless in reproduction. It plays the Q. R. S. Recordo Rolls and all other standard 88-note rolls. At your will you may have the compositions of the great artists or the modern, popular or dance music. Played by hand it is equally enjoyable. The H. C. Bay comes in beautiful satin finish, dark brown mahogany case. It is unsurpassed in exquisite cabinet work. When you consider the high prices in the exclusive fine piano class you may wonder why the H. C. Bay is alone at such a reasonable price. The answer is standardized volume production in one of the largest piano plants in the world and the fact that the electric motor and reproducing mechanism are also manufactured in our plant. It is sold throughout the country by reliable dealers at a uniform price.

THE HOME BEAUTIFUL

The glory of this season's garden has departed. The planting of a tulip bed may hold a fascinating promise for the future, but at present it teaches by contrast the ever new delights of a grate fire. Once more family interests center around the hearth and its cheery hospitality. Our nation has a growing recognition of the value of genial surroundings. We know that any bettering of home conditions may lead one to greater things.

For every improvement—no matter how simple—is great, if it makes the family dwelling more beautiful.

I'M PATRIOT, NOT A RED, COUNTESS KAROLYI SAYS

Tells N.Y. How She Stole Linen of Hapsburgs.

New York, Nov. 8.—Catherine Countess Karolyi of Hungary told an audience in Town hall tonight that the charge that she was a bolshevist, made by S. Stanwood Menken, president of the American Security league, was based on the fact that her husband had opposed the world war, that he had written against the German alliance, and that he had deposed the Hapsburg dynasty.

COUNTESS KAROLYI.

The countess' address was phrased as an answer to Mr. Menken's charges preferred with the United States immigration officials recently when she arrived from Europe.

"Honorable Exiles."

She and her husband, Count Michael Karolyi, president of the former Austrian republic, were exiles from Hungary, the countess said, because of their activities in behalf of the great mass of their fellow countrymen as against the former nobility of their land.

Referring to Mr. Menken's charge that she was actively engaged in communistic work, Countess Karolyi declared that her only "communistic" act had occurred after the overthrow of the Hapsburgs, when she was president of the Hungarian Red Cross.

Took King's Linen.

"I discovered that there was a great quantity of linen stored in the royal palace," she said. "Our hospitals were in such condition that women were lying on dirty straw stacks and newly born children were wrapped in newspaper sheets. Soldiers were dying and lying on sacks without any linen to protect their wounds.

"The king had abdicated. The palace and its contents belonged to the nation. The thousands of yards of linen supplied to the king by the state from the taxes of the people I thought should be turned over to the sick and wounded in the hospitals. I ordered the Red Cross to take possession of the linen and distribute it in this way."

Count Foresaw End.

Count Karolyi, she asserted, foresaw disaster for Hungary with the coming of war and worked to secure a separate peace with the allies and to compel the Germans to conclude peace.

COUPLE FREED OF BOOZE CHARGE.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kafka, 3824 West 26th street, was dismissed on liquor violation charges yesterday by U. S. Commissioner James R. Glass.

COOLIDGE GIVES YACHTING PARTY FOR HIS "WARWICK"

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—President Coolidge left Washington this afternoon on the Mayflower for a weekend cruise down the Potomac.

The cruise was arranged in honor of his close personal friend, Frank W. Stearns of Boston, who celebrated a birthday today.

The party included Mrs. Coolidge, Mrs. Stearns, her two daughters, Mrs. H. W. Giese and Mrs. Francis Prescott; her son, Foster, and a grandson, Robert E. Giese, and Silas Strawn of Chicago.

BUSINESS MEN PUT CHECK ON CHARITY BALLS

Promoters of charity balls and benefits whose proceeds do not always reach the charities under whose name they operate are in for harder times. A new bureau of the Association of Commerce, which began functioning yesterday, is organized to care for miscellaneous subscriptions not covered by the subscription investigating committee, which looks after larger drives. Hereafter it will be necessary for promoters to apply to the new bureau for credentials, which will be issued only after the committee has been satisfied of the worthiness of the appeal.

HOLD THREE FOR BAD CHECKS.

Louis Peters, 2124 Couritnad street; Victor Abotielbo, 120 22d avenue, Melrose Park, and Anthony De Somma, 842 Lincoln street, were arrested by Maywood police yesterday on charges of passing worthless checks.

CHIEF BEGINS CAMPAIGN FOR MORE POLICE

Collecting Data to Show Budget Committee.

Information on which he intimates a plea for more policemen will be made to the council finance committee is asked in questionnaires sent all district captains yesterday by Chief of Police Collins.

The quiz sheets ask detailed reports of the number of dance halls, theaters, public buildings, bathing beaches, clubs, suspected disorderly houses and soft drink parlors in each district. The proportionate number of patrolmen assigned to post duty or special work, as well as the number of men needed properly to police each district will be indicated on the returns.

Believes Chicago Underpoliced.

"Chicago is underpoliced," declared Chief Collins. "Of course, crime will increase this winter as it does every winter, in comparison to the other seasons of the year, and from the reports which the captains will make in answer to my questions I will know if the men are properly distributed.

"However, that is not the most important function of the questionnaire. The reports should enable me to talk intelligently to the council, civic organizations and the taxpayers on the city's police needs.

Information Was Lacking.

"I recall that at a recent open meeting of the Association of Commerce I was asked to say whether Chicago is properly policed.

"With the information then at my command I was able to answer that it was not, but the information was limited. These reports will demonstrate beyond any argument the necessity of more policemen in Chicago and it will enable me to say definitely how many new policemen are essential."

Army Flyers Beat Navy for Seaplane Speed Mark

Langley Field, Va., Nov. 8.—[United Press.]—A new world's record for seaplanes was established today when Lieuts. Victor E. Bertrandi and George C. MacDonald of the army flew a Loening air yacht, 1,000 kilometers in six hours and six minutes, an average speed of 102 miles per hour. The previous record, 74 miles per hour, was made by Lieuts. Woese and Price of the navy.

GENERALS REACH CAVALRY BALL BY ARCH OF SABERS

When Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Harry G. Hale and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. George Bell Jr. entered the Belden hotel last night they passed under an arbor of vaulted cavalry sabers and troopers of the 14th United States cavalry snapped salutes. The two generals and their wives were guests of honor at an Armistice ball given in the hotel by the 65th cavalry division.

The arch of sabers took the place of the usual party awning from the hotel entrance to the curb. A band from the 2d United States infantry played during the ball. The Duncan sisters, arriving late in the evening, were added to the list of distinguished guests.

Among the military men attending were Col. John G. Winter, Maj. Will Clark, Col. T. E. Siqueland, Col. Harry Jones, Col. George E. Ball, Col. C. Stacey, Col. C. C. Smith, and Capt. Charles A. Ellis.

FOUR DIE WHILE PLANS ARE MADE TO COMBAT SPEED

More Co-operation Asked by County Officials.

Drastic measures in an effort to drive back the rapidly increasing rate of automobile killings to the point at which they stayed during the height of the speed war were advocated yesterday by leading officials in the county.

Within a few hours the average for this month, so far, has been raised to four motor deaths a day. Four persons, three of them aged men, died yesterday. Two others were killed the preceding night. The toll in the eight days just past is twenty-four.

Blame Poor Coöperation.

Deputy coroners, who daily listen to stories about how the victims were killed, blamed the lack of coöperation among city officials. During Chief of Police Collins' safety drive the toll was at its lightest, and in mid-summer, they pointed out.

Then the judges in the speeders' courts began to discharge all speeders who had not exceeded thirty miles an hour. The mayor ordered Chief Collins not to imprison speeders.

The campaign was over and the death toll began to mount, the deputies said.

Coroner Oscar Wolff declared that in the absence of rigid enforcement some steps should be taken.

"A better safeguard for pedestrians would be furnished with the passage of the proposed bill to license all motorists in Illinois and require them first to pass a physical and mental examination," the coroner declared.

Rail Towerman Dies.

One of yesterday's dead was Vito Ferracane, 50 years old, 817 Townsend street, a railroad towerman, who was fatally injured late Friday night when an automobile driven by Grant Wheeler, 624 Belden avenue, president of the Standard Construction company, 108 South LaSalle street, struck him.

Wheeler for a time was held in a cell, but later he was exonerated by a coroner's jury.

Aged Man Dies.

Jacob Lowenthal, 72 years old, 5309 Cornell avenue, died a short time after he had been struck while at Wabash avenue and Jackson boulevard by an automobile truck driven by Wilfred Daganias, 2939 South Halsted street, who was held.

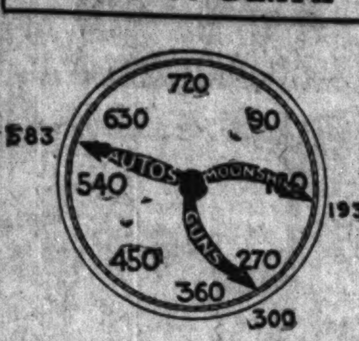
Injuries received last Thursday, when he was struck down at Monroe and Peoria streets caused the death of an unidentified man about 50 years old. The driver of the automobile, A. J. Gurri, 8 North Western avenue, was not held when it was said the victim was intoxicatd.

An unidentified colored boy about 8 years old was fatally injured when he was struck by a Yellow cab driven by Stanley Dembek, 3207 Lime street, in attempting to cross State street at 34th street.

Mrs. Anna Telka, 50 years old, 2213 South Paulina street, was struck by an automobile late last night and probably fatally injured. She was taken to the county hospital.

Otto Detrik, 2701 South Harding avenue, was held in bonds of $10,000 on a charge of assault after his automobile had collided with a motorcycle driven by Motorcycle Policeman Ray Doyle of Cicero.

HANDS OF DEATH



The hands of the clock indicate the number of deaths by autos, guns, and moonshine in Cook county since Jan. 1.

Judge McCarthy Elected to Head De Paul Alumni

Officials of De Paul University alumni for the ensuing year, elected yesterday at a meeting in the Liberal Arts building, 2322 Osgood street, are: President, Judge Joseph L. McCarthy vice president, John Hennessey; treasurer, Marshall Kerney; secretary, Miss Grace Corcoran. Yesterday was homecoming day at the university. The De Paul team met the St. Norbert college eleven in the afternoon, losing, 2 to 0. Last night the alumni held a dinner-dance at the Parkway hotel.

Ivory Bust of Sweetheart Latest for Cane Handle

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 8.—A small ivory bust of one's self, your sweetheart, a prominent actor, actress, politician, or other public figure as the handle for umbrellas and canes is the latest fad in Paris. Now when a gallant cavalier presents an umbrella to a lady he has a sculptor carve her head and bust in ivory. Exclusive shops offer as umbrella handles busts of distinguished persons.

This Man Can't Remember His Name; Know Him?

A man who didn't know who he was walked into the Central police station last night and was sent to the Psychopathic hospital. He is 35 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, and weighs 143 pounds. He wore a gray cap, brown checked suit, and a striped shirt. He has a mole on his left cheek. Police scouted the idea he was an Illinois rooter.

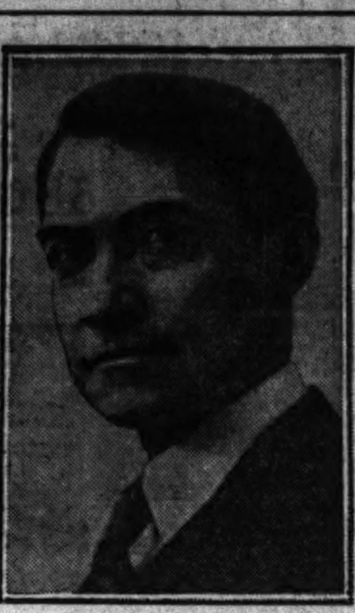
F. B. ATKINSON AND AUTHOR WIFE GRANTED DIVORCE

Couple, Both Over 60, Amaze Friends.

DIVORCE AMAZES FRIENDS

ELEANOR ATKINSON.



FRANCIS B. ATKINSON.

"Temperamental clashes that came even after thirty years of marriage yesterday severed the marital bonds of Francis B. Atkinson, well known author and editor, and his wife, Eleanor Atkinson of New York writer of a number of children's books.

Mr. Atkinson was granted a divorce by Judge Joseph Sabath in Superior court yesterday after he told of his wife's unalterable decision that they "never could live together again."

Devoted for Many Years.

Their many friends were surprised at the legal step and could not supply a reason for it, since both Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson are past 60 and for many years were devoted companions.

Among Mrs. Atkinson's best known works are "Greyfriars Bobby," "Johnny Appleseed," "Ma'mselle Fifine," and "The Boyhood of Lincoln."

Mr. Atkinson, author of the "Pebble" book and many educational works, declared his wife had gone to live with their daughter, Mrs. W. R. Robinson of Bayside, Long Island, four years ago, and produced a letter from her voicing the futility of hoping for a reconciliation. They were married in March, 1891.

Blames Wife's Deafness.

"Mrs. Atkinson," the husband testified, "was hard of hearing, and very sensitive about it. We could not discuss things together. She was subject to fits of irritation with no apparent cause."

The letter expresses the hope that a younger daughter, Elizabeth, 22, might be beguiled into believing that her parents had not separated; that they were meeting each other week-ends and on longer visits in New York.

"Dear Frank," the letter began. "I am glad you are reconciled to the fact that our separation is permanent. The idea of our ever living together again is unthinkable to me.

"I am glad too that you could give up your irksome work with the Comptons (publishers), and in freedom of time and place devote your fine ability and energy to what you like best to do.

Congratulates Him on Book.

"I have seen a copy of the 'Pebble' book and am not surprised to hear that it is such a success. It is of course infinitely superior to anything else that has been done in that line.

"Write me when you change your address, or anything else of importance happens to you.

"Sincerely your friend,

"NORA."

Judge Sabath granted the divorce as a default proceeding, Mrs. Atkinson entering no objection. Both waived rights to the other's possessions.

THIRD PARTY A DEAD ONE? LABOR ORGAN SAYS "NO"

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—A prediction that the third party will be continued as entity appears in an editorial from Labor, a weekly newspaper of the railway unions, out today.

The editorial says, in part:

"The big fact is: 5,000,000 Americans went to the polls last Tuesday and voted for progressive candidates and progressive principles.

"A cause supported by 5,000,000 men and women, who cannot be cajoled or coerced, is not lost, by a long sight.

"American producers—the farmers and industrial workers under the inspiring leadership of La Follette and Wheeler, rolled up almost as many votes as the British labor party succeeded in polling after twenty-five years of intensive organization."

McADOO KNIFED DAVIS, DEMOCRAT CHARGE IN EAST

Nominee Won Bare 10% of Western Votes.

New York, Nov. 8.—[Special.]—The final count of votes cast last Tuesday gives the Democratic party barely 10 per cent of the total in some states and proves that in large districts west of the Mississippi there is almost no party left. It shows, too, that John W. Davis' vote was smallest in those western states where William G. McAdoo is strongest.

The cleavage of the party into hostile groups in its national convention here last June was maintained at the polls, leaders declare. There are three of these sectional groups — the solid south, the conservative east and the progressive west.

Say McAdoo Swing Knife.

In practically all McAdoo states in the west, Davis ran second to La Follette. In some instances the Democratic party appears barely to have retained its place on the ballot by polling the required 10 per cent of the total vote. Leaders here charge openly that the McAdoo machine, which voted for him through more than 100 ballots in the national convention deliberately knifed Davis.

The bitterness engendered in the national convention has been increased by the result of the election. Eastern chiefs are charging not only that McAdoo did nothing himself to help the ticket, but that his field agents in all states cast their influence for La Follette and deserted their own ticket.

Point to McAdoo States.

All through the McAdoo states the Republican vote held approximately the same proportion as in other states, but the Davis vote was relatively smaller than in other states, even in those in which he made a poor showing.

Resenting charges and insinuations that Tammany traded Davis for Al Smith in New York on election day the leaders here point out that the La Follette vote accounts fully for the discrepancy in the national and state ticket votes. They compare the vote in the east to that in the McAdoo states as proof that if there was Democratic treachery it was not in New York.

Murder and Arson Laid to Pair for Fatal Blaze

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 8.—Seven indictments charging murder and arson were returned by the county grand jury against Louis Goldstein and Joe Lascuola in the death of fifteen persons in an explosion and fire at 18th street and Tracy avenue here July 17, it became known today. Two firemen and thirteen Negroes were killed. Pete Goldstein was indicted for third degree arson.

Tom Lipton Promises to Be Sing Sing Santa Claus

Ossining, N. Y., Nov. 8.—Sir Thomas Lipton, well known yachtsman, visited Sing Sing today to learn the names of needy dependents of prisoners in order to give them Christmas presents. He made an informal speech at a musical entertainment given by the prisoners.

LISTED STOCKS AND BONDS LOOT OF CRACKSMEN

Storage Firm Robbery Nets Little of Worth.

Listed stocks and bonds almost impossible to negotiate safely comprised the only loot obtained by six cracksmen who early yesterday hammered open twenty safety deposit boxes in the Empire storage warehouse, 5153 Cottage Grove avenue, and escaped with the contents.

The robbers bound and gagged Patrick Murphy, 807 North Wells street, a watchman, and then went industriously to work. Chief of Detectives Hughes after an investigation declared he believed they were experienced cracksmen. They had entered very quietly by pulling down a rear fire escape and breaking a small window, then leaping suddenly upon Murphy.

Total Value Not Given.

Among the securities taken were a number of railroad stock certificates belonging to Mary Louise Halligan, bookkeeper for the concern. Others belonged to John Kashow, another employé, and still others belonged to Mabel C. Leaver, 5222 Blackstone avenue. The total value of them was not given.

Lieut. John Egan of the detective bureau and his squad obtained finger prints of some of the robbers and were conducting an investigation during the day. Murphy, the watchman, was taken to the bureau of identification to look over the pictures of a number of known criminals suspected of the crime.

At the same time Chief Hughes made a careful list of the stocks, bonds, and mortgages taken and sent the descriptions of them out to all police, banks and brokerage houses.

Lieut. Egan asserted early in the evening that certain men were under suspicion and that he might have these under arrest early today.

Robbed of Pay Roll.

Henry Warenkowski, cashier for the Dole Valve company, 1923 Carroll avenue, was held up and robbed of a $3,950 pay roll at the entrance of the plant by four men.

Four men also held up A. N. Spence, 7945 Elizabeth street, a cattle buyer at the stock yards, and took his automobile from him at 56th and Loomis streets.

Richard Owens, proprietor of the Enterprise Dry Goods company, 4234 Wentworth avenue, was robbed of $80; Charles Williams, 5600 Ashland avenue, lost $100, and Jacob Kaplan, 3546 Armitage avenue, $300 to other highwaymen.

202D ART. PLANS ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION

The public is invited to attend the Armistice day exercises of the 202d Coast Artillery, at the Broadway armory, 5875 Broadway, Tuesday evening. A program of drills and short speeches will be followed by dancing. The guns used by the artillery for anti-aircraft defense will be on exhibition in the armory, and members of the regiment will explain the features of some of the lesser known types. Several distinguished guests have accepted invitations to be present for the entertainment, which will also include the formal dedication of the regiment's new flagpole.

In accordance with resolutions adopted by the city council at its last meeting, urging the citizenry to participate in the celebration of Armistice day, Mayor Dever has issued an order closing the city hall for the day.

IN RARE TRIBUTE TO RED CROSS COOLIDGE URGES MEMBERSHIP

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—Urging "universal acceptance of the invitation to join" in the annual Red Cross roll call, President Coolidge, as head of the organization, tonight made public through its headquarters here the following letter, addressed to all the people:

"The American Red Cross has become an intimate part of our national life. Under its congressional charter it is a semi-official agent of the government, but it belongs nevertheless to the people. It is the instrument of the people in giving expression to the lofty, unselfish humanitarianism, the practical idealism, characteristic of this nation from its humble beginnings.

"The Amercan Red Cross has been tested in war and the aftermath of war; in fire, flood and famine, and in the emergencies of peace. It has been proved an indispensable instrument for the alleviation of suffering and betterment of human life in our own and other lands.

"We should make unmistakably clear our faith in this instrument we have created for rendering service. As individuals it is our duty and privilege to be a part of this organization.

"Yearly, from Armistice day to Thanksgiving day, the American Red Cross invites all the people to enter its ranks. It enrolls them for service.

"As President of the United States and as president of the American Red Cross, I urge universal acceptance of the invitation to join. The Red Cross needs and should have your generous support. Let its good works become your good works."

"Advance reports of the enrollment organization throughout the country," a Red Cross statement said, "indicate that the 1924 roll call total of more than 3,300,000 members will be exceeded in this year's campaign."

WILLIAMSON CO. HAS PNEUMONIC PLAGUE, REPORT

Marion, Ill., Nov. 8.—Williamson county is threatened with the "pneumonic" plague, the disease which has claimed many lives in California recently, according to Dr. A. W. Springs, owner of a hospital at Dewmaine, Ill., in a letter sent to the Illinois state board of health today.

In the letter, according to Dr. Springs, he stated there had been two deaths within nine days at Hurst, and there were now two new cases at Bush, an adjoining city, which have been diagnosed as due to similar causes.

COP, WOUNDED, SHOOTS 3 BANDITS IN PISTOL BATTLE

Patrolman Jesse B. Reese, colored, assigned to the Cottage Grove avenue station, battled with three colored bandits early yesterday and, although gravely wounded, got his men. Two of the robbers are dead and the third, shot through the head, is not expected to recover. Reese was off duty at the time.

Neither of the dead Negro bandits has been identified. Police found one of the bodies in a vacant lot at 3737 South Michigan avenue late yesterday. A bullet had pierced the right lung. In the coat pocket was an automatic pistol. The bandit was found to be the third shot by Patrolman Reese at Indiana avenue and 37th street.

Reese had left his home, 3729 Giles avenue, to walk to the police station. When he reached 37th street and Indiana avenue he surprised the men as they were fleeing from the drug store of Emil Napper, 3700 Indiana avenue.

The patrolman ordered the men to halt. They answered him with a volley of shots. Reese fell to the pavement wounded. Despite his wound, he continued the fight. He emptied his gun. One of the bandits fell dead.

A second dropped with a bullet in his head. The third staggered and disappeared down an alleyway. He is believed to have stumbled to 3737 Michigan avenue, where his body was found. The injured Negro gave his name as George Fuqua, 3617 Vincennes avenue. He denied that he was one of the robbers. The druggist will be asked to view him.

Reese was taken to the Provident hospital. He is not expected to recover.

FATHER OF FOUR ENDS LIFE.

Richard Drowz, 53 years old, 3638 South Wood street, a salesman, cut his wrists with a razor yesterday and died shortly afterward at the Jefferson park hospital. He was married and had four children.

NEITHER MOSLEM NOR FLAPPER CAN SMOKE IN MECCA

CAIRO, Nov. 8. — [Jewish Telegraphic Agency.]—There will be no further smoking in Mecca, the Moslem holy city, now that Mecca is under the reign of the Moslem puritans, the Wahabis.

The Wahabis have seized 100,000 Narghilis and burned them in the bazaar of Mecca, according to a report received here today. They have also prohibited further importation of tobacco, roll or manufactured, cigarettes or cigars, within the limits of the holy city.

According to the doctrines of the Wahabis, the puritan sect of the Moslem faith, smoking is as great a sin as drinking.

CHINESE CIVIL WAR SHIFTS TO YANGTZE RIVER

Rule of Chang and Feng Menaced by New Foes.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PEKING, Nov. 8.—The theater of the Chinese civil war today shifted to the Yangtze valley following the receipt in Peking of a telegram from Chi Hsi-Hu in Nanking intimating the creation of a separate government.

Chang Going to Tientsin.

Gen. Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian war lord, will arrive in Tientsin on Monday for a conference with Marshal Tuan Chi-Jui, who has been named as temporary dictator. Gen. Chang has telegraphed Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang also to meet him. The flagship Huron and three destroyers will remain in Chefoo for a time.

The arrest of Chihli party officials continues. The Peking government is appointing new military and civil governors south of the Yellow river, indicating their determination to give battle there to adherents of Wu Pei-Fu or other enemies.

Lands U. S. Marines.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 8.—Rear Admiral Washington, in command of the United States China squadron, arranged to land tonight four parties of sixty marines each at Chefoo to protect the foreign settlement and Temple Hill, the residence section of the American missionaries, owing to expected disorders resulting from an attempted landing of Gen. Wu Pei-Fu and 3,000 troops who sailed from Tientsin on Nov. 3. Shantung troops are expected to try to prevent Wu from getting a foothold in Shantung province.

James Minotto, Banker, Sued by Auto Victim

James Minotto, vice president of the Boulevard Bridge bank and son-in-law of Louis F. Swift, was named defendant in a $10,000 damage suit filed in the Circuit court yesterday by Frank Ucherek, 8 years old. The boy was struck by an automobile in which Mr. and Mrs. Minotto were riding on Oct. 1. His injuries were serious, according to Attorney Albert Schaffner.

Chicago Opens Heart to Forget-Me-Nots for Vets

Chicago's only observance of "Forget Me Not day" yesterday consisted in the sale of the flowers and tags by scores of women and girls, with apparently a good response from the public. Proceeds of the sale are destined to aid the 3,000 disabled veterans in the city who are out of employment. The exact returns will not be known until tomorrow.

CHURCHES URGED TO CELEBRATE ARMISTICE DAY

"To the end that abiding peace may come to the world, the Chicago Church federation, in the name of seventeen denominations and 700 churches, urges upon its membership and upon all other churches and denominations the observance of Armistice Sunday by paying homage to the heroic dead and by summoning the living to prayers and labors for world peace."

This statement is contained in the proclamation issued yesterday by the federation regarding the observance of armistice today.

Many American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts will attend services as units in tribute to the memory of their fallen comrades.

SAYS U. S. LETS BIG FISH ESCAPE PROHIBITION NET

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Too much attention has been given by the federal government to the "insignificant" cases in prosecution of violations of the prohibition act, said Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, in an address here today to the citizenship conference.

Too little attention, she said, has been given to "the big fellow." The result, said the speaker, has been a "lowering of the efficiency and dignity of the federal courts."

"The next problem," Mrs. Willebrandt said, "which the federal government must assume its full responsibility for is to stop smuggling. That can only be done by emphasizing the larger cases and working patiently under cover until the evidence has been accumulated not only against the ship that dispenses its liquor from the high seas, but also against the group of conspirators on shore who take care of the distribution."

TEACHER RECALLS ARMISTICE DAY BY MAKING FLAG

Moved by the spirit of the approaching armistice anniversary, Mlle. Francoise Carmins, Chicago French teacher, yesterday sent the editor of "Les Etats Unis," the only French paper published in America, an embroidered replica of the French tri-color. Appearing beside the emblem are the letters "H-G-I," for "Honor-Glory-Immortality." Below the emblem appear the names of Foch and Joffre. Mlle. Carmins previously made copies of the American flag, which were sent high officials in Washington.

ROOSEVELT ROAD CARS WILL TAKE DETOUR MONDAY

Blockades, incidental to the completion of the Roosevelt road viaduct, will necessitate rerouting Roosevelt road street cars after 8 a. m. tomorrow morning, it was announced yesterday by the surface lines.

Roosevelt-Wabash cars will turn on Canal street to Polk, thence east to Wells, north to Harrison, and east to State street, where "walking" transfers will be issued between these cars and others operating on Wabash avenue. The Roosevelt Road-Downtown cars, east bound, will turn at Canal street to Polk street, east to Wells street, north to Adams street, east to Dearborn, south to Van Buren, and west to Canal street again. The 14th-16th street cars will turn back at Roosevelt road and Canal street.

Rerouting of Adams street cars, which began last night at 6 p. m., because of the installation of a large armature by the Continental and Commercial National bank on Adams street, near Wells street, will continue until 6 a. m. tomorrow morning.

OPEN SUNDAYS AND EVENINGS

YOU can enjoy all the comforts of an enclosed car with greater safety at a small expense and without the cumbersome looking, vision-interfering, makeshift curtains and similar enclosures. To equip your car with FULL-VISION ENCLOSURES it takes only two days.

So Neat It Harmonizes with the Lines of Fine Cars

The FULL-VISION ENCLOSURE is the only one made entirely of steel, glass and rubber. Each pane of glass is weather-tight and rattle-proof being set in a rubber cushion. The outside edges of each steel frame are finished with extending feather-edge rubber. This rubber fills the space between frame and body, frame and top and frame and frame. The frames never come in contact with the car or with each other, yet, they are perfectly weather-tight and rattle-proof.

All doors open. FOUR Large Ventilators easily controlled. No change required in touring top. Enclosure weighs about half as much as an average passenger. It can be readily removed for summer storage and put on in a few hours. It stores flat against the wall, requires little space.

Don't take chances with human life driving with storm curtains or types of enclosures which obscure vision. Remember—a few days' illness from exposure will cost you more than this enclosure. Prepare in advance for disagreeable weather.

We have manufactured more enclosures than all other enclosure manufacturers in Chicago. Telephone or call for circular giving full details.

YOU'VE BEEN A BIT BATTY A MONTH, EDUCATOR SAYS

But It's Just a Case of "Electionitis."

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 8.—The nation is just recovering from an acute attack of insanity which appeared about Oct. 1 and culminated at the polls Nov. 4, according to E. M. Lindley, chancellor of the University of Kansas, in a statement issued following an address before the closing session of the Wisconsin Teachers' association here today.

No Laughing Matter.

"Many persons would laugh to learn they had passed through a period of temporary insanity, but it is nevertheless quite true," Dr. Lindley said. "Look through the newspapers and you will find them crowded with deeds and statements that could never occur in a sane period. A judge was killed in Tennessee, a voter was murdered, and a number were beaten in Chicago in a free-for-all fight. This all points to a frenzy pitch of disordered minds.

"If the American people were not good losers in elections, and forgot disappointments as soon as the elections are over, we would have the same conditions here, and perhaps worse than in Soviet Russia.

Bad Bunch of Losers.

"With the politicians, if the odds go against them, they stand the defeat like a bunch of hoodlums."

The American schools, according to the speaker, are trying to teach athletes to win or lose like sportsmen and gentlemen in the hope that the experience will be of benefit to them in later life.

BONUS SENATE LEADERS BEATEN, ANTIS WINNERS

Those Upholding Veto Are Re-elected.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Three of the senators who were most prominent in the fight to enact the soldiers' bonus law were defeated in the recent election, while of the handful of senators who stood by the President and voted to sustain his veto of that law, seven were reelected.

Two of the most active advocates of a cash bonus for the soldiers on the Democratic side were David I. Walsh [Mass.] and A. Owlsey Stanley [Ky]. Both are among the defeated.

N. M. Repudiates Bursum.

On the Republican side, the best known bonus casualty is Holm O. Bursum [N. M.], who voted to override the presidential veto of both the bonds and the increased pensions bills, being in charge of the latter measure.

The seven members of the anti-bonus minority who came back were Warren [Wyo.], Edge [N. J.], Borah [Idaho], Glass [Va.], Keyes [N. H.], Phipps [Colo.], and Fernald [Me.].

Three of the anti-bonus leaders were defeated in the primaries. They were Dial [S. C.] and Shields [Tenn.], Democrats, and Sterling [S. D.], Republican.

Another Bonus Casualty.

McCormick [Ill.], a bonus senator, was another primary casualty. Senator Adams [Colo.], who voted for the bonus, likewise met defeat, while Brookhart [Ia.], than whom there was no more ardent bonus advocate, was elected by a scant 1,000 votes and a recount may show him to have been defeated.

Of the new senators, Gillett [Mass.] and Du Pont [Del.] are listed among the supporters of the President in the matter of adjusted compensation.

Bonus senators who were reelected were Casper [Kas.], Walsh [Mont.], Norris [Neb.], McNary [Ore.], Heflin [Ala.], Ransdell [La.], Harris [Ga.], Sheppard [Tex.], Harrison [Miss.], Robinson [Ark.], and Simmons [N. C.].

ASKS TROOPS TO FOIL I. W. W. RAID ON STRIKE CAMP

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 8.—Sheriff Conn and Prosecutor Gilbert of Skagit county have asked Gov. Hart for troops because of 300 Industrial Workers of the World having established control of the principal road leading to Concrete, Wash., said a dispatch published today by the Seattle Times.

The situation grew out of a strike that started three weeks ago on a large hydro-electric plant which the Puget Sound Traction, Light and Power company has been building on the Baker river at Concrete.

A huge camp has been established in the woods along the road by the I. W. W., it was related, and twice passenger trains on the Great Northern railway have been stopped.

"I am swearing in a large special force of deputies," Sheriff Conn was stated to have said, "but we need troops."

The dispatch declared that 300 workers on the project had resisted efforts of I. W. W. to persuade them to quit work.

MICHIGAN KILLS ANTI-PAROCHIAL SCHOOL MEASURE

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8.—Outstanding among three constitutional amendments decisively defeated in Michigan was that known as the anti-parochial school amendment, aimed at the abolition of parochial and private schools. It would have compelled every child in the state, of school age, to attend public schools through the grammar grades.

Four years ago a similar amendment lost by approximately 60,000 votes. This time it lost by approximately 300,000 votes.

HERE'S THE REAL STRAW IN THE STRAW BALLOTS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—Thirty-six postal employés in sixteen cities have been found guilty of taking the ballots of a presidential straw vote poll from undeliverable envelopes and voting the ballots themselves. Postmaster General New announced today the offenders had been disciplined by reducing their salaries $100.

MAN KILLED BY TRAIN.

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Thurman Nelson of Indianapolis was instantly killed today when he was struck by a Wabash train while walking to work.

Only Two Cars Compare with Elcar

Find Out Which Two They Are

IF motor cars sold by the pound, there would be some startling changes in present-day prices. It is because many things of intangible worth—names, designs, "equipment"—go into the making of every automobile, that prices differ greatly.

But there is no important reason why cars substantially equal in size, power and quality should not be nearly equal in price. Yet you know this is not so. Therefore, isn't it logical to believe that of three cars practically equal as to specifications, the one which costs the least is the greatest in value and is the car to buy?

We have prepared a folder comparing the ELCAR Eight-in-Line point by point with the two cars that are comparable with it. The result should aid you greatly in deciding which car to buy. A copy may be had at the nearest ELCAR showroom, where a most illuminating demonstration also awaits you, or from The Elcar Motor Company, Elkhart, Indiana.

BY WALLACE ABBEY.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Forward passes are evidently something foreign to the nature of Northwestern university football players, especially ends, for Coach Yost's Wolverines today bombarded the Purple right and left with aerial tosses and crushed our representatives from Evanston, 27 to 0, before a crowd of 30,000 at Ferry field.

Coach Thistlethwaite's boys seemed to offer no defense against the passing game of the Maize and Blue and the ends were not only fooled once, but three times, and touchdowns were the result in each case.

Baker Works Alone.

And just to make the defeat more humiliating for the hundreds of Northwestern rooters who invaded this town on a special train this morning, their idol, Ralph Baker, was not able to do anything spectacular. The fleet Purple halfback fought through the entire game with but the slightest support from his mates, and what he did, which was little enough, was done alone.

Figuring largely in the Wolverine triumph were Tod Rockwell, Ben Friedman and Phil Marion, aces of Coach Yost's backfield in the absence of Capt. Herb Steger. The Wolverine pilot was in shape to play, but was not started. After the first quarter it was seen that he would not be needed, so he was not given a shot at the Purple.

The aforementioned trio of backs figured in all the passes that spelled defeat for Northwestern. Rockwell planting the ball behind the Purple goal three times and Marion once. Rockwell's toe added the extra points after touchdowns, failing once.

Bum Punt Leads to Score.

During the first few minutes of the game the teams appeared evenly matched and a spirited struggle seemed assured. But the Wolverines had not begun to pass. However, one touchdown was scored by Rockwell in the first period largely because of a poor punt by Capt. Bob Wienecke.

Wienecke was forced to punt from behind his goal posts and the oval soared only to the 24 yard line. Marion plugged through center for 2 yards and on the second play Rockwell shot off left tackle for the counter.

The second period was about half over when the locals really broke loose and struck terror into the hearts of the purple clad warriors. The Wolverines received the ball on their 40 yard line and with Herrnstein, Friedman and Marion continually punching the Purple forward wall, carried it to the visitors' 29 yard mark.

Wolverines Begin Passes.

Changing tactics, the Maize and Blue suddenly began showering passes on the bewildered Purple. Several failed, but Friedman soon heaved one to Rockwell on the Northwestern 5 yard line and he trotted to a score unmolested.

The fans had hardly settled in their seats before the pesky Wolverines had scored another touhdown—and it was by the very same pass in the very same place. It happened in this way: Rockwell kicked off to the Purple 14 yard mark. Almost in the shadow of his own goal Baker attempted a long pass to Wally Seidel and it was promptly intercepted by Friedman on the Northwestern 21 yard line. The tragedy occurred on the first play thereafter, when Friedman shot a pass to Marion—who also trotted across the goal line unmolested.

Purple Weak on Defense.

The final counter came in the third period and in this instance Gregory, who was subbing for Herrnstein, gathered some glory to himself by intercepting a Baker-Brand pass on the Purple 44 yard line. Marion took his customary punch at the line and then Friedman did the customary thing by hurling a 40 yard pass to Rockwell, who was the third Wolverine player to jog over the Purple goal line unmolested.

The Purple always has been weak on a defense for forward passes and this fault has never been as evident as it was today. The losers have no alibis, but they do like to point to the fact that Wally Seidel, the flank man over whose head the most damage was done, has been ill with the flu, and the other end, Red Cole, is green and was subbing for the injured Barney Mathews.

Northwestern's attack was sadly lacking in many respects. Capt. Wienecke was unable to gain consistently through the line and Baker was off on his passes.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—The team that won't be beaten can't be beaten, and today it wasn't. For a great Princeton eleven, before 53,000 persons at Soldiers' field, gave Harvard the most smashing defeat the Crimson has ever suffered at the hands of the Tigers.

As the shadows crept and lengthened and the sun went down, so did Harvard go down—down to an inglorious 34-0 beating, without parallel in the forty-seven years of Princeton-Harvard football, down to a decisive, overwhelming defeat that represents easily the most amazing upset of the current football campaign.

You Can't Stop a Cannonball.

Search the records clear back to that first game in 1877 and you will find no other Princeton team potent and powerful enough to crush fair Harvard by 34 points. Go back to the good old days of the Poes, of Sam White and Big Bill Edwards, and Lourie and Scheerer and you will look in vain for a companion piece to the game today.

But, after all, the explanation is simple. There is still no known method of yoking a cyclone. There is no way to corral a tempest or to lead a tornado gently by the hand. When the cannonball comes flaming out of the mouth of the Howitzer, there is no way to block it off. It's hard to argue with something that is coming at you with the speed of light and with the force of a battering ram.

Harvard in Favorite Rôle.

Princeton today was not merely a team of destiny. It was a team of super-demons, of galloping, inspired maniacs, who dashed ahead with the speed of the Twentieth Century limited and didn't know the meaning of the word stop. It was a team of half backs as fleet as the wind, of backs who ripped and tore and bored through a dazed Harvard line. A team of linemen and ends who opened up gapping holes, followed the ball with a keen scent, tackled fiercely and surely and wouldn't be beaten.

Before the game Harvard was a distinct and solid favorite. Princeton was conceded an outside chance, but only because it was Princeton, which sometimes has the annoying faculty of not knowing when it is licked.

Princeton men sat and rubbed their eyes as they saw a slashing, dashing machine grind out four touchdowns and two goals from field.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Columbus, O., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Making a gallant but fruitless effort to pull the game out of the fire in the last quarter, Ohio State went down in defeat here today in the stadium at the hands of Indiana, 12 to 7, thus putting them out of the Big Ten race.

After the teams had gone scoreless the first half, the Hoosiers cut loose with a straight attack in the third quarter and scored two touchdowns, but failed to kick the goals.

The Buckeyes came right back with that characteristic Ohio State spirit, scored one touchdown in the final period, and when the pistol was fired to denote the termination of the game had the ball on the Hoosiers' three yard line.

Ohio Defense Weak.

It was a heartbreaking game for Ohio to lose, but a welcome victory for Indiana, which had been previously defeated by Chicago and Northwestern. The Scarlet and Gray, however, failed to show the Ohio punch except for a few minutes in the opening period and for most of the final quarter while the locals' defense was weak.

Indiana displayed a driving and versatile offense, about the best seen by a Hoosier eleven in recent years.

Even in the final minutes of play, when Ohio hurled the ball to all parts of the field on short and long forward passes, Ingram's lads fought back with a determination which resulted in a much cherished victory.

Try for Field Goals.

Although neither scored in the first half, the Hoosiers had a distinct advantage in the general play. At one time Indiana rushed the oval to the Buckeyes' 19 yard line and then tried a forward pass which was not completed.

At the start of the third period Indiana kicked off to Ohio and Wentz was downed on his 15 yard line. The Buckeyes were unable to make much headway and Cunningham punted to Lorber, who returned to the locals' 34 yard mark.

With Lorber, Marks, Salmi, and Capt. Sloate carrying the oval, the locals' line was torn wide open until the ball rested on the Ohio 4 yard line. Instead of plunging through the line or off a tackle, Salmi shot a forward pass to Marks, who caught the oval in one corner of the end zone for the first score of the game. Lorber's place kick attempt was blocked.

Marks Runs 55 Yards.

Ohio State elected to kick off and Cunningham drove the oval over the goal line for a touchback.

The Hoosiers put the ball in play on their 20 yard line. Three attempts to gain netted only 5 yards and Marks punted to Wentz, who fumbled and Indiana recovered on its 45 yard line. On the first play Marks broke loose off Ohio's left tackle and ran 55 yards for a touchdown. Sloate failed to add the point by kick.

pass attack. With Cunningham, end, doing most of the tossing, and Wendler and Ollie Klee on the receiving ends, the ball was gradually forced down the field until it rested on the Hoosiers' 7 yard line. Cameron hurled a forward pass to Klee and the latter scampered over the goal line for Ohio's first score. Klee kicked the goal.

Hold on 4 Yard Line.

Cunningham then kicked off for Ohio to Lorber, who made a beautiful return to the center of the field. Again the Hoosiers made a brilliant effort to score but lost the ball on downs on the Buckeyes' 4 yard line. Klee immediately punted out of danger. Indiana started again for a touchdown but lost the ball on downs on the Buckeyes' 24 yard line by inches.

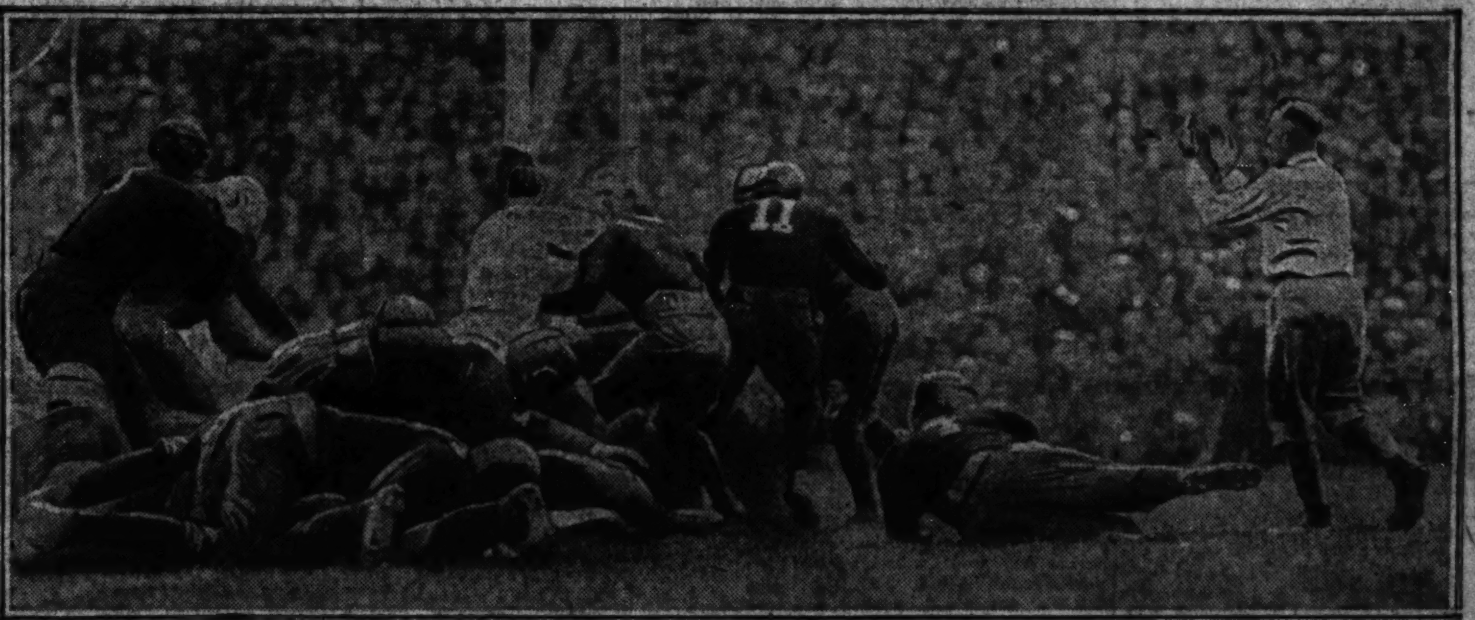
From this point Ohio State made a gallant effort to score. Lateral and forward passes enabled the Ohio backs to steadily carry the ball down the field. Passes were plucked out of the air by brilliant efforts, until Klee was thrown out of bounds on the Indiana 3 yard line.

At this point there was only three seconds to play and on the next play Ollie failed to gain off his left tackle as the pistol ended the game.

Indiana deserved to win. Ohio State did not show the football which has featured the teams of the past. The way.

MAROONS DRIVE THROUGH ILLINI FOR THREE TOUCHDOWNS

McCarty, the battering ram of the Maroons, after plunging and smashing his way down the field in the early minutes of the game, finally drove through the center of the Illinois line for the first Maroon touchdown. He had to carry the ball only a yard. The picture of the play was taken after he had lunged over the Illinois goal line.



The Illini next retreated before a driving Maroon attack led by Harry Thomas, and it was Thomas who shoved over the second touchdown. He had to go less than a yard. The final desperate smash, as the picture shows, sprawled most of the Illini in its wake.

Stagg had called three full backs into the battle before the third touchdown came. Francis, the third to see action, is shown here walking through a big hole which the Maroon forwards have punctured in the Illini line for the counter. The Illinois defense was all but stampeded when this touchdown was registered.

BUCKEYE GRID STAR DISAPPEARS AFTER FUMBLE

Columbus, O., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Burke Wentz, 19 year old substitute half back on the Ohio State team, was reported missing tonight after the Buckeye game with Indiana. He went downtown with his mother, father, brother, and sister and slipped away from them, it was said. Neither his family nor close friends could find any trace of his whereabouts.

Wentz was downcast after he fumbled an Indiana punt on the Hoosiers forty-four yard line this afternoon and an Indiana player recovered it, killing an Ohio chance to score.

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 8.—Dr. William Tillingham Bull, graduate of Columbia university and for many years a member of the Yale football coaching staff, died here today after an illness of over a year. He was 56 years of age. The body was sent to New Haven, his former home, this afternoon.

McCarty a Native Chicagoan

THAT driving, plunging, diving, smashing 176 pounds of Irish humanity which threw the Maroons into frenzies of delight and Illini partisans into despair in the game at Stagg field yesterday is Austin McCarty, a Chicago product.

Before he started making Chicago's Big Ten opponents—even Illinois—hope against hope that he'd fail in his brilliant offensive sallies, he threw terror into the hearts of the Chicago City High School league, playing half back on the Hyde Park eleven, where he rated a berth on the mythical All-Cook county team by popular selection.

When he joined the freshman squad at the University of Chicago in 1922 he was one of the most formidable foemen the varsity line had to face, being used against the upper classmen in drill for Big Ten games. He was elected captain of the yearling squad that year—an evidence of his popularity at the Midway. During the same year he won his freshman numerals in basketball, but since has forsaken that sport to gain regular standing on the swimming team, stroking in the 40 and 100 yard free style events.

Illini Fans Go Wild at Gridgraph of Game

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Unfortunate students who were unable to secure pasteboards to the Chicago game went wild this afternoon watching a gridgraph giving play by play of the game. When Grange made his sensational run of 82 yards and Britton kicked the extra point, putting Illinois into a tie with the Maroons, pandemonium broke loose and continued for fully five minutes.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—James Edmonston of Compton, a Los Angeles suburb, could not stand the excitement of watching his son Bill act as winning quarter back of Compton high's 12-0 victory over Santa Monica high school here. After two fainting spells in the stands, he was aided outside and died two hours later in a hospital of heart disease.

ground of yellow. The Illinois band blows with lung power fit to crack the brasses, and the drummers lay on as MacDuff never imagined.

There he is! Grange!!

Modestly trotting in the wake of the team, a huge yellow 77 stitched on his back. That 77 is going to have 64,000 eyes glued to it this day, and not all of those eyes are going to be fast enough to keep it in view.

The Maroon Rooters Roar.

A roar from Chicago now. The Maroon eleven trots forth. A roar for Gowdy. A roar for Pondelik. A roar for Thomas. A whale of a roar for McCarty. A succession of roars; roars that break up into little whirlpools of chatter and cheering and go spinning round about over the throng. The limber little cheer leaders are probably going stark, raving mad. They glide, they leap, they shimmy, they run, they gyrate and perform such bewildering feats of acrobatics that one is like to think they must be of rubber. And for each of their several and perfectly astonishing gestures there arises out of the mass a roar like the beating of 10,000 hoofs.

They say that Stagg is a master workman. They say he uses football players as an artificer uses his tools; that he takes each tool, one by one, and polishes it and sharpens it and lays it by. Presently there comes a time to use a chisel. And so he uses it. Then a hammer; he hits a whack. Now a drill; he bores away.

Stagg and His Bag of Tools.

They are kicking off. Let us summarize, in the brief moment required for the ball to pass Britton's foot to Chicago's back field, where Barto catches it. There are hundreds of balloons in the Chicago grandstand. They are to be released when Chicago scores. There is Stagg with his bag of tools. There is Grange with his 77 so importantly in view.

What's happening! The Chicago grandstand rises like a blanket suddenly inspired. Then it sits again. Now it is up again. Now down. Now, once more, up, up, up; and yelling, ladies and gentlemen, like so many pent up furies suddenly released upon a hateful world.

This, then, is what has happened: McCarty, he with the white 8 on his broad back, went through that Illinois line for 15 yards. It is the same Illinois line that held Iowa and Michigan and all the rest of the noble football machines that now strew its wake.

They form again. McCarty goes through for another 15 yards.

They form again. McCarty goes through for 7 yards.

They form again. McCarty goes through for 8 yards.

Again. McCarty goes through for 3 yards.

McCarty goes through to the 6 yard line.

McCarty goes through for a touchdown.

The Balloons Go Up.

Play that on your big bassoon, O voices in the Chicago grand stand. And do the balloons go up? Well, you can bet your next year's birdseed. The tumult that now brays and clamors makes a boiler foundry the twin brother of the piccolo. The staccato squeals of the girls, the harsh shouts of the men folks, and the blaring of the band and the surge of emotions makes you think ain't we got fun.

Now let us reflect. McCarty has not made all those advances in precisely the simplicity set down here. There are others on the Maroon team. Thomas has burst through the Illinois line like a young meteor on at least two very successful occasions. The Maroon line has been a bulwark like the defenses of Verdun. But it is justice to say all these nice things of the Maroons; for let it be reflected the Illini were favorites. The Illini were the unbeaten; still are, but humbled. The Illini were led by that always-to-be-respected Grange. So what the Maroons did is set down as epochal.

There to See Grange.

Still another touchdown for Chicago and turn we, as Guizot so often says in his history of France, to the exploits of Grange. For it is Grange we came to see. Let nothing obscure that fact. Without Grange there would have been a good football game and thousands would have lent their presence and their hoarse shouts to spur it on. But with Grange—ah!

Grange has been the name talked on a thousand tongues on campus, and boulevard. Grange, the boy who becomes an iceman of summers, so that he may keep his form; Grange, the fleet; Grange, the modest; Grange, the thunderbolt. Well, now that we have had our sip—nay, gulp—from this ambrosial cup of felicitous and triumphant advantage, let us sit with the daisy and buttercup littered grand stand of the Illini. For Chicago cannot always carry the ball.

It is the second period and Thomas has gone over for the second Chicago touchdown. Grange, by uncanny legerdemain, advances the ball, now by a forward pass and now by a run. Then over for his second touchdown. It is 14 to 7 for Chicago.

Now Francis, introduced in the nick of time, as Stagg changes his tools for each development in the job, plumps through for the third Chicago touchdown. It is 21 to 7.

Back comes Grange, creeping closer to that inevitable climax. And over he goes again. Now it is 21 to 14. Let us take hold of ourselves and look hard.

Illini Rooters Silent.

There is that lull among the Illinoisans that betokens the least mite of discomfort. There have been two touchdowns. Grange has managed a couple of pretty forward passes; has carried the ball for short gains. But now Illinois is far back in its own field. The lull we spoke of now settles down to tense silence.

Well, neighbor, do you want to know what has happened to send these brooding and silent Illini into the ecstasies of insanity?

Listen—

Grange has the ball; he darts round the end. A Maroon lunges for him. May as well have lunged for a streak of lightning. Another Maroon lunges. What was said about the lightning goes for him, too. Grange is dancing, Grange is skipping, Grange is dodging like a rabbit through the underbrush. A crowd of Maroons dash at him; and the twenty-one players scatter fanwise in his wake, like bees swarming after the queen; and Grange away like an antelope for eighty yards to a touchdown.

Everything that 32,000 men, women and children had come to see happened. Grange was true to form. He was hailed as the ogre and he ate them alive; heralded as the guy that makes 80 yard runs and he did it.

McCarty is out of the game now. Stagg is saving him. Zuppke, the Illini coach, is not saving Grange. There have been games this season when Grange, like some pampered prima donna, was sent in just for a solo or two. Today he is doing a full show. Grange done his damndest. And that was exactly equal to McCarty in something less than half the game.

Can They Survive?

From now on it is a question of how many out of this crowd of 32,000 odd will survive heart failure. Grange has more of his spectacular runs to make. McCarty has more lines to smash. The Illini have many a sweet forward pass to complete. The Maroons have some to fumble. Stagg is on the side lines with his bag of tools. Now he sends in a chiseling tackle and takes out one that hammers. Next he sends in a hammering half back and takes out one that bores. Wisely, cunningly, does this Disraeli of the gridiron order his battle.

Dusk falls. The ball is in Illini territory and the Chicago stands are yelling for a touchdown. The whistle blows. The crowds go mad and flow down into the field in mighty rivers with mad gesticulations and clamor of delight. The Maroon band parades on the gridiron.

The score is 21 to 21—a tie, a noble, magnificent tie.

But when the Maroon band parades it is thinking of victory.

MAROONS' GREAT SHOWING

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Mighty Harold "Red" Grange, the phantom of Urbana, is in temporary eclipse and the age old wizardry of A. A. Stagg is in the ascendancy.

Yesterday with Stagg Field packed to its capacity of 32,000, the phantom did his stuff and did it well, but, single handed, he wasn't enough and Chicago's Maroons, underdogs and doped to lose, came out of nowhere to attain a brilliant tie and put a blot on Illinois' "Big Ten" championship hopes.

The score when the final pistol barked to snap the tension was 21 to 21 and 32,000 folks not only saw a battle worthy of the traditional rivalry between the Maroon and the Orange and Blue, but they saw the Stagg gridiron cunning, born of years of experience, pit itself against the flitting 20 year old phantom and emerge with honors even. It was even, at least, in points, but for Chicago, counted out even before the start, it was almost victory.

Maroon Fight Offsets Grange.

No Maroon team ever went into a struggle that appeared more hopeless and no Maroon team ever came out more gloriously. For two seasons the phantom Grange had dashed in and out and around his gridiron foes. To stop him was the problem. He wasn't exactly stopped yesterday, at least not in spots, for he went tearing across the chalk lines for three touchdowns, but he was stopped to the extent that the Maroons offset his depredations by literally, also figuratively, tearing the Illini line to shreds and hammering their way, bit by bit, to the same number of points that Grange was able to harvest by his startling speed and his dazzling passes.

That hammering, ramming, driving Maroon attack that none had looked for, asserted itself right at the outset. With the kickoff there was only one thought in the minds of those 32,000 spectators. That thought was of Grange. But Grange was a long while getting started because Illinois couldn't get the ball and before his first chance had come the massed strength of Stagg's men had twice driven the Illini across the goal line. If that wasn't an upset, no game ever provided one.

Grange Gets Started.

Chicago had its first touchdown before the first period was half over. During that time the Illini were in complete rout. Evidently they had come with visions of a feast and they were fooled. The second quarter wasn't a half minute old before Chicago had its second touchdown. A lead of fourteen points was something to think about. Grange must have thought plenty, for it was something new to him.

Until after the Maroons had electrified their own backers and sent the Illini rooters into a funereal silence with those two touchdowns, Zuppke's heretofore invincible machine had enjoyed only one touch of the ball. That one touch was a kick they made after a fumble had halted the first Maroon march to the goal. After that, however, the Illini swung into action and the terrifying Grange went roaming up and down the battle ground to his three touchdowns, but meanwhile the Maroons had mustered themselves long enough to drive through for a third score that the phantom later erased with a dizzy 80 yard run.

If Illinois was in complete rout in the first period it certainly redeemed itself. No team ever was more completely stopped than were Zuppke's pupils during that time. It looked as if Chicago would spend its afternoon marching toward the other fellows' goal. But the Illini came back beautifully, mainly because of the phenomenal Grange, and in the final quarter there was more than one time when it looked as if the phantom was on his way to a touchdown that would have broken the deadlock. Let no one doubt the gameness of Zuppke's men.

In the way of "things that might have been" there was much. Chicago took a demoralizing wallop right at the start, when after driving down to the Illini 5 yard line, McCarty fumbled and Rokusek pounced on the ball. This was the one time that the Orange and Blue possessed the ball in the first period and Britton immediately kicked out of danger, but the Maroons, apparently undaunted by the break against them, marched right back again and this time went over.

Britton's Toe Fails.

Another might have been was an attempt by Britton and his finished kicking foot to gain 3 points early in the third period. His attempt from the 43 yard mark went wide of the posts, and even had it crossed it wouldn't have been disastrous, however, as Chicago was leading by 21 to 14. But Britton made another try for placement from the 25 yard line late in the same period when the score was knotted and this, had it gone over, might have brought a different story. Instead of going over it sailed about a foot under the cross bar.

Shortly after Britton's kicking attempt had failed Stagg elected to try similar methods to untie the 21 to 21 knot. The fourth quarter was only a minute or two elapsed when the Maroons found themselves against a sturdy foe on the 29 yard line. The crafty Stagg, pulling the strings on the sidelines, rushed Curley into action and the latter marked his entrance with a pass that failed. Then he played his big card—a drop kick—and the goal was only 38 yards distance, but the kick traveled only 25 yards.

Other Chances Fail.

Illinois still had two chances to save itself. Like on the others, luck went against them. After Curley's kick the Illini went tearing down the field, with Grange giving all that was in him. The fifty yard line was reached and Britton was elected to make another bid for three points. With the goal sixty yards removed from the kicker, it was a desperate shot, and the distance was too great. The ball plunked down on the 5 yard line, rolled over the goal, and the score was still tied.

Undaunted by Britton's third failure to kick over the bar, the Illini came back a few minutes later with a dazzling attack of passes, plunges, and runs. It stopped suddenly when Goodman intercepted a Grange pass on Chicago's 35 yard line. The Maroons immediately started their same old driving tactics, but they, too, were stopped when Kassel intercepted a Chicago pass on the 10 yard line. Next came one of Grange's sensations of the day, but it was wiped out by a penalty.

Grange Run Is Wasted.

After Kassel had intercepted the Maroon aerial Grange took the oval and set out in a wide circle around his left end. He dodged, twisted, and leaped. None could bring him down. Finally, after he had reeled off fifty-one yards, he was forced out of bounds and there was a mighty shout from the Illinois stands, but it died out when the ball was carried back and the Urbana lads penalized because of holding by Gallivan. Desperate, the Illini tried to shower passes on their foe, but they couldn't advance, and finally Britton kicked. The final shot sounded while the ball was in the air.

Chicago's leaning toward the old style of ripping 'em to pieces and making 'em back up is best evidenced by the fact that only three passes were attempted. One of them connected for a gain, one failed, and one was intercepted. Neither were end runs in favor with the Maroons. A couple of times they tried them but without much success. Stagg evidently figured his men could find their way through the center of the Illini wall. He figured right.

McCarty Pounds Line.

When Chicago was on its high horse and traveling fast in the first period most of the work fell on the shoulders of McCarty. Called on to cut through tackle or shoot right through center in eight of the first dozen plays, this fellow pounded from his own 28 yard line to within 5 yards of the Illini goal, where he lost the ball on a fumble.

After losing the ball when a touchdown seemed at stake McCarty kept right on going as if nothing had happened. He was the potent factor in a drive that started from the same spot as the other. It took seven smashes to get the oval across, and in six of these McCarty was carrying the load. Then he was relieved to let Thomas, Marks, and Kernwein carry on to the second touchdown that came with the first play of the second period.

Ten Plays Net Touchdown.

After Chicago's second touchdown it took the Illini only ten plays to reach the goal. In eight of these ten assaults Grange was either running the ends, cutting inside the tackles, or passing. Two aerials alone were made for thirty-one yards. Then after a couple of smashes Grange tossed another to Kassel and the goal was only four yards removed. On the next play the Phantom went tearing across the field to his left and over the coveted chalk mark.

Illinois' second touchdown, late in the second quarter, was much like the first—passes and smashes and finally a wide swing around end by the sensational red head. He needed only 4 yards, as in the previous attempt, but he ran wide and his speed left all his pursuers far behind. Just before this the Maroons, aided by their one long pass of the day and some pounding by Marks, Thomas, and Francis, had gone over for their third touchdown.

Grange's third and last assault on the goal wasn't of the common variety. It was typically Grange — the thing 32,000 people either were waiting for or fearing. It came shortly after Britton had failed in his first effort to boot three points over the bar.

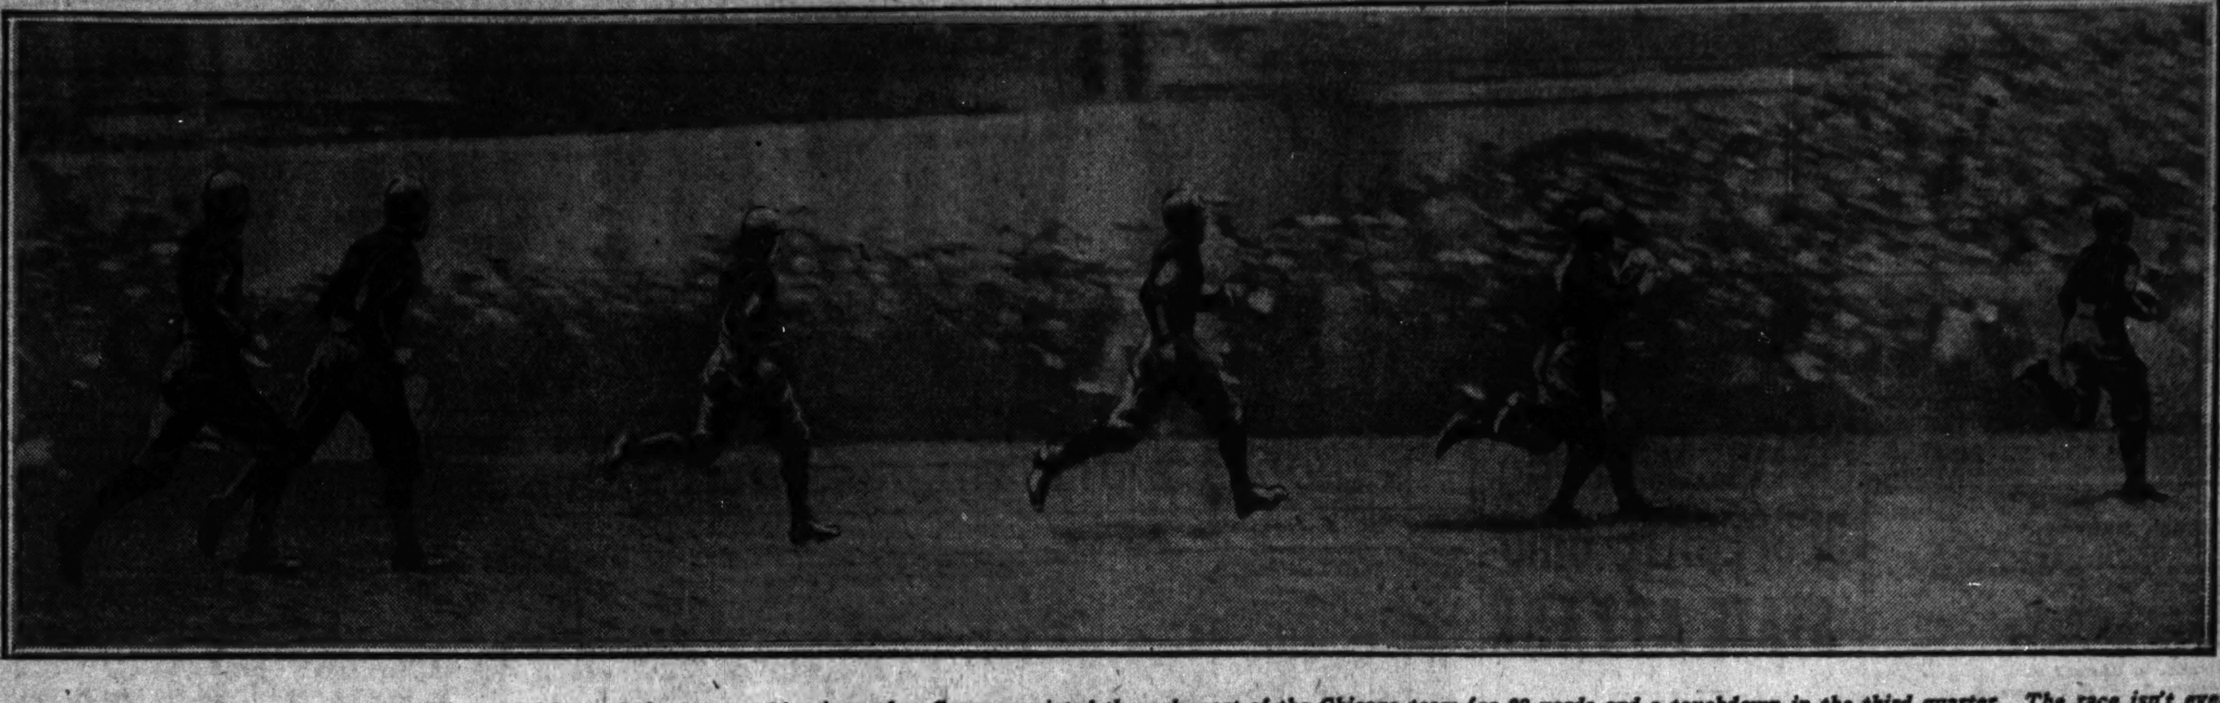
Illinois Ties Score.

The oval was brought out to the 20 yard line and after a couple ineffectual stabs at the wall Kernwein punted and Grange picked up the ball on his 20 yard line. He was stopped in his tracks. But the next play brought the red head forth in all his flaming glory.

He grabbed the ball and darted toward his left end. Around the wing he went, interference helping, but it was his own skill alone that dodged and dumped a few eager Maroons. Nearing the side lines he cut straight down the field. He was alone, but not for long. With most of the Maroons behind him he cut back toward the center of the field and when he reached there a half dozen of his mates closed in behind him. They weren't needed however, for Grange was gone and only a rifle bullet could have overtaken him.

Britton's toe then gathered in the point that knotted the tussle at 21 apiece and the Illini rooters breathed easy for the first time.

AND MR. RED GRANGE, AS USUAL, DOES HIS STUFF



Illinois pulled up on even terms with Chicago and knotted the count at 21 apiece when Grange sprinted through most of the Chicago team for 80 yards and a touchdown in the third quarter. The race isn't even close, as Red distanced most of the Maroons that were frantically trying to overhaul him and sailed on unmolested to the score.

PRETTY BUSY DAY FOR RED GRANGE, AND HIS GAINS TOTAL 300 YDS.

THRICE Harold [Red] Grange scooted across the Chicago goal line yesterday to regain his leadership in scoring in the Big Ten, giving Illinois eighteen of the twenty-one points with which the Illini tied the Maroons at Stagg field. Not only did Grange score the visitors' touchdowns, but he did most of their offensive work, totaling 300 yards in the thirty plays in which he was called upon to advance the ball.

Red's day's working card besides his touchdowns would read as follows:

Figured in sixteen forward passes, seven of which were completed for gains totaling 177 yards.

Scored the tying touchdown after an 80 yard run around his left end, eluding Maroon tacklers with the agility which has made him famous.

Broke away twice for thrilling runs of 80 and 50 yards, and punctured the Chicago forward wall for shorter gains on innumerable occasions.

Failed to gain only three times, once losing a yard.

MAROON-ILLINOIS BATTLEFRONT NOTES

THE demon rum never was more effective as a stimulant than was the 21 to 21 tie to which Chicago held Illinois yesterday, judging from the antics of the jubilant students of the Midway following the game. And through the joyous uproar which arose from the west stands there was a reverent note at mention of Coach Stagg. "Grange?" one student queried. "Why, we've got Stagg!"

President Ernest De Witt Burton of the University of Chicago and President David Kinley of the University of Illinois occupied boxes on opposite sides of the field. Between the halves li'l old Ernie, tickled as any young student at Chicago's lead, crossed the field and invited Davie to the Chicago box, which invitation was accepted, the Illini prexy remaining there through the game.

In the same box with President Kinley was Gov. Len Small, Col. and Mrs. Frank L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Small and their son, Len, three generations of the governor's family being represented.

The Chicago training quarters were the scene of a small riot after the game. Old grads—some with tears of happiness on their cheeks—hoarsely enunciated "rahs" for the Old Man and for the team, embracing the players as they emerged, wet and smiling, from the showers.

The Illinois quarters were quiet. The Illini had discovered that they had a weakness as well as a Grange. A striking result of yesterday's game will be the losing of the overconfidence with which the Illini probably went into yesterday's fray.

The Maroon president's box was shared with the following guests: Henry J. Patten, Harold H. Swift, George W. Dixon, Harold F. McCormick, B. F. Affleck, A. D. Lasker, Ald. Schwartz, Mayor Fred Kohler of Cleveland, O., J. T. Pirie, Julius Rosenwald, Mrs. Rockefeller-McCormick, Samuel Insull, Carter H. Harrison, James Simpson, William Wrigley, Mayor Dever, and the world fliers—Lieuts. Leigh Wade, Eric Nelson, Lowell Smith, John Harding, and H. H. Ogden.

"This is the first time the strength of my line has been tested," Coach Bob Zuppke declared after the game. "They swept us off our feet at the start and didn't give us a chance."

Yesterday's game was the twenty-eighth game played by the two Big Ten schools since 1892, when Stagg came to the Midway. It was the third tie game, Chicago having won seventeen previous encounters and Illinois eight. Through the years of these games there has grown up a notable friendly rivalry, the good will existing between the schools being demonstrated by the Maroon rooters when they cheered vigorously for Grange at a time when the Wheaton flash received a hard bump which temporarily incapacitated him.

Walter Camp, noted football authority, was right on the sidelines during the game. Following the battle, he opined that the first twenty minutes of the game, during which Chicago made its great offensive against the impotent Illini line, was the greatest bit of football work he has seen in his years of experience with the sport.

ILLINOIS GETS OFFER FROM STANFORD FOR GRID GAME ON COAST

BOB ZUPPKE, coach of the Illinois football team, received a telegraphic offer yesterday from Leland Standford university for an Illini-Stanford post season game on the coast this year.

Zuppke declared that he, personally, favors accepting Stanford's offer, but that he will be unable to take any action on the invitation until he returns to Champaign and gets the assent of the university officials and of the Big Ten conference schools.

MAROON-ILLINI PLAY IN DETAIL

The play in detail in the Maroon-Illinois 21 to 21 tie at Stagg field yesterday and the way the tide of battle shifted as the 32,000 rooters yelled themselves hoarse is as follows:

FIRST PERIOD.

Britton kicked off for Illinois to Barto, who came back to Chicago's 28 yard line. On the first down McCarty electrified the stands with a dash inside his right tackle that netted 15 yards, then Thomas gained a bit and McCarty duplicated his previous assault on tackle, putting the ball on Illinois' 43 yard mark.

Kernwein and then McCarty hit the line for 7 yards, and McCarty went through center for first down on Illinois' 30 yard mark. McCarty tore inside his left tackle for 8 yards and Thomas made first down on Illinois' 18 yard line. McCarty smashed right guard for 3 yards. He ripped through left guard for 6 yards. McCarty hit center for first down on the 5 yard line.

With Illinois apparently stampeded by this sudden splurge of Maroon strength McCarty fumbled on the next play and Rokusek fell on the ball on Illinois' 10 yard line. Britton punted from behind the goal to Abbott, who came back 10 yards to Illinois' 29 yard line. Kernwein made a yard off tackle and McCarty dove over his left guard for 2 yards. McCarty added 5 yards through his right guard and then 3 yards through the left side of his line for first down on Illinois' 24 yard line. Thomas hit the line for a short gain and McCarty came back with two line smashes to put the ball on the Illinois 9 yard line.

McCarthy Leads Attack.

McCarty went through a big opening at left guard and was brought down 1 yard from the Illinois goal. McCarty then drove through the center of the line for a touchdown. Curley came into the game at this stage in place of Abbott and dropkicked for the extra point.

Before the kickoff Stagg recalled McCarty and Marks took his place. Britton's kickoff went out of bounds, so he tried it again, and the second attempt went behind Chicago's goal. The Maroons put the ball in play on their 20 yard line. Marks went through the center of the line from a kick formation for 5 yards. Kernwein made 4 inside his right tackle. Marks ripped through center for first down on Chicago's 34 yard line.

Thomas crossed through at his left tackle for 5 yards, putting the ball on the Illinois 44 yard line. Marks made first down through the wall on the 35 yard line. Kernwein was good for 2 yards and then he went around his right end and raced to the Illinois 17 yard line, where Grange brought him down.

Thomas spun off 5 yards inside his left tackle. Marks made 2 yards and Thomas came back with a leap through his left tackle that gave Chicago first down on the Illinois 5 yard line. Kernwein crossed through his right guard and was halted one yard from the goal. Kernwein ripped through center and was halted with the nose of the ball almost touching the goal line as the period ended. Score: Chicago, 7; Illinois, 0.

SECOND PERIOD.

Harry Thomas crossed left tackle for a touchdown, and the west stand was a riot of students. In the east stand all was silence. The Maroons collected the extra point when Curley, after faking a drop kick, heaved a pass over the line to Barnes.

Gowdy kicked off to Harry Hall, who came back to his 25 yard line. Pokrass was injured in the play and forced to retire. Rolleston took his place. In the first play Grange swung through his right tackle for 5 yards, but Illinois was penalized 5 for offside. Grange added 5 through the opposite tackle. Schultz made a couple of yards through center.

Grange heaved a pass to Britton for a 15 yard gain, putting the ball in midfield. Grange gained a bit and then passed to Kassel for 16 yards, putting the ball on Chicago's 31 yard line. Schultz ripped through the line for 4 yards. Grange shot in at his right tackle for 4 yards. Grange made first down off left tackle, the ball being on Chicago's 20 yard line.

"Red" Carries It Over.

Grange started to hike around his right end, but suddenly heaved a pass to Kassell, who was dropped on the Maroons' 4 yard line. Grange then raced to his left clear across the field and went over for a touchdown. Britton place kicked for the point from touchdown.

Drain went in in place of Curley for Chicago. Gowdy kicked off to Harry Hall, who fumbled momentarily on his 5 yard line, but recovered and made 7 yards before being downed. Grange shot across right tackle for 3 yards. Grange heaved a long pass down the field, but Britton, who was to receive it, was blocked, and Drain got it. The ball was awarded to Illinois, however, on its 30 yard line because of interference with Britton. Grange made 3 yards around his left end.

Schultz smashed center for a yard. A long pass, Grange to Kassell, was incomplete. The pass was high. Britton punted to Drain, who ran down the side lines for 25 yards to the 50 yard line. Thomas was held to 2 yards in a drive at tackle. Cunningham took Barnes' place at right end. Thomas crossed at left tackle for 2 yards. A long Maroon pass, Thomas to Cunningham, netted 27 yards. Kernwein and Marks hit the line for 7 yards in two plays, but in a second attempt Marks was held without gain. Thomas made first down off left tackle on the 5 yard line. Francis replaced Marks. Francis walked through a big gap in the center of the line for a touchdown. Drain dropkicked for the added point.

Gallivan replaced Harry Hall for Illinois and Reddon took Pondelik's place in the Chicago line. Gowdy kicked off to Schultz who was stopped on Illinois' 26 yard line. Grange skirted his left end and went out of bounds after a 14 yard gain. The flashy red head then went tearing around his right end for 13 yards, putting the ball on the Illini 49 yard mark.

Grange was nipped by Reddon for a yard loss around left end. He followed with a dash through right tackle for two yards. A beautiful pass, Britton to Grange, put the ball on Chicago's 25 yard line. Grange fell as he grabbed the toss. Grange went through right tackle for six yards and added two yards in the next play. From a kick formation the Illini uncorked a double pass that put the ball on the 4 yard line. Britton droped back as if to kick. Instead he tossed to Kassell. The latter passed backward to Grange and the sensational red head tore down the sideline to the 4 yard mark. On the next play Grange swung out to his left end and over the goal line for a touchdown. Britton placed kicked. Britton kicked off and the period ended while the ball was in the air. Thomas who ran back the kick injured his right leg in the play. Score: Chicago, 21; Illinois, 14.

THIRD QUARTER.

Shively replaced Slimmer and Muhl replaced Rokusek for Illinois. Gowdy's first kickoff went out of bounds. On the next attempt Schultz came back 25 yards to Illinois' 32 yard mark. Grange went around his left end for seven yards and then made one off tackle. A pass by Grange grounded. Britton punted to Abbott, who was nailed without gain on Chicago's 25 yard line.

The Maroons were unable to gain and for the first time were forced to kick, Grange taking Kernwein's punt on Illinois' 40 yard line. Gallivan crossed for a 2 yard gain. Chicago was penalized 5 yards for offside.

Gallivan shot through the center of the Maroon wall for a 12 yard gain. Grange made four. Gallivan again ripped through center for a short gain and Grange repeated, but Illinois was penalized for offside. A pass was incomplete. Britton then attempted a place kick from the 43 yard line, but the ball went wide of its mark.

Kernwein drove off tackle for 2 yards Thomas tried to skirt his left end, but Kassell threw him for a 3 yard loss. Kernwein then punted and Grange recovered the ball on the Illinois 20 yard line. On the first play Grange shot around the left end, down the side line, and then back toward the center of the field and over the lines to a touchdown. His run totaled 80 yards. Britton place kicked for the extra point.

Before the kickoff Stagg sent McCarty into action in place of Marks. Britton's kickoff went over the goal and the ball was brought out to Chicago's 20 yard line. McCarty hit center for six yards and then two. Kernwein punted to Grange, who came back five yards to his 47 yard mark.

Grange was badly jarred by the Maroon tackles, but revived. Gallivan tore through center for 12 yards. Grange went around his left end, shook off four Maroon tacklers and went out of bounds with a five yard gain. A long pass, Grange to Kassell, put the ball on Chicago's 17 yard line. Illinois lost five yards for offside on the next play. Grange tried to skirt right end, but Pondelik nailed him without gain on the 21 yard line. Grange made a yard inside left tackle. Gallivan ripped into left guard for three yards. Britton attempted a place kick from the 25 yard line, but the ball was short.

McCarty was good for five yards in a smash at his right tackle. He added six through left guard for first down on Chicago's 31 yard line. Kernwein gained a yard. McCarty ripped through the line for six yards as the period ended. Score: Chicago, 21; Illinois, 21.

FOURTH QUARTER.

McCarty again shot through center, making first down on Chicago's 43 yard line. Thomas went through the line for 16 yards and McCarty followed with eight through the same spot, putting the ball on Illinois' 34 yard line. McCarty made first down on the Illinois' 30 yard mark. Thomas made a yard off his left tackle. McCarty added a yard. Curley supplanted Abbott at quarter for Chicago.

Curley tried a pass, but Schultz broke it up. Curley tried a drop kick from the 38 yard line, but the ball came down on the 10 yard mark, where Gallivan grabbed it, and Grange followed with a long swing around his right end for 33 yards, putting the ball on Illinois' 47 yard line. Galivan plunged through center for 3 yards. Grange lost a yard around his left end. A pass, Grange to Britton, grounded. Britton tried to boot a placement over the goal, 60 yards away, but the ball came down on the 5 yard line and rolled over the goal.

The oval was brought out to the 20 yard mark and Francis hit center for 2 yards in the first play. Kernwein gained 5. Thomas was unable to gain at left tackle. Kernwein punted out of bounds on Illinois' 37 yard line.

Grange tore around his right end for nine yards, Schultz shot through his right guard for five yards and first down on Chicago's 49 yard mark. Gallivan stepped out of bounds on the next down with only a yard gained. Grange failed to gain around his left end. Goodman intercepted a pass by Grange on Chicago's 35 yard line. Thomas rammed his way through his left guard for a 6 yard gain. He repeated the play for 8 yards. Francis ripped through the left side of his line for 20 yards. He had a clear field between him and the goal but Muhl overtook him. Thomas and Francis ripped through for short gains that put the oval on Illinois' 22 yard line.

Long Run Thrown Away.

Barto came around, from his end position, took the ball on a crisscross and then reeled off a 5 yard gain. Kernwein shot a pass through the air but Kassell intercepted it on the 10 yard line. Grange followed with a sensational swing around his left end for a gain of 51 yards, but the ball was called back and Illinois penalized for holding, putting the oval on the 1 yard mark.

Britton tried to pass to Grange from behind the goal line but the ball grounded. Britton threw another pass and Gallivan grabbed this one and was down on his 16 yard line. A long pass, Britton to Muhl, didn't connect. Britton punted to Curley, who came back a few yards to Illinois' 47 yard line as the final shot was fired. Final score: Chicago, 21; Illinois, 21.

THRONGS STORM GATES; YELL FOR NEW STADIUM

BY TED ISERMAN.

Being inside, instead of out, was the dream which lurked in the minds of many thousands of followers of college football at Stagg field yesterday—barred from the stands, not by an unwillingness to pay outlandish prices for admission tickets, but by an utter lack of space within the field to accommodate all who sought seats in the stands.

Had there been an adequate stadium at the Midway yesterday there would have been no clamoring multitude bellowing for admission, crashing the gates, scaling walls of neighboring buildings, and nursing of grudges against the fates [and the university's football ticket committee] for the scarcity of the precious pasteboards.

Few Tickets Available.

While those 32,000 folks who were lucky enough to get tickets jammed their way into the crowded stands, thousands of others milled the streets outside the walls trying to get in, hoping that, by fair means or otherwise, a ticket might be discovered.

But few tickets were available. Though the demand was great, the supply was small. Those who had gone to the field hoping that at the last minute a ducat might be scalped or purloined were, practically without exception, disappointed. During the forenoon several tickets changed hands, the prices paid varying from $20 to $100, according to the lads who stood the gaff, but by game time there wasn't a ticket for any price, though there were plenty of prospective customers who would have gladly paid the money, bearing a burden put upon them by the inadequacy of the present equipment.

Get Reports by Megaphone.

For the benefit of the unlucky enthusiasts, a megaphoned report of the progress of the battle was given by students, who stood on the walls of Stagg field and boomed the details to a crowd of more than 5,000 who packed 57th street and Hull court on the university campus.

The roofs of apartment houses bordering the field were sought by vigorous partisans who clung to the copings, perilously situated, but happy in catching occasional glimpses of the great Red Grange as the desperate teams battled furiously for advantage.

Preceding the start of the battle, even throughout the morning, fans without tickets swarmed out to the Midway, invading fraternity houses and every other agency where seats might be secured. By the time the game had started the thousands who vainly sought admission had reached a point of desperation.

Police and Firemen on Job.

Attempts were made to erect ladders over the walls, but officers and firemen, foreseeing jams and disturbances if these efforts should prove successful, quelled the near riots in every case.

It was a repetition of the scene which for four years has been common at the Midway and which has caused the students at the school, alumni of the school, and friends of the school in the general public to send this cry echoing into the quietest nooks of the trustees' sanctum: "We want a stadium!"

BREAKS OF GAME ABOUT 50-50; CAMP THRILLED

Editor's Note—Mr. Young, the writer of this account of the Chicago-Illinois game, is one of the veteran athletic officials of the Big Ten conference. He was the umpire in yesterday's game at Stagg field, and the way he sized it up from a scientific standpoint is told in this story.

BY FRED YOUNG.

They made football history at Stagg field yesterday. Even that grand old sage of football, Walter Camp, told us between halves that he had seen more real football in thirty minutes than he has witnessed all year on the Atlantic seaboard—which is quite a confession for Walter to make.

The unexpected strength shown by the Maroons, Austin McCarty's line bucking, Red Grange's brilliant dashes in the open, and a comeback seldom equaled anywhere all collaborated to give those fortunate enough to get into the Maroon inclosure yesterday a genuine football derby day.

The fifty-fifty break with Illinois was a wonderful tribute to Amos Alonzo Stagg, the wizard of the Midway. I have been watching Stagg's entry in Western conference football for many years, but have never seen a Maroon eleven enter a contest in a more determined mental state. Every one of them had tears in their eyes. Their jaws were set, their fists were clenched, and they were muttering to themselves, "We must do the job."

Plays His Hand Well.

The Midway mentor, long known for his ability to bring his men "up" for his most important game, had played his hand well. He put one of the fightin'est fighting crews on Stagg field that he ever turned loose, and the result was told in those early marches down the gridiron.

Giving Illinois all the credit due for such a comeback, the fact remains that Zuppke's men were fortunate in a "break" they got just before the first half ended.

Just seventeen lonely seconds remained to play, when the Orange and Blue clad gladiators lined up for what apparently would be the final play of the period. Grange broke loose for a beautiful run around right end, and fortunately stepped out of bounds. The field judge's watch stopped according to rule, and the Illini had three precious seconds left in which to let Red do his stuff again.

He swung far out to his left on the next play, and put the Illinois within seven points of the Maroons. Had he failed to step out of bounds on the previous play, the time would have been up before he could have participated in another play, and this one step may have prevented a Chicago victory.

This Break Against Illini.

Another "break" was just as costly to Illini in the fourth quarter when Ray Gallivan, understudying for the crippled Hall, was caught holding, after Grange had electrified the vast crowd by a spectacular dash around left end that netted close to fifty yards, and might have put the Illini in position to score the winning touchdown. This penalty pushed them up against their own goal, and while Britton was able to complete another pass in a last desperate attempt to break the deadlock, two others failed and he was forced to punt as the pistol sounded ending the struggle.

The Maroons were as near perfect as any team of any time in the first quarter. Twice with McCarty and Thomas carrying the bulk of the burden, the Maroon sweatered athletes rushed the ball across for counters. The first march was halted only on the ten yard line when McCarty fumbled and Capt. Rokusek of Illinois recovered the ball. Britton's punt was short however and it was only a matter of a few minutes until the Chicago eleven had drawn first blood.

Tough Job for Zuppke.

Football men appreciate the position of Bob Zuppke yesterday. His team had made such a remarkable early season showing that it was a most difficult task to make his men realize the size of their task. Zuppke, appreciating Stagg's cunning, had prepared for just such an occasion, but he had trouble in convincing his men. It took the first half to demonstrate the power of the Midway team, and the Indians were an improved machine in the final half.

At that, despite the meteoric Grange, they had the scare of their lives, and once it looked as if the Maroons would put over another touchdown, when Francis, the third full back Stagg used, broke loose, only to be stopped from behind by the diminutive Muhl, who was subbing for Capt. Rokusek in the second half. Muhl overtook the Maroon from the rear, and thwarted a Chicago victory.

Just as some of the experts had predicted in advance, the line play of the Maroons was a thing of beauty. It is difficult to single out any individual because all of Stagg's forwards responded nobly.

The Illini possibly had a bit more "follow through" in the second half, but the names of Gowdy, Pondelik, Pokrass, Goodman and other Maroon linemen will likely never be forgotten by Midway enthusiasts.

Yes, Mr. Grange Is "In."

Yes, Mr. Grange is officially "in." There isn't any question of doubt that this phenomenal young man from Wheaton will be a member of Mr. Camp's 1924 All-American cast, regardless of whether or not he ever gains another inch this year. His one run at the opening of the second half would have been enough to have convinced Walter, had he not already known that Red is the greatest living football player on two legs.

This one spin was good for close to 85 yards. He shot around the left end, down the side line, darting and spinning past several Maroon tacklers, then cut back to the center, finally eluding every one in his path.

He had grand interference. Bob Zuppke knows the blocking game, and his boys have learned their lessons exceedingly well.

Camp also was impressed with McCarty. "Not often you see two such athletes in one football game," Mr. Camp remarked to the writer. Maybe Austin will cut in on Walter's cast as a result.

Although it was a bitter battle, one that was desperately contested from whistle to whistle, the play was marked by the finest of sportsmanship, and there was not a single penalty for such play.

It may be a decade before Chicago is again sees such a struggle.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Knute Rockne's great Notre Dame football team swamped Wisconsin this afternoon at Camp Randall, 38 to 3. Had the South Bend coach kept his cavalry backs in the game all the time he might have doubled the count. He had them in long enough to roll up 28 points in about two quarters of the time. The rest of the battle was carried on by his infantry, the second, third, and perhaps the fourth and fifth string men, being on the battle front about half of the time and scoring 10 points against the Badgers.

Wisconsin's only score came at the close of the first period when the Badgers played their best and crowded the Rockne kids down almost against their own goal line. They had a first down inside of the Notre Dame 20 yard line and then Leo Harmon of the Badgers tore through for 7 yards.

Calls Out Cavalry.

Right then and there Gen. Rockne called out his cavalry. He halted the play while eleven regulars, on the bench, yanked off coats and sweaters and pulled on headgear and ran out upon the field to take the place of the young infantry. Loud cheers came from the Notre Dame rooters as the horsemen galloped upon the battlefield. The kids had scored a field goal and were leading, 3 to 0, but had been driven back into their own territory.

It is the credit of Wisconsin what happened then. A lanky back named McGivern was handed the ball and told to charge into those cavalrymen. He did and made it first down on the 11 yard line. The cavalry seemed about to be driven back.

Badger in Fierce Charge.

Again the Badgers charged. Three times they tore into those horsemen but in the three attacks they made only 7 yards. Then Doyle Harmon dropped back to his 14 yard line and booted the ball over the bar for 3 points that tied the score.

It was the big moment of the day for the Wisconsin rooters. They had tied the count against Rockne's great team and they made the most of it. Tremendous cheers rolled across the field from the west stand where the Cardinal rooters were massed. But over in the east stand Notre Dame's cheering throng wasn't worried. Their cavalry was in the fight. They were confident of success. And it was only a few minutes before they were rewarded.

Indiana Horsemen Start.

The quarter ended a tie, 3 to 3, but in the second period those terrible South Bend horsemen started to ride—they were rough riders, every one of them. They simply galloped over the foe.

Wisconsin's men were left helpless upon the battlefield as Don Miller, Crowley, Layden, and Stuhldreyer galloped.

In the second period they galloped over the Cardinal uniforms for two touchdowns. They had the count, 17 to 3 in their favor when the half ended.

When the third period opened, all the cavalry was back for more galloping. They wanted to ride down the field some more before turning the game over again to the infantry.

Crowley in 60 Yard Run.

The period had barely begun when Crowley rode down the field for a 60 yard gain, planting the ball on Wisconsin's 25 yard line; Don Miller, Layden, and Crowley then rode over the goal line in a series of most damaging attacks, and the South Bend boys had the count 24 to 3 in their favor.

Still not satisfied, the horsemen took their places for some more riding and in about ten minutes, another touchdown had been counted, Crowley going over for a score on a short run around the Badger left end. Crowley had added a point after every touchdown by carefully kicking goal and the score stood 31 to 3.

First String Men Retire.

Then Gen. Rockne arose from his bench and called off his cavalrymen. Their work was done. They went to their barracks. The battle was won and there was no doubt the infantry could hold the fort. Never did one see so many young football men rushed into battle. No one in the press stand could call them by name. It is doubtful if Mr. Rockne himself knows more than half of them. The program didn't have as many on the list as Mr. Rockne had in uniform. He sent one squad in after another. Seemed as if there couldn't be that many students in the whole South Bend school.

These youngsters, however went out on the field and fought like tigers they all hope to be horsemen some day like Don Miller, Crowley, Layden, and Stuhldreyer. They wanted to show the South Bend general what they could do.

And they not only stopped all assaults by the wearied Badger's, but they battled their way over the Wisconsin goal line for another touchdown, not only holding the fort, but taking still more territory for old Notre Dame.

When the game ended, Notre Dame students, led by their band, did a snake dance on the field and tossed their hats over the cross bars at each end of the field. It looked as if there were a few well known Chicago men of celtic origin out there romping with the students.

Notre Dame is proud of its football players and football coach and there seems to be a good reason for it. The Notre Dame team today looked awful fast and worked like a perfect machine. Wisconsin rooters didn't feel so bad in defeat. No one should feel bad over being beaten by Notre Dame.

INTERSECTIONAL FOOTBALL.

FREQUENT victories of western elevens, especially marked this season, in intersectional combats, have convinced the east—except that provincial east which concedes nothing—that it does not enjoy a monopoly of gridiron prowess.

Scheduling of western elevens, therefore, is no longer an act of pure condescension, but of policy. More games, no doubt, would be carded, but we wild and woolly westerners, especially our stronger aggregations, refuse to go on as "practice" contests, but insist on home-and-home schedules, which is taken to imply equality.

The Wake always has believed in intersectional games within reason, without neglecting natural rivals. Whether Princeton, Yale, Harvard, Cornell and others should have home and home games with our Big Ten and Missouri valley elevens is for them to decide.

We think an occasional series of this kind would be beneficial to all concerned. Princeton tried it. It saw western football which defeated it on its home gridiron and should have defeated it here in Chicago. On the other hand, western fans saw never-to-be-forgotten gameness and resourcefulness which turned apparently certain defeat into victory and left indelible respect for old Nassau.

Chicago and Princeton concluded the series, we think, with healthy mutual respect. Princeton men tell us the number of middle western boys attempting to enter Princeton, following those games, increased materially.

The Wake would like to see just as many intersectional games as the east is willing to take on—on a home and home basis. We have no fear of the issue—we've passed all worrying on that score along to the east.

BUTLER HOLDS HAWKEYE ELEVEN TO 7 TO 0 WIN

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Pat Page has a football team. That was evident when Butler battled Iowa to the last minute of the game here today and lost, 7 to 0, on an Iowa spurt in the second quarter.

On that occasion Iowa failed by 5 yards to drive the ball over, and when Woods punted to Capt. Parkin on the Butler 38 yard mark, he knifed through the team until Schirmer cut short the race that Wood was making with him, and the Hawkeyes captain sprinted over. The play was called back on Schirmer's tripping, but on the second play the half back that had wrecked the first crossing took the ball on Parkin's pass and slipped through until he fell across the goal line with Wood clinging to his legs.

Griggs, Butler star, was hurt in the early part of the game and resigned the star work to Canfield and Wood. Reichel played a powerful game in the line. Capt. Parkin and Scantlebury starred for Iowa in the backfield and Hancock and Otte divided line honors with Galloway, sophomore tackle. Lineup:

MINNESOTA AND AMES IN FIERCE BATTLE TO TIE

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Minnesota and Ames battled to a spectacular 7-7 tie here this afternoon in a nonconference game before 10,000 persons.

A fortunate break in the last four minutes of play which found Wheeler not only blocking an Ames place kick, but recovering and dashing to the Iowans' 29 yard mark, made possible a Gopher tie. Wheeler's great individual piece of work was followed by a fine open field run of 26 yards by Clarence Schuette to the Ames 3 yard line, from where the same plunging back went over for a touchdown in two tries. Abramson kicked goal.

The Gophers were on the short end of a 7-0 count from the first play after the kickoff. The game had no sooner started than Norton Behm zigzagged 80 yards through a broken field for a touchdown. This run was only one of many that the flashy little back made during the afternoon. On his 80 yard dash he outsped the entire Gopher eleven for a spectacular score. Roberts kicked goal.

Ames moved within scoring distance on three other occasions, once through a 40 yard pass, Roberts to Nave, but each time the Gopher defense stiffened and Roberts missed attempts at place kicking.

Minnesota had only one other chance to score during the afternoon, carrying the ball to the Ames 20 yard line after Ames had lost the ball for rough play. Lineups:

PURDUE TAKES EASY WIN FROM DE PAUW, 36-0

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—While the De Pauw football team was unable to get within striking distance of the Purdue goal line, the Boilermakers easily romped through the visitors', 36 to 0, in a Dads' day tilt here this afternoon.

The Tigers played good defensive ball in the first half and the only Purdue score was a field goal from the 35 yard line by Taube. The second half was an entirely different story, however, Bahr starting the third period with a touchdown, while Taube dropkicked for the extra point. Bahr followed this marker with a 60 yard run, placing the ball on De Pauw's 5 yard line, where the Tigers held for downs.

Clark's punt for De Pauw then fell short and on the first Purdue play Pillman scored. Taube missed the kick for extra point. The fourth quarter was featured by a 60 yard run by Hetrick, Purdue reserve half back, for a touchdown. Lineup:

LINDBLOM WINS OVER ENGLEWOOD IN SOUTH SECTION

LINDBLOM TO MEET LANE

As a result of victories yesterday, Lindblom and Lane Tech will battle for the City Public High school football championship. The Techs proved themselves the class of the north section, finishing their season with five straight victories. Lindblom had a tougher time in the south section, but emerged its sectional schedule undefeated, though being tied once.

Winning by a margin of two extra points after touchdowns, Lindblom captured the championship of the south section of the City High School Football league yesterday, beating Englewood, 14 to 12, at White City park. Straight line plays made it possible for Coach E. L. Moore's boys to triumph in the most bitterly fought game on the south side this season.

In the opening period Lindblom marched down the field for its first touchdown, Capt. Antonides scoring the points. But this lead did not last long, for Colin of Englewood grabbed a fumble in the second quarter and raced 40 yards to the goal line. Early in the third period Englewood tallied again, but soon afterward Biehl scored for the winning points. Lineup:

HYDE PARK, 0; HARRISON, 0.

Hyde Park and Harrison fought each other to a standstill yesterday morning at White City park, the final whistle finding the two elevens deadlocked in a scoreless tie. The battle was one of the fiercest seen in the south side section of the city league this season.

LA GRANGE HIGH TRIMS STIVERS AT DAYTON, 45-6

Dayton, O., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—La Grange High school of Chicago was smothered by St. Ivers High, claimants to the national high school title, here today, 45 to 6. The visitors scored their only touchdown in the opening quarter and showed flashes of good defensive work, but could not cope with the brilliant attack of the winners, which was especially strong in the early part of the contest.

WEST CHICAGO LOSES.

Downers Grove continued its victories in the West Suburban conference by defeating West Chicago yesterday, 13 to 0, at West Chicago. Harry Frazier and Bob Andrus scored for Downers Grove.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted by the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question George Tate, 33 West 89th street, Chicago, was awarded $5.

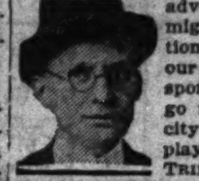
The Question.

What do you think of THE TRIBUNE'S suggestion of a trophy to be given to the most valuable Big Ten football player?

Where Asked.

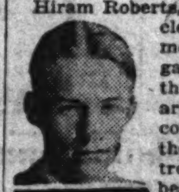
St. Clair and Ohio streets.

The Answers.

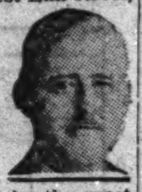


L. A. Petipp, 5050 Sheridan road, advertising.—This is a mighty good suggestion. Anything to boost our great American sport is good. You may go in any part of the city and see small boys playing the game. THE TRIBUNE should be congratulated for this suggestion. I am heartily in favor of it.

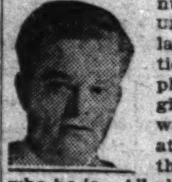
Otto Kurth, 4634 Anderson avenue, artist.—Considering that football is one of the few clean sports left, I certainly think that a trophy should be given to the most valuable player in the western conference. THE TRIBUNE has conceived a worthy idea and is deserving of praise.



Hiram Roberts, 2040 Carver avenue, clerk.—This will arouse more interest in the game for all players in the Big Ten, as there are many stars in the conference. I think there also should be a trophy for the second best man. This would give someone a chance against "Red" Grange.



W. O. Victorine, 800 West Elm street, Park Ridge, type expert.—I certainly think THE TRIBUNE'S suggestion is a very good one. I also believe that it will stimulate competition for the trophy among stars of the conference. The most valuable player may not be the most spectacular and that is a point for THE TRIBUNE to decide.



Jean Tastoret, 5529 Kenmore avenue, artist.—THE TRIBUNE is to be congratulated for this suggestion. I am sure a trophy of this kind to be given by THE TRIBUNE will be highly appreciated and honored by the winner, no matter who he is. All players will try hard to win this coveted prize.

CATHOLIC H., 20; LINDBLOM, 7.

Coached to high points of efficiency by two former players of national prominence, football teams representing Columbia college of Dubuque, Ia., and St. Viator will clash for the western Catholic college football championship in the Grant park stadium on Tuesday, Armistice day. The game will be called at 2 o'clock.

Columbia, which is leading for honers in the inter-state conference, is coached by Eddie Anderson, one of the best ends ever turned out at Notre Dame.

Coached by Glaze.

St. Viator is coached by Ralph Glaze, formerly of Dartmouth.

The game should resolve itself into a battle of eastern and western coaching methods. Columbia will depend upon the open game, featured by a running attack and forward passing. St. Viator will employ the end running offense.

That the teams will be creditably supported from the stands is shown by the fact special trains will be run from both institutions.

The Catholic High school students of Chicago will be out in large numbers, as a special admission fee has been arranged for them.

Columbus Tigers, with eight former captains of college elevens in their lineup, clash this afternoon with the Chicago Bears at the Cubs park. Many of the best known Big Ten players of recent years are with the Tigers, including the three "Bells"—Tebell of Wisconsin, Goebel of Michigan, and Isabell of Ohio State. The kickoff is scheduled for 2:15.

The Tigers play an open game a good share of the time, having in Quarter Back Sonny Winters a man regarded as the next best man to Workman in throwing forward passes the west has seen in years.

As the Tigers wear jerseys of a solid gold color, the Bears will don their red jackets for today only to distinguish them from the Tigers.

Two ex-captains are at ends and are experts in catching passes—Tebell of the Badgers and Goebel of the Wolverines. Ellis at one tackle was captain of the University of Detroit eleven in 1922 and received All-American mention. The other tackle is Petcoff of Ohio State, who captained the Buckeyes when they tackled the Maroons last season.

Larry Walquist, the great Illinois forward passer, has entirely recovered from his arm injury and will start for the Bears at right half. Dutch Sternaman will be at left half, Knop at full, and Joe Sternaman at quarter, all being ex-Illini.

Hanny of Indiana and Halas of Illinois will be at ends. Healy of Dartmouth and Blacklock of the Michigan Aggies at tackles, Anderson of Notre Dame and McMillen of Illinois at guards, and Trafton of Notre Dame at center.

U. OF FLORIDA BOWS TO ARMY ELEVEN, 14 TO 7

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Army defeated the University of Florida today, 14 to 7. The southerners, with one of the strongest elevens Army has faced this year, threw a scare into the Army camp when Newton, their speed boy, intercepting a forward pass on his own 10 yard line, ran 90 yards to a touchdown. His well diverted place kick a moment later added the extra point for a tie score at 7 to 7.

The thriller came in the third quarter and set the cadets in the stands yelling wildly for more fight from the Army men on the field. Army went back with a determined air, and soon after the opening of the final chapter Harry Wilson broke loose on a slice off tackle and, wriggling through the Florida secondary defense, ran to a touchdown. Garbisch kicked the goal. Lineup:

MIDWEST GRID TEAMS ENTERING 2D ROUND

Teams in the Midwest Football league enter the second round of games today. Losers will be eliminated from the race for the championship and this holds good in all four divisions of the circuit.

Topping the list of tilts for the day will be the battle that the Pullman-Roseland Panthers and the Opal A. A. are sure to put on at the Pullman grounds, 115th and Halsted streets. These two elevens have been aching to get at each other all season and were all set to go through with it two weeks ago, when the game was called off in the forenoon of the same day because the two sides could not agree on several issues.

The Elgin Legions, who just entered the championship race last week, tackle the Evanston Elks at Elgin with a strong team.

Other games that make up the Midwest schedule for today are:

Amos A. A. and Forest Park Othellos at Forest Park, Maplewood Rovers and Joliet at Joliet, Waukegan Elks and Cicero Boosters at Waukegan, Harvey A. A. and Murleys at Harvey, Tri-Colors and Logan Squares at Cermak park, Washington Parks of Evanston and Waukegan Wildcats at Evanston Tokios and Merry Gardens at White City, Hurdler A. C. and Mustangs at Home and Division, St. Florian A. C. and South Chicago Boosters at St. Michael park, Audubon Arrows and La Vergne Arrows at Neisen park, Armero Craigins and Park Ridge at Cicero and Fullerton, Whiting Friars and Englewood at Whiting, Moline Tigers and Jackrabbits at Morton high school field.

YALE WALLOPS U. OF MARYLAND BY 47 TO 0 SCORE

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Yale today attained its high scoring mark for the season by registering 47 points and whitewashing the University of Maryland, which made only one first down during the matinée. The visitors threatened the Eli goal only once when a blocked kick gave them the ball early in the initial period, 15 yards from the home citadel.

An 84 yard run by Ben Cutler, a Yale substitute back, for the final Eli touchdown was the longest ground gaining advance. Billy Kline's consistent line breaking ability featured the play in the second half, and Danny Lindley's in the first part of the game. Lineup:

Determined to route the jinx that has hovered over them in their last three games, the Chicago Cardinals, with a much improved team, will attempt to end their losing streak of three straight this afternoon at the expense of the Dayton Triangles. The game will be played at White Sox park, with the kick off at 2 o'clock.

Capt. Driscoll and his co-workers have had the breaks against them, but the south siders today expect to gain much of the ground they have lost in the National Pro football league championship race. A number of new plays will be sprung on the famous Buckeye eleven, which has overpowered some of the best teams in the circuit.

Drill on Passes.

With the Dayton line one of the heaviest in the league, the locals have drilled intensively on aerial plays which are expected to prove too fast for the visitors. The aerial offense is built around Driscoll, Bill McElwain, Johnny Hurlburt, and the two crack ends, McNulty and Anderson.

The Dayton attack will center around the activities of Ken Huffine, former Purdue plunger, at full back; Mahrt of West Virginia and Kinderdine at the halves, with Redmon of Andover calling signals.

Sign De Steffano.

In addition to the regular squad of Cardinal backs, De Stefano, formerly of Northwestern, has been signed and is likely to see action at full back.

NAVY VICTOR OVER VERMONT IN EASY GAME

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Recognizing that in opposing the University of Vermont they met a team which is not up to the standard of its opponents this season, the naval academy contingent is still pleased with its victory this afternoon, by 53 to 0, and the indication the midshipmen have at least developed a real and dangerous attack.

For the first time this year the Navy team actually gained ground and made touchdowns with real speed and power. Also, for the first time, it used the passing game as part of its normal attack, and, though not regularly successful with it, gave indications it has the possibilities of a varied and brilliant game along this line. WOODS AND WATERS BY BOB BECKER

ILLINOIS QUAIL SEASON OPENS TOMORROW.

ILLINOIS hunters are getting on their favorite quail grounds today in order to be all set for the big noise tomorrow morning when the hunting of Bob Whites and prairie chickens becomes legal. The season continues up to and including the 21st of November for prairie chickens, while quail shooters may enjoy their sport until Dec. 10.

Which is the more fun—duck shooting or quail hunting with a good dog? We were debating that question the other day with an enthusiastic duck hunter and after several broadsides from both of us the fight was declared a draw. If a man loves bird dogs and is of the type that wants to keep moving instead of sittin' in one place for any length of time, he will, of course, put Bob White shooting at the top of his sport list, as wandering through the fields behind a stylish setter or pointer in the search for coveys of quail is the game for this kind of an outdoorsman.

We have hunted the mountain quail of the west; we have bagged many a quail in the savannah country of northern Brazil; we have hunted this game in Florida, Tennessee, Wisconsin, Illinois, and other parts of the United States, but of all the shooting conditions encountered none, to our way of thinking, are as ideal for hunter and dog as those right here in the middle west. In South America it was too blamed hot for shooting after nine thirty in the morning. In the mountains of Oregon (where we went after the beautiful plumed mountain quail) the going was too tough for comfort. Give us the gently rolling country of the middle west with its weed patches and other cover where the Bob Whites hold forth. It's the best "what am."

Although central and southern Illinois produces some pretty fine quail shooting Kentucky and Tennessee just about top 'em all when it comes to pointing out our best middle western states for this sport. Kentucky has been importing thousands of birds which have multiplied rapidly and Tennessee with its miles and miles of ideal cover always has been a great section for the Bob Whites. Last fall while hunting with Flem Thomas near Culleoka, Tenn., we saw some of the finest quail grounds that one can imagine. These birds need plenty of weed patches, scrub growth and other cover and near Culeoka they sure had it. With rather high forested hills overlooking cultivated valleys with winding streams and lots of likely looking quail ground, the hunter had a delightful setting for his sport. There was only one draw back. Cockle burrs sticktights and other nuisances were too abundant for any use and the poor setters were in trouble much of the time as they picked up too many of these burrs. However, the birds were there and if there is anything prettier than four dogs on point, the flushing of a covey of Bob Whites or a handsome setter retrieving, we want to know about it. More power to the bird dogs.

The "RED" GRANGE of Traffic

Not through default of other motor cars, but through its own incomparable virtue, the Wills Sainte Claire Stands Forth.

No one can dispute the obvious.

Any day, as the great currents of traffic swirl and eddy in endless battle, standing on the curb you contemplate the growing problem of traffic with actual apprehension —conscious only of a troubled stream of motor cars

—conscious, mind you, of No One Motor Car in Particular.

On the faces of all those out there in traffic, both drivers and passengers, is written in every line—Anxiety.

Suddenly out of the inextricable tangle, with utter unconcern and the dash of a "Red" Grange, there emerges One Car.

—Such suppleness! Such Dash!

—Such unbelievable Change of Pace!

Its driver, far from registering concern and nerve strain, unconsciously beams, and her buoyance and assurance is reflected in the smiles of her passengers.

In—out—an Instant Stop, and then, with a Flash, which no car can follow, it leaps into its own clear field and goes on in eager pursuit of happiness.

Such is the inimitable Wills Sainte Claire—such the contribution of C. Harold Wills to modern conditions.

Why should You be satisfied with less?

LEW ROLLINGER A LIKELY KID IN RANK OF HEAVIES

BY FRANK SMITH.

Digging up a fellow who eventually will succeed Jack Dempsey as world's heavyweight champion is getting to be a hobby with some erstwhile managers who would hop into the shoes of Jack Kearns, the man who made hundreds of dollars into thousands since he steered the Utah mauler to the title so proudly worn, but loosely lost, by John L. Sullivan.

Since Dempsey upset the giant Willard in jig time at Toledo some years back, Tex Rickard has sprung two or three fellows on the unsuspecting public, who went the way of Willard without much apparent effort. Firpo was the biggest drawing card, but he didn't last much longer in the ring than it takes to tell, although Jack knew he was in a fight. Firpo later met Harry Wills and they went a mediocre twelve rounds at Jersey City, thus eliminating Firpo as serious contender and boosting a trifle the stock of the colored lad.

Present Crop "Duds."

Looking the field over—there's Fulton, whom the New York athletic commission doesn't consider a match for Willard; Jack Renault, a fair prospect at this time; Tom Gibbons, who went fifteen rounds with Dempsey at Shelby, Mont., but considered by many critics as easy picking for Dempsey if they ever are matched again; Firpo, who wouldn't have a ghost of a show in another match for the championship, and Harry Wills, little thought of by close followers of the game as anywhere near equal to Jack—one doesn't find in the present crop any outstanding man who can give the titleholder a halfway decent workout.

Managers and promoters must look forward years before they will be able to locate a man who will have a chance to wrest the crown from Jack Dempsey's head. Real contenders will not be born over night. Those interested in the future of the game and the pot of gold that goes with a champion, or even a contender for the title, must build up from the rough a man with grit a man who can stand punishment, a man who can take care of himself in any kind of an encounter, and a man who can punch and who can let them go with accuracy from any direction and at the crucial stage of the contest.

Must Build Up Contender.

Perhaps there are a hundred men, properly trained, who could beat Dempsey—but they haven't been uncovered. Many a man has tried to be heavyweight champion—had the idea in his noodle that he would be champion only to have it knocked cuckoo early in his career, which was thereby ruined for good and all.

These boys who have the championship bug in their heads must be handled with care, and that is what Larney Lichtenstein, veteran manager of fighters all over the country, is doing with the latest acquisition to his stable. Larney has chosen for the mate of his two whirlwind boxers—Ray Miller and Ernie Goozeman—Lew Rollinger. Never heard of him? Neither did we until the other day when on a visit to a Chicago gymnasium we watched this young fellow go through his paces. He was such a likely looking article that we became inquisitive, and this is what Larney told us:

"This boy was born in Chicago twenty years ago, and shortly after that event his parents moved to Freeport, where they still live. Right now he weighs 170 pounds, is steadily gaining in weight, and when he reaches his prime in three years should tip the scales in the neighborhood of 210 pounds.

Scores Eighteen Victories.

"It may sound strange through his many knockouts that he remains unsung, but he seems to have lacked some one to go to the front for him. I have gone into his record carefully, and here is what I find. He has had nineteen fights, has scored eleven knockouts, has lost one, and the rest went as no decision affairs, although four of them he claims to have won. He has charged up knockouts to Mike Kowalsky, at Davenport, Ia., in six rounds; to Jimmy Gill, Cedar Rapids, in five rounds; to Harold Jenkins, Waterloo, Ia., in seven rounds; to Jack Monahan, Madison Wis., in seven rounds; to George Cummings, Davenport, Ia., in six rounds; to Terry Lawson, Waterloo, Ia., in two rounds; to Gus Paulson, Waterloo, Ia., in two rounds; to Jack McCarthy, Cedar Rapids, Ia., in one round; to Terry Butts, Waterloo, Ia., in three rounds; to Ote Bush, Savannah, Ill., in one round, and to Jack Brauchle, Fort Dodge, Ia., in three rounds.

"Not such a bad record for a bush leaguer. You will notice the kid can punch from almost any corner, and look, he can take 'm (right then he got a smash on the kisser that was a beauty, but it didn't seem to faze him)."

Larney is all het up about the boy and it looks as if he has picked up a youngster who will make a name in the heavyweight ranks, if he is brought along properly. That is up to his manager.

PEEL APPOINTED REPRESENTATIVE OF SOCCER BODY

Peter J. Peel, former president of the United States Football association, has been appointed North American representative of the Federation de International de Football association, the governing soccer body of the world. This is the first time a Chicagoan has been honored by the international association.

The association has asked Mr. Peel to get the views of Americans and Canadians on the amateur question, which was the topic of much discussion at the Olympic games. The officials want to know whether this country and Canada favor the continental European plan of allowing players compensation for time lost while engaged in soccer, or the strict amateurism recognized by the British.

DR. POLLARD COPS HANDICAP EVENT AT PARK TRAPS

Under the Milwaukee system of scoring Dr. Pollard won the handicap shoot at the Lincoln park traps yesterday, breaking 45 out of a possible 50 targets at 16 yards. H. M. Rowley won the doubles, breaking 40 out of a possible 50 targets. Other high scores in the handicap were:

H. M. Rowley, 48; C. G. Burmeister, 47; E. T. Troch, 46; C. B. McGary, 45; G. J. [illegible], 44.

CHICAGO KID GROOMED FOR JACK'S CROWN

LEW ROLLINGER.

This is the 20 year old Chicago kid who is being groomed by Larney Lichtenstein, veteran manager, to lift Mr. Jack Dempsey's crown, hanging a left hook on Jack Nails. With the present crop of heavyweight contenders considered "duds," the younger generation is being given consideration. Lew has scored eleven knockouts and lost only one encounter in nineteen starts.

OLYMPIAS, SPARTAS IN SOCCER GAME TODAY

Soccer battles on this afternoon's program are led in interest by the match between the Olympia and Sparta clubs at Kilpatrick avenue and Nineteenth street, the two rivals being two of the most popular outfits in the major league. The teams are located in a soccer-loving community out in Lawndale, both have strong Bohemian backing and in both lineups are notable players who have been brought here from abroad to perform.

Two other major league battles which are scheduled are between the Pullmans, who defeated the champion Canucks last week, and the North Shores, while the Swedish-Americans will meet the Canadians at the Sparta field, Kostner avenue and Twenty-seventh street. Harvey and the German club will play in the Peel cup meet today. Today's contests follow:

ABE GOLDSTEIN HERE TUESDAY FOR SHEA GO

Abe Attel Goldstein, the bantamweight who is matched to meet Eddie Shea, the rugged west side Italian, in the ten round windup at East Chicago Friday night will arrive in the loop on Tuesday, according to Matchmaker Martin Mullany.

Goldstein will do his work at the Mullen gymnasium and will workout at the Madison street resort on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. He will be accompanied by Manager Willie, the old time middleweight boxer and his trainer. The weight for the match is 120 pounds at 3 o'clock, which will not involve the bantam king's title.

First Fight in Six Weeks.

Goldstein won the title from Joe Lynch at Madison Square garden the early part of the year and defended the crown successfully in two fifteen round decision bouts during the summer, winning over Charlie Ledoux, the Frenchman and Tommy Ryan, the McKeesport fighter.

Abe is a terrific right hand puncher and won many of his battles via the knockout route. The Shea bout is his first in six weeks and he wants to engage in several ten round no decision affairs before going against Eddie "Cannonball" Martin whom he is scheduled to meet in the garden Dec. 12. Martin is by far the best opponent he has been asked to tackle in a decision bout since he won the title.

Shea a Willing Boxer.

In securing Shea to face the titleholder, Mullany picked out the best of the local crop of little fellows. Eddie is unusually rugged and a willing mixer. He can take a punch without wilting under the strain and still come back for more. Eddie will have to be in fine trim for the champion can sock hard with his right hand. He will have the edge over Eddie in the line of ring experience and generalship, but Shea is expected to give Abe plenty of trouble.

The semi-windup will be between Frankie Schaefer and Ace Hudkins the Omaha scrapper and it will be listed for eight rounds.

U.S. HOCKEY TEAM BEATS MADISON GIRLS, 8 TO 0

Miss Lillian Marshall is captain of the All-Chicago team and Miss Anne Townsend of Philadelphia heads the All-American team. Mrs. Emmons Blaine, president of the Chicago Field Hockey association, is taking an active part in arrangements for today's contest.

SUNFLAG BEATS ZEV IN PIMLICO SERIAL STAKES

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Zev failed today to repeat Tryster's great performance of 1922, when he won all three of the Pimlico serial weight for age races.

The Rancocas 4 year old, after capturing the first from Goshawk, Lucky Play, and Pep to Peep, this afternoon in the second ran third to Gifford A. Cochran's 3 year old Sunflag and William Daniels' great 2 year old Master Charlie.

Zev could not give six pounds to Sunflag and twenty to Master Charlie and beat them, being four lengths back of the winner. Sunflag, with Barnes up, ran the mile in 1:39 2-5 over a fast track, earning $3,466 for his owner. The winner was third choice in the betting and paid $7.20 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels.

Only four came out for serial No. 2 with Zev the favorite at a little better than even money. Master Charlie was second choice, Sunflag third, and P. H. Sims' Prince of Umbria the rank outsider at more than 50 to 1. The latter never figured, running last all the way.

SIMMS TO SELL RACING STOCK

New York, Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Edward F. Simms is to discontinue his stud at the beautiful Xalapa farm, the famous nursery of thoroughbreds in Bourbon county, Kentucky, it was announced today. Mr. Simms has authorized the Fasig-Tipton company to sell all of his stallions, brood mares and foals of 1924, together with the Xalapa racing stable and the horses that have been raced in the name of the Lexington stable. They will be disposed of by public auction in the Squadron A armory, this city, on the evenings of Dec. 10 and 11.

This will be one of the most important sales in the history of the turf in this country.

A. A. U. TO FACE TOUGH JOB IN AWARDING MEETS

New York, Nov. 8.—Championship committees of the Amateur Athletic union, meeting in Atlantic City, starting next Sunday, face a difficult problem in alloting the association's title events for 1925, with the possibility that the first feature, the national senior indoor tract and field championships, a New York fixture for two decades, may be awarded to Louisville.

Pasadena, Chicago, New Orleans and San Francisco are seeking the year's premier event, the outdoor senior and junior track and field, decathlon, and relay championships for men. New York is bidding for the junior and senior cross-country events, seven mile walk, ten mile run, two mile steeplechase, and the senior outdoor track and field championships for women.

Gotham Wants Boxing.

New York also would lift the national senior boxing championships from Boston. They have been conducted in the Massachusetts capital for twenty years with financial success. Kansas City want the annual baketball tournament, and Cleveland, Pittsburgh, New York, and Cincinnati have bid for the handball competitions.

The plan of awarding all senior indoor swimming championships for men to one organization appears to have encountered sufficient favor to warrant continuance of the procedure and several cities have made offers for the events. Miami desires to stage the senor women's swimming competitions in February, when many of the feminine stars will be in Florida.

Chicago After Indoor Meet.

Chicago, Detroit, and San Francisco have applied for the men's senior indoor program, and Indianapolis and Detroit have offered substantial appropriations for the complete outdoor aquatic championships.

YANK BASEBALL ALL GREEK TO GAY PARISIANS

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Nov. 8.—Big league baseball thrilled 3,000 exiled American fans and bewildered 3,000 French sport followers at Colombes stadium this afternoon when the New York Giants slaughtered the Chicago White Sox, 8 to 0, in their first game in France on their international tour.

It was a snappy, scrappy battle, played in one hour and ten minutes on the turf diamond laid out on the historic scence of the 1924 Olympic games. The teams battled six scoreless innings before perfect pitching, and then came the seventh with a wild rally, netting the Giants six runs and sending the Americans into a frenzy of rooting, while the French caught the spirit of the game and enthusiastically clapped their hands and waved their hats without knowing technically why.

Fouls Cause Excitement.

The greatest excitement the game produced was centered in the grandstand seats behind the home plate, where men ducked and women screamed when sizzling foul balls crashed into the crowd. Three beautifully gowned Parisiennes missed getting knocked cold by inches when a red hot foul tip whistled past their faces.

"We faced the machine guns of the Boch at Verdun, but this is the most terrifying sensation we ever experienced," declared a heavily decorated Poilu as spokesman for a group of French war veterans behind home plate.

The biggest sight during the game was Hughey Jennings' grass eating act on the third base coaching line and Peppery Johnny Evers' speech on the physical defects and ancestry of umpires on the close of a play at the plate.

Evers Amazes Umpire.

The foreigners were amazed when Evers, talking earnestly, told the umpire what he thought of him, and the Americans almost wept with joy.

"They are doing a Dolan," yelled a leather lunged Paris-American when Evers and Jennings held an earnest conversation after the sixth inning, which marked a lull before the storm of old fashioned Giants batting rally in the seventh.

For the first time in the history of big league baseball nobody stood up and stretched in the seventh inning. No score board was available, so the Americans lost count of the innings and the French did not know the game was over until the crowd started to leave the stands after the ninth. The French courteously shouted "atta bajah" during the seventh inning out of respect to the American custom. The nearest French translation of "atta boy" is, "There is the boy of the situation."

Late Hours Slow Players.

Several ball players on both teams showed the effects of last night's tour of the Montmartre bright lights by swinging slowly and running tiredly today.

The Ginats' win today makes them two games ahead in the present tour. Jonnard and Huntsinger held the Sox to two weak hits. Jonnard retired in the seventh for a pinch hitter. Lyon and Picinich were the Sox battery. Gowdy did not play, being reported as visiting the battlefields where he fought as a doughboy during the war.

The bronzed ballplayers own downtown Paris tonight. The lobby of the Grand Hotel, their headquarters, is jammed with newly made French fans and with Americans seeking a glimpse of the diamond heroes.

$45 for Two Baseballs.

Spectators sold two baseballs fouled into the stands for 900 francs [$45] with autographs by McGraw.

During the ride from Colombes to Paris, French men, women, and children yelled, "Vive les Giants" and "Vive les Sox." The White Sox are known here as "Basblancs."

McGraw and Comiskey today agreed to postpone Wednesday's game to Thursday in order to be hosts to school children on their half holiday. Score:

Giants	000	000	611—8	10	1
White Sox	000	000	000—0	2	1

Batteries—Jonnard, Huntzinger and Henline; Lyons and Picinich.

INSIDE DOPE ON BASEBALL GIVEN BY PARIS SCRIBE

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Nov. 8.—Here is a French sport writer's description of the Sox-Giants game today:

"The baseball. What is that? On the field the players in their curious uniforms give the impression of escaped convicts, but what muscular strength, what agility is forthcoming in capturing the ball!

"The pitcher [thrower of the ball] stands in the middle of the field and throws the ball. The batter, stationed at a corner of the field, should intercept this ball and return it into the field of play. The ball should touch first the earth. If not, and if it is captured by an adversary, the batter is without. If it has touched the ground the batter should arrive at the base [which is indicated by a sack on the ground] before the ball, retaken by the defense, should reach this very same sack.

"All the while these American spectators encourage the players with terrible cries."

OHIO HARRIERS BEAT ILLINOIS AND MICHIGAN

Columbus, O., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Running at a steady pace and leading the field over the entire five miles, Walter Wikoff, captain of the Ohio State harriers, won the Ohio State-Michigan-Illinois cross country meet here today and broke the record for the local course. Wikoff's time was 25:53, twenty-one seconds under the former record, established by Anderson of Minnesota in 1914.

Ohio State won the meet with 29 points, Michigan was second with 35, and Illinois trailed with 56. The first five men were Wikoff [Ohio], E. Mieher [I.], Kennedy [O.], Callahan [M.], and Homberger [M.].

Knox Eleven Wins Hard Fought Game with Coe

Galesburg, Ill., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—In one of the most hard fought games ever staged on Willard field, Knox defeated Coe today 20 to 7. Knox tore the Coe line to pieces and threatened on numerous occasions. The feature of the game was a 101 yard run for a touchdown following an intercepted pass. The win virtually clinches the midwest conference title for Knox. Lineup:

RECORDS MAY FALL IN AUTO RACES TODAY

Records are expected to topple when more than twenty of the city's best auto race demons get together at Roby speedway, 108th and Indianapolis avenue, today.

Four races are scheduled, three five mile sprint affairs and a twenty mile final. Two of the sprints are for light cars of less than 200 c. c. piston displacement and the other is for heavy cars. Winners in these events will hook up in the twenty mile circuit.

Woodbury Is Favorite.

Cliff Woodbury, Sonny Talamont, Eddie Heckler and Esthan Wenneston are all figured as prospective record breakers. Woodbury especially is expected to endanger the Roby track mark for five miles for heavy cars and for twenty miles, both of which he holds.

His record for the five mile is :04 flat, which he made on the way to fifty miles earlier this season. Cliff's twenty mile standard is 17:51. The light car record for five miles is 4:13, held by "Shorty" Cantlon of Detroit.

Proceeds to Widows' Fund.

Entire proceeds of this afternoon's program will go to an insurance fund set aside by the Central Race Drivers' association. Only members of this organization are eligible for competition. The first race is scheduled to start at 2:30 p. m.

TROJANS TAKE LICKING FROM ST. MARYS, 14-10

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Debacle succeeded disaster for the Southern California football team today when St. Marys college of Oakland upset the Trojans, 14 to 10. When the closing gun stunned 27,000 rooters in Los Angeles coliseum, Southern California was on St. Marys 1 yard line with two downs to go.

Last Saturday the Trojans, preseason favorites in the coast conference, were astounded by a 7 to 0 drubbing at California. On the same day Cal and Stanford ruptured all athletic relations with U. S. C. and on the heels of this the Trojans canceled the previously scheduled Stanford game here today and gave back $60,000 in ticket money, scheduling St. Marys as substitutes. Lineup:

FATHER SEEKS BIRTH RECORDS OF GIANT STAR

Pottsville, Pa., Nov. 8.—The Schuylkill county register's office, in a message from Scranton, Pa., today was asked to furnish all available legal data regarding the birth of Walter Huntzinger, New York Giant pitcher, now in Europe.

The message, which came from Huntzinger's father, intimated that the passport of the twirler was defective, and that his birth record was the portion at fault.

The county register is making an examination of the county records in an effort to furnish the necessary certificate. Prior to 1907, when the department of health took over the registration of births and deaths, the records were filed in the county courts.

SISLER SPIKES ALL RUMORS HE'LL PILOT BROWNIES FROM BENCH

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 8.—Rumors George Harold Sisler would manage the St. Louis Browns from the bench next season were definitely spiked today when he announced he again would be at his old position, first base, in 1925.

"I expect to have a better year next season than I had this year," Sisler said. "Throughout the 1924 campaign I improved steadily. I expect the winter of rest to bring still further improvement." Sisler denied the sinus trouble which kept him out of the game in 1923 had interfered with his vision in fielding ground balls last season.

Sisler stated also he had decided to spend the winter in St. Louis, devoting his time toward building up the club. He expects to make several trades which he hopes will bring new strength to the Browns.

JAP BALK LINER WILL PLAY HERE THREE WEEKS

Kinrey Matsuyama, the little Japanese 18.2 balk line billiardist who finished third in the last junior professional balk line tournament, arrived in Chicago yesterday from New York. Kinrey, in his only tournament in this country, finished ahead of Taylor, Cutler, Bos and McAndless.

Since that tournament Kinrey has put in most of his time giving balk line exhibitions in New York with the best of the balk liners as his opponents. In all his exhibitions he showed marked improvement over his 1923 form and now he thinks himself good enough to hold his own against the senior professionals.

Kinrey will be in Chicago about three weeks and is willing to meet the best of the balk liners on any terms, being confident he is in form to give the best of them a real battle. On his arrival here Kinrey called on L. A. Bensinger of Mussey's amphitheater and announced he is ready to meet any of the local balk liners on their own terms. After a three weeks' stay here Kinrey goes to the Pacific coast to play Schaefer, Cochran and the other balk line stars out there.

The first tournament at 18.2 balk line billiards was held at Madison Square Garden concert hall, New York, March 31 to April 15, 1896, under the auspices of Ives and Daly, and it has been the game of the greatest experts ever since. The games in that year were 600 points, all three contestants playing twice around. The contestants were Schaefer, Ives, and Garnier. Schaefer and Ives tied for first place, winning two and losing one game each. Garnier failed to win a game. Best average was made by Schaefer, 30; best run, 176; by Ives, 50; best run, 200.

President B. E. Bensinger of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company returned from New York yesterday and now rumor has it he soon will announce the date and place of holding the next international balk line tournament.

The Illinois Billiard association on Wednesday will open its sixth annual pocket billiard tournament for the amateurs, with a fine lot of entries.

Drake's Clear Record Is Broken by Kansas, 6 to 6

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 8.—The Kansas Jayhawkers today put a crimp in the Missouri valley championship aspirations of Drake university when they held the Bulldogs to a 6 to 6 tie in a game featured mostly by punting.

Although Drake outplayed Kansas the large part of the game, the breaks of the game went to the latter, a punt which rolled back on the field and a timely whistle in the second quarter having much to do with the outcome. It was the first time this season that Drake has been scored on.

WESTERN HORSE TAKES CUP AT MEADOWBROOK

New York, Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Burgovight, owned by Benjamin Leslie Behr of the Onwentsia club, Lake Forest, Ill., today won the Meadowbrook Hunt cup, held at Jericho, Long Island.

There were nine entries in this event, which comprised the flower of the steeplechase horses of the east. It is the most important event in the fall meetings in horse circles. The first Meadowbrook race was held in 1883, and never before has this event been Kruez had made four unsuccessful atwon by a western horse.

Stilits, owned by A. C. Burrage of Boston, finished second. The course of the Meadowbrook race is one of the stiffest of the eastern point to point races.

ED LITSINGER SENDS ENTRY FOR HANDBALL MEET

Attorney Edward R. Litsinger, one of Chicago's veteran handball players, sent his entry yesterday for the handball tourney which starts next week on the courts at engine 32's house at 59 East South Water street. Litsinger was a noted athlete in his younger days and is still spry enough to survive several of the preliminary rounds in almost any handball tournament in Chicago, and he doesn't miss many of them.

Assistant Fire Marshal Mike Corrigan, who is promoting the event, wishes to emphasize that there will be two classes, and the players with little experience will go in class B, where they will have a good chance. A silver cup donated by Charles V. Barrett will be given the winner in each class. There is still room for fifteen or twenty more entries, which can be telephoned to Marshal Corrigan at Central 6176. The entry fee is $1, to pay for the balls used.

Syracuse, Harrier Champs, Beat Columbia Runners

New York, Nov. 8.—Syracuse, intercollegiate cross-country champions, defeated Columbia, runner-up in last year's competition, in a dual hill and dale race over the Van Cortland park six mile course today, 20 to 39.

SHOOT FOR TRIB RIFLE TROPHY OPENS NOV. 21

The seventh annual small bore rifle tournament for the Chicago championship and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE trophy will start Friday night, Nov. 21, at 7 o'clock.

About thirty of the best teams in the state will be entered, including a representation from Western Electric company, Peoples Gas, Bell Telephone, Hamilton club, Irving Park Rifle club, Centennial, Chicago, and Ridgeville Rifle clubs, 129th infantry, 132d and 131st infantries, Joliet Rifle club, Ivy Way Gun club of Marseilles, and any other clubs entering teams before Nov. 18.

Rules Are Changed.

This year the rules committee has made several drastic changes for the purpose of giving the newer men a better chance at the prizes, and in order to make the tournament more sporty. Instead of the usual ten weeks of shooting there will be only six. Teams will be composed of only five men each, and any number of teams may enter from a club, and switching of team members is to be permitted for the first time in the history of the matches.

Teams which lack the highly specialized equipment of some of the clubs are given an equal chance on account of a complete set of prizes to be awarded "iron sight" shooters.

Five Year Trophy.

The tournament, which is held under auspices of the Chicago Rifle association, centers mainly around the beautiful TRIBUNE trophy, which has been up for competition for a number of years. Every five years the trophy goes to the team winning it the most times, and a duplicate is put up, so that in reality THE TRIBUNE trophy is several trophies, thus giving all teams a chance to enter at any time and stand an equal chance of winning it. The present trophy is up for the second year. Irving Park Rifle club has one leg, and is present city champion.

Teams or clubs desiring to enter the tournament should get in touch with C. R. Boman, secretary, or F. W. Parker Jr., president of the Chicago Rifle association. The former may be reached by phoning Official 9300, local 748, the latter at Randolph 2822.

JULIE IS CHAMP DOG IN ALABAMA 4 DAY FOX HUNT

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 8.—Seventeen gray fox pelts were in the trophy bag of the Alabama Fox Hunters' association tonight when 200 hunters from three states leashed their dogs after four days of what was termed by Woods Walker of Paint Lick, Ky., expert, as the greatest fox hunt ever held at any state or national chase.

Hunters, who attended the fourth annual meet of the Alabama association were on their way to homes in Alabama, Mississippi and Kentucky last night, enthusiastic over the success of the chase which attracted attention of sportsmen in all parts of the country to Mobile county as a hunting ground.

The meet was brought to a close today with the final field trials in which forty-one hounds, uneliminated from the 156 entries in the first cast participated and prizes were awarded at a post hunt meeting to dog owners by Dr. N. N. Smith of Prattsville, Ala., W. D. Gause of Stockton, Ala., C. E. Lilly of Elmo, Miss., and Patton brothers of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

The championship of the meet and first prize was won by Julie, who was awarded a cup and $235. The second prize, a cup and $125, was awarded to Stride Boy of Big Stride and Clara Girl, entered by W. TRIBUNE TOURS

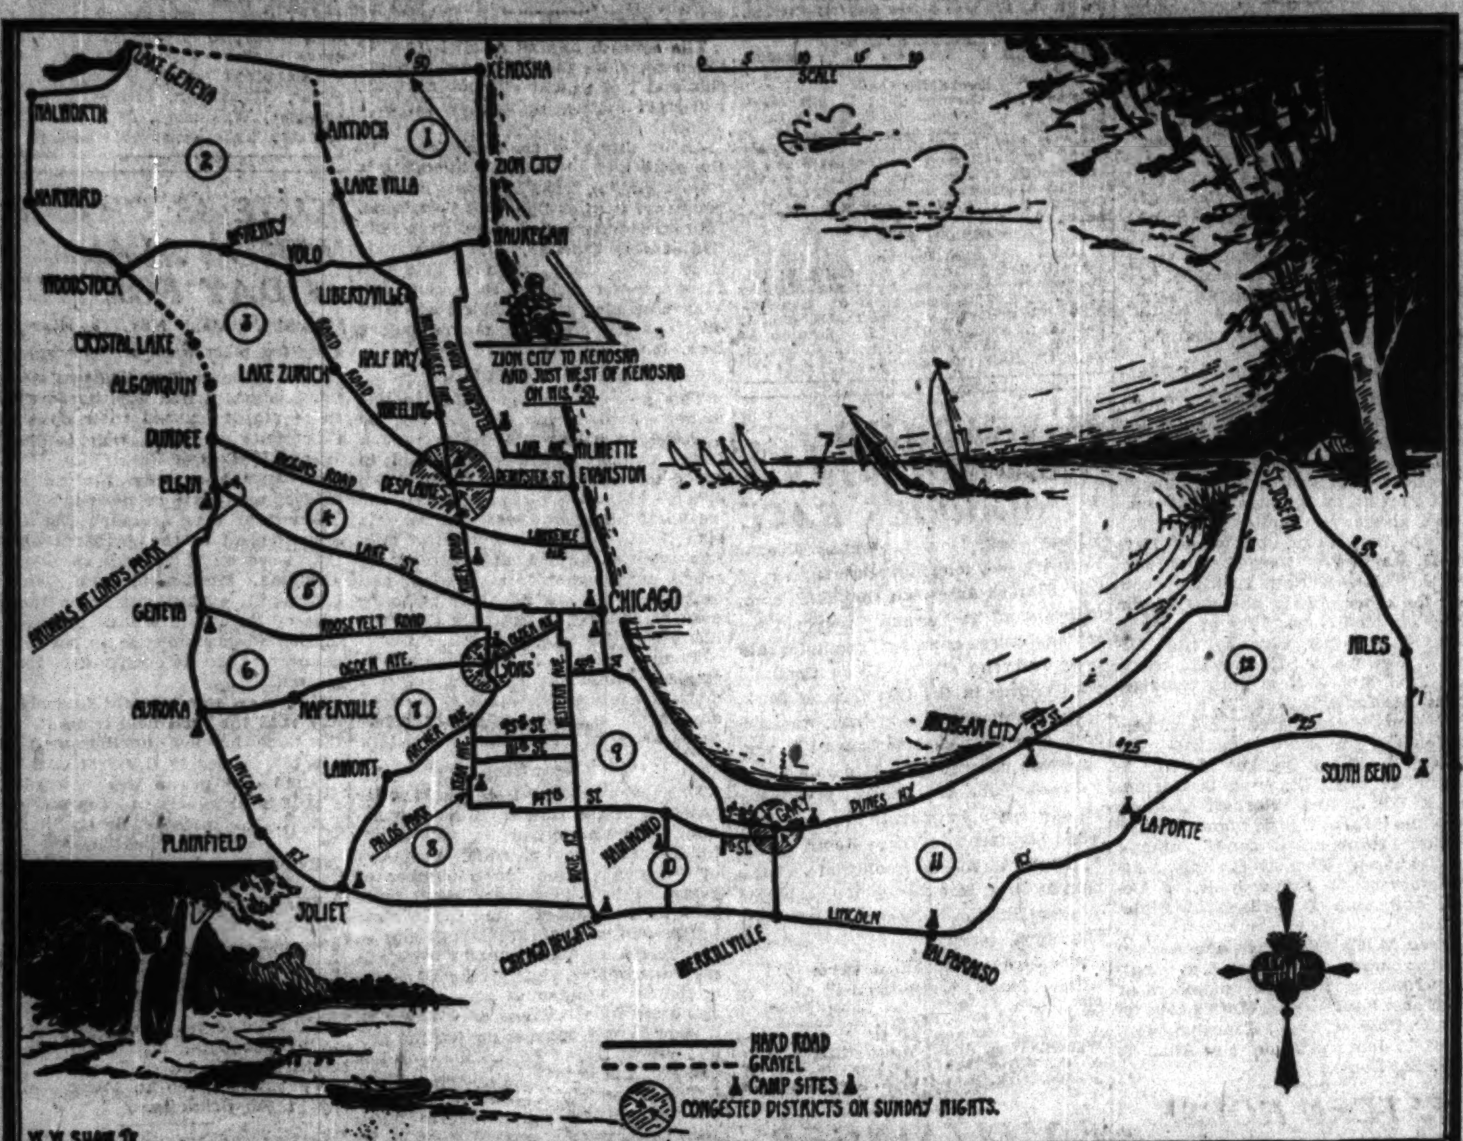
XXX. PAVED CIRCLES FOR SUNDAY DRIVERS



TWELVE delightful Sunday tours are available to Chicago motorists this fall and winter as a result of the record breaking construction work that has laid down solid concrete over a vast network of home roads.

Despite the fact that the main highways are only eighteen feet wide and congested at certain points to a dangerous degree, the driver who plans his Sunday jaunt so that he can return home about 4 p. m. rather than 6 or 7 will find comfortable going on most of the trips shown here. Numbers in circles indicate the suggested circle tours. Points of worst congestion are indicated by shaded circles. A combination of tours 6, 7, and 8 is made possible by the recent opening of new paving on the Lincoln highway west of Chicago Heights.

No Night Driving.

Motor vehicles have been barred in Princeton, Ky., by a city ordinance, between the hours of 10 p. m. and 5 a. m. Special guards patrol the streets to see that the ordinance is obeyed. Anyone caught driving during the hours is fined not less than $20 and imprisoned at the discretion of the court.

New Road Open.

One of the most remarkable motor highways in America from a scenic and engineering viewpoint is open for motor traffic. A particularly interesting feature of this western thoroughfare is that it is constructed for its length of 221 miles over the old roadbed of the Colorado Midland railroad.

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question $5 is awarded to Helen V. Sullivan, Room 460, 650 South Clark street, Chicago.

The Question.

In instructing a beginner in driving a motor car, what do you consider the most important single piece of advice you could offer?

Where Asked.

Michigan avenue "Automobile Row."

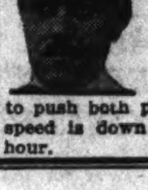
The Answers.

W. W. Haynes, 2357 Michigan avenue, automobile salesman—First, try to give the beginner confidence in his own ability to handle a car safely. Next, teach him the speed limits, parking rules, and other provisions of the vehicle laws. Just as soon as the average man feels that he can operate a car he losses the nervousness that causes so many accidents.

James J. O'Rourke, 2357 Michigan avenue, automobile salesman—My first advice to the beginner is to keep away from heavy traffic until he is certain he has mastered the operation of his car. There should be some areas near automobile row set aside for instruction. Most people can master the simple operation of a modern car quickly, and all that most of the new drivers need is confidence in their own ability.

J. P. Huber, 2357 Michigan avenue, instructor—Concentration is the secret of rapid car mastery. I find that most beginners do not know how to concentrate on their job when they get behind the wheel. My method is to take the beginner into Grant park and let him handle the car, correcting his mistakes and demanding that he think about nothing but the car. Usually two hours is sufficient, particularly for the younger students.

Harry D. Wright, 2301 Michigan avenue, instructor — The most important advice I can think of is to keep cool and to realize that the modern car is built for easy control and safety. I find that women have the hardest time in concentrating on the first job of driving. When they gain confidence in themselves they are usually ready to tackle heavy traffic.



Eugene Plummer, 24th and Federal streets, service man—I would say that clutch operation is the most important. I always tell the beginner to use the foot brake without touching the clutch pedal when slowing down, and not to push both pedals at once until the speed is down around five miles an hour.

Weil-McLain
BOILER USED HERE

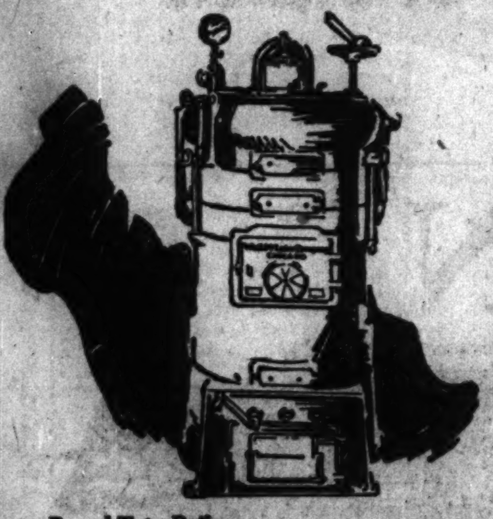
Used Weil-McLain boiler 22 years—wants another for his new home

What Mr. Henry Willis Smith and other users say about the sensational results they get from their Weil-McLain Boilers

"IN about 1901 I installed one of your boilers which is still going with only the replacement of one grate in that time. Now that I am building a new house, I would like to get another of your boilers, the old one having been very satisfactory."—Henry Willis Smith, Bronxville, N. Y.

Two costly wastes now ended



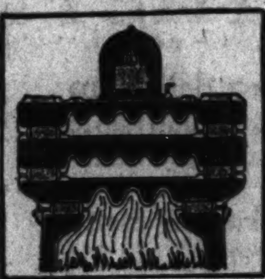
Round Type Boiler

For steam, vapor, vacuum and hot water heating; made in sizes for bungalows, residences and small apartments

In Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boilers the two greatest enemies of your comfort and convenience have been conquered. One of these is "waste down into the ash pit"—waste of unburned fuel from which the heat was never taken. The other is "waste up the chimney"—waste of heat units developed from the fire, but never utilized to heat your home.

Authorities agree that these two wastes, if prevented, would pay a good part of each winter's fuel bills. Also that they would end most home-heating troubles.

Upon request we will gladly explain how these wastes have been ended in Weil-McLain Boilers. How waste down into the ash pit has been overcome by Scientific Combustion. And how waste up the chimney is conquered by Corrugated Heating Surfaces and Long "Back-and-Forth" Fire Travel. The following letters speak for themselves:



Fuel-saving corrugations in every section

Weil-McLain Boilers are simply perfect

"We have two Weil-McLain Boilers in the school, one in the bank building and one in my home, and they steam the best of any boilers I ever saw. They are simply perfect and I know have saved us money on our coal bills."—J. A. Clyne, Board of Education, Maple Park, Ill.

Highly recommend this boiler

"I can highly recommend the Weil-McLain Boiler. My house is large, has high ceilings and large windows, yet every day of the severe winter of 1921 we easily kept the temperature at 75 degrees."—Frank E. Stevens, Publisher, Sycamore, Ill.

It is very easy to manage

"Our Weil-McLain Boiler is proving very satisfactory. It is economical, easy to manage, holds fire with very little care, and burns anything. It is very satisfactory."—Sycamore Farmers Co., Sycamore, Ill.

Successful in large apartment buildings

"I have installed Weil-McLain Boilers in two large six-apartment buildings and a nine-room residence and they have kept these buildings comfortable even in the severest weather without special attention. I do not hesitate to recommend them."—C. H. Schenk, Springfield, Ill.

Exceeds fondest expectations

"The Weil-McLain Boiler used in heating the Glen Oak Swimming Pool has exceeded our fondest expectations. It raises the temperature more quickly than we thought possible, operates without attention at night, and in every way is a complete success."—W. J. Murray, Secretary, Peoria, Ill.

Weil-McLain Boiler succeeds where two others failed

"After having had trouble with two other boilers, which would not heat our building and required constant attention, we want to say your Weil-McLain Boiler is doing even more than we anticipated. It produced results from the cheapest grade of mine run coal even during the severest winter weather and required little attention."—T. C. Vauter, Danville, Ill.

Entitled to great praise

"Our Weil-McLain Boiler is entitled to great praise. There was never a time during the most severe weather when our theater was not comfortable. In fact we had more heat than necessary, using soft coal and a small amount of attention."—Wm. O'Malley, Chatsworth, Ill.

Wants another Weil-McLain

"About 1913 we purchased one of your boilers for the Third Reform Church. Can this be duplicated? We have doubled the size of our church and, due to the splendid results from the old boiler, we wish another to be used in the same church with the old one."—Wm. C. Sykes, S. Greensburg, Pa.

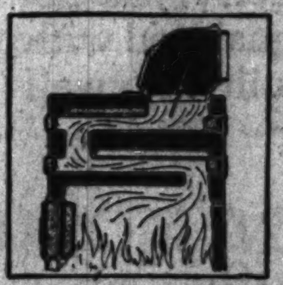
Has bought 5 Weil-McLain Boilers

"I have had one of your boilers in my school for nine years, two of them in other buildings for three years, and now that we are erecting St. Mary's Hospital I have installed in it two more of your boilers. The foregoing is ample evidence of the faith I have in Weil-McLain Boilers, and this is based on the good work they have done."—Rev. J. A. Solon, St. Mary's Church, De Kalb, Ill.

Endorsed by architects, heating engineers, contractors and other authorities

Men who have won their places as authorities on heating—architects, heating engineers, and others, say there is no finer boiler built. They know from years of experience and observation that Weil-McLain Boilers actually do develop and utilize more heat from a given amount of fuel.

Weil-McLain Boilers are famous not only for Scientific Combustion, Corrugated Heating Surfaces and Long "Back-and-Forth" Fire Travel, but also for such improvements as:



Long "back-and-forth" fire travel

—Triangular grates which crush out stubborn clinkers

—Lower one-third of firepot smooth and non-clogging, so fire shakes down easily and clean

—Large fire and slicing doors for convenience

—Handy cleanout doors in each section

—And, no matter how you generate your heat, whether with hard or soft coal or coke, hand or automatic firing or by means of an oil burner—your Weil-McLain Boiler will give more heat from less fuel.

See your heating engineer

Any responsible steamfitter or heating engineer can give you the cost of installing a Weil-McLain Boiler in your home or other building. See the boiler at his store or see the complete line at our showrooms.

Motor Mills Turn Vast 1924 Fleet Into Traffic Sea

Closed Cars Help Make Year Second Best in History.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—According to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, automotive production for September reached approximately 274,300 units, which brought the grand total for the first three quarters up to 2,804,639 vehicles. These figures are but 225,083 behind the corresponding period for 1923. Not a bad showing for an alleged slumpy year, and a mighty active period when compared with 1922, when the total output for the entire year was 2,659,064. There are three full production months yet to be added to this year's total, and with plants working as they now are production for the year is sure to tap the 3,500,000 mark.

In spite of the excellent weather experienced during the last few weeks the demand for closed models is increasing. From month to month sales of closed cars have shown a steady increase with no backward step. Manufacturers have "felt the pulse" of the public and concluded, almost unanimously, that a majority of prospective buyers will finally decide on a closed car. Schedules, therefore, are being made accordingly.

That the closed car is destined to become the popular passenger vehicle is evident by the greatly increased number of sales, and the fact that prices of open and closed models are getting together. Last week Hudson announced a decrease in the price of closed models which brings them more than $100 under what the open type cost.

Orders for American cars since July 1 for shipment into Great Britain have called for over 60 per cent closed cars. Like the American public the British have quite evidently adopted the closed carriage, having discovered that it performs equally as well on tour as an open one—and is more comfortable under all weather conditions.

An increase of 373 employés in the labor barometer of the Detroit Employers' association for the week ending Tuesday brings the combined working forces of the seventy-nine plants that are directly or indirectly engaged in the manufacture of automobiles in Detroit up to 195,690.

TIP FOR LOOP PEDESTRIANS

A recent trend in automobile brake design, which is the outcome probably of a serious study of braking methods a year ago, is the increased use of the transmission type brake.

The extent to which various engineering groups now agree on the practicability of a brake on the main drive line and operating through the differential and axles is indicated by the fact that the total number of cars and taxicabs using the transmission type brake for either service or emergency braking purposes has now reached thirty-four.

Thirty-two lines of cars are now equipped with balloon tires, and twenty-three other manufacturers of automobiles are offering them as optional equipment. A canvass disclosed that by the first of 1925, balloon tires will be obtainable on nearly every make of automobile.

Star performers at present from a production standpoint are the Ford, Studebaker, Nash, Chrysler, Olds, and Maxwell. Studebaker is running about 430 cars per day, which is 100 above the output of one year ago. Chrysler output in October will be the highest since they were introduced early in 1924, estimated for the month at 3,500. Sixty-two per cent are closed models. For the first time on record Ford will make more cars than all other American manufacturers combined, if the present rate is maintained.

PLAYING SAFE.

Drivers when approaching or entering a curb, highway intersection, or junction, or coming to the top of a hill, if roadway is obscured, should use sound signal effectively and go slowly.

Winter Tourists Begin Coast Trips Via Rail Routes

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — [Special Correspondent.]—The movement of pleasure automobiles by rail across the continent to California and by steamer through the Panama canal is opening with an unprecedented rush, according to reports from the car forwarding department of the Automobile Club of Southern California. The fall season usually brings a decided increase in this class of freight, but this season makes it evident that many easterners planning winter tours in the southwest are abandoning the long transcontinental trip by automobile in favor of steamer or freight car.

During the first six months of this year, 1,098 cars were handled by the car forwarding department in coöperation with forty-two authorized agencies throughout the east. The method employed is to consolidate the auto shipments into carload lots, which effects a large saving to shippers. Already this year some $63,720 was saved individual shippers through this consolidation plan. It is indicated that car shipments in 1924 will double those of 1923, so that the annual saving will reach a large sum.

With the increase in steamship facilities between Boston, New York and the Atlantic coast ports with those of the Pacific coast, the tourist from the east to California has the opportunity of having his automobile right with him at all times.

WHY THEY STAND UP

ONE reason why "it's a delight to drive a Durant" is the remarkable steadiness of these cars on the road.

They hold the road and steer easily because the famous Durant Tubular Backbone keeps the frame and all moving parts always in true alignment. Get out of any other car and drive a Durant and instantly you will appreciate the difference.

The patented Tubular Backbone, used exclusively in Durant built cars, also serves as an exceptionally quiet muffler—another reason for the smooth, still efficiency of the powerfully motored Durant line. Ask any Durant dealer to show you the Tubular Backbone and explain its merits.

MOTORDOM

Chicago Promised Five Roads from State Bond Issue

No Relief for Terminal Traffic Seen in Plan.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

CONCEDING the $100,000,000 highway bond issue as carried, Chicago and Cook county road authorities yesterday abandoned hope of any material help from the state of Illinois in the big road widening and expansion plans demanded by terminal traffic.

A final study of the bond issue map, which passed the legislature and makes the roads designated for paving a part of the bond issue law, brought to light but five bond highways which will actually touch the Chicago city limits out of the 5,100 miles of roads to be built by the second issue. Of these five, engineers have found but two which are not already improved and carrying their maximum amount of traffic into the terminal maelstrom.

Although it is difficult to determine the exact routes by the new bond issue map, county engineers have designated the following Chicago arteries as the roads probably intended: Route 62, the Higgins and Algonquin roads connecting Chicago with Algonquin. Higgins road is paved and in service. Route 57 is a new outlet to the north through Niles and Northfield townships, connecting with Sheridan road. Route 54 enters Chicago on North avenue. It extends west to the county line and is not now a trunk line highway. Route 55 is 22d street, extending west to the county line. It is now a traveled highway, maintained by the Cook county highway department. Route 50 is Cicero avenue, running from 80th street to the county line. A part of this road was paved by Cook county in 1917 and is in use.

There are six other roads in Cook county designated for state improvement. They include route 58, which follows Dempster street from Evanston west to the Ballard road; Ballard road to Des Plaines and Mount Prospect; Higgins road to the Shaumburg road and the Shaumburg road to Elgin. Most of this route is paved and carrying heavy traffic. Route 60 on the map coincides with the Rand road and 64 with the St. Charles road. Route 52 is a southern diagonal following 111th and 127th streets and the Glenwood-Dyer road to the state line. Route 51 follows Kean avenue and goes through Palos park and Orland to the county line. Route 52 coincides with 159th street and affords a connection between Lockport and West Hammond. Route 49 follows South Park and Western avenues to the county line. Both of these roads are paved.

Several new through routes running from north to south are considered highly important additions to the state highway system. Among them, route 59 begins at Antioch and runs almost straight south through Ingleside, Wauconda, Barrington, Mt. Prosside, Wauconda, Barrington, Mount Prospect, West Chicago, and Plainfield to a point near Joliet. Route 60 will start at Richmond and run south through McHenry to Algonquin. Route 47 will start at Hebron and run due north through Woodstock, Huntley, Elburn, Yorkville, Morris, Dwight, Forrest, and Gibson City to the Ocean to Ocean highway, and route 70 will complete the links in the Meridian trail to join Rockford on the north and Cairo on the south with solid concrete.

The new bond issue provides for the completion of the first state highway system of 4,700 miles, and adds approximately 5,100 miles in new paved roads to the state's network. This makes a total of about 9,800 miles of pavement, or approximately 10 per cent of the public road mileage of the state. Frank T. Sheets, superintendent of highways, whose forces this year have broken all existing records in road building and have brought Illinois to first place among the states in concrete mileage, estimates that the combined systems will serve directly all but 158 of the 1,111 incorporated cities and towns in the state and will carry 95 per cent of vehicle traffic.

Under the new bond issue plan, he promises to correct the defects and fill the gaps in the original system and to build all important arteries in the state not already improved. There will remain, outside of the combined bond issue roads, about 90,00 miles of county and township highways to be cared for by local road authorities.

Tip for Garages.

The use of strong woven wire paneling in automobile service stations is becoming increasingly common. This type of paneling possesses many advantages. Among the many advantages is that of clear vision within the station. Also, this paneling lessens the fire hazard, and, therefore, lowers the insurance rate. It safeguards tools; keeps people from intruding upon portions of the station where they are not wanted; is always clean and sanitary; affords better ventilation and light than any other type of wall; is a theft preventive because of its strength, and, in fact, has proved the ideal material for service station inner walls in every conceivable respect.

Illuminated Cops.

Something new in traffic directing equipment—a small, red light attached like a wrist watch to the policeman's hand, has been introduced in New York.

The new device consists of a two inch bull's eye operated by an electric battery in the traffic patrolman's hip pocket. The face on the bull's-eye is a heavy, red magnifying glass, behind which is the bulb. When the arm is raised the light flashes on, and is shut off when the arm is lowered. It is likely to be put into use throughout the city.

Autos by Pound.

An enterprising automobile dealer, who handles a low priced car in Winston-Salem, N. C., now advertises his wares at 33⅓ cents a pound. It is said the unique method of advertising has proven unusually successful.

MORE WORK FOR MOTORS

An ingenious youngster in Washington discovered recently that his football could be inflated with minimum effort through the use of a handy spare tire. Now they say that few "spares" in the capital can retain their proper pressure. This is positively not a suggestion to the youth of Chicago.

[Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Trade in Britain.

Great Britain has 112 automobile manufacturers in the country. Only fifteen of the factories have a production exceeding 1,000 cars a year each. There were approximately 64,000 passenger cars produced last year. Domestic manufacturers supplied 60 per cent of the requirements of the British market, and foreign makers, notably American, furnished the remainder. There were estimated to be 393,280 private passenger cars in commission, or one car to every 110 inhabitants.

Switch the Tires.

Switch the tires you have been using on the right side of the car over on to the left side, and vice versa, every month, and add 1,000 miles to their wear, advises the Miller tire folks.

The slope of the road from the center to curb throws the weight of the car over on to the right tires and they wear faster. Of course the driving right rear wheel wears first. The left rear wheels, having also a driving pull, will wear almost as fast as the right front, and the left front tire lasts longest.

More Sunshine than Shadow in Southland Report

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[Special Correspondence.]—Anticipating a record-breaking southward flow of motor tourists this season, the touring and transportation board of the American Automobile association is supplementing its new Florida route book with an outline of the main touring routes so that the man from Seattle, Chicago or Boston will have a general picture of the high points of a southern trip, according to an announcement made here today at the association's headquarters.

The A. A. A. estimates that 160,000 motorists will tour to Florida and intermediate points during the winter touring season, but believes that there are many more thousands still undecided because they are unfamiliar with the general routes.

Eastern motorists, from New England, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and the mid-Atlantic states, should take the route south from Washington, the touring bureau recommends. This leads down through Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia to Florida. For the most part this is the Atlantic highway, though it combines, in part, with the Bankhead and Dixie highways, and the Old Spanish trail, if it is followed to Miami.

Details now available reveal that road conditions are better than ever before in the southland, detours being relatively few. From Augusta to Jacksonville over the Atlantic or Dixie highway, the routes through this section are mostly sand clay, and as they are somewhat affected by weather conditions tourists are advised to provide for stopovers when conditions are not favorable.

Motorists Florida bound from Seattle and the northwest take the Yellowstone trail or the National Parks highway to Chicago, where they make connections with the Jackson or Dixie highway for Cincinnati or Louisville. The eastern Dixie highway can be followed direct from here to Knoxville and Atlanta, straight down and through Georgia to Jacksonville.

By following the Old Spanish trail, Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona tourists can reach Florida over an interesting course that closely follows the Gulf of Mexico. There are connections for Californians over the Pacific highway. The National Old Trails road furnishes the best route for Kansas City and St. Louis motorists who prefer to go to Washington, D. C., first and then turn south over the well marked and well traveled portions of the Atlantic and Dixie highway.

From observations made at Gettysburg considerable of the southbound travel from the west has been over the Lincoln highway, tourists preferring to take the routes that are traveled most, doing their exploring when they reach Georgia and Florida.

Predictions by weather experts and the coast guard to the effect that the coming winter will be the most severe in years may call for changes in routes for those southbound travelers from the west. It depends largely upon the time of starting. Generally speaking, the touring board points out, the eastern tourist can get out of the snow and freezing belt quicker than the man who must travel east as well as south, and for this reason many of the far western tourists will doubtless combine the Pacific highway and Old Spanish trails routes to avoid cold weather.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

A NEW national sales policy has been introduced into Chicago by Peerless with the reorganization of the sales and service division here into a direct factory branch, according to announcement made yesterday by C. A. Engleback, general manager of the Peerless company, 2323 Michigan avenue. Like factory branches are being established in all of the national sales centers and the factory expects to supervise its big merchandising organization hereafter.

H. H. Franklin, president of the Syracuse company bearing his name, is out with a challenge to make traffic law enforcement "visible and American." He declares in a statement issued yesterday that, most enforcement schemes having failed, it is time for all cities to put motorcycle policemen in uniform and let the law be in evidence everywhere. This, he says, is not only the American way to regulate traffic but is also the maximum protection the public is paying for. All patrolmen, he adds, should keep a vigilant watch over automobiles and every police department facility should be employed in cutting the death rate.

Colin Campbell, vice president of Durant Motors, credits newspaper and national advertising with the astonishing growth in Durant and Star business rolled up during the last three months.

C. W. Nash, laden with north woods trophies, which include splendid specimens of mountain goat, mountain sheep, caribou, grizzly bear, and moose, has returned to Kenosha factory headquarters, following a month's trekking in British Columbia. He found records to show that the new Nash line has been oversold ever since its announcement Aug. 1.

The H. C. S. Cab Manufacturing company, recently formed in Indianapolis, has taken over plant and offices of the H. C. S. Motor company, in order to concentrate on the manufacture of the new taxicab which bears Harry Stutz's mark. The H. C. S. car will be continued.

Motordom's mythical saturation point receded into the dim beyond last week when statisticians of the Hupp Motor Car corporation completed checking over retail sales figures for the last eight months and found that 22.5 per cent of the cars were sold to people who had no used car to trade. About 40 per cent of the sales were made to former Hupp owners, the report added.

List Price For Your Old Car

An Offer to 69 Owners of Automobiles

Do You Own a Ford Chevrolet Overland

Here is an offer that will startle the entire automobile world and motoring public. It is so unusual it may at first thought arouse criticism, but you will see it is a perfectly sound, straightforward business proposition.
Sixty-nine owners of 1923 or 1924 model Fords, Chevrolets or Overlands will receive full factory list price on their cars in trade on New 1925 Model VELIE AUTOMOBILES. This startling proposition is made possible through co-operation with the Velie factory advertising department.

THE PLAN
(a) We divided the city and suburbs into 69 sales districts. One car will be sold, on this plan, to an owner in each of these 69 divisions.
(b) Any 1923 or 1924 Ford, Chevrolet or Overland is eligible, if it is in salable condition. There are "no strings tied" to this offer except as below. You get a "trade in" allowance for the full factory new list price of your car.

Chicago Plans More "Cash and Carry" Municipal Markets

System Saves Consumer Money and Insures the Grower Fair Profit.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

MUNICIPAL farmer consumer market places will be opened in central districts throughout Chicago when plans of the fruit and vegetable growers coöperating with city officials are put into operation. Two links in the chain of the cash and carry system have already been established to market orchard and garden products over the direct route from raiser to user. Others will be established as rapidly as possible by L. A. Boyd, general manager of the grower-consumer direct sales service, officially sanctioned and fostered by Joseph Rushkiewicz, secretary of Chicago's high cost of living committee.

Both the rich and the poor have shared mutually with Michigan farmers at the municipal pier market opened about two months ago as the first of the series of fruit and vegetable stands. Last night the sales at the pier totaled more than $31,000 for the ten weeks, or an average of $3,100 a week. The second market was opened on Wednesday at 92d street and the Baltimore and Ohio tracks in South Chicago. At least three more will be opened on the south side before Thanksgiving, probably near the south shore station on the Illinois Central railroad, Hyde Park district, and 47th street and the lake shore. The plans call for the establishment of more stands on the north side. The municipal pier market will be kept open until the last of this month. Wherever it is possible Mr. Boyd expects to establish permanent markets which will be kept open all year, displaying fruit and vegetables in season winter and summer.

Present Supply Michigan's.

While at the present time practically all of the products sold at these markets are grown in Michigan, it is the intention of the officials of the grower-consumer scheme to develop the system so that fruits and vegetables shipped direct from growers can be sent here from all parts of the country to be sold at municipal markets. Midwestern producers will, no doubt, supply most of the products at first; later citrus fruit growers of Florida and the Pacific coast, for example, will be given an opportunity to sell over the direct route.

The direct-to-consumer sales service plan has been organized to give the city consumer a better pack of fruits and vegetables at a reasonable price and to insure the grower a fair profit. The new plan differs from most direct market systems started in previous years. Products that pass over the tables at these municipal markets must be packed according to definite standards of grades. Michigan products are inspected by state officials before being shipped here for sale. This is done to prevent the dumping of inferior products on to the market because it is unfair to the consumer and has an unfavorable reaction on the grower.

For those who are willing to buy in fair sized packages and do their own delivery, the grower to consumer system will save money, according to Mr. Boyd.

"We are selling apples for example, in jumbo baskets (one-third of a bushel) for $1," said Mr. Boyd. "Our Rhode Island Greenings, cooking apples, are selling at $1.85, $2.55, and $3 a bushel, depending upon the grade. Grapes in twelve quart jumbo baskets sold at 75 cents a basket, or 70 cents a basket in lots of ten or more. We are selling cauliflower at 10 and 15 cents a head; three heads of cabbage, averaging about four pounds each, at 25 cents; potatoes ,90 cents a bushel; onions, less than 2 cents a pound; Kiefer pears of the best grade, $1.50 a bushel, and the small ones at 95 cents a bushel.

"People in the city are willing to pay the reasonable prices we ask, and farmers are satisfied with the money we send them when the shipments are all sold. We do not advance money on any of the products. They are shipped to us direct; we sell them, and return what we get to the farmers after deducting 12 per cent for marketing costs.

"Here is what the farmer gets from apples, for instance, after all of his expenses are deducted: He is offered only $1.75 a bushel for A grade Greenings in Michigan. At the Municipal pier market we sold them for $3 a bushel. The grower had to pay these charges on each bushel: Freight, 30 cents; local handling charges in Michigan, 1½ cents; overhead local charges, 15 cents, and 36 cents to the grower-consumer organization at Chicago. When this total of 82½ cents is deducted the farmer has left $2.17½ a bushel, 42½ cents more than he was offered at home. And this high grade apple cost the consumer less than 7 cents a pound.

B grade Greenings sold for $2.55 a bushel and the charges were 66½ cents, leaving $1.88½ for the farmer. Ungraded Greenings brought $1.85 a bushel, the costs were 62¾ cents, leaving $1.22¼ for the grower.

Old and New.

George Bolling, who owns an orchard of 120 acres near Traverse City, Mich., on the old mission peninsula, made a comparison of the old and the new system of marketing fruit this fall. The returns from the Municipal pier market were much more uniform and satisfactory, he says.

"My plums marketed through the direct selling plan at the Municipal pier, brought me almost twice as much as the shipments sold at the same time through the regular marketing channel," said Mr. Bolling, who shipped more than $1,200 worth of fruit to the pier during October and has $1,000 more in the process of marketing through the grower-consumer direct sales service. "At the pier my plums in jumbo packs brought me from 90 cents to $1.10 a basket, while the same grade, sold through the regular channel, brought only 55 cents a basket."

The fruit that is now being sold at the pier and in South Chicago, comes principally from Michigan growers, who are members of three organizations, the Lake Shore Fruit Growers' association, the Sawyer Pearl Grange Fruit exchange, and the Benton Center Fruit association.

Wholesale Methods at Fault.

J. G. Boyle, president of the grower-consumer organization and head of four large coöperative associations in southwestern Michigan, says that during the last few years farmers in his state have been organizing, building up to date packing houses, and placing on the market a good grade of honestly packed fruit, but they have met with discouragement when they consigned their products to other concerns to sell through the regular channels and often got no more for their superior packs of fruit than for the poorer grades.

"After making a close study of the situation," he said, "we have come to the conclusion that the present day methods of wholesaling are to blame for this condition, and in the adjustment of things we believe a much better system can be evolved.

"The cost of constructing and operating fruit packing plants is high, and when the fruit grower does his part and the consumer is paying for good fruit at the present time, we as an organized group of producers insist it is our right to sell our products to the consumer the same as other lines of business.

"Our experience at the Municipal pier has been gratifying. Our growers are watching it with keen interest. Satisfactory returns have been made to producers, and consumers are pleased. But thus far just a start has been made. Larger quarters and room for expansion are much needed, if this method of marketing is to grow as it should, and we trust Chicago will be a leader in this work and help us as growers to secure good substantial quarters where we can establish permanent markets."

Rivalry Keen Over Who's to Be Next Agricultural Head

BIG fights over the affairs of the United States department of agriculture, scheduled for the next session of congress, have stimulated an unusual interest in the President's appointment of a man to succeed the agricultural secretary, Henry C. Wallace, whose death occurred in Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.

Keen rivalry has sprung up between agricultural leaders of New England and the midwest over who is to be the next secretary. Both the eastern and midwestern groups have been busy picking out their best men, who are likely to be recommended to the President.

Names in Favor.

A dozen or more names of prospective candidates for this cabinet office have been frequently mentioned in agricultural groups, including L. J. Taber of Ohio, J. W. Cloverdale of Chicago, Arthur C. Page of Chicago, Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, J. R. Howard and A. Sykes of Iowa, and Harvy J. Sconce of Illinois.

In the east Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert of Massachusetts, Samuel Adams of Virginia, and Howard M. Gore of West Virginia are being boosted for the office.

Friends of Mr. Taber, master of the National Grange, and Mr. Coverdale and Mr. Howard, both former officers of the American Farm Bureau federation, say men like these three, who have been successful in handling farming problems as leaders in nation-wide agricultural organizations, should make good timber for the agricultural member of the President's cabinet.

Iowa Seems Keynote.

The appointment of almost any eastern man would be generally opposed, it is believed, by leaders in the central and western states. Mr. Gilbert, who is commissioner of agriculture in Massachusetts, is said to be a close friend of the President and has a fair chance of being offered the position.

His appointment, midwest leaders declare, would favor the move now on foot to transfer several of the activities of the department of agriculture over to the department of commerce, which would be detrimental to farmers, in the opinion of many. A bill will be introduced during the next session of congress proposing among other things to take the matter of crop reporting out of the hands of the department of agriculture and place it either in the department of commerce or the postoffice department.

None of the seven previous agricultural secretaries has come from eastern states. Three of them have come from Iowa—James Wilson, E. T. Meredith, and Henry C. Wallace. The last two have been agricultural publishers, and three out of the seven—J. S. Morton of Nebraska and Mr. Meredith and Mr. Wallace—were editors. Some are wondering if the eighth secretary is to be an editor and come from the state of Iowa.

Two agricultural editors have been mentioned by leaders representing the central and western states. Mr. Adams is an editor. Mr. Page, the other representative of the agricultural press, editor of the Illinois Farmer, the old Orange Judd publication, has been an outstanding conservative leader of the producers' coöperative movement in the Mississippi valley for many years.

CHRYSLER

Where Chrysler Sales Are Coming From

There has been much discussion, of course, concerning the unprecedented sales of the Chrysler. No car of quality has ever made such a success in the same space of time. Naturally there has been a great deal of speculation as to where these sales came from. That question can be quickly answered. The Chrysler has made a market which is all its own. Its outstanding qualities are universal in their appeal. Everyone delights in the Chrysler combination of dashing appearance and dashing performance. Everyone recognizes at once how unnecessarily high and unwieldy other cars seem when you look up at them from the comfortable seats of a Chrysler. The Chrysler has invaded the highest priced division in every city in the country. Why not? The contrast in conservation of space, weight and height, the delightful ease of handling and parking, the cradling comfort both of riding and driving—these things are too pronounced to be overlooked by one who has driven more cumbersome cars. So the Chrysler invades the division of highest price—and makes equally striking appeal to the division below it and the next and the next. There isn't an unnecessary ounce or inch in the Chrysler—nothing but a thoroughbred utility throughout which has revised public conception of what constitutes sound motor car investment. The Chrysler market is a market made up of people who instantly discard the past when the present offers them something better. And that means, of course—all America.

A Great Car Made Still Greater

When you think of the Chandler today, you naturally think in terms of the Traffic Transmission, inasmuch as its amazing advantages rank it as one of the great advances in automotive design.

Traffic Transmission

(Campbell Patent)

But even before the Traffic Transmission was perfected, the supremacy of Chandler performance and the soundness of Chandler values had been clearly established.

That the Traffic Transmission made it impossible to clash gears—

—that any driver could change instantly and silently from low to high or high to low, under all conditions was only another reason for becoming a Chandler owner—

—a reason, perhaps more spectacular but certainly no sounder, than the masterly performance of the Pikes Peak Motor, the smartness and comfort of fine Fisher bodies, and the rugged construction that has sent so many Chandlers far past the 100,000 mile mark.

Genuine super-size balloon tires are standard equipment on all Chandler models. Four-wheel brakes are optional at a moderate additional charge. Five open and five closed types—ranging in price from $1585 for the touring car to $2195 for the seven-passenger sedan, f. o. b. Cleveland.

Tells How 13 Roumanians and Doctor Were Executed

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Nov. 8.—A peasant deputy from Alba, named Cetatea, today protested to the chamber of deputies against the execution of thirteen villagers who were accused of plotting against the government. He said the gendarmes conducted the peasants to the outskirts of the village, shot them down, and then summoned a doctor to examine the corpses. The physician discovered that two peasants were still living, although badly wounded, whereupon they were dispatched. The doctor was then slain so he could not be a witness.

COOLIDGE'S DAD MAY VISIT CITY WITH PRESIDENT

Even if Col. John Coolidge, the President's father and a Vermont farmer, has to make a cross country trip in his one horse buggy from Plymouth to Chicago, live stock men are determined that he is to be here the day Calvin Coolidge comes to the Union stockyards to help celebrate the silver jubilee of the International Live Stock exposition, which opens Nov. 29.

Just what day the President will attend the International is not yet known, but he has written to B. H. Heide, general manager of the show, saying that he hopes affairs of state will not interfere with his visit to the world's largest and greatest live stock exposition.

Col. Coolidge will be extended a special invitation and President Coolidge will be urged to bring his father with him the day he comes to rub shoulders with farmers from every state in the Union, as well as Canada and other foreign countries.

Farmers will parade before the President with 10,500 of the best animals they can pick from their herds and flocks. The entries of cattle, hogs, horses, and sheep for exhibiton at the show this fall are 10 per cent larger than for any one of the twenty-four previous shows, according to Mr. Heide.

FRANCE FREES YANK WAR HERO IN JAIL 2 YEARS

CHERBOURG, Nov. 8.—[United Press.]—John Ayotte, an American world war veteran from Cheboygan, Mich., sailed for home today, after two years spent in solitary confinement in a French prison for arson.

President Doumergue pardoned Ayotte because of considerable doubt as to his guilt.

The American married a French girl and afterwards quarreled with his father-in-law. The latter's barn was burned and Ayotte was accused of the crime, which is a most serious one in France. Despite his ignorance of the French law he was convicted and sentenced to a long prison term.

Boat Owned by Carpentier Blows Up; 1 Killed, 3 Hurt

DIEPPE, France, Nov. 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—The motor launch Jacqueline, owner by Georges Carpentier, the pugilist, blew up today outside Dieppe. The pilot was killed and three of the crew were seriously injured. They were rescued with difficulty by a fishing boat and removed to a hospital here.

PLAN FOR NEW JAIL INVOLVES OVER 4 MILLION

Cook county probably will be asked to spend about $4,500,000 for a new jail and Criminal courts building when the plan of a commission of civic leaders, appointed for that purpose, is reported to the county board.

A committee of that commission, it was learned yesterday, will present its report to the commission on Tuesday. Col. A. A. Sprague is head of that committee. While he would not talk, it was learned that the plan involves the sale of the present Criminal courts and jail sites, half a square block of land, with a block frontage on Dearborn street, between Austin avenue and Illinois street, and the purchase from the city of the Bridewell building and sixty-two acres for $1,750,000. Additional jail buildings would cost about $250,000 and the Criminal courts building $2,500,000.

With the money to be paid by the county, the report will suggest, the city could build a new House of Correction on city property at Archer avenue and the Joliet road.

If the report is approved by the commission and by the county board, to which it must go, it would be put in shape for a referendum.

KEY HIDDEN IN ARCTIC RETURNED AFTER 15 YEARS

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Nov. 8.—A coincidence stranger than fiction has just come out of the trackless ice floes of the Arctic. Returning from his fifth Arctic exploration expedition, Peter Freuschen, Danish adventurer and scientist, found a stone caché buried in the ice which was evidenty made by some explorer some years ago. There were a number of letters, which were unreadable owing to their exposure, but he discovered a brass key with a metal tag attached bearing the name of a Copenhagen hotel.

When he reached Copenhagen Freuschen inquired at the hotel about the key. He was told the key was one such as was used long before the war. An old hotel register disclosed the name of an American explorer, Swift, who had stopped in Copenhagen just before starting northward and who had never been heard of again.

This week Swift returned to Copenhagen en route on his second expedition and asked to have the same room that he had used fifteen years ago. He was given the same key that he had left in the stone caché in mid-Arctic Greenland.

SMALL PREPARES PROGRAM FOR NEW ASSEMBLY

Governor Favors Scholes for Speaker.

Gov. Small will have a short but, to him, a highly important program to present to the new legislature which convenes Jan. 7. It is his aim to get this program and the appropriation bills out of the way in a hurry and urge an early adjournment.

From sources close to the governor it is learned that he has under contemplation a program which probably will include:

A gasoline tax of 1 cent per gallon on motorists intended to add from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000 annually to road fund coffers.

Would Alter Road Laws.

Amendments to the road laws contemplating connection of 170 incorporated towns and villages with trunk line highways.

Repetition of his 1921 efforts to increase the size and power of the Illinois tax commission in accordance with the scheme of Fred Lundin to give the commission complete control over the entire tax system of the state.

Organization of the legislature with these aims in mind will be the first task of the governor. With the senate completely under his control, assuming coöperation from the Barr-Dailey combine, Gov. Small is getting busy looking to his success in getting a hard and fast grip on the lower house, including the naming of the speaker.

Senator Richard R. Meents [Rep., Iroquois], administration spokesman in the senate, probably will head the important appropriations committee.

To Encounter Difficulty.

At the outset Gov. Small will encounter some difficulties in organizing the house to suit him. Several candidates for speaker are in the field, and none of them has been on noticeably friendly terms with the administration. These include Representatives Weiss [Rep., Lake], La Porte [Rep., Peoria], Flagg [Rep., Madison], McCarthy [Rep., Kane], and Sonnemann [Rep., Macoupin].

Gov. Small is understood to favor Representative Scholes [Rep., Peoria] for speaker. But Scholes is an avowed wet, and Anti-Saloon league leaders who supported Small in the election are serving notice that Scholes will never do.

The governor hopes to reward Scholes with the speakership for leading the administration's battles in the house in the last session. With the organized drys whetting their knives for the Peorian, Representative A. Otis Arnold [Rep., Adams] is understood to be next choice with the governor. Arnold is dry enough to suit the Anti-Saloon league.

Several Contests Loom.

Belated returns from "Egypt" and other districts far downstate have borne out predictions that the Democrats would pick up five senate seats from that territory. There have been some close finishes and the likelihood of several contests looms.

In the Forty-second district George L. Danks [Dem.] defeated Senator E. D. Telford [Rep., Marion] by 163 votes on the face of complete unofficial returns. In the Forty-sixth Senator Charles L. Wood [Rep., Wayne], lost to Representative H. S. Burgess [Dem.] by 1,459 votes.

Senator Smith Beaten.

With only one precinct missing, Senator N. E. Smith [Rep., Edwards] finished behind Representative L. W. Emmons [Dem.]. Senator W. S. Gray [Rep., Adams] is trailing former Senator Charles R. McNay [Dem.] by 323 votes, with forty precincts missing. Senators Forrester [Rep., Christian] and Sneed [Rep., Williamson] defeated their Democratic opponents. Representative Ben L. Smith [Dem., Tazewell] beat Frank Wilkins [Rep.] by 309 votes in the senate race.

9 FOUND GUILTY IN MILWAUKEE FOOD STORE DEAL

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 9.—Nine officials and agents of the Union Food Stores company were found guilty this morning in federal court on charges of conspiracy to use the mails to defraud on all, or nearly all, of the nineteen counts charged in the indictments. Two defendant stock salesmen were found not guilty.

Defendants found guilty on nineteen counts of the indictment are Edward Grieb, city real estate agent; Philip Knippenberg, president of the company; Edwin Berry, general manager, Waukegan, Ill.; E. Leslie Osborne, Racine director; William F. Nolan, director, and Henry G. Tank, sales manager, Milwaukee.

Those found guilty on eighteen counts are Michael J. Manion, A. Ellsworth Jackson, and Paul Elmmerman, stock salesman, Milwaukee.

Defendants found not guilty are William P. Lechler and Roy S. Gilfoy, stock salesmen, Milwaukee.

Motions for new trials in all cases of convictions were made by attorneys. Arguments on the motions will be heard Nov. 28 by Judge F. A. Geiger.

Sentences will be passed Nov. 28 if no new trials are granted.

The case occupied the attention of court and jury for a period of several weeks, starting with twenty-seven defendants. Eleven pleaded guilty, several were not apprehended, and a number of others were not tried at the time. Defendants were charged with conspiracy in connection with sales of stock in the Union Food Stores company, a successor to the Waukegan Tea company. The company went into bankruptcy later. Many thousands of dollars of investors' money was lost in the enterprise.

"JIM" TO FILL UP WOODBOX WHILE MA'S GOVERNING

Mrs. Ferguson Farming Out Hubby Already.

Temple, Tex., Nov. 8.—[United Press.]—"Ma" Ferguson, governor-elect of Texas, is going to be governor in fact as well as name.

Although she was busy today answering congratulatory letters and telegrams, she stopped long enough to let it be known that her husband, former Gov James E. Ferguson, was going to do considerable intensive farming during the next two years, while "ma" is "governing."

Jim's Busy on Farm.

"Jim's out at the farm today," said "ma." "There isn't any telephone out there and I don't know what he's doing, but I expect he's pretty busy piling up that winter supply of wood."

While campaigning for his wife the former governor said that about all he would do around the executive mansion when "ma" was governor, would be to "carry in water and keep the woodbox filled." This was in answer to charges by "ma's" opponents that if she were elected, "Jim" would be the real governor.

Everybody Bid to Inaugural.

The governor-elect hasn't made up her mind about all the inaugural ceremony arrangements, but one thing is sure, there will be open house for all who want to attend, she says.

"I'll have plenty of time to figure out details before Jan. 20."

And, with that, the woman governor-elect of the largest state in the union turned back to her task of answering letters.

EVANSTON RUN BY BOY SCOUTS FOR ONE HOUR

Boy Scouts ran Evanston's city government for an hour yesterday morning.

Jack Lewis, 16 years old, sat in as police magistrate and fined Sidney Livingston, 20, of 1137 Chicago avenue, and B. L. Ritman, 22, of 1507 Elmwood avenue, $15 and costs each for refusing to pay a taxicab bill. That was quite a day's work for the young judge, and he was given $4 by Justice Max Witkower as his share of the costs.

Other posts occupied by the scouts were:

Mayor—Charles Buresh, Troop 1.

Commissioner of Public Works — Henry Mellin, Troop 1.

City Clerk—Jack Buesch, Troop 3.

City Treasurer — Wilcox Dunn, Troop 9.

Fire Marshal — Irving Maltby, Troop 12.

Commissioner of Buildings—Samuel Harris, Troop 12.

Corporation Counsel—Bayard Jones.

Chief of Police—John Singleton.

Health Commissioner—Richard Sibley, Troop 5.

SHE TAKES POISON, THEN SEEKS AID.

Mrs. Mary Thomas, 24 years old, of 6245 South Honore street, drank three ounces of wood alcohol yesterday morning and a few minutes later screamed for help. She refused to tell why she had wished to die or why she had changed her mind.

Beautiful Wooded
PALOS HILLS

NEARLY all Chicago's industries, as well as the greatest part of its population, are located south of Madison Street. It is this section that is now, and will continue to be, the most rapidly growing part of Greater Chicago. A wonderful period of industrial development is just dawning, and such great districts as the Calumet District, the Central Manufacturing District, the Kenwood Manufacturing District, the Clearing District, are adding new industries and will continue to develop more and greater manufacturing enterprises than any other section in the entire middle west. The beautiful territory lying between Beverly Hills and Palos Park is just coming into demand as the future home of hundreds of thousands employed in these great manufacturing enterprises.

Fortunes In These Acres

Out in Palos Hills, which have been called "The Highlands of Cook County," is the most beautiful future home property in or around Chicago. Here the County officials have purchased thousands of acres of land and created two Forest Preserve Parks, a golf course, and will soon construct a beautiful lake within the confines of the forest preserve district. Here millions of dollars will be spent within the next few years on road work and public improvements to make this district even more accessible and pleasing to the toiling millions of the great southwest side. Nature has made this land most beautiful and now the necessities of the people are about to force its development as the South Side's most beautiful home district.

Buy Land Here by the Acre—In Future sell by City Lots

Our immense purchasing power has enabled us to purchase at a low cash price one of the most beautiful sections of land within a hundred miles of Chicago, at Palos Park, which we are about to offer to real estate investors who want to make big money by purchasing acres at remarkably low prices and on very easy terms.

This land of beautiful topography consists of wooded highlands, dotted with ravines, small lakes and dells; it is intersected by streets well known to the people of Chicago as great avenues of travel and commerce, and over these beautiful highways it is easily within reach of every district on the West and the South Side.

Every acre of this valuable property can in a few years be subdivided into lots and should be sold for as much per lot as you now pay for an acre. This means that you can make many dollars in the future on every dollar you invest in this property, which lies in the path of development and will become necessary in a few years as homes for the thousands who earn their living either in the loop or in the great industries of the South Side.

Buy a few acres of this land today as an investment for your savings and it should make you more money in a few years than any other safe investment in the world.

Another gain in hog values featured the week-end session, raising best weighty butchers to $10.25, a new top for the week, while average price, due to a "cleanup" of in between and common grades, accumulated during the week, held steady at $9.55, but showed 80c advance since previous Saturday.

With outsiders absorbing over 40 per cent of the week's hog receipts, leaving about a third less than a previous week for local consumption, shippers met brisk local competition on the closing session. Bulk of business was transacted on a 5@10c higher basis, with the 3,500 carried over unsold consisting largely of "pen holders" and inferior grades. Extreme range of prices was about a third narrower than a week ago, with "spread" between top and average prices amounting to 70c yesterday, against $1.25 previous Saturday. Weighty hogs were unevenly 25c to 75c above a week ago, with light 90c to $1.65 higher for the week. Pigs showed as much as $2.00 gain.

Hog receipts last week at 174,100 were 31,900 smaller than arrivals previous week, but stood third largest since July, being 43,500 below receipts a year ago and 20,100 under the ten year average. Estimated average weight of hogs last week at 232 lbs equaled the lightest week since last March, but, barring a year ago, stood heavier than any corresponding period in over ten years, being 15 lbs above the ten year average. General average price of hogs at $9.30 stands 35c above previous week's cost, $2.25 higher than a year ago, and $1.55 below the ten year average.

Demand for cattle favored the limited number of choice to fancy yearlings, which closed strong to 25c higher compared with a week ago, while other grades ruled steady to unevenly lower. Range of prices continued to spread, reaching the widest point of the season late last week, with beef steers and yearlings bringing from $6.00 for 1,073 lb plain steers to $13.00 for fancy 1,010 @1,130 lb yearlings. Choice 1,244 lb steers at $12.00 and good 1,949 pounders at $9.00.

Offerings of western range cattle last week at 7,100 were smallest of the season and the smallest on record for this time of year. Butcher stock, due partly to this fact, advanced 15@25c. Calves lowered 50c. Stockers and feeders closed 25c lower.

Lamb Trade Firm.

Dwindling sheep receipts, together with stronger eastern support, elevated values of bovine stock to the highest level in about two months on closing sessions last week. The week's general average cost of aged stock at $6.40 was within 10c of the highest since the middle of August, while average price of lambs at $13.75 stood as high as any time since week ending Sept. 13, the latter being 40c above previous week. The week's top lamb price reached $14.35. Top fat ewes at $7.50 were highest in that class since Aug. 15. Light yearlings sold at $11.50, as high as any time since middle of last July. Best feeding lambs equaled the season's top of $14.25.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 28,000 cattle, 60,000 hogs and 27,000 sheep, against 25,072 cattle, 42,592 hogs and 18,860 sheep a week ago and 24,656 cattle, 74,227 hogs and 22,411 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimate dat 75,000 cattle, 240,000 hogs and 85,000 sheep, against 68,279 cattle, 274,990 hogs and 75,749 sheep a year ago.

POST-ELECTION GRAIN MARKETS SHOW ADVANCE

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Big buying of cash wheat and futures by foreigners, with heavy covering by foreign shorts and also free buying by the northwest and cash interests swept prices up sharply to a new high on the crop.

May touched $1.57¾, and closed at $1.57⅛@1.57¼, with a net gain of 2c. December gained 1⅝c and closed at $1.51⅜@1.51⅜, while July was ⅛c higher at $1.37⅝. Corn was up 1⅝@1⅞c, and oats ⅜@½c, while rye gained 2½@3¼c for the day.

Grain markets completely reversed their recent action in the last week, lower prices on the downturn being made on Monday, followed by a sensational advance which lifted wheat 7⅝@13⅜c from the bottom, and the finish was at net gains of 5⅝@11¼c, with December leading.

Strength in wheat was the main influence in coarse grains, with corn 4⅛@5⅜c, and oats 3⅛@3½c higher than the previous week, while rye advanced in a sensational manner and closed at net gains of 15⅝@17⅛c. Provisions were slow in getting started, but at the last lard was up 45@55c; ribs, 65c, and bellies, 60c for the week.

Foreign News Bullish.

Foreign news was distinctly bullish, with the Australian exportable surplus of wheat estimated by Broomhall's agent at 75,000,000 bu, which compared with recent private estimates as high as 120,000,000 bu, and cables reported the wettest season in that country in thirty-four years. Argentine cables told of frost in the south affecting wheat and flaxseed, and estimated the exportable surplus at 112,000,000 to 123,000,000 bu, compared with 175,000,000 bu last year.

Claims of resellers of cash wheat abroad attracted no attention in view of the takings of over 1,000,000 bu in all positions for the day and a further advance of ½c in the local spot basis, while at Duluth cash grain was 1c and at Minneapolis 1@2c higher, as compared with December.

The strength in wheat was the main factor in advancing corn and oats, although there was a good class of buying in the former at times. December corn closed at $1.10¼, May at $1.14¼ and July at $1.15¼, while December oats were 52c and May 56⅝@57c. Shipping demand was slow.

Rye Leads the Advance.

Rye showed independent strength and showed a larger net gain than other grains. The seaboard reported 300,000 bu sold for export. Northern hemisphere crop, exclusive of Russia, is estimated at 704,000,000 bu or 275,000,000 bu less than the 1909-13 average, and there seems to be little chance for replacing the shortage with wheat. World's surplus of the latter is now estimated at 725,000,000 bu or about 25,000,000 bu less than world's theoretical import needs.

Activity in grains has finally spread to provisions and with grains strong and offerings light prices moved up sharply. Lard closed with a net gain of 25@40c, with ribs 60@80c, and bellies 2½@55c higher for the day. A leading packer was a good seller of lard on the bulge. Liverpool lard gained 6d to 2s 3d. CASH GRAIN NEWS

Export demand for cash wheat showed no signs of falling off, despite claims of numerous resellers abroad, and sales for the day in all positions were estimated at 1,000,000 bu or over, with 300,000 bu rye. France was given as the best buyer of wheat. Duluth sold two cargoes of rye to exporters. There was 400,000 bu No. 2 hard sold at the gulf to exporters at 11c over Chicago December for first half December, an advance of ½c. Duluth premiums were ½@1c higher.

Chicago handlers sold 15,000 bu wheat, 75,000 bu corn, 20,000 bu oats, and 16,000 bu barley to the domestic trade.

Demand for cash wheat here showed improvement, with the basis on hard winter ½c higher at ½@1½c under December, with No. 3 hard 1½@2½c under. No. 2 red brought 6@7c and No. 3 red 5@6c over the future. Receipts, 60 cars. Outside markets reported a good milling demand, with prices 1@5c higher, with Omaha leading. Minneapolis basis was 1@2c higher, largely in sympathy with Duluth. No. 1 northern c. i. f. Buffalo sold at 4½c over December, or 1½c above the basis early Friday.

Offerings of cash corn were not large and the basis was easier at December price for old No. 2 mixed, with yellow 1@1¼c over and white December price. New No. 2 white sold at $1.08; No. 3 yellow at $1.07; No. 4 white at $1.03; No. 5 mixed, $1.02; No. 6 white, 99c, and sample grade at 92@98c. Omaha had a car of new No. 2 mixed. Local receipts were 112 cars. Outside markets were unchanged to 3c higher.

Cash oats advanced ¼@½c as compared with the December, No. 2 white selling at December price to ¼c under, with No. 3 white 2½@3c under. Receipts, 47 cars.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

The Chicago Board of Trade and banks will be closed on Tuesday, Armistice day. New York stock and cotton and produce exchanges will be open. Winnipeg will be open as usual on Tuesday, but will be closed on Monday.

A government crop report on corn will be given on Monday at 1:15 p. m., Chicago time. A feature will be the preliminary estimate based on husking returns, the quality and the reserves of old corn on farms Nov. 1. Estimates on the corn crop are 2,451,000,000 to 2,474,000,000 bu, with yields per acre of 23.4 to 24 bu. They will compare with 2,459,000,000 bu in October, 3,046,000,000 bu as the final last year, and 2,899,000,000 bu as the five year average. Quality will be low. Last year it was 79.4 and the ten year average is 83.4. Farm reserves are estimated at 120,000,000 to 140,000,000 bu, against 83,000,000 bu last year, and a five year average of 157,000,000 bu.

Traders are looking for grain markets to work irregularly higher. Sharpe bulges are expected to run into selling orders as profits are too tempting at times, while good breaks are regarded as natural and give exporters and shorts an opportunity to buy.

An important factor in the export business is the advance in foreign exchange to around the highest of the year. That the foreigners want wheat is indicated by the continued heavy world's shipments, their purchases for nearby and future requirements and the heavy supplies on ocean passage headed to Europe from all exporting countries, especially from America.

Broomhall's Melbourne, Australia, agent confirms reports of heavy general rains, but does not think wheat has been damaged, although suggesting that oats may have been hurt somewhat. He estimates Australia's exportable surplus of wheat at 75,000,000 bu, or somewhat lower than of late. The crop is estimated at 128,000,000 bu and requirements at 53,000,000 bu.

RAILROAD NOTES

The Wheeling and Lake Erie applied to the interstate commerce commission for authority to issue $1,000,000 of prior lien 5 per cent certificates and $424,000 of deferred lien certificates, the proceeds to be used to acquire 1,000 box cars. The prior lien certificates are to be sold at not less than 98.5 per cent of par and the deferred lien certificates are to be sold at not less than par.

Contrary to a report issued on Tuesday of this week, the interstate commerce commission has given permission to the Rock Island, the Missouri Pacific and St. Louis Southwestern roads to guarantee the bridge bonds soon to be offered by Arkansas and Memphis Railway Bridge and Terminal company.

Locomotive shipments in October were 96, against 104 in September and 610 in October, 1923. Unfilled orders Oct. 31 were 462 locomotives, against 386 a month ago and 977 a year ago.

WANTED: Dealers in Outlying Communities of Chicago; Also Cities in Illinois, Iowa, and Indiana.

Recently the Stutz Company formally announced the establishment of a factory branch in Chicago in accordance with its new policy of abandoning privately owned agencies in the metropolitan cities, so that the factory might be in closer touch with Stutz dealers and owners. From the start that policy met with widespread public approval and leaves open a few dealerships for those who have the ability and integrity to qualify.

This proposition will interest experienced dealers with a clientele, and also those desiring to engage in the automobile business.

The value of such a Stutz dealership is readily estimated when one considers the fact that Stutz is now showing tremendous activity in its sales; has an enviable reputation in its field, together with a sound, aggressive, substantial, profit-making organization, backed by unlimited resources.

For appointment write, wire, or telephone immediately to F. D. Cerf, Chicago branch manager.

Prerequisites to Careful Investment.

We have been asked to state some of the things that the investor should consider in order to invest his funds with the least possible risk.

Before making an investment it is of great importance to consider well the following: [1] The place where you intend to purchase securities; [2] the purpose for which the investment is intended; [3] the nature of the security which is best suited to fulfill that purpose, and [4] the standing, character and strength of the particular corporation, government, etc., which is issuing that security

In the first place, deal only with a reputable investment house. Houses which have established a reputation for integrity will deal honestly. They can not do otherwise and maintain that reputation. Not only that, but, in order to be successful, they must use care in investigating the merits of every security they handle—and they have facilities for doing this with experienced men. The duty of such a house to the investor does not cease with the sale of a security—its continued success depends on making him a satisfied client. And last, but not least, such an institution is permanent. It is always there when you want it and does not disappear over night as do the fly-by-night concerns.

Having decided on a reliable house, the next thing for the investor to decide is the purpose for which he wishes the investment. Does he want an investment that will bring a steady return over a long period of time, or does he want to invest his funds for a certain limited time and to have his principal free for other purposes at a definite date? For the former purpose a long term bond will be good; for the latter, a short term issue of the desired maturity may be purchased. Those who buy bonds low with the intention of selling at a profit on a rise of the market are buying for speculation, not investment. The sounder the security the less likely it is to fluctuate widely on the market. Stocks as a rule offer more promising speculations than bonds. We are now discussing investments.

The nature of the security desired should next be considered. The investor should select a security which is the obligation of a concern engaged in an essential industry—one whose product or commodity is constantly necessary to the community or the public. He should ask himself whether the commodity is in constant demand and likely to continue so indefinitely.

The kind of a security having been decided upon, the particular corporation engaged in that industry or business must be considered. Is such and such a company successful in its particular branch of industry? Are its strength, reputation and facilities such that it is practically assured of its permanent share of business? These questions should be answered affirmatively or the company under consideration is not the one you want.

When all these things have been decided, there remains to be considered the strength of the security itself. Assuming the security to be a corporation bond—public utility, railroad, or industrial—one should first examine how the obligation is secured. The value of the property in back of it—in the case of a mortgage bond—this should be substantially in excess of the bond issue. The adaptability of this property to other uses is also a factor in considering its real value in the event that a foreclosure sale should become necessary to reimburse the bondholders. In the case of unsecured, as well as secured, obligations the tangible assets and net current assets are important. The reduction of the debt through a sinking fund also is important as strengthening the safety of the issue by increasing the margin of security over the debt as the issue approaches maturity. The priority of the obligation also should be considered—whether or not there are any prior obligations and, if so, how much their claim amounts to before care can be taken of the issue in question.

Whatever the form of the obligation may be, whether secured or unsecured, of great importance is the corporation's earning ability. The history of earnings over a period of years should be considered to ascertain whether the company has always earned its fixed charges, whether its earnings have steadily increased and if they have averaged sufficient to cover the present funded debt by a reasonable margin. The latest year's earnings should be considered especially in connection with those of preceding years and in their relation to the present funded debt, as indicative of the margin of safety reasonably to be expected for interest, sinking fund and maturity payments on the company's obligations. Earnings pay interest and, in the last analysis, retire all indebtedness.

Careful consideration of the above factors and strict adherence to the principles of procedure indicated—before you invest—will largely eliminate the element of risk from your investments.

Re-roof for the last time with Asbestos right over the old roof

THERE'S only one way to get a permanent roof—re-roof with a permanent shingle. Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles are made from asbestos rock fibre. When you apply them you have re-roofed for the last time.

Just lay Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles right over the old shingles. No need to tear off the old roof. No dirt! No clutter! And you have a new and beautiful asbestos roof that will shelter your home for years to come.

Save money by this method

You save the cost of tearing off the old shingles and having them carted away.

But this saving, desirable as it is, seems only incidental when you consider the far greater savings you make by having, at last, a permanent asbestos shingled roof on your house. You need never worry about roofing repair bills. If you re-roof with Johns-Manville Rigid Asbestos Shingles you will never have to lay out money again for re-roofing.

Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles have all the traditional fire-safety of asbestos. This means that your home is always protected from the danger of flying embers from a nearby fire. They are made in several artistic shapes, and you have your choice of several soft, rich colorings.

For every building

Protection of asbestos roofing can be secured for every type of structure. Besides several types of Asbestos Shingles, Johns-Manville makes Asbestos Ready Roll Roofings for all kinds of buildings with sloping roofs, and Asbestos Built-Up Roofing for flat roofs.

See one of the dealers listed in this advertisement. He can tell you about the type of Asbestos Roofing best suited to your needs. Or mail the coupon below.

ITALIAN PEOPLE SETTLING NOW IN SOUTH AMERICA

BY SCRUTATOR.

Americans are aware from occasional foreign dispatches that Italy is displeased with our immigration law.

We also are reminded of that and other similar things by our own little faction, who have been trying to give the United States away for the last seven years.

Quite recently the details of the plan by which it was proposed to turn over this country and its resources to the rest of the world, for the sake of promoting an international formula based on dreams, have been made public. We understand better now the elaborate industrial bureaucracy built up during the war, as we now are told that the controls then established were designed not only to heighten productive efficiency for war (and it is doubtful if the aim was achieved), but to facilitate the universal economic and financial pool contemplated after the conflict.

The generosity with which our internationalists propose to deal with property that does not belong to them is only equaled by the similar mentality of the Socialist, who always is ready with plans for the disposition of resources and wealth that he neither helped to acquire nor to create.

Some recent figures, however, made public as to Italian emigration show that Italy has no real grievance against us, even from her own standpoint. Our restrictions have not resulted in any intensification of her population problem, although, of course, it would be none of our affair if they had.

Italian emigration is increasing, not diminishing. Last year it rose to 400,000, an increase of 104,000 over 1922 and 93,000 over 1921.

The most interesting feature of the increase is that emigrants to new countries are much more numerous. This is better for the emigrants, for Italy, and the world. In new lands the newcomers will have a better chance to improve their estate. They will accumulate more wealth and establish more influence, in which Italy will have a greater stake, and they will open up for all the world new commercial opportunities.

Last year Italian overseas immigration increased 56,000 over the previous year. Over 94,000 went to Argentina, 15,000 to Brazil, 6,400 to Canada, 2,800 to Uruguay, 1,150 to Australia, and 1,100 to Central America. The increase of emigration to the Argentine Republic alone was 35,000.

Turning to Europe, we find that 182,000 Italians moved into France in 1922.

This inspires some reflections. It is evident that there will be very little of France left in France in a few generations, except the language and the shell of the civilization. How that will preserve its original characteristics, when deprived of its racial core, remains to be seen.

FARMERS PAID HIGH FOR BUNK, EXPERT ASSERTS

Election results constitute a "repudiation of the farm agitator and another complete vindication of the present marketing system," Samuel P. Arnot, executive vice president of the Chicago Board of Trade, declared yesterday.

"Right up to the day of election the radicals seeking the agrarian vote betrayed the farmer," Mr. Arnot asserted. "By speeches and all other manner of propaganda, the farmer was told over and over that high grain prices were simply a political conspiracy.

"Despite frequent denial of these absurd statements that wheat prices would collapse immediately after election, thousands of farmers became alarmed and rushed their wheat to market as election day approached.

"Instead of the promised price collapse, since election May wheat has advanced 10 cents and other grain prices have recorded similar increases.

"Dissemination of misleading market information is held in section 9 of the grain futures act to be a misdemeanor punishable by a year's imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both.

Michigan Bell Telephone Will Spend $85,000,000

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8.—The Michigan Bell Telephone company, victor in the long pending telephone rate case, plans to expend $85,000,000 for additions to its Michigan plant between now and the end of 1929, officials of the company said today.

The company's contemplated expansion program will bring the value of its property up to more than $150,000,000, Franz C. Kuhn, president of the Michigan Bell, declared. Detroit will benefit by the expenditure of $7,568,000 during 1925 alone for plant expansion.

An Investor Must Judge Every Bond Upon Its Own Merits

The careful investor subjects every bond he buys to certain tests, whether it be the obligation of a government, municipality, industrial corporation, apartment or office building, railroad, electric light company, or individual.

It is not enough to depend upon glittering names, imaginative illustrations, or high sounding generalities.

Whether the property pledged be a railroad, a building, or an electric generating plant—the words "first mortgage" mean only that the investor has a first claim.

He must next assure himself that the value of the property pledged is great enough in proportion to the bond issue to secure each $1,000, $500 and $100 bond. He must assure himself that there will be sufficient revenue to pay interest and to meet the requirements for paying the principal.

Naturally only professional investors have the time and information necessary to arrive at a proper decision as to the best bonds for their purposes.

By far the greater number display wisdom in consulting with investment bankers, as they consult with physicians in matters of health and with attorneys in matters of law.

And just as it is seldom the wise policy to leave decisions of greatest importance to physicians or lawyers without wide experience, so the careful investor will not depend for counsel as to the safety of his investments upon investment houses too limited in experience to be qualified to advise him.

For 64 years The Straus Brothers Company has dealt in investments secured by conservative first mortgages on income-producing real estate. It is only natural that there has been accumulated in that time a wealth of information and experience which can be of the greatest value to investors large and small. During that time we have had experience not alone in real estate securities but in all types of investment. We have associated with us 74 banks who participate in the offering of bond issues we underwrite, and who add their judgment to ours in making certain that the bonds they offer are sound investments.

A business growing for 64 years has not been built by decisions based upon temporary expediency. Every investor who consults us can be sure that we are interested in his future as the surest means of making certain our own continual growth.

Do any of these problems worry you?

1 Do you earn a good salary, but find you are unable to lay up anything for the future?
2 Are you wealthy, but feel that you are not getting all you should out of life?
3 Does the problem of building an independent income concern you?
4 Do you worry about your children's future?
5 Can a person save too much?
6 How can you provide your family with the good things of life?

STOCK MARKET BOILS AS PRICES KEEP ADVANCING

The New York Times.

New York, Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Sales on the stock exchange today, although a short Saturday session, were more than the highest figure of any five hour day this autumn, up to election day. This extremely heavy business was the result, first of buying orders which carried many stocks up two or three points, then of equally large sales to take profits, which caused an irregular reaction.

In the end the railway shares on the average had lost about half of their earlier advance, the industrials about one-third. The general market closed, however, with a long series of important net advances, with the gains over preelection prices ranging in active stocks from 3 to 8 points.

Public Gets Into Market.

The market was highly speculative, but it was very largely the speculation of that "outside" public for which Wall street had been longing. The magnitude of the buying and selling orders makes it difficult to judge with confidence as to the quarters from which most of the buying came, or, indeed, to judge of the market's future.

It is possible to conceive of a situation in which a strong restraining hand will have to be laid on speculative excesses. It would probably come, if needed, through the money market. But the situation is in many respects unusual, and we can only wait to see the course of events financial.

Sterling Exchange Rises.

Sterling exchange also had its part in the day's commotion. Sterling was 2 cents higher to $4.60½, an advance of nearly 19 cents from the lowest September price and of 40 cents from the year's low figure.

One striking incident in the matter of the foreign currencies was contained in the reichstag's report of today as of Oct. 31. It showed that 63,700,000 marks in foreign gold, or $15,100,000, had been bought abroad by the institution in the last week of October. Since last April it has purchased 252,000,000 marks for this foreign gold reserve, or $60,000,000.

The Young Writer

by H. L. MENCKEN

THE TRIBUNE takes pleasure in presenting this morning the first of a series of weekly articles on literary topics by H. L. Mencken.

Mr. Mencken is probably the best known critic of literature in the world at this time. He began as a cigar maker—tobacco was the family business—but, discovering in himself a yearning for newspaper work, turned at nineteen to journalism and became a reporter in Baltimore. At twenty-two he printed a book of poems and at twenty-five he was the youngest managing editor of a big city daily in the United States. The writing of many books, short stories, and newspaper articles has occupied him since, together with two important ventures in magazine making. In 1914, with George Jean Nathan, he assumed the editorship of the Smart Set. More recently, again with Mr. Nathan, he has launched the American Mercury, patterned, in title at least, after the famous London Mercury and the Mercure de France.

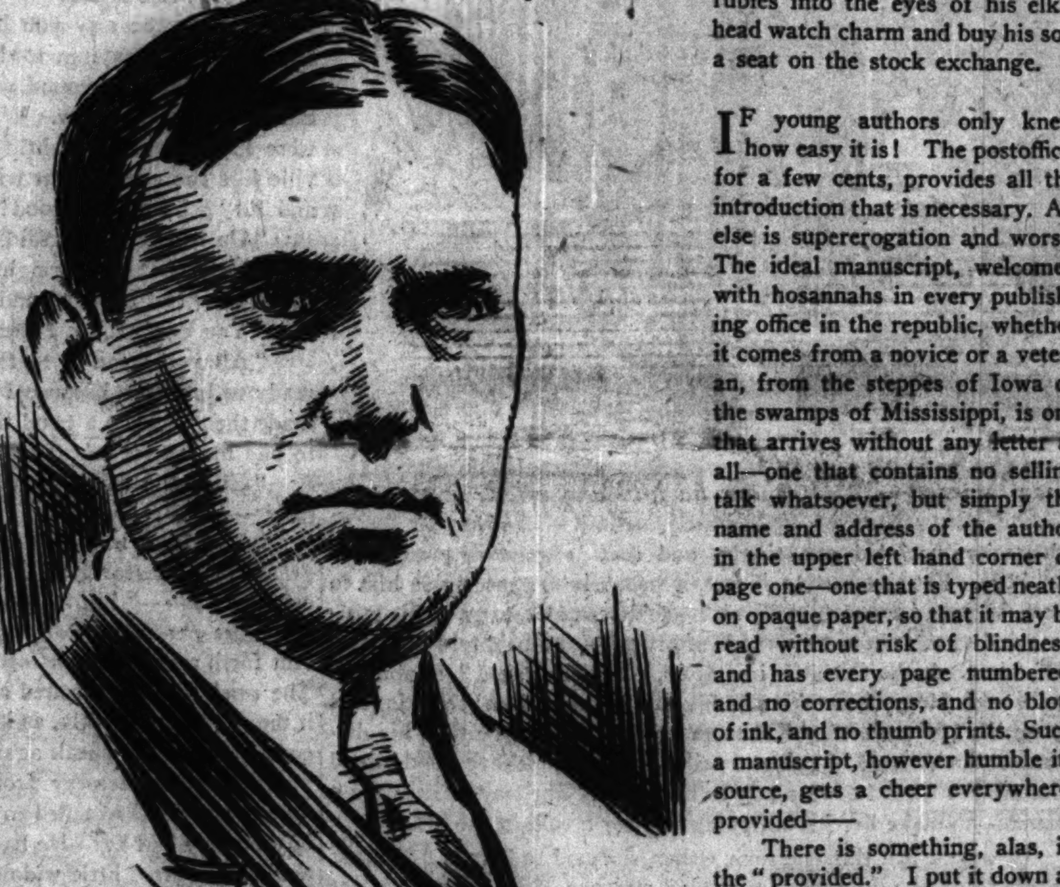
He is the author of "The Philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche," one of the best English interpretations of the philosopher; "A Book of Burlesques," a series of satires; "A Book of Prefaces," "The American Language," "Prejudices," and a variety of other things.

In including Mr. Mencken as one of the contributors to its Magazine Section, The Tribune feels that it is adding thereto a distinguished feature.

IN Mark Twain's autobiography, lately published, he refers four or five times to a plan that he was in the habit of executing every time some one out of a job came to him for a recommendation. Mark had an enormous acquaintance and much influence, and so he was constantly beset by such applicants. But he always refused to help them directly. Instead he gave them advice.

"Go to the man you want to work for," he would say, "and offer to work for him for nothing. Tell him you want the job and the chance, not the money—that you are ambitious, not needy. If he turns you away, go back. Soon or late he will give you your chance. After that, getting money out of him will be simply a matter of a short wait. If you are good, he will press it on you, for if he doesn't, some one else will."

Mark says this scheme, in his experience, never failed to work. He gives four or five examples. I may add some more. I got my first newspaper job—indeed, the only job I ever asked for—that way, and during the years that followed I took in at least two dozen other men on the same terms. The good ones were getting wages within a few weeks; the incompetents were out of work again in the same short time. Once, as city editor, the warning moans of the business manager forced me to start a promising probationer at wages that were cruelly small. I lost him in two weeks to a rival paper, and afterward had the pleasure of luring him back at three times his first salary. I made room for him this time by discharging a reporter of long experience but no brains.



H. L. MENCKEN.

IT is now many years since I last blew up a speaking tube or made out an assignment book. My lines, in these melancholy later decades, have run away from five-alarm fires and in the direction of beautiful letters. Thus, young men ambitious to shine as journalists no longer tackle me. Instead I am a mark for young men (and women) who aspire to stagger humanity as poets, as novelists, or as critics. That day is rare indeed which does not bring in a manuscript to be read, pondered, and appraised, and that manuscript is almost as rare which is not accompanied by a request that I commend it to a publisher.

This request, at long intervals, I am sorely tempted to yield to, and, being weak, I usually do so. The result is nearly always disastrous. A year later either the publisher damns me for letting him in for a loss, or the author accuses me of barking and catching for a nefarious publisher. There have been exceptions, to be sure, but not enough to ease the general biliousness. Thus I try to avoid the underlying folly as much as possible, and in normal times, when my health and resolution are good, I commonly manage to do so. Instead of a letter to Barabbas, the publisher, I give the applicant a few whiffs of good advice. It is, in substance, exactly like Mark's.

Nor is my motive in offering it any more than Mark's was, the simple and lowly one of avoiding a nuisance There is something sweeter and more altruistic in it. What I always seek to convey is the harsh but profound truth that letters of commendation, when it comes to marketing a manuscript, are worth exactly nothing—nay, a great deal less than nothing. For one publisher who is fetched by them there are at least ten who are irritated and made suspicious. The whole proceeding introduces personal feelings into a transaction that should be arctic and business-like. The publisher, for all I know, may dislike me secretly, and with sound reason. Thus it galls him to have to be polite to me and prejudices him against the author I introduce. On the other hand, he may like me and even venerate me. In that case he is annoyed by the thought that his sentiment may intrude upon his judgment—that he may, and probably is, letting himself in for a loss in order to indulge a friendly impulse.

HERE I do not theorize in the empty manner of campus psychologists, for I am, in a way, a publisher myself, and for ten manuscripts that young authors send to me in the hope that I will urge them upon others, there are at least 500 that carry the hope that I will buy them on my own account. Thus I may be presumed to penetrate accurately to the dark chambers of the publishing soul. What I find in my own recesses, when a manuscript comes in with a letter hitched to it, is simply a vast yearning to see its author down with the stone and the author of the letter in hell. The whole transaction is full of irritation. If the thing is bad, which it almost invariably is, I must write two nonsensical letters about it, full of transparent lies. And if it is good I am deprived of the pleasure of finding out the fact for myself—I am forced to admit in writing that some one else led me to it.

This pleasure is so great that being deprived of it is very unpleasant. In fact, I know of no experience connected with the publishing traffic that is one-half so agreeable. A publisher (or editor), when he finds anything good in the stream of garbage that gurgles over his desk all day, is so happy that he sends for a bootlegger and kisses his wife. Such episodes splash his drab life with scarlet; they make any day a holiday. They thrill him as a surgeon is thrilled when he encounters a patient with gallstones, appendicitis, and a fractured skull. They are rare and they are lovely. If they came every day he would go crazy with joy.

Yet the superstition survives, not only in the cow states, but even in the great centers of culture, that publishers are inhospitable to newcomers in the literary shambles—that it is impossible to get a hearing without influence! What could be more idiotic? There is not a reputable publisher in America, whether of books or of magazines, who does not maintain a complex and costly machine for detecting talent through eight thicknesses of oak planking. He spends more upon it than he spends upon any other appliance in his works. He devotes half of his personal time to tinkering with it and watching it operate; he lies awake all night, groaning and tossing, whenever the suspicion rides him that it is not working smoothly and effectively. For some day, he hopes and hopes, it will seize for him the pearl of great price. Some day it will throw a "David Harum" into his till, and so set pigeon blood rubies into the eyes of his elk's head watch charm and buy his son a seat on the stock exchange.

IF young authors only knew how easy it is! The postoffice, for a few cents, provides all the introduction that is necessary. All else is supererogation and worse. The ideal manuscript, welcomed with hosannahs in every publishing office in the republic, whether it comes from a novice or a veteran, from the steppes of Iowa or the swamps of Mississippi, is one that arrives without any letter at all—one that contains no selling talk whatsoever, but simply the name and address of the author in the upper left hand corner of page one—one that is typed neatly on opaque paper, so that it may be read without risk of blindness, and has every page numbered, and no corrections, and no blots of ink, and no thumb prints. Such a manuscript, however humble its source, gets a cheer everywhere, provided——

There is something, alas, in the "provided." I put it down at once. The most perfect typing is not enough. Freedom from blots and thumb prints is not enough. Even the absence of a passionate letter from the critic of the Evening Patriot is not enough. There must be something more. Not to put too fine a point upon it, there must be what is roughly called, by the trade, merit—that is to say, there must be some sign that the author has something to say and knows how to say it—more, that it has not been said before—at all events, not more than a thousand times before In brief, there must be some hint or indication in the manuscript, however arch and delicate, that the author composed it because ideas were raging and bubbling in him, and not merely because he wanted to write.

NINE beginning authors out of ten—perhaps ninety-nine out of a hundred—come to grief by putting this horse behind its cart. They are led to try their hands at beautiful letters, not because they are urged by ideas, but simply because they are urged by vanity. The public prints make much of authors; they get a great deal more attention than the common run of men, and some of them even grow rich. It is whispered about that Cabell has bought a yacht; that Miss Cather has gone to her palace at Fiesole; that Masters gets $10 a line for his antidotes to "The Star Spangled Banner." Dreiser's diamonds glitter from all the rotogravure sections· Sherwood Anderson is a director of the Pennsylvania railroad; Hergesheimer breeds Kerry Blues.

The result is the avalanche of rubbish that makes editors gray and keeps publishers poor. Dreiser and Anderson are imitated and reimitated until the letter carrier begins dragging in imitations of the fifth degree. The trite, the obvious, the dull, the unimportant, the not true—all these dreadful things are squeezed and squeezed again. There is no life in this stuff, but only the ashes of books. It is flabby, pale, weak, trashy, second rate, second hand. No direct and vivid experience of life is in it, no feeling, no thought. It is as bare of ideas as a college yell, an harangue before a rotary club, an editorial in a newspaper. It is born dead, and it stays dead.

But now and then a beginning author puts the books aside, and forgets Dreiser's diamonds and Hergesheimer's kennels, and goes to life itself for his material. Perhaps he has a sharp eye: he actually sees something. Perhaps, also, he reports accurately what he has seen. That was Sherwood Anderson's way—and the result was "Winesburg, Ohio." That was Miss Suckow's—and there began to issue from her a series of strange and moving stories of the Iowa peasants. That was Ring Lardner's—and for the first time the baseball player, gaped at unseeingly by a thousand sports reporters for a generation, began to live and breathe.

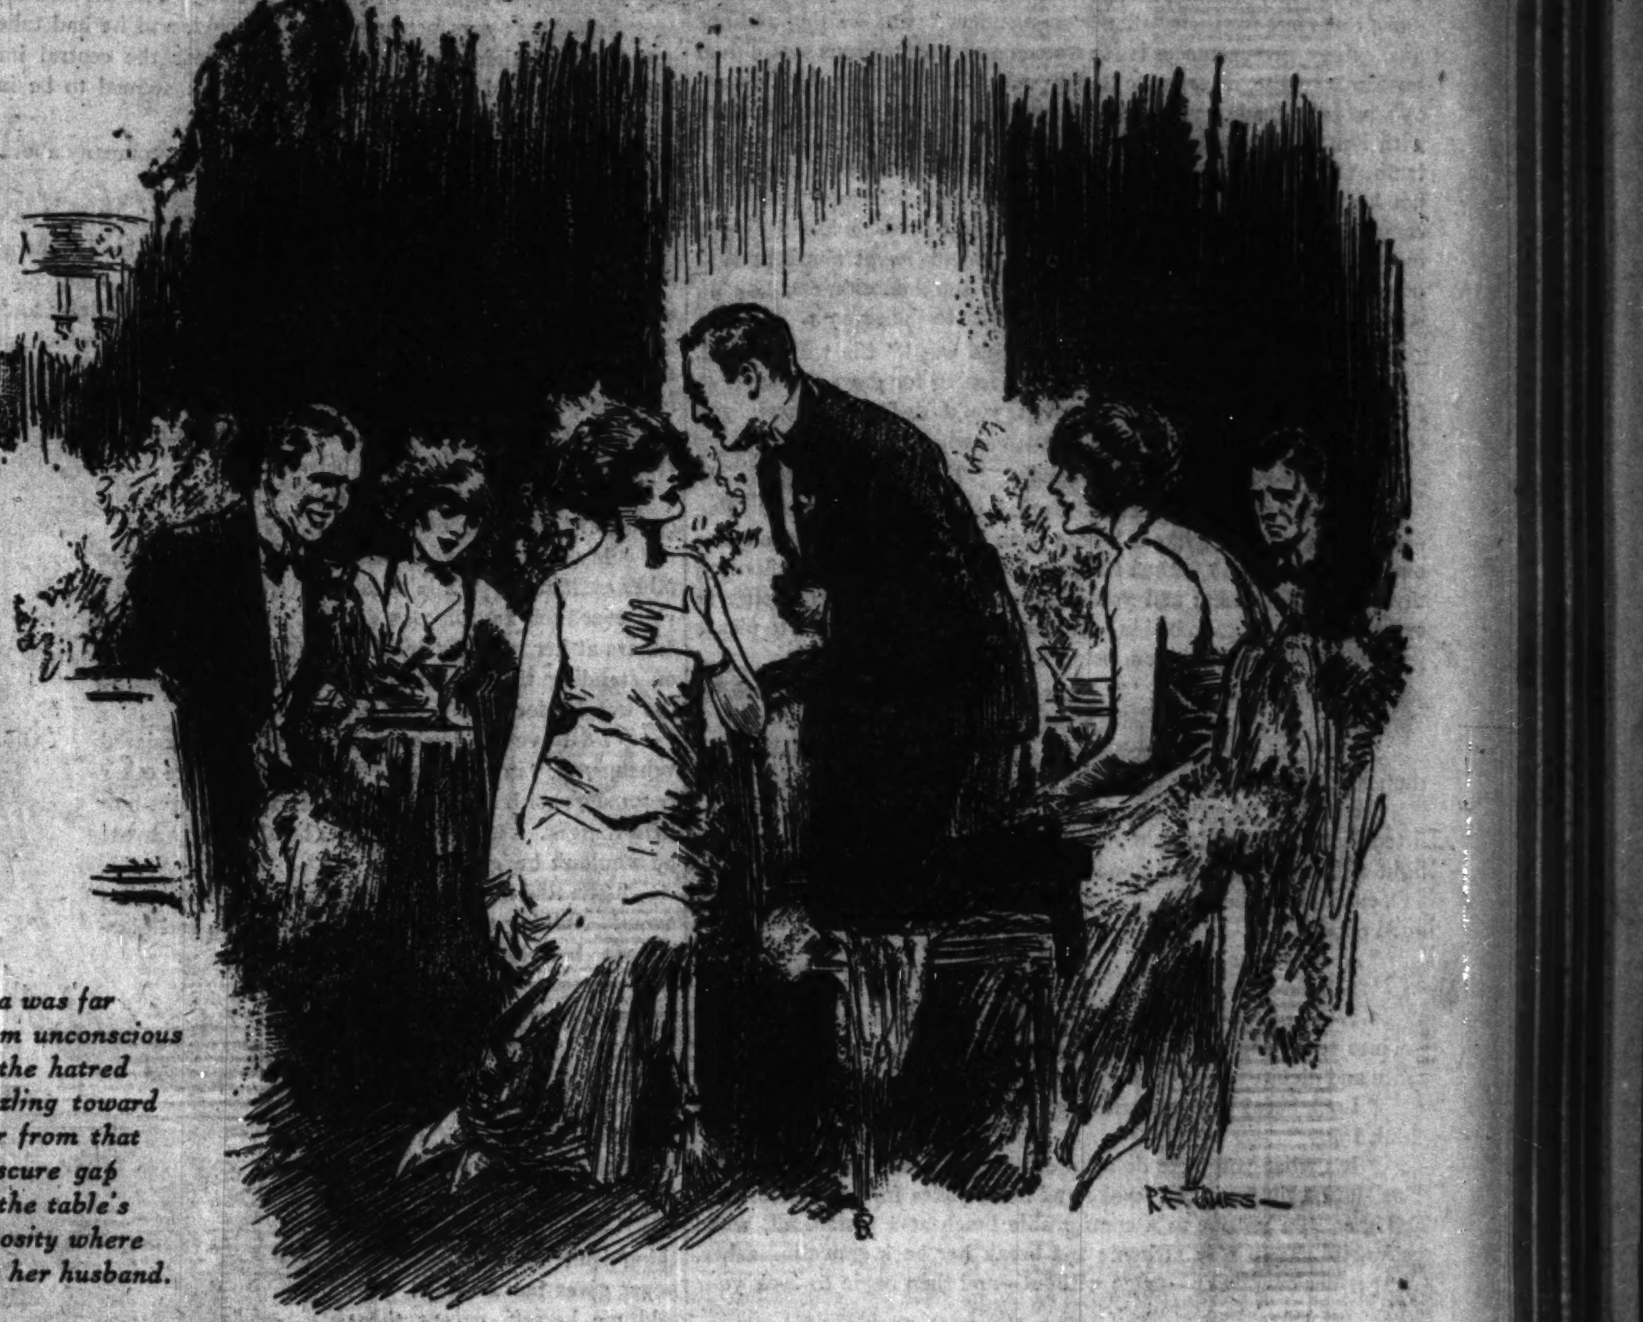
Blue Ribbon Fiction

by BOOTH TARKINGTON



Ella was far from unconscious of the hatred sizzling toward her from that obscure gap in the table's jocosity where sat her husband.

Being the Calamitous Chronicle of a Comforting Tragedy—Which Sounds Funny, but Isn't

THE "Five-forty-five," favorite homeward transport for inhabitants of the northern suburbs, was so crowded on this wet and dark January afternoon that Henry Beelsby could not find a seat, and had to stand in the aisle. The aisle, moreover, was a jam of commuters rather than a thoroughfare, and to permit the necessarily frequent passage of the train's conductor, Beelsby had not only to stand, but to continue holding the bundles that already made his arms ache—he had carried them a hurrying half mile before he reached the station—one of them contained an electric iron another five pounds of "dog biscuit."

Beelsby, tall, dark haired, long featured, and stooping, was not yet middle aged, but of a fragile appearance and constitution. He was habitually sallow from indigestion, and every December he caught a cold that "hung on," badgering him and gnawing at his disposition, until late in the spring. His discomfort was most acute in January; and today he had worked harder than usual, down in the dense winter smoke of the city, where he had the smallest possible partnership interest in the smallest of commission houses. All day long he had coughed, sneezed, and wheezed over his work, unable to comply with the exasperated requests of his partners to "Cut it out, for gosh sakes!" He coughed, sneezed, and wheezed on the train, too, where his bundles prevented him from taking any decorous or hygienic precautions, though the annoyed glances and mutterings of passengers near him plainly expressed their anxieties concerning contagion, and made him well aware of their opinion of him.

His unpopularity among them became vivid; he heard (and perceived that he was intended to hear) repeated suggestions that the conductor should be requested "to do something about it," but as Beelsby couldn't do anything about it, himself, he failed to see how the conductor might be more effective. Besides, he was too tired to care what they said, or what they caught from his—especially those who were seated at ease and unencumbered—and when the train reached his station he coughed his way out with a dogged bitterness. "Wish some of 'em would catch it!" was his thought. "Doggone selfish pigs!".

The station taxicab men of the affluent suburb let him pass without a hail. His two-year-old derby hat and the older overcoat, with the collar turned up to his long, tenuous ears, were familiar to them, and they knew he would not ride, although the rain, just then turning into snow, was flying heavily on the January wind. He paused for a moment before taking the elements upon his chest and from under the eaves of the station shed watched befurred men and women stepping into the lighted interiors of their closed cars, where little radiators made the air tropical. Gaitered chauffeurs solicitiously closed the doors lest the occupants should be put to so dangerous an exertion, and one after the other the limousines powerfully glided away, preceded by long twin cones of white light alive with flocks of snowflakes in irresponsible commotion. The taxicabs and two omnibuses filled themselves with passengers, roared, trembled, heaved and departed; Beelsby was the only pedestrian to face the winter storm.

"Doggone old pigs!" he said.

He said it again at the next corner, where he had the misfortune to drop one of his bundles and, in retrieving it, to let two others slip from his exhausted arms. The snow came so thick and so fast, and was so clinging, that by the time he contrived to be again on his way much of him was indistinguishable from his background.

"Gettin' inside my collar now!" he muttered. "Doggone selfish old pigs!" And there was still before him a windy and wet half mile as long as five times that distance would have been in good weather.

WHEN at last he came stamping upon the small veranda of the white Colonial cottage that was his home, he announced hoarsely to the brass knocker upon the closed door that he was "ready to drop," and added that he couldn't have gone another step if he died for it. Nevertheless, he continued to stamp and shake himself, coughing an accompaniment; and he was still thus engaged when his wife opened the door for him.

She was a glittering, slender figure in the sudden light, though his eyes were too wet to see her better than as a watery dazzle, and he was too tired to draw inferences from the fact that she wore her white taffeta evening dress, her crystal necklace, and the blue glass sapphire earrings he had given her for his Christmas present a month before. Crystal and blue glass were becoming to her blonde colorings; she was a pretty woman, as perfectly dainty in feature and outline as if she had been fabricated at Sevres.

The fault in her prettiness was that it was a little overcast by the plaintive anxiety, already querulous, sometimes to be seen in the expressions of wives of men who are remaining unsuccessful rather hazardously deep into their thirties. Between her eyebrows the infamous vertical line that prematurely mutilates the beauty of the discontented had begun to appear with the ready celerity almost always the harbinger of permanence, and her white forehead was misshapen by it now, as she stared forth upon her husband while he stamped and flapped the snow from him.

"Well, for heaven's sake!" she cried. "Do you realize what time it is? I told you to take the four-fifty, not the five-forty-five!"

"I know you did," he returned, as he came indoors and inimically deposited his burdens upon a chair in the little hallway. "You also told me to get you an electric iron, your mended glass fruit dish, your new plated teapot, a box of brass headed tacks, and five doggone pounds of doggone dog biscuits! How'n the name of conscience do you expect a man to——"

"Henry," she interrupted, "will you be kind enough to stop swearing merely because I happened to ask you to do your share of the household errands? It wouldn't have hurt you to hurry a little."

"'Hurry?'" he repeated, dropping his soggy overcoat upon the bundles. Then with a feeble remnant of strength he slapped his hard wet hat angrily down upon the overcoat. "Don't you s'pose I had to hurry to get all that done and expect to get home before day after tomorrow? 'Hurry!' I guess so! I'm tired to death and sick as a dog, but I'm going to keep on hurrying: I'm going to hurry to bed! I don't want any dinner: you needn't wait for me."

"I needn't?" she cried, her eyes opening wide. "Are you crazy?"

"I guess so," he answered, beginning to ascend the narrow, white railed little stairway that led to the second floor, eight feet above. "Anyhow, I'd just as soon be."

"You know this is the night we're to dine with the Corbitts!"

He stopped ascending and stood still, not turning to look at her. Her information arrested him, but appeared to fall short of interesting him; and after a moment of silence he took another upward step.

"Well, I don't care," he said in a low voice. "I won't go."

"Henry!"

The strenuousness of her appeal made him stop again, but, as before, with his stooping and dogged back to her. "I don't care," he repeated. "I won't go."

SHANTY . . . . . By Booth Tarkington

She came to the foot of the stairway. "Henry Beelsby, you fly straight up there and into your clothes. They're all laid out on your bed for you. Jump!"

"I won't," he said thickly, and still maintained his frozen attitude. "I won't go."

"You will!"

"I won't," he said again. "I won't go. I won't go. I won't for anything."

MRS. BEELSBY burst into tears. For a long hour she had been anxiously waiting, more and more fearful that his delay might make them late for their "dinner engagement"; and waiting an hour under these circumstances is for women a greater nervous strain than husbands realize, or are able to comprehend. Moreover, Mrs. Beelsby's husband made a verbal mistake of a kind lately growing habitual with him: if he had said what indeed appeared to him as the mere truth, "I can't," his wife might not have wept, or, at least, she might not have wept so soon—but the irritated and irritating "I won't" came of its own volition into his mouth; and he had no impulse to be more accurate. Even when she thus suddenly wept aloud he said once more, "I won't," and continued to stand motionless, like an Alpinist overcome by a day dream half way to the summit.

"I might have known you'd act this way!" his wife sobbed. "You knew I'd looked forward to this evening for days and days, so I ought to've understood this is what you'd do! Of course, you couldn't let me have this one little pleasure without spoiling it!"

"I'm not going," he said doggedly. "I'm not."

"Of course, you're not!" she cried. "Why should you? I've been working all day like a Swede farm hand; I shoveled the ashes out of the furnace; I bathed the dog; I scrubbed the kitchen floor on my hands and knees; and you've got a nice, clean, warm house to come back to and go to bed in! Why should you go out, just to please your wife and keep her from being socially disgraced?"

"'Socially disgraced?'" Now what do you think you're talking about?"

"I'm talking about accepting a dinner invitation and not being there! You can't do anything worse than that"

At this he turned his head and looked down to behold her uplifted face contorted in pain and anger, with the white globed ceiling light above her gleaming upon the sliding bright lines of her tears. "O, cut it out!" he said. "You can call 'em up and give 'em a plenty good excuse."

"At this hour?"

"Tell 'em I'm sick."

"What of?" she cried. "You've been well enough all day to go into town and sit tilted back and smoking in your comfortable office and dictate to a bob haired stenographer!"

"Look here!" he said with a sudden fierceness. "Is that all you think I do?"

"It's what you were doing the last time I was in and saw you. You sit and tilt back and smoke and make jokes for an hour or two, and then you go out to a comfortable lunch at a restaurant, while your wife has to stay at home and break her back shoveling ashes, and get her own lunch—or go without—and then begin to cook your dinner for you."

"You didn't need to shovel any ashes: I told you to let 'em alone till the furnace man is well again or I could find a chance to get around to it. Anyhow, I'd rather shovel a few handfuls of ashes than get two hundred crates of vegetables out of a half frozen wet cellar, and that's what I been doing!"

"O, yes!" she cried. "Telling other men to do it!"

"No, madam! Doing it myself, because we're short handed; I had to get down there with only two men to help me, because water got into the cellar—and I had to slosh around in it, too, half the afternoon. Then I had to slosh half over town in slush and rain after your electric iron and your glass fruit dish and your grandmother's plated teapot and your brass headed tacks and your doggone dog bis——"

"O, hush!" she cried.

"And then when I do wobble home at last," he persisted, "and all I want is to get to bed and die there, you tell me I got to change my clothes and get out the doggone old Ford and drive you two miles to eat a bum caviar sandwich and two bites of squab and listen to the Corbitts telling about the new golf club they've joined! I won't do it, Ella."

"No, you won't! That's the kind of a man you are! If your wife wants to do a thing, that's enough for you: you won't! You just keep on that way, Henry Beelsby! Everybody knows!"

"Everybody knows what?"

"Everybody knows how you treat me!" she cried, and her voice was louder as her bitterness became deeper. "You don't suppose I can cover that up, do you? Is there a woman I know who has to undergo the drudgeries I do? Do you suppose they don't see me driving that miserable old Ford around to the cheapest groceries and butcher shops? And when have I had a new dress? Don't you suppose they know I've made this poor old taffeta over four times? Look at the fur coats and limousines other men give their wives! You talk about the Corbitts and their new country club; I guess it'll be many a long day before I ever get to say anything about one we belong to! Just look what other husbands give their wives! And what do you give me?"

"My gosh!" he said heavily. "I haven't got any new dresses and limousines. You talk as if I owned the moon. I haven't got it, I tell you! I haven't got it!"

She sat down upon the steps below him and began to sob heartbrokenly. "No! Not for your wife!" she wailed. "When it comes to anything your wife wants, you haven't got it!" Here her unhappy vehemence was so great that it drew the sympathetic attention of a third party. An Airedale dog, still damp from the bath she had given him that afternoon, and shivering slightly as he walked, came into the hall, looked plaintively at his master and mistress, then gently nuzzled Mrs. Beelsby's bowed head. "Even Shanty's sorry for me!" she wept. "He knows! He knows you won't even make enough exertion to go out to dinner for your wife!"

"No, I won't," he said. "I won't do it. I doggone won't!" And with that, still muttering "I won't," he turned from her and plodded wretchedly up the stairs to change his clothes.

SITTING bent and obscurely plaintive in his rather Sheraton chair at the Corbitts' jovial bright table, Beelsby had no inclination to talk to either of the ladies beside him—or to anybody—though he thought of a few more things he wished he had said to his wife before their arrival upon this hospitable scene. And even if he had been in the mood to talk, some appearance of deferring to the principles of hygiene must have withheld him from directly and frankly addressing anybody, for, as he but too plainly demonstrated he was perilously explosive. If he was not coughing, he was being inevitably recharged and distended in preparation for another sneeze; and when it came, his wife, at the other end of the table, would break into her gayeties with the red faced host long enough to send the disturber an annoyed glance; to which his dark and brooding eyes would smoulderingly reply: "You had your way and this is it."

He sent other lurking glances at her from time to time; as she was aware, though she did not seem to be. She chattered vociferously, accompanying the chatter with an ever pealing laughter, as did the host and hostess and the eight other guests simultaneously, so that their vivacity produced one of those continuous vocal uproars of which an over sized cocktail shaker is usually a more ardent provocative than is wit. Henry Beelsby had not partaken of any of the three capacious amber glasses urged upon each of the company before dinner; his head already felt "enough like a boil," he had ungraciously informed the hospitable Corbitt; and he decided it felt more like one than ever as he sat fiddling with the silver beside his successive plates of untouched food. The cocktail hilarity rang brassily in ears persecuted by his cold, and he had taken an overdose of quinine, so that somewhere near the central interior point of his head a busy little engine room seemed to be in full operation.

"Pigs!" he muttered, referring to the merry company about him. "Doggone selfish pigs!"

Across the table a vociferous man leaned backward to shout behind the intervening guests an uproarious narrative for the benefit of the popular Mrs. Beelsby; whereupon the lady upon his right immediately bent her head to that of the lady at his left; and they quickly began one of those low voiced dialogues in which women sometimes seem to confess that they participate in festivity not wholeheartedly and actually, but in pretense, as actresses play roles upon the stage. Conferences in the wings take place between cues.

"Have you noted Mr. Henry Beelsby Killjoy opposite?" the first of the two ladies inquired.

"My dear! Have I 'noted' anything else!" the other exclaimed. "Ella tries to cover it up, but have you ever seen anything so awful? He just sits and swears at her with his eyes! How long can she keep on standing that man? If my husband treated me the way he does Ella—"

"I'd leave my husband," the first lady declared vehemently, "in a minute! She told me in the other room she positively had to go on her knees to get him here tonight. At the last minute he absolutely swore he wouldn't budge."

"She told me, too. And look at him now he has come! Sulking to show he didn't want to, and glaring at her like a panther, and sneezing at everybody so that the people on both sides of him don't dare turn their heads that way and are half scared to death! I must say I wouldn't blame her if she left him just for the way he's treating her tonight."

"My dear, this kind of thing isn't the half of it! He never gives her a thing! She told me herself, except those imitation sapphire earrings, he hasn't given her one single thing in almost two years! She asked him last summer if he wouldn't let her have a maid this winter, and he wouldn't even do that! And a month ago I told her I'd put them up for the new country club; she was crazy to join it. Not he! He gave her fits for even thinking of it!"

"Yes, she told me. And look at the car he makes her drive—if you want to call it a 'car'! And she has to take all the care of it, except on Sunday; she told me that much, herself. Ella says what hurts her most is he makes her suffer because he's afraid to face his partners like a man. What's more, I believe every word she says about it."

"So do I. You can tell it's so by the way he's behaving tonight. My dear, if my husband ever dared to treat me like that for just one-half hour——"

"So would I! In a minute!"

BUT here the intervening gentleman tilted himself forward again, demanding to be told the meaning of this colloquy; he was being slandered about something, he insisted, and the confidential tete-a-tete had to be abandoned. There was one guest present, however, who had divined its purport and could even have repeated certain phrases of the conversation, though he had overheard none of it.

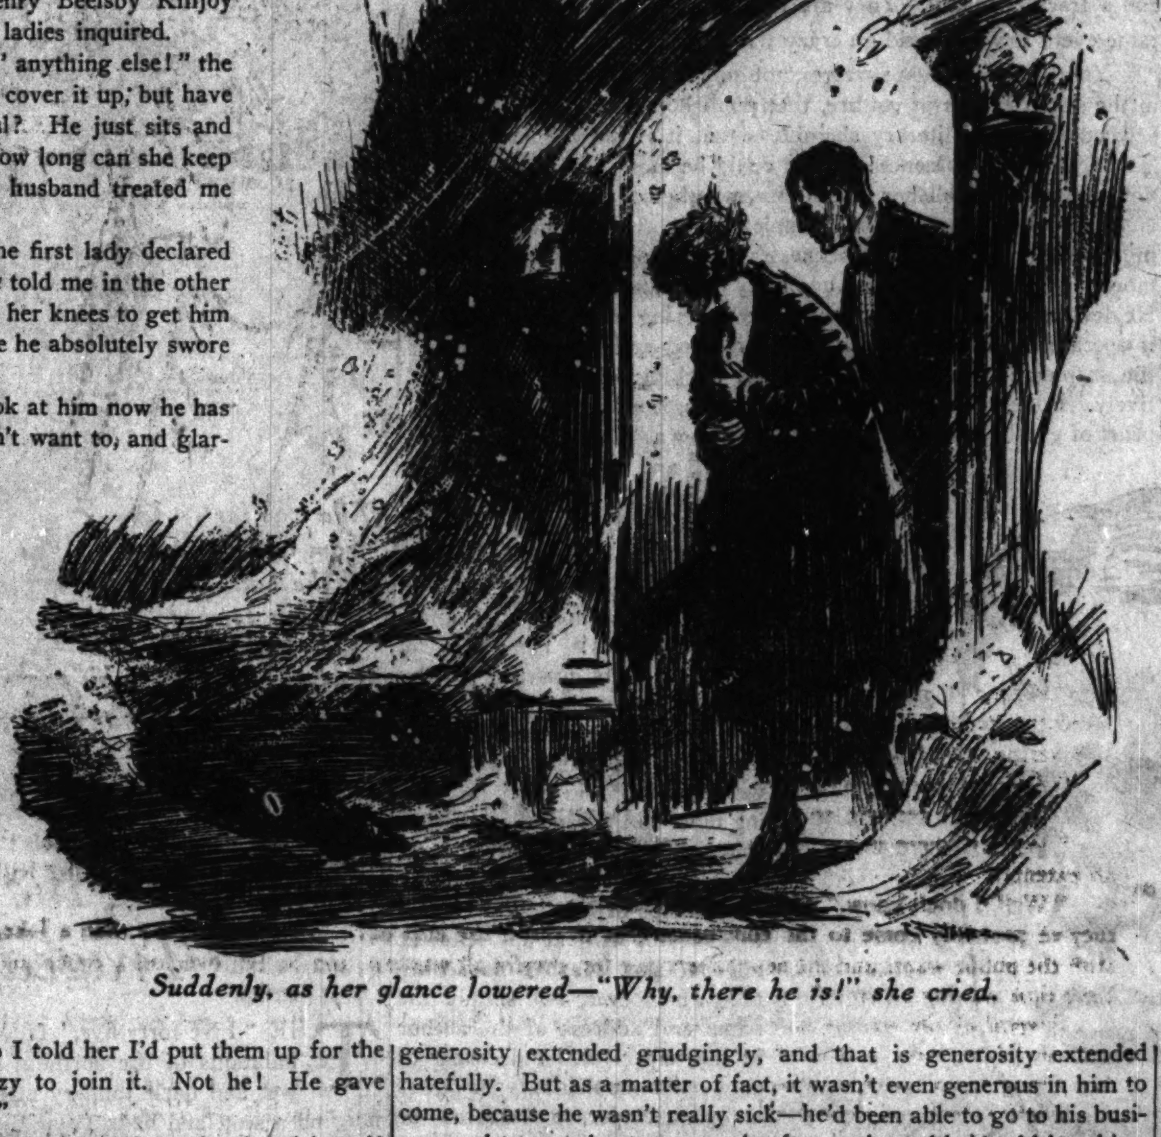
This was the unfortunate Henry Beelsby: he needed to glimpse but once a surreptitious turn of eye toward Ella and then toward himself, and thenceforward he well understood that the gossipers' talk was of his wife's sufferings under his tyranny. He had been given clews enough to the significance of such talks for not infrequently did Ella begin her information to him, when she was emotional: "Mrs. Compton says if her husband ever treated her——" or "Mrs. Selfbridge told me herself if she ever had to endure from any man what I——" and during the cocktail preliminaries in the other room he had seen his wife engage in hasty asides with the two ladies now opposite him. He guessed with an accuracy not difficult what she had told them.

"All right!" he thought, not quite murmuring the words, though his lips moved slightly. "Go on about me, if you think it does you any good!" This was addressed to the two opposite, though he looked not at them but at a porcelain basin of tulips upon the table between them and himself. "Go on! See what I care! I'll show you!"

For him, just then, the universe consisted of but two component parts: one was a single point of suffering consciousness, himself, the mere incarnation of a cold in the head and throat and bronchial tubes; while all else was a conglomeration of various manifestations of selfish happiness. And the most selfish of all the selfish happiness in the world was that of his wife: her laughter rang the loudest and so incessantly that his feeling about it was partly an amazement. "Doggone if I believe women are really human beings at all!" For, as with many other husbands, his wife was "women" to him; and her ways sometimes appeared to be supernaturally alien, opposed to all that could or should be expected to arise out of the nature of mankind.

He longed to punish her, and at the same time dreamed of dazzling her. He built beautiful and bitter air castles, seeing himself push his chair back from the table, rise abruptly, and address her in tones that would awe the merry company and frighten Ella into a staring paralysis: "I have just one thing to say to you before I leave you for good. One year ago I invested a thousand dollars in an Oklahoma oil corporation. Today I sold my holdings for exactly one million eight hundred thousand five hundred and seventy-six dollars. I've never told you what the stock was doing, because I wanted to test your character. I have found it wanting. You have not only dragged me around at night till my health is ruined, but I don't believe there's a woman at this table you haven't complained of me to. You can keep our cottage and the Ford; but as for me, I have had a limousine sent out from town and it's waiting in front for me. I'm going first to an apartment I've taken at the Washington Arms, where your lawyers can find me any time this week. After that I shall be living in Paris, thank you! I have the pleasure to bid you good-evening."

ELLA was far from unconscious of the hatred sizzling toward her from that obscure gap in the table's jocosity where sat her husband. But no infamous line was marked between her eyebrows now: she was radiantly pretty, and, except when she flashed one of her brief glances at him, she might have been thought the happiest woman in the room. Yet she principally consisted, all the while, of the hottest indignation. Since he had consented to come, why couldn't he behave decently? One thing is meaner, she thought, than generosity extended grudgingly, and that is generosity extended hatefully. But as a matter of fact, it wasn't even generous in him to come, because he wasn't really sick—he'd been able to go to his business and to run about on errands afterward—and he'd told her, himself, to accept the Corbitt's invitation, when she asked him about it last week. Henry was tired and his cold bothered him; she admitted so much; but since they had to come, why should he take his discomfort out on her? Trying to make everybody believe she dragged him around when he wasn't fit to be out! A fine way to care for a woman—to make her his whipping boy for a cold in the head!



Suddenly, as her glance lowered—"Why, there he is!" she cried.

It wasn't just this one time, either, she said to herself. Making people think she dragged him around was one of his old tricks, not a new one by any means! She had to be always on the defensive, always fighting against him for the good opinion of their friends and acquaintances. And who could tell how soon that shifty, treacherous thing, opinion, might veer to his side and she appear what he was striving now to make her appear—a giddy creature, too cruelly selfish to care how far or how hard she dragged a sick and unhappy husband? This moping of his, she thought, was the most insidious form of attack a woman could well be called upon to face. And unmanly! "Unmanly" was the word most in the undercurrent of her thoughts as she kept up her noisy and gesturing badinage with her portly host.

She knew that the kind of burlesquing into which Corbitt and she had fallen, with the rest of the table loudly conniving, was the kind most offensive to her husband. Even before the company had come into the dining room she had exchanged mock endearments with the jocund Corbitt, whose heavy upper eyelids were lax awnings over a naughty old twinkle, and he proved heartily inclined to extend their joke to cover the evening. They were upon the point of running away—he had carried the merry fiction so far—and, with the aid of the company, particularly of Mrs. Corbitt, who shrieked that she was "well rid of the old rascal," they were discussing the luggage necessary for an elopement honeymoon in Cuba. Thereupon, with the addition of some Scotch whisky to his previous interior equipment of synthetic gin, Mr. Corbitt's gayeties inclined perilously in the direction of French farce. That is to say, his skates carried him toward the thinner ice, where he was most willing to go and perform.

The general merriment, also reinforced from Glasgow, was by no means sobered by his excursions upon this tricky surface. The more daring were his caperings, the louder the whoopings that encouraged him, and Ella was at once his ready partner in the fancy skating he did and the most vivacious of his applauders. Shouting with laughter, she urged him on to worse and worse, herself adventuring with him and once or twice going even farther than he, for she saw how her husband glowered at her from the side of his eye, and it was this sidelong glowering that stimulated her to attempt extremes. She reached them, it may be said, and they were so relished by the other banqueters that the table became riotous. Mrs. Corbitt was delighted: this happy uproar made her dinner a memorable success, and there were tears still bubbling upon the host's fat eyelids when his most inspiring guest and her husband departed. He went to the door with them.

A Blue Ribbon story of a wife's devotion

By MARYSE RUTLEDGE

"You certainly are a thoroughbred, Ella!" he chuckled hoarsely, as the Beelsbys stepped out into an icy wind. "Don't forget you and I are absolutely dated up for that Havana trip as soon as my wife signs the release for me!"

"But I thought you were too eager to wait for that!" Ella called back over her shoulder, whereupon he gave her a final bellow of laughter, and closed the door upon the rosy light that glowed out from it into the stormy darkness. Then Ella climbed into the frozen little car, to find herself alone with her husband and midnight.

"KEEP on!" he said to her, as the starter buzzed ineffectively. "Cut up some more. Shoot some more jokes about you and Corbitt on a Pullman. Keep on laughing. Don't stop just because I'm here!"

"You were in there, too," she said, shivering. "For heaven's sake, can't you get the car going? There's a cold wave struck the place since we left home; I'm freezing already."

She huddled herself in her cloak, but leaned away from him, not toward him, for greater warmth, and beat with her thin slippers upon the floor of the car. "It's got so bitter cold!" she complained. "The thermometer was dropping before we left home and I'm sure it's below zero now. I really am freezing, Henry. Hadn't you better get out and look under the hood?"

"I guess you can stand it a minute or two," he said, continuing the manipulation of the ineffective starter. "You're no colder than I've been all night, I guess. Why don't you go on being funny about your trip with Corbitt? It seemed to warm you up in there, so why can't you——"

"Why can't you hush up?" she interrupted. "Stop talking and see what's the matter with the darn car!"

"I don't wonder you're afraid to hear me talk," he said.

"'Afraid'!"

"Yes, afraid! Anyway, I should think a decent woman that talked the way you been talking in there tonight would be a little afraid of what her husband would say!"

"O, hush up! That starter sounds as if it's never going to work. For heaven's sake, get out and see if the radiator——"

"You want me to 'get out,' do you?" he said, with a little bark of laughter that made him cough. "I guess so!" And then, though all the while he kept the starter whirring its rythmic harsh accompaniment to the quarrel, he turned upon her fiercely. "I just want to warn you once, madam, and it'll be the only warning you'll get. You just ever try it again! Just once!"

"Try what again?"

"Acting the way you have tonight. You better understand I mean what I'm saying, too! I've stood about all I'm going to of your dragging me around when I ought to be in bed; but I'm not talking about that now. What I won't stand is the raw jokes you were having with Corbitt. You just try one more line of vaudeville like the one tonight with that fat old fool and I will get out, and I'll 'get out' for good!"

"Do it now!" she said, wholly enraged. "Don't wait! Don't wait, because I'll go straight back in that house and begin it again if you do. Get out now and stay out!"

"You don't think I mean it?"

"All you mean is to freeze me to death," she said. "You're ready to bite iron because I had a perfectly innocent good time and made the rest have a good time, and you want to freeze me to death to pay me up for it! That's manly!"

"Ella," he said, "I will get out; I'll get out now, and I'll never——"

"I told you to, didn't I? Get out and stay out!"

"Now I swear I will!" he said desperately. "I swear I'll get out and I'll——" but at this moment the engine caught the impulse from the persistent starter and, beyond all its apparent potencies, sent forth a roar that shamed the mere howling of the blizzard wind. The small vehicle pulsated as with a giant's heart, then, chattering, it moved, and presently, as it progressed, became quieter; but its two occupants did not speak again.

Ella huddled away from her husband, shivered, and ate her thoughts. He threatened to leave her because she had been the life of the party, did he? He had evidently forgotten his own jokes with that brass haired little widow they had met at a lakeside hotel where they went for the two weeks of his vacation last summer; jokes of a flavor identical with hers and Corbitt's. Henry had called her silly for mildly objecting to them, since they meant nothing, but now, when she used the same material to whoop a dinner to success, he swore to leave her for it! The wind, still rising, beat upon the car in such gusts as almost stopped it; the small interior was noisy with a wild whistling; but the wife and husband were silent throughout this bitter drive. To the wife's eyes the figure of her husband was but a formless concentration of darkness, except that his stoop above the wheel was sometimes dimly revealed, as they passed a street lamp; but in her thoughts of him he became a demoniac sculpture, black with all the horrible selfishness of men, for to her he epitomized it all, and was its incarnation. Men married beautiful young girls, girls with youth and charm enough to make any choice, and then when youth and charm were departing, used up, and the chances for a new choice pretty slim, men said: "Do thus and so or I'll get out!" And sometimes they got out! "Well, let him!" she thought desperately. "I could get some one else—I guess I could! Anyhow, whatever I'd be up against, I'd be through trying to make something out of him!"

Beelsby drove into the alley behind the Colonial cottage, climbed rustily out, and opened the door of their tiny garage. Without speaking she shifted her seat and drove into the little shed; then they hurried into the house by way of the kitchen, and with physical relief found themselves once more warmly sheltered. Ella began to call the dog, but he failed to make his appearance.

"Where is he?" she asked.

Beelsby was again upon the fragile little stairway. "What?"

"Where's Shanty?"

"How do I know?"

"Didn't you let him out just before we started to the Corbitts?" she asked.

"No, I didn't. You let him out yourself."

"I didn't do any such thing," she said angrily. "You let him out. Did you let him in again?"

"No, I didn't. I didn't let him in and I didn't let him out. You let him out!"

"I did not!"

"You did!"

"O, hush up!" she cried, and both of them were the fiercer for it. "If you've let that poor dog stay out in this zero blizzard all the five hours we've been gone just because you were too furious with me to let him in again after you—"

"O, you hush up!" he said brutally, in turn; but he came down the steps, went to the front door, and, opening it, began to call against the wind: "Shanty! Hyuh, Shanty, Shanty!"

Then, as there was no response, Ella came shivering into the draft from the open door and added her soprano entreaty: "Hyuh,

What's It Going to Be Next Sunday? The Leading Question of the Day So Far as GEORGE M COHAN is Concerned

THESE letters of mine are a sensation.

That's a pretty bold statement to make, but it's absolutely true.

I've just returned from a two weeks' automobile trip to Chicago and back, and in every town I stopped, going and coming—Albany, Buffalo, Cleveland, Toledo, Chicago, Indianapolis, and Wheeling—the cry of "Three cheers for the rising young journalist!" could be heard for miles and miles around.

Newspaper men, actors, politicians, hotelkeepers, and members of all the local Elks clubs gathered around me, shook hands, patted me on the back, and all pulled the same speech:

"WHAT'S IT GOING TO BE NEXT SUNDAY?"

Yes, sir, every one of them asked the question. Of course, I didn't give them any advance information. Not a chance; no, sir.

As a matter of fact, I've been asking myself the same question ever since I grabbed on to this job—"What's it going to be next Sunday?" I keep asking myself this over and over again, thirty times a day.

Most of the birds I met on the way actually imagined I had weekly letters concealed in every pocket and up both sleeves. At least, that's what their line of conversation led me to believe. But, O, boy! if they could but get a peek at the rising young journalist tearing up and down side streets and alleyways, reaching out, searching, and praying for an idea, hunting for a theme—a line of thought—a mere suggestion—anything at all in the way of a germ!

THAT'S what this job has done to me, on the square. Turned me into a thinking machine, a walking dramatist, a scribbling idiot. Of course, I'm not telling this to the world; this is just between you and me.

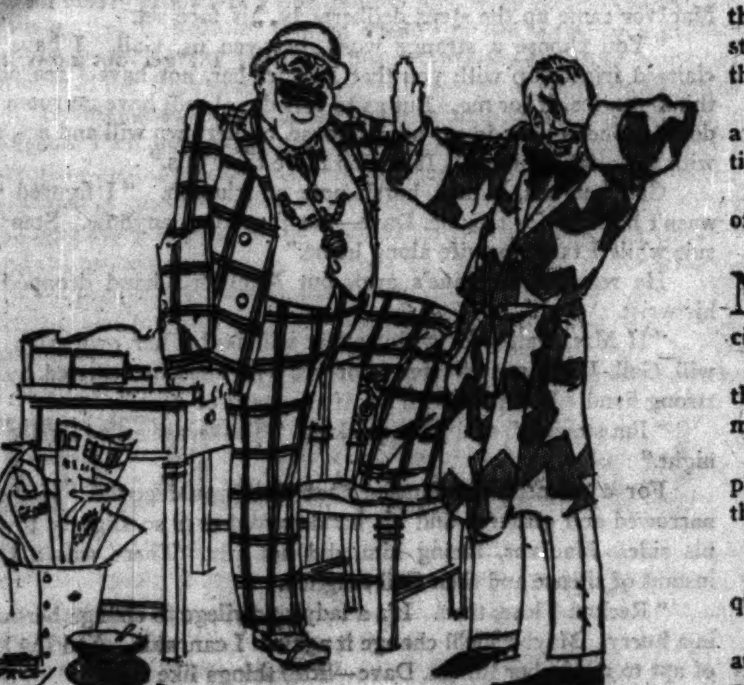
I wouldn't have those out of town fellows think for a minute that writing these letters was any effort at all. You see, if they thought that there was any real work attached to these word Niagaras I tear off every Sunday, they'd look upon me as an ordinary grind instead of a journalistic genius.

Their idea of the thing right now is that I can write them faster than they can read them. That's why they gathered around and shook hands and patted me on the back and hollered three cheers. That's why they asked, "What's it going to be next Sunday?" and that's why I made the bold statement that these letters of mine are a sensation.

Yes, sir! They didn't talk about anything else. My retirement from the stage was never brought up. The Actors' union was never mentioned. Show business was never discussed from any angle. The only question they asked was, "What's it going to be next Sunday?"

Now, understand, I'm not trying to make you believe something that isn't true. I'm not trying to ballyhoo this newspaper job, or manufacture a success, or force the issue in any way at all. I'm merely stating the facts of the thing and quietly tipping you off that it begins to look as though the great reading public of the United States can hardly wait for next Sunday to come and that all interest in Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays has gone forevermore.

Of course, at first I was a bit disappointed—a little bit hurt. I rather expected some one to ask, "When are you going to give us another play?" or "When are you going to start producing again?" But after a while I began to realize that, because of the great fear in their hearts that I might possibly be influenced by such cracks to quit the newspaper game and go back to trouping, they just passed up all reference to the old days and stuck to the weekly letter subject altogether.



There was nothing to do but laugh, so that's what I did and he joined me.

In other words, the boys around the country seem anxious to keep me on the job of waving a pencil instead of a flag.

That's what I call outsuccessing success.

YES, sir! I hate to keep repeating myself, but I must say it once more: These letters of mine are a sensation.

Naturally, a lot of fellows who don't like me anyway are going to say, "Somebody ought to choke this guy for blowing his own horn like that," but I can assure you that the statement doesn't come under the head of braggadocio at all. No, sir. I'm reporting the thing just as I found it throughout the middle west.

Of course, the point I'm trying to make in telling you all this is to prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that it is quite possible for a man to be a big success in this country without ever finding it out.

For instance, now, if I hadn't made that trip to Chicago, hesitating at all the high spots on the way, I never in the world should have discovered how well I stood with the letter reading public; no, sir! I could have gone on forever here in Mr. Knickerbocker's village without ever learning whether my literary efforts were registering or not. For weeks and weeks I waited around here for some one to otter some comment, either good or bad, concerning these letters. But no, not a word, no a syllable. I couldn't quite figure it out. It had me guessing. I was stumped.

I got so darned nervous about the thing that I finally hopped in a car and shouted to the driver: "Take me to a town where people talk and say things. For the love of Mike, drive me to some spot in this country where I can hear the sound of the human voice."

First stop, Albany. School teachers' convention—no rooms in the hotel.

Desk clerk looks up and recognizes me. "O, we'll fix you up, all right," he said, and then proceeded to juggle school teachers around, until he finally landed me in the best suite in the house.

A little later in the evening he came to my room and inquired, "What's it going to be next Sunday?"

"I don't know yet," I answered.

"O, yes, you do. Go on, give us a tell."

"No, on the square, I haven't written it yet," I insisted.

"Well, here, write it now," and as he said this he presented me with a batch of hotel writing material.

"Are you really reading my letters?" I asked, in a modest sort of way.

"Reading them? Say, listen, I'm not only reading them—I'm studying them."

"In what way?"

"I'm trying to figure out," he went on, "how any guy on earth can rave about himself the way you do without being murdered in cold blood," and then he broke into a hearty laugh and then I began laughing myself, and we stood there in the center of the room laughing at each other until he finally staggered out of the door holding on to his sides.

My letters are certainly a sensation in Albany, and the hotel clerk proved it, too.

NEXT stop Buffalo. All the gang about town gathered in my rooms, waiting for me when I arrived.

"What's it going to be next Sunday?" The question was shot at me from all directions.

For a reply to their inquiry I recited to them the experience I'd had the evening before with the clerk in Albany.

"Did he really say that to you?" asked one of the newspaper men when I'd finished telling the story.

"Yes, he said I ought to be murdered."

"Well, that's what we came here to tell you, but that bird in Albany beat us to it," and the whole gang broke into a laugh and kept it up all the way down the hall to the elevator, leaving me alone with the knowledge that my letters were just as much of a sensation in Buffalo as they were in Albany.

Next stop Toledo, the Bridgeport of the middle west, and when I say that, believe me, I'm giving Bridgeport all the worst of it.

"What's it going to be next Sunday?" asked the head waiter in the hotel cafe upon discovering who I was.

"Are you reading my letters?" I inquired.

"You bet I am, and so are all the other waiters," he replied.

"What is there in my letters that interests the waiters to such an extent?"

"Well, I don't know," said the smiling captain, "unless it is that they've probably come to the conclusion that if that's the sort of stuff the public wants and the newspapers pay for, they're all wasting their time waiting on table."

Several of the waiters standing by, on hearing this, broke into a spasm of laughter, and in less time than it takes to tell it the entire dining room fairly shrieked with merriment.

I left Toledo fully convinced that my letters were just as much of a sensation there as they were in Albany and Buffalo.

NEXT stop Chicago, the busiest spot in the world. The great town of real human beings. My idea of what an American city should be.

"What's it going to be next Sunday?" The starter in front of the hotel was the first to ask the question as I stepped out of the motor car.

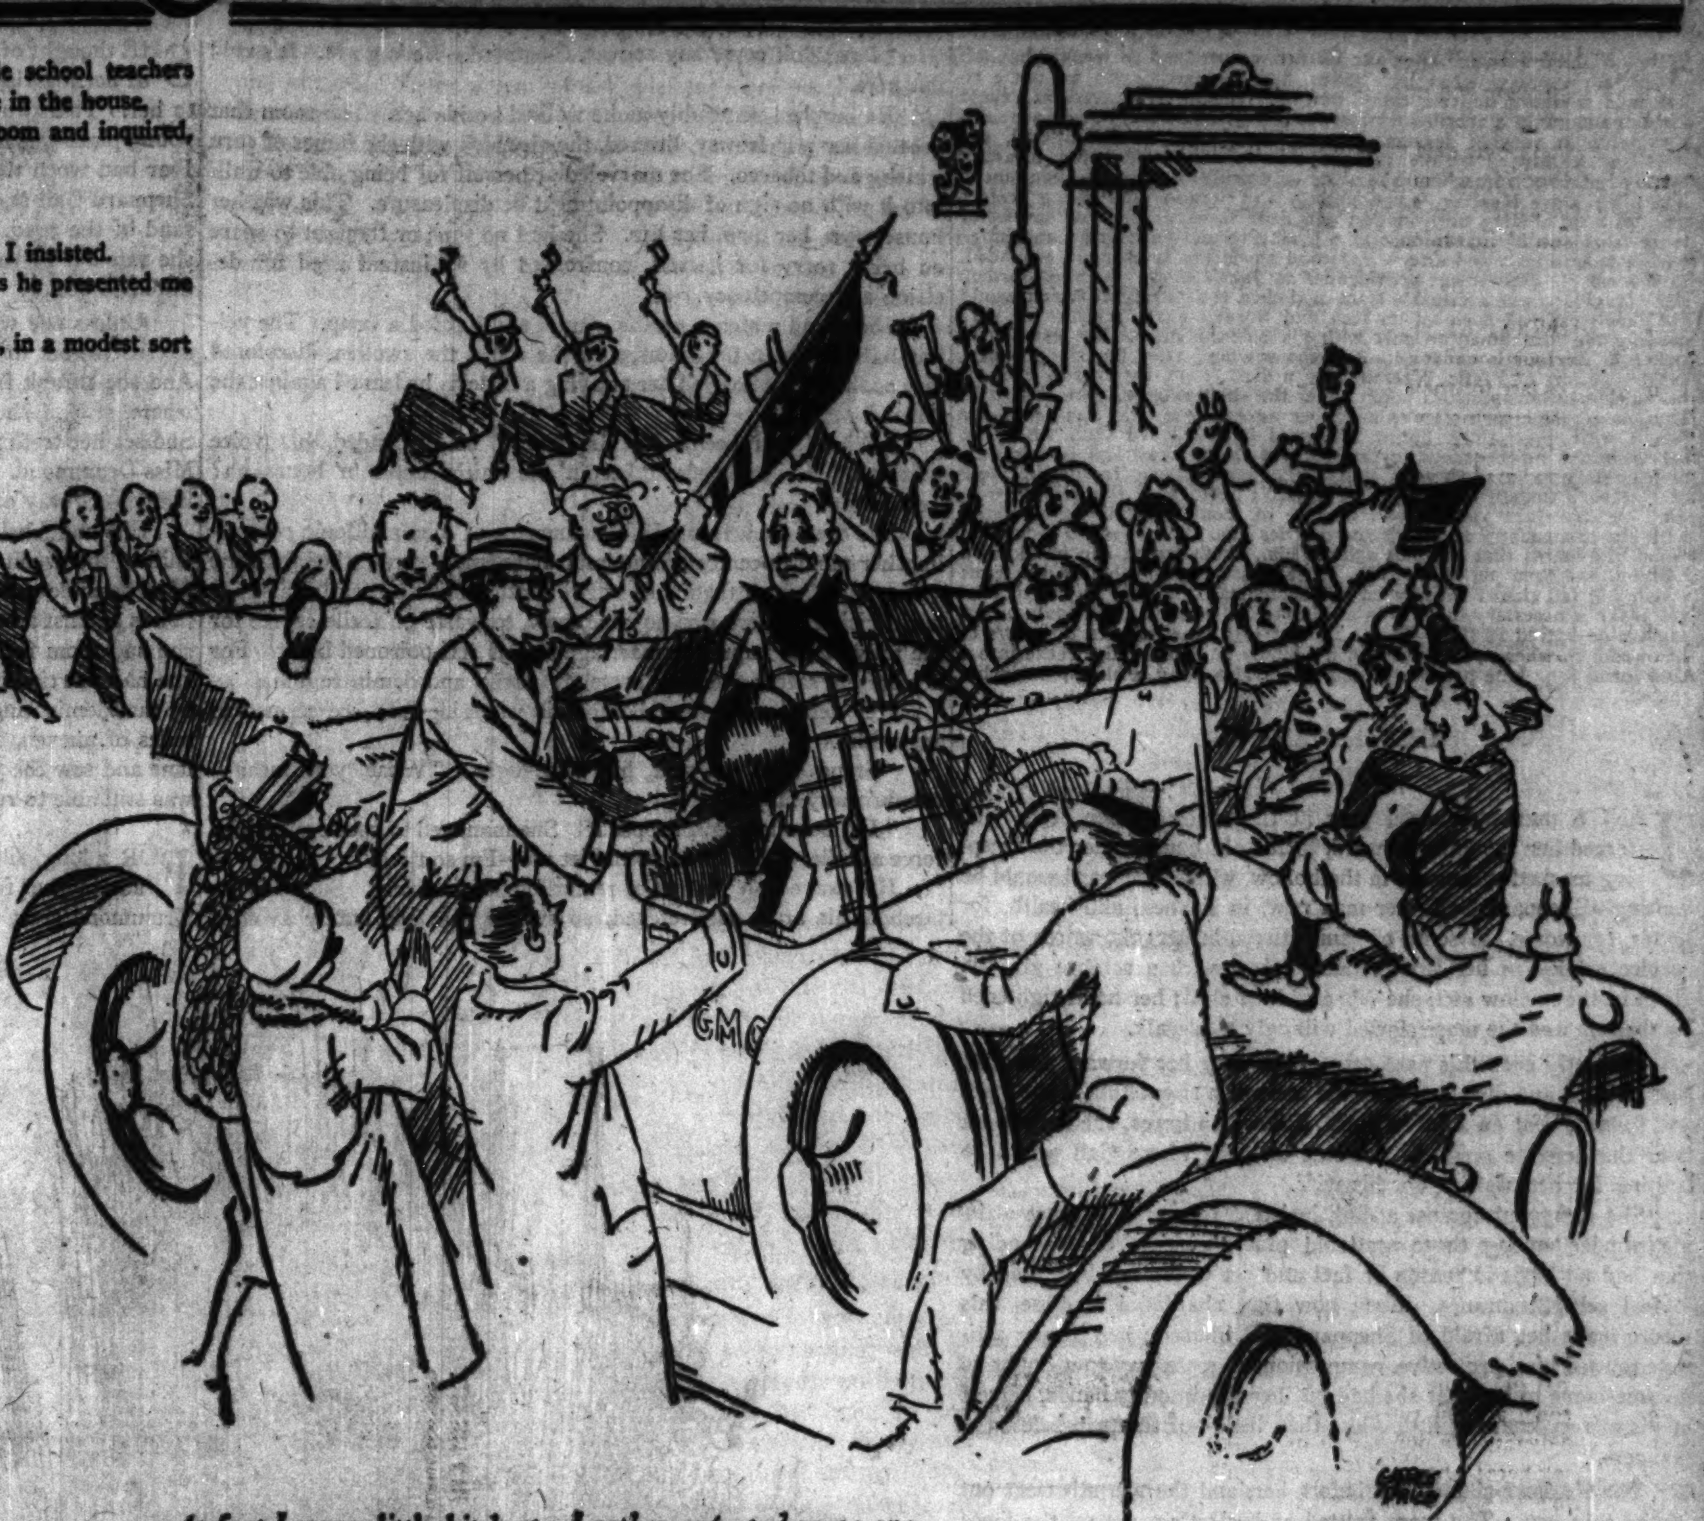
It seemed to me that the entire population rang me up on the phone as soon as they learned I had arrived in town, and all pulled the question right off the reel, "What's it going to be next Sunday?"

That's all they wanted to know.

"Why do they laugh so when they ask the question?" I inquired of one of my Chicago friends.

"O, don't let them kid you about those letters of yours," he answered. "They're all on to the fact that you and the newspaper people are just having a little fun with the public. Believe me, these birds here have a real sense of humor."

"I don't quite get you," I said.



As first I was a little bit hurt. I rather expected some one to ask, "When are you going to give us another play?"

"O, yes. you do. You get me all right. Now don't start trying to kid me, too, because I've read the letters myself and I'm wise enough to know that the whole thing's a joke."

"You mean to say my letters are a joke?" I inquired, indignantly.

"They're more than a joke," he replied, "they're a sensation," and he fell over on a couch and laughed till the tears rolled down his cheeks.

So you see my letters have them laughing and crying in Chicago, and you must admit that that's about all any literary genius can hope to accomplish.

I left the Windy City with a feeling in my heart that my stuff was not only being read but also being discussed just as much there as in Albany, Buffalo, and Toledo.

NEXT stop Indianapolis.

"What's it going to be next Sunday?" asked the bell boy, as he unlocked the door leading to a forty dollar a day suite worth at least half the money if it had twice as much furniture in the rooms.

"Are you reading my letters?" I asked him.

"Sure, all the bell hops, elevators boys, porters, and even the night watchman. We're all reading 'em and we're all betting on 'em, too."

"Betting on them? How do you mean?"

"Well, there's some kind of a puzzle to them, in't there?"

I thought at first the kid was stringing, but I weighed him up and became convinced that he was absolutely on the square with his inquiry.

"Puzzle! Certainly not," I replied. "What makes you think anything like that?"

"Well, we thought there must be," chuckled the lad, "because, on the level, we don't any of us know what the answer it. We haven't been able to figure them out at all."

"And still you read them?" I asked.

"Sure," he replied. "We all thought that maybe in a week or two you'd come along with a full explanation of what the hell they're all about," and then he started laughing and laughed so hard that he forgot to pick up the fifty cent tip I'd placed on the table for him.

Later in the evening the house detective knocked at my door.

"Come in," I hollered.

He entered and told me who he was.

"I heard you were in the hotel," he said, "and if you don't mind I'd like to ask you a question."

"Sure, as many as you like."

"What's it going to be next Sunday?" he said, with a silly grin on his face.

"Say, see here, you're not trying to string me are you?" I put the question to him point blank.

"String you! I should say not," he replied. "I'd get fat trying to string a guy that's able to string the whole country the way you're doing with those letters of yours. Say, on the level, kid, do you really think you're as good as you say you are or are you just kidding the world in general?"

There was nothing to do but laugh, so that's what I did and he joined me in a giggling contest which lasted several minutes before he was called away to throw an Indiana bootlegger out of the hotel.

I left Indianapolis with the satisfaction of knowing that the only good thing about the hotel was that all the help were reading my Sunday letters and openly admitted the fact.

NEXT stop Wheeling, West Virginia.

"Excuse me, but aren't you George M. Cohan?" asked the salesman in the leading haberdashery where I went to buy a clean collar.

"Yes, son, that's my name," I answered.

"I thought I recognized you," he went on. "What's it going to be next Sunday?"

"Are you reading my letters?" I inquired.

"No, I'm not reading them, but I heard about them," he replied.

"Why don't you read them?" I suggested.

"Because I heard about them," he shot back, and he fell against the showcase and hung on to it to save himself from falling on the floor in hysterics.

After several minutes of hearty laughter he finally rounded to and confided to me the fact that he was the only guy in Wheeling that hadn't fallen for my Sunday letter. He explained to me before I left that the reason he was smart enough to sidestep the issue was that he didn't belong in Wheeling but was a wise guy born and bred in New York City and so knew there was a catch of some kind to the articles the minute he saw my name attached to them.

I left Wheeling in a pretty happy frame of mind, realizing that outside of one guy (who really didn't belong in the town) the local reading public was mine.

NEXT stop New York City. Home again.

"What's it going to be next Sunday?" The question was put to me over the telephone which was ringing as I walked into my apartment.

"Who's this speaking?" I asked.

"A fellow who works for the same editor you're working for," came the reply. "We're waiting for your copy," he added.

"I'll have it down in half an hour," I answered, and hung up.

And so I sat down and wrote this. And they printed it. And you read it.

And now the chances are you're going to say to yourself:

"What's it going to be next Sunday?"

That's what I'm saying, too.

SHANTY . . . . . By Booth Tarkington

Shanty! Come, Shanty—good old Shanty! Hyuh Shanty!"

But suddenly, as her glance lowered to the drift covered floor of the little veranda. "Why, there he is!" she cried.

Shanty was lying upon his side, flattened, with snow blowing into his open mouth; and Ella shrieked as Beelsby carried the rigid body into the hall and set it down upon the hooked rug that had been her Christmas present to her husband.

"He isn't dead?" she wailed.

"That's just what he is," Beelsby said grimly; and though he had been fond of the dog he was glad, for a moment, to crush his wife with her fault. "You were so busy picking on me when we went out you never noticed you hadn't let him in again, and so he waited there five hours, and froze to death—while you were having such a grand time with Corbitt!"

"Henry!" she cried, and now her startled eyes were streaming indeed. "I don't know which of us let him out—I just remember seeing him go out—and then we both forgot him—but it's I that killed him! I gave him that bath, and he was shivering when he came to me and tried to comfort me, here in the hall, and that was just a little while before we opened the door and let him out. We—"

"'We'!" Beelsby echoed fiercely. "'We!' I tell you I didn't—"

"O, what does it matter to Shanty!" she sobbed. "I killed him when I gave him that bath and didn't have sense enough to take a little care of him afterward! I did it! I did it!" She threw herself upon her knees and began to caress the wet and shaggy head of the little figure of tragedy lying before her. "O, Shanty, dear, dearest!" she sobbed. "You were so kind to me! Who'll I have now to spend the long days with me when your master's in town and I'm all alone here? You were such a darling patient companion! You loved me—you know you did, Shanty!" And I let you die for it! I did! I did! I did!"

She sobbed on until she felt her husband's hand upon her shoulder. "Get up from there," he said harshly. "You're making a fool of yourself. You didn't hurt the dog! I don't remember any more than just seeing him go out, myself. We didn't either of us let him out. We just opened the door, and he went out. It's not your fault; it just happnned; and that's all there is to it!"

"It is my fault!"

"It isn't," he said angrily. "It isn't!"

"It is!"

"Shut up!" he cried. "Quit talking like such a pinhead! It's no more your fault than it's the man in the moon's!" He choked, and his eyes were watery—not because of his cold. "You make me tired! The trouble with you is you're too soft hearted! Quit blaming yourself for everything!"

Weeping heartbrokenly she rose, put her arms about him and clung to him. "O, I do make such horrible mistakes!" she sobbed.

"Well, I guess plenty of us do that," he said, trying to growl, but sniveling instead, as he looked down over her shoulder at the stiffened form on the hooked rug. "Probably Shanty didn't freeze to death anyhow. More'n likely he picked up a dog button or a piece of meat with arsenic in it, or something."

As it happened, though neither of them ever knew it, this was the correct diagnosis, and a veterinarian would have told them so. But their error was better for them than the truth; and Shanty's mistake had its singular value in their destiny, for it carried them over the climax of their anguishing adjustment to one another. They did not understand this, or even note it, either then or later; but with the passing of the little peacemaker came the passing of their worst quarrel. Never again did they hate each other quite as they had hated each other that night.

Sandhills by Hugh McNair Kahler and Donald G. Herring

THE STORY THUS FAR—Jane Borden, accustomed to wealth, but left all but penniless when her father died, has gone with an uncle to live in a southern hunting camp, her only remaining possession except for some stock in a moribund railroad. Here she encounters two neighbors who, in varying degrees, interest her. One, Sheppard Gail, she classifies vaguely as of the cavalier type—a southerner of a pleasant, shabby gentility for whom she feels a quickly increasing friendliness. The other, Dave MacIvor, is undoubtedly a puritan—a dour young Scotchman with an abiding faith in God and little to say. MacIvor saves her twice from possible harm, once in a grass fire and once in an encounter with a moonshiner, and after the second adventure is brought, wounded, to the camp. This seems providential to Jane's uncle, Warren Borden, since MacIvor owns a valuable tract of timber, the cutting of which would put Jane's railroad back on its feet, and Borden has a scheme for persuading the Scotchman to part with his beloved trees. But even on a sick bed MacIvor is obdurate. And the morning after he tries his persuasive powers and fails, Warren Borden dies. Jane, bereft now even of her uncle's little annuity, is taken under the sheltering wing of Miss Ailie Drummond, MacIvor's domineering but agreeable aunt. She faces the future with uncertainty, but is reassured by Sheppard Gail, who, like others in the neighborhood, owns stock in the railroad and is confident of his ability to carry through Warren Borden's scheme for getting hold of MacIvor's timber. So persuasive is Gail's personality that, riding with him one day, Jane yields to an impulse of momentary discontent, goes with him to a country minister's and marries him. Returning to MacIvor's home, she learns that the plot against him, about which she has known nothing, has been put through; a court house is to be built with taxes which will fall almost entirely on the Scotchman, and which, presumably, will make it necessary for him to sell his trees. MacIvor displays a bitter, implacable hatred of Gail. In the face of this Jane imparts the news of her wedding, whereupon Dave and his kindly aunt promptly freeze into a cold formality. Jane packs her things and rides away, a slow pain in her throat.

INSTALLMENT VI.

Flight.

JANE'S mare quickened pace at the touch of her heel. She forced her thoughts forward, to the old house under the creeping masked sycamores in the hollow, where Sheppard would be waiting—Sheppard Gail—her man now, in sickness and health, for better, for worse. A sense of panic stirred in her; the words of the service echoed in her brain, touched now with a sombre gravity. Even in the mellow sun, she felt a sudden chill; her hand tightened on the rein and the mare slowed willingly to a walk.

Presently even this pace seemed to carry her forward too fast. She stopped and dismounted at the crest of a rise, tethered the mare and found a seat on a fallen pine. Elbows on knees, she looked out over the desolate scrub to the blue distance where Gail would be waiting for her, waiting for his wife.

She struggled against a dull, insistent fear of the future waiting yonder among those scattered pines, a sense of foreboding that had no basis in reason or fact and yet would not be stilled by logical self-reassurance. Even now that she faced it close, this future made her afraid of Sheppard Gail himself; her former attitude toward him, protective, compassionate, gave way to a doubt as it came home to her that she had put her life into his hands, herself at his mercy, knowing little—less than little—of the man below the manners.

The shadows slanted out before her, and the warmth went out of the thin sun. The mare fretted at her tether, pawed the loose sand. Jane Gail forced herself to the saddle, against the doubts that held her back. This was all sentimental nonsense, the sort of maidenly qualms beloved of the verbose novelist of a dead century. She urged the horse to a canter; it would be dark before she reached the house unless she hurried. And she was suddenly afraid of the night, now, eager for the sanctuary of walls and lights.

AT the best speed she could make, it was twilight when she came to the top of the ridge and saw the old house in the hollow below, where, strongly, the shadows seemed to have settled like sediment in a fluid, as the sun dipped behind her. There was no light to beckon her; she shivered at the sight of the bare, gray arms of the sycamores, lifting from the mantle of evergreen creeper, at the twisted pine branches silhouetted black against the gray, low sky. Beneath, the old house seemed to lie in wait, stealthy, furtive. Her throat tightened. She was afraid, even before she followed the lane down the slope. At the drive entrance a figure leaped up before her, and the mare shied viciously as a hand reached for the bit. Jane cried out at the flat, yellow face of the Negro who grinned up at her, pawing in eager pantomime, a wordless, straining gurgle in his throat.

She knew he was harmless; Gail had talked of his mute houseboy, had even mimicked the creature's grotesque attempts at a speech. It had seemed funny—his imitation of those fumbling gestures, this hideous, bubbling chuckle. She even understood that the Negro was welcoming her, and tried to overcome the terror that took her by the throat. He manifestly sought to convey some meaning in the signs and sounds that sickened her; he pointed back at the house and shook his head emphatically, nodding backward at a path that led to one side of the building, as if to beckon her in that direction. And without a pause the gurgling monotone of his voice was in her ears, a sound that made her think of a man strangling in the grip of a garroter.

Against her will she screamed, and the keen, sudden sound cut deep into her tight nerves, terrifying her afresh. The mare reared, the Negro clinging to the bit with both hands She screamed again and there was a hoarse, answering hail from the house. She heard a door crash, the sound of heavy feet, and saw Sheppard Gail running toward her. A great relief came to her; she called him by name, eagerly.

But he did not answer. She saw him strike out, twice; quick, lashing blows; she heard the impact of fists on flesh, saw the Negro stagger back, stumble, and fall. Unbelieving, she saw Sheppard Gail spring after him, kick savagely at the helpless figure, again and again, the unvarying bubble of the mute's voice a background for words that she identified, dimly, as curses.

"Sheppard! Don't!" She found her voice through a suffocation of horror. "You'll kill him."

His foot lashed out again, but the mute had twisted clear and scrambled away through the bushes. Gail turned. She caught her breath as he came back to her.

"Learn him to frighten a lady," he said thickly. "Know better, next time, I reckon." He led the horse up the path to the house, walking unsteadily and grumbling under his breath. Jane was dazed into something like acquiescence. She could not clear her thought until he stopped before the door and lifted a wavering hand toward her. Then, disregarding it, she slipped from the saddle and faced him.

IT was too dark to see clearly, but she caught the familiar smell of alcohol.

"Where you been all day? Been waiting for you hours 'n' hours 'n' hours." He seemed to pause to reconsider this speech and to find it good. "Hours 'n' hours 'n' hours," he said again. "Where you been, Jane?"

She controlled quick disgust. Drunkenness, hateful as it was, could explain, if not excuse, the savagery she had just witnessed. She forced herself to speak quietly.

"I couldn't come any sooner, Sheppard. Let's go in. It's cold out here."

He laughed unsteadily as he walked beside her. The room that greeted her was frowsy, littered, the air thick with the fumes of corn whisky and tobacco. She marveled at herself for being able to walk into it with no sign of disappointment or displeasure. This was her house, now, her man, her life. She had no time or thought to spare on being sorry for herself, confronted by an instant need for decision and competency.

She found matches on the mantel and lighted a lamp. The yellow light revealed the disorder of the room, the swollen, discolored face of the man who eyed her swaying a little as he leaned against the table.

"Where you been, all this time?" he demanded, his voice grating. "What you mean, keepin' me waitin' hours 'n' hours, eh? Tell me 'at!"

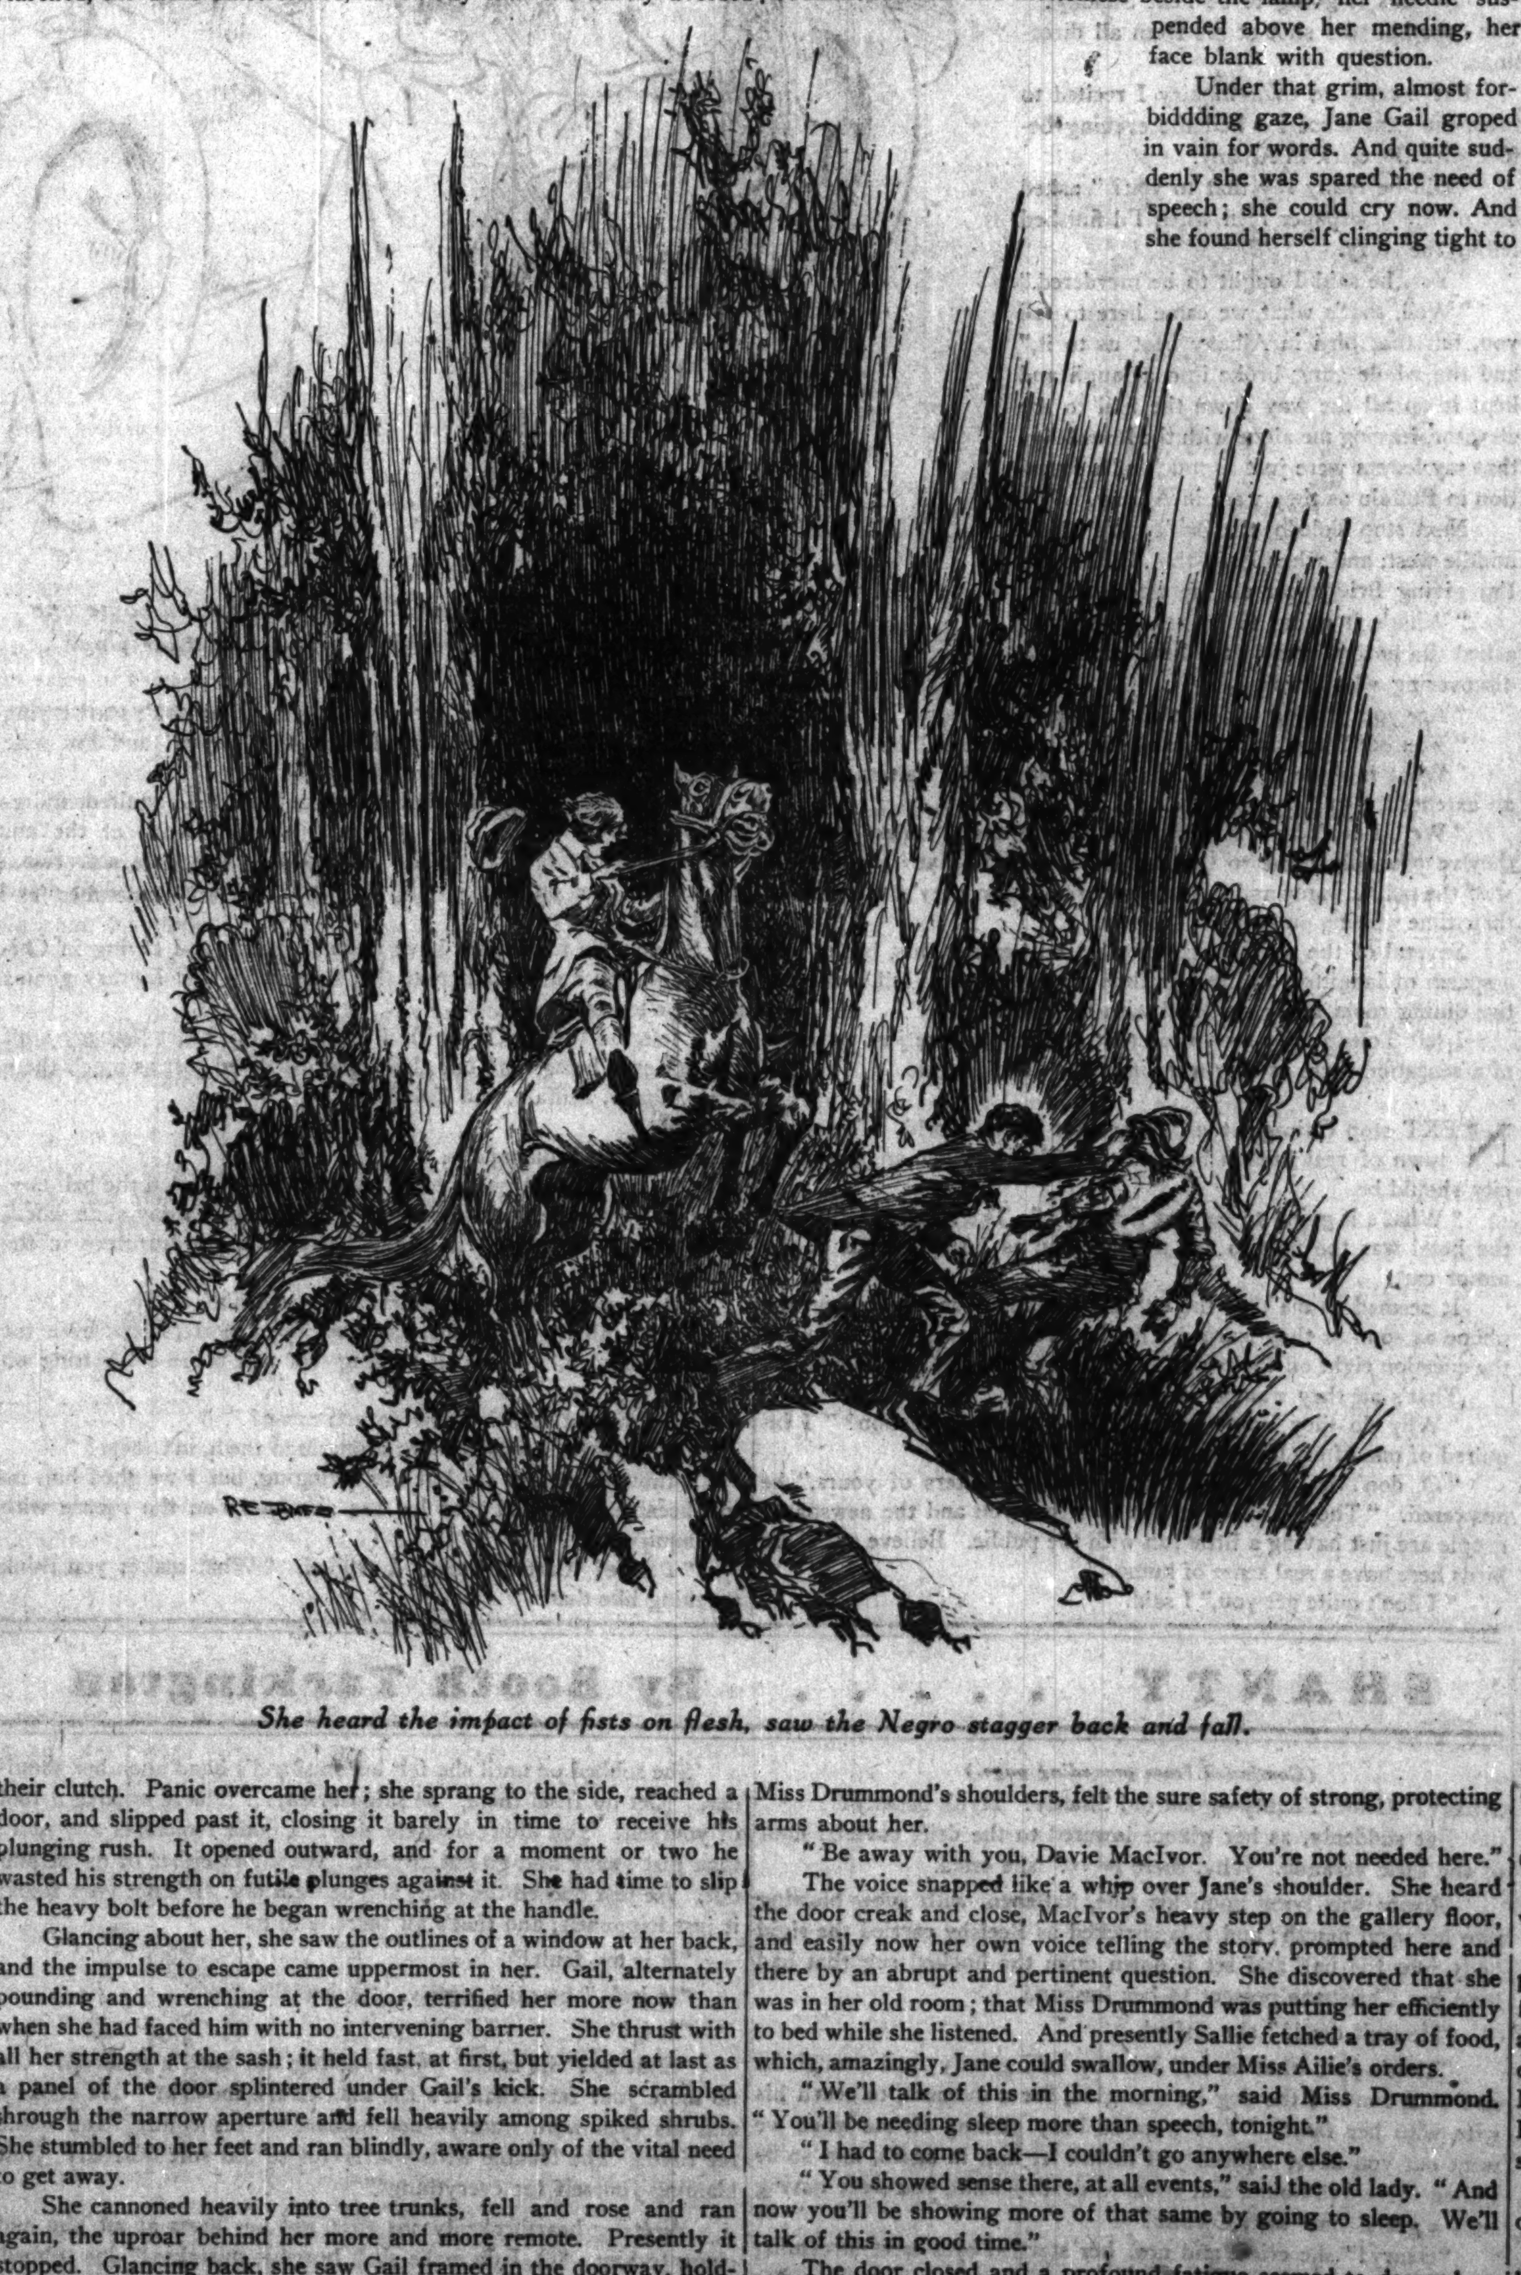
She drew back from this new menace of tone and look, compelling her mind to center on the immediate emergency rather than the graver issue which the man's self-revelation must presently raise for her decision. There was no time, now, to waste on futile regret for the folly of her impulsive marriage to this self-poisoned beast. For her present safety she must somehow pacify and dominate him.

Her deliberate retreat before his wavering advance seemed to anger him.

"Stand still," he said, his voice ugly. "What you mean—runnin' away that way?"

"I'm not running, Sheppard," She managed to speak evenly, to force a smile. "Do sit down and let me—I'm so tired."

He swayed on his heels, regarding her sullenly. Suddenly he lurched, his arms outstretched, so swiftly that she barely avoided their clutch. Panic overcame her; she sprang to the side, reached a door, and slipped past it, closing it barely in time to receive his plunging rush. It opened outward, and for a moment or two he wasted his strength on futile plunges against it. She had time to slip the heavy bolt before he began wrenching at the handle.



She heard the impact of fists on flesh, saw the Negro stagger back and fall.

Glancing about her, she saw the outlines of a window at her back, and the impulse to escape came uppermost in her. Gail, alternately pounding and wrenching at the door, terrified her more now than when she had faced him with no intervening barrier. She thrust with all her strength at the sash; it held fast, at first, but yielded at last as a panel of the door splintered under Gail's kick. She scrambled through the narrow aperture and fell heavily among spiked shrubs. She stumbled to her feet and ran blindly, aware only of the vital need to get away.

She cannoned heavily into tree trunks, fell and rose and ran again, the uproar behind her more and more remote. Presently it stopped. Glancing back, she saw Gail framed in the doorway, holding the lamp above his head.

"I see you—I've got you now!" His voice came in a high scream of triumph. She fled from it, emerging by blind hazard on an open lane, deep with rutted sand. Still running, she followed its mounting slope, Gail's high cries pursuing her She could hear his steps and by instinct plunged aside from the path, slipping between the shadowy pine boles, a carpet of dead needles muffling the sound of her going. Sheer terror drove her obliquely up the slant; she could hear Gail, below her and to the right, calling out, threatening, cursing, and the sound guided her instinct, so that she avoided the lane and reached the main road well away from the corner. Here she felt relatively safe from him, and paused for breath, listening and a little sick at the words that came up from the hollow. A kind of hysterical laughter shook her as she remembered that she had thought of this man as a cavalier, a survival of an age of romantic chivalry.

SHE thought of the look on MacIvor's face when she had told him of her marriage, and understood it now, as the truth came home to her. That drunken beast stumbling in search of her among the young pines was her husband; no wonder Miss Drummond and MacIvor had worn that look, as they saw her forever identified with Sheppard Gail and his kind. She found herself stumbling over the sand of the road, with no conscious objective, and presently, when she was out of earshot of the outcry in the hollow, she stopped to think, to decide.

Unless she went to her own camp for the night, there was no alternative but to throw herself again on Miss Drummond's charity. And she shrank from the thought of the closed house in the woods, where, if Gail should follow her, she would be alone and helpless. She set her teeth; there was no choice here. She must go back to Miss Drummond. In the morning, perhaps, there might be some new light, some way out. There was none, tonight

She stumbled doggedly back over the road through the shrewd chill of the evening, stopping now and again to listen for the sounds of a possible pursuit. The empty woods were full of mysterious noises against a background of stillness that was almost sinister, but she had room for but the one terror, now. The thought of the man she had married made her immune to all lesser fears. And, driven by that dominating motive, she found her strength equal to the seven miles of uneven, shifting sand. As she passed the last curve in the lane and saw the yellow squares of Miss Drummond's windows, she was still able to run toward them.

FOR a long, silent space she stood in the doorway, MacIvor half barring her from the warmth and safety of the wide room, Miss Drummond erect and motionless beside the lamp, her needle suspended above her mending, her face blank with question.

Under that grim, almost forbiddding gaze, Jane Gail groped in vain for words. And quite suddenly she was spared the need of speech; she could cry now. And she found herself clinging tight to Miss Drummond's shoulders, felt the sure safety of strong, protecting arms about her.

"Be away with you, Davie MacIvor. You're not needed here."

The voice snapped like a whip over Jane's shoulder. She heard the door creak and close, MacIvor's heavy step on the gallery floor, and easily now her own voice telling the story, prompted here and there by an abrupt and pertinent question. She discovered that she was in her old room; that Miss Drummond was putting her efficiently to bed while she listened. And presently Sallie fetched a tray of food, which, amazingly, Jane could swallow, under Miss Ailie's orders.

"We'll talk of this in the morning," said Miss Drummond. "You'll be needing sleep more than speech, tonight."

"I had to come back—I couldn't go anywhere else."

"You showed sense there, at all events," said the old lady. "And now you'll be showing more of that same by going to sleep. We'll talk of this in good time."

The door closed and a profound fatigue seemed to descend on Jane Gail with the darkness, a fatigue that was strangely benign and grateful against the deep sense of security that lay on her, the comfort of lavender smelling linen and warmth She heard, remotely, a blur of lowered voices in the room below, distinguished MacIvor's heavier tone and Miss Drummond's brisk, snapping speech in interjected answers. She drifted into unconsciousness with the sound in her ears, and wakened under a slant of sun that startled her with a sense of guilt as she guessed the hour by its angle.

By day her problem seemed more complex if less terrifying. She faced it helplessly while she dressed and found it waiting for her when she came downstairs in the person of her husband.

The big living room was empty, and she opened the veranda door to cross the gallery to the kitchen, where, she guessed, Miss Drummond would be at her morning housekeeping. Sheppard Gail stood face to face with her as she stepped out.

For a moment her mind stood still. He was seemingly himself, showing no signs of his yesterday's excesses, except that his eyes were bloodshot and his hand shook a little as he fumbled with his hat brim.

"I fetched over your mare, Jane. And Cash is driving the wagon for your trunks. You ready?"

She met his eyes squarely. "I'm not going," she said evenly. "That's over and done with."

He grinned. "Too quick to suit me, Jane. Reckon we both got a few years left to live. Go get your things and we'll get started."

"I'm not coming," she said again. "I saw and heard enough last night to decide that point quite finally."

"You mean you're going to quit me, just because I got to drinking some? Don't you reckon a man's got a right to celebrate a wedding, Jane? I'm right sorry if I scared you——"

"I'm not coming. You'd better go. I don't want to see you again. I want to forget—if I ever can!"

HIS eyes narrowed suddenly. "Quit fooling, Jane. That kind of talk might be all right if we weren't married. Reckon you aim to forget that, too. But it ain't so easy—forgetting you're married. Go get your things and let's get started."

She shook her head and would have moved past him toward the kitchen wing, but his hand fell on her arm and she felt his fingers tighten.

"Don't try that on me, Jane. You come along home, where you belong."

His voice grated. She made no effort to oppose his grip of her wrist. Strangely, now, she was not in the least afraid of him. Before she spoke Miss Ailie appeared at the kitchen door. Gail half turned to face her, still holding Jane's wrist.

"I come over to fetch home my wife, Miss Drummond," he said flatly. "Reckon you-all ain't heard——"

"I've heard much, Sheppard Gail." Miss Drummond wiped damp hands on her apron. "Overmuch."

He scowled. "It don't matter what she's told you. I come for her."

"I hear you say so, Sheppard. And you've had a brave ride for your pains, I'm thinking."

"I thought so." His lips drew away from his teeth. "You're putting her up to it, are you Trying to keep her here."

"You've some penetration, then. I'd be blithe to keep her, if she needed the asking. So far she's done well without it. And I'll be asking you to ride on, Sheppard Gail. It's cleaning day with me, and I've small time for gossip."

He jerked sharply at Jane's arm. "We'll go without your hat, if you don't want it. You come along, now, an' quit this fooling"

Jane was still unafraid of him, almost minded to laugh at the bluster of his tone. She saw David MacIvor behind him, and a stab of fright shot across her mood, as though MacIvor's coming had somehow precipitated a danger of which till now she had been unaware. Gail dropped her arm and whirled quickly.

"Reckon I can talk up to you, anyhow," he said slowly. "I take it right unfriendly of you, Dave—keeping my wife away from me like you're doing."

His voice was almost gentle, yet Jane was sensible of its menace. MacIvor came up the steps deliberately, his face set.

"You choose a strange word, between us, Gail. I have not claimed friendship with you that I remember, nor have I reason to think you feel it for me. But as to this day, I will have no room for doubt. She is here, in my aunt's house, by her own will and act, and with my aunt's consent. It has no more than this."

Gail laughed, a thin, harsh note of triumph. "I figured you wasn't hunting for trouble, Dave—not that kind, anyhow. Step one side while I take my wife along home."

He reached for Jane's arm, but MacIvor's hand dropped on his wrist.

"If Mrs. Gail goes with you, it will be by her own wish and will, Gail. I will not interfere, nor yet will I see her carried by the strong hand. It is for her to say if she stays or goes."

"I'm staying," said Jane quickly. "That was settled finally last night."

For a moment she fancied that Gail would strike. His eyes narrowed and glittered and his hand moved ever so slightly toward his side. MacIvor, facing him, did not stir. There was a tense instant of silence and then Gail laughed.

"Reckon I lose, then. It's a lady's privilege to change her mind in a hurry. Maybe she'll change it again. I can wait. And I'm kind of apt to remember things, Dave—little things like this."

He swung away almost gayly to his horse. Jane watched his spring to the saddle with an unwilling glow of admiration in spite of her shamed disillusion. He was more like the man she had married—the thought came home to her like a blow. And David MacIvor, turning gravely to her, lent it force.

"Good morning, Mrs. Gail," he said slowly, and walked past her into the house. For an instant, as she watched Sheppard Gail's horse cantering toward the woods, Jane was almost sorry that she had not ridden with him.

"AND he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."

The sober, marching tempo in which MacIvor read the scripture passages at evening prayers changed on the final phrase. Jane Gail felt a ring in his voice, as of personal defiance, as if he took literally and to himself the prophecy and promise of the psalm. Indeed, for once, the personal application of the words, always a vivid reality to MacIvor, she knew, seemed almost as reasonable and real to her as if King David had been thinking about MacIvor when first he sang that song.

"The ungodly are not so, but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away."

She felt the deep bite of the contemptuous figure. The psalmist had groped for a simile that would lend extraordinary power to his declaration that righteousness was profitable wisdom, and sin a costly kind of folly. And he had likened the godly man to a tree, deep rooted, fixed, and fruitful through drought and storm. He drove home the contrast by calling the ungodly chaff, the helpless plaything of a puff of breeze, producing nothing, impermanent trivial.

While MacIvor prayed, the words echoed in Jane's mind, lifting against her will the picture of Sheppard Gail the man who hated the land in which his roots might have struck deep, who dreamed of idle wanderings in far places, pursuing only the transient, shallow pleasure of a whim. Chaff, driven before the wind—trees planted by rivers of water. Again, even in the measured, formal tone of prayer, she caught that effect of triumphant, unshaken confidence.

She wondered whether by any chance MacIvor's philosophy could be right, whether there was a God who intervened in human minutiae, who helped those who, like MacIvor, asked no help they had spent their strength and courage to the full. MacIvor and his grim God, against Sheppard Gail and his luck.

Under Miss Drummond's roof there was the atmosphere of a fortress facing attack. All day, even when her thoughts were most intent upon her own concerns and the consequence of her haste and folly, Jane Gail had felt the tension of a joining fight, the presence of a major issue which, alien as it was, somehow lessened the importance of her own problem. Tonight, after the tight silence of the supper table, the awkward interval that followed before prayers, she had almost forgotten Jane Gail's affairs as she watched MacIvor's face and read in it his acceptance of the challenge to do battle for his trees. Usually, after prayers, there were only brief good-nights between these three. This evening, with the somber phrases of the psalm in her ears, Jane hesitated, aware of a need for speech.

"You're going to fight, David? You won't sell your timber?"

She saw the muscles tighten about his jaws "I mean to fight," he said slowly. "And more than that, Mrs. Gail."

She winced at the final words. He had not once failed to use the formal prefix since she had come back, as if to remind her who and what she had chosen to be. But again her interest in the broader issue drew her thought from herself and her altered status in the household.

"You mean that you can win?"

"Just that. Before"—he seemed to trip on the name—"before the other side can levy their taxes on my trees they must hold a county vote and win consent to the new courthouse and the highways they have set up as their pretext. And I will beat them there."

"I thought"—she stopped in turn. It was going to be hard to discuss this thing, if they could not introduce the name of Gail. She took her resolve firmly. "I thought that the Gails controlled the county politics."

"True, by a narrow margin. But that is in the main because the folk who would oppose them have had small interest in such matters. Yonder in the hills are many who see eye to eye with me—small farmers, hard driven to keep soul and body joined, who can ill spare a day's labor to cast a vote in which they have no great concern. Men of my blood, in part. They will stand by me in this. The Gails"—he stumbled again on the name—"the Gails will be cocksure."

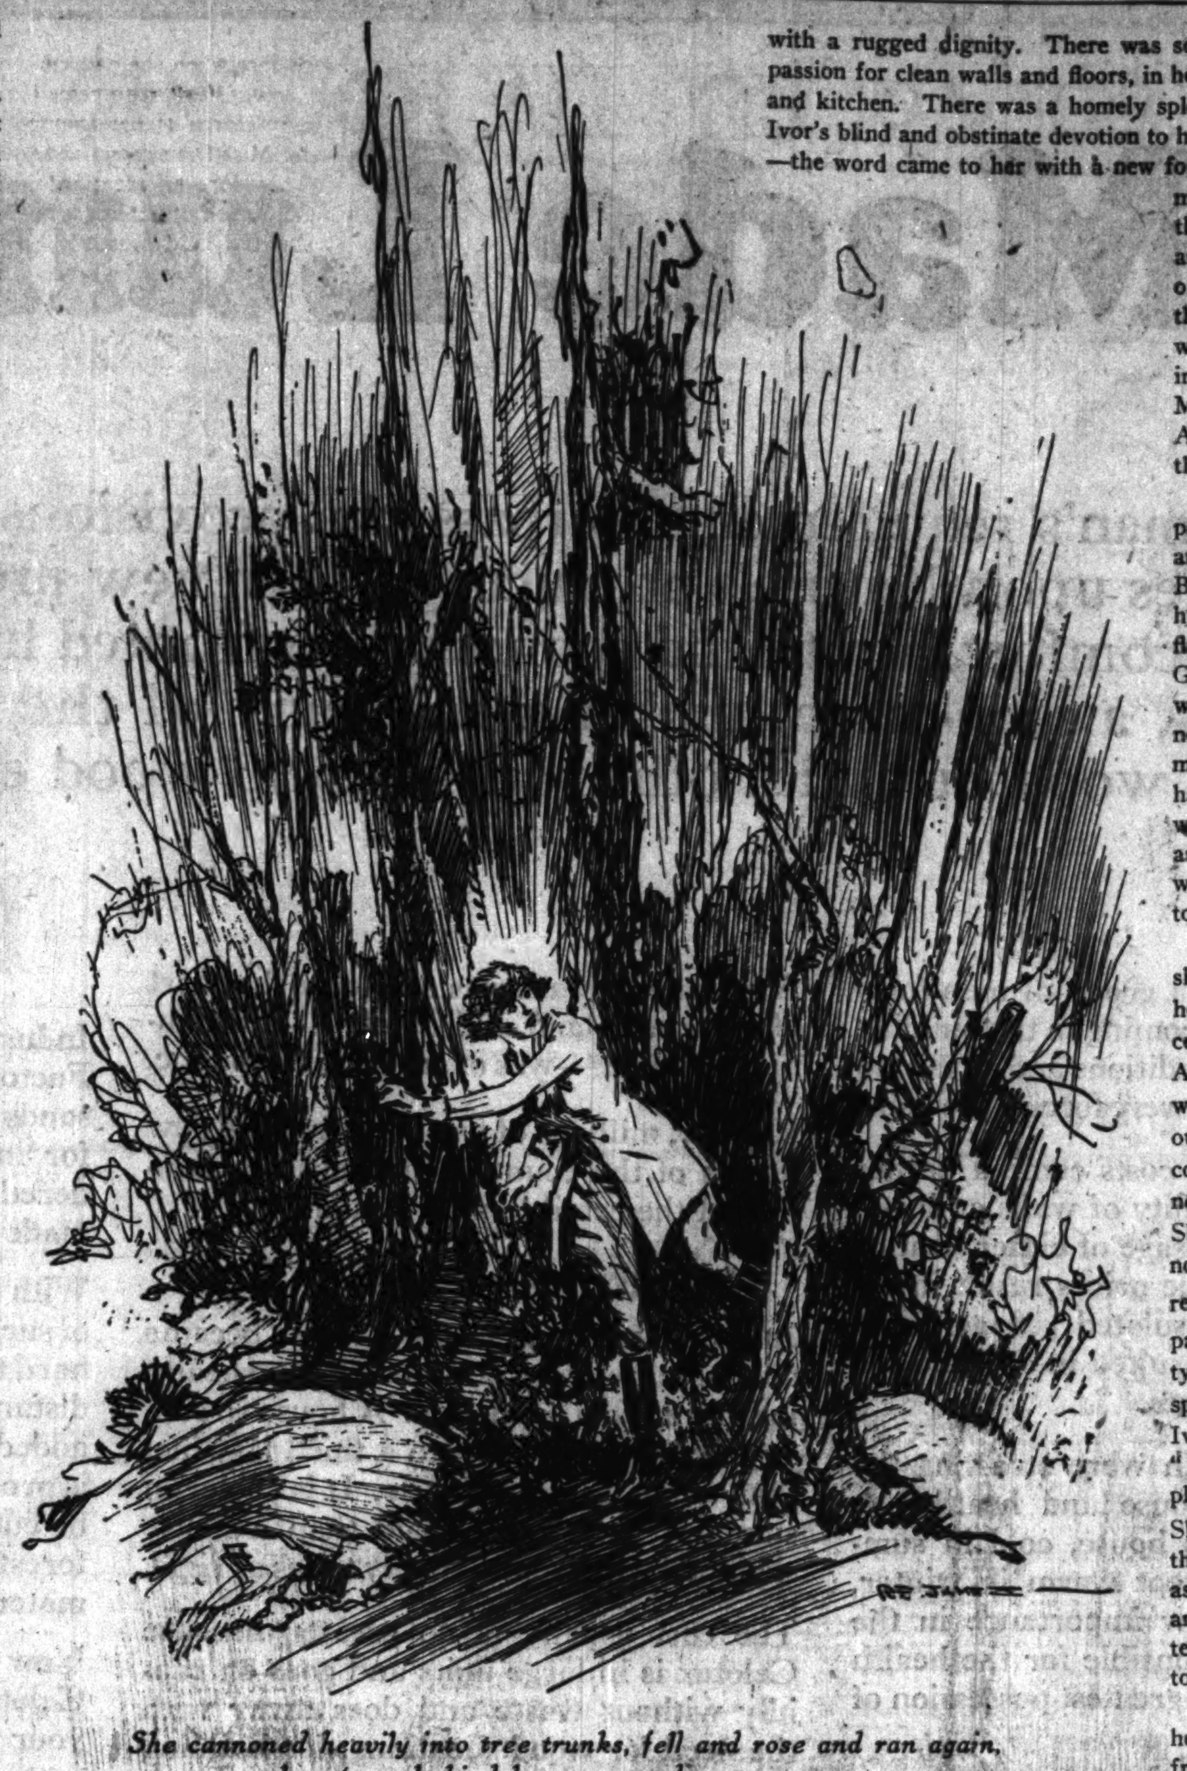
He straightened, and the thin lamplight deepened the bitter lines of his face. Miss Drummond spoke drily from the stair foot.

"Be warned by them, then, Davie MacIvor, and vaunt yourself when you put off your harness. It is late for boasting, and over early, too."

JANE followed her to the upper floor, where they separated with only a brief and formal good-night She felt alone and alien as her plight came home to her. Last night she had been too spent to think. Throughout the day her thoughts had been diverted and preoccupied by other things, but now as she lay awake she found her mind clear and ordered, engaged with a new realization that, without knowing it, she had won something in this house, and then, as unconsciously, thrown it away, to evaluate it justly only now that it was lost.

During her weeks here she had become in some sense a member of a family, had been admitted to a status very little like that on which she had been received again, after her desertion to the other camp. She was here, now, on a basis of formality, received and tolerated only under a law of hospitality and asylum. Before, she had been part of it, welcome for her own sake, the object of a genuine regard on the part of these two people, whose superficial traits had prevented her from understanding, till too late, their intrinsic worth.

Shame came to her as she thought of how she had smiled in secret at their homely ways, a shame intensified and embittered by a corollary memory of her ready acceptance of Sheppard Gail's surface qualities as the true index to the man below them. She forced her thought away from him and back to Miss Drummond and MacIvor and the problem of her new relations with them both. She was sufficiently practical to realize the futility of regret when there was a definite and tangible difficulty facing her, demanding a working solution.



She cannoned heavily into tree trunks, fell and rose and ran again, the uproar behind her more and more remote.

Fifty hours ago she had been sorry for herself because circumstances compelled her to live in this house, with these two. Now, soberly, she pondered on her chances of winning back her place in their regard; saw it, at last, as something once possessed, something lightly forfeited, something worth a stubborn effort to regain.

In this new light she seemed to understand more than the relationship which had existed between the three, to find a comprehension of things more fundamental—of the relative importance, in human life, of purpose and pleasure, of work and play

The dull routine of the house and farm, that had oppressed and wearied her as she looked on at it, revealed itself now as touched with a rugged dignity. There was something fine in Miss Ailie's passion for clean walls and floors, in her interest in details of pantry and kitchen. There was a homely splendor as of romance in MacIvor's blind and obstinate devotion to his field and timber. Strength—the word came to her with a new force and appeal, a quality that made other traits—those traits that had seemed so sufficient and important—now trivialities of little weight. The only thing worth being, she thought, was strong. If you were that, in the best sense, in David MacIvor's sense and Miss Ailie's, you would be everything else that mattered.

The picture lifted of Sheppard Gail, alone with his bottle and his Negro mute, of Warren Borden, paying with years of his life for the comfort of a flabby, indecisive will, of Jane Gail herself, and the price she was still to pay for the weakness that drifted her into intimacy with Sheppard Gail, that had surrendered lazily to a whim of impulse, rather than assert the little strength it would have needed to stop and to consider.

Before sleep came to her she had dealt mercilessly with herself. What she had received without earning at Miss Ailie's hands and at MacIvor's, what she had sacrificed without a thought, was to be reconquered now, as a debt due no less to them than to herself. She would live in this house no longer as a guest, gladly or reluctantly sheltered; she would pay her way in work, in loyalty, in understanding and respect. A random word of MacIvor's reading came to her. "Thy people shall be my people and thy God my God." She smiled in the darkness at the idea, but there was a reassuring comfort in the words and they seemed in some mysterious fashion to release her to the peace of sleep.

It was not easy. She found herself held stubbornly away from the work of the house, barred by a formal courtesy against which she made slow, toiling progress. Sometimes, as her efforts were rebuffed, she fancied that Miss Drummond was jealous of her duties, clung to them as to something precious which she would not share. There were times when it seemed as if she must be driven back upon herself and her unwelcome thoughts, but the resolve endured in the face of these discouragements; she held to the thought of that one magic word. She was strong; she would never be weak again.

And presently, as if the older woman yielded against her will, Miss Drummond's attitude relented slowly, till there were times when Jane Gail could almost forget that their relationship had changed. Gradually she was allowed to look on, and then to help, in the housework which Miss Drummond lifted to the dignity and interest of a profession. She began to understand something of the common sense that underlay even those activities that seemed most reasonless—the sober, practical necessity of cleanliness, the art of stern economy in little things, the trick of managing a pack of shiftless, naturally slattern servants, the craft of ordering a hundred minor tasks so that they merged into a smoothly fluent stream.

But with David MacIvor she made no visible gain. She saw that he avoided her now, deliberately and intelligently; they met at the table and at household prayers, always in Miss Drummond's presence, always separated by a barrier of unyielding reserve which resisted every effort on Jane's part to break it down. He spoke to her only when she made it necessary, and never without the needless repetition of her married name, as if he would remind himself and her that she had put herself, once for all, out of his kind and class.

The only perceptible lessening of his reserve was an increasing willingness to discuss the impending election in her presence, instead of waiting for his talk with his aunt until Jane had gone to her room. Even in these three cornered conversations, however, he addressed Miss Drummond and seemed to ignore Jane except when she required him to answer a direct question. But she was patient, and she saw, in time, that he was beginning to grow at least accustomed to her presence, less on guard against her. And his anxiety over the coming struggle preoccupied him more and more, so that he talked of it with an increasing freedom and frankness, as he returned from his electioneering among the Scots farmers on whom he counted for his defense.

"They are ill cattle to drive," he told Miss Drummond, after a long day's absence in the hills. "And they see the near penny before the distant shilling. I have talked to little purpose this day, Aunt Ailie."

Miss Drummond bit a thread deliberately. "You have less tongue gift than most, Davie MacIvor. I am thinking that you'll be better at the farming than the fighting. And that's a pity, too, when a limber tongue can spare a man more than a ready hand." She sighed. "There's whiles, Davie, when I wonder what the Lord God was thinking of, to leave the gift of gab out of all men except the kind that have little else. It's a great pity he did not make Eve first, and have the benefit of her advice while he was putting Adam together."

David MacIvor laughed, and the sound of it startled Jane Gail so that she looked up from her sewing basket in blank surprise. It came to her that she could not remember having heard him laugh before and her conception of MacIvor underwent, in that moment, a considerable readjustment. He became for the first time wholly human.

"If he had made you first, Aunt Ailie, I'm thinking there would have been no want of advice, at all events," he said.

"There would not," said his aunt emphatically. "Not that I would be criticizing, you understand. No. No doubt he did the best he could, but there's no denying that a good many women would have managed better in some of the details."

MacIvor laughed again, and his eyes met Jane's with a glint of wholly secular amusement. It was like meeting another person, Jane thought; she wondered whether, under the gravity he wore so patiently, he was hungry, like other men, for honest mirth. For a moment she felt far older and wiser than he; there was something pathetic in that half-shamed lapse into laughter, as if MacIvor had been forced into his solemnity against his wish, by outer strains and pressures.

She saw him, now, as the product of the harsh, distracting influences that must have surrounded him from birth—a man driven upon himself, warped and twisted from his natural bent by this inherited and ruling idea. His laughter, like his youth, had been sacrificed to timber, until this obsession of his had become a dominant obscuring force.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.

IN our not always humble opinion, the arrival of a novel by John Galsworthy is an event. Galsworthy is beyond question one of the masters of the novel, in this age which boasts so pitifully few masters of literature and the lesser arts. If you failed to read "The Forsyte Saga," then you missed one of the most superb works of fiction of the last hundred years; and this new Galsworthy book, "The White Monkey," is, in a way, a continuation of the saga of the Forsytes, though it is in itself a complete—a most complete—novel.

Fleur, the young wife of Michael Mont, is a daughter of old Soames Forsyte, and if we were given to small jokes, we should proclaim that Fleur was a Forsyte for the gods. But London has changed since those placid days when the Forsytes were in their glory and Victoria sat somewhat heavily upon her throne; a certain war, blowing up out of the west of Europe, has kicked the old order right on the nose, and Fleur and Michael belong to the present day. Sir Lawrence Mont, Michael's father, and a fine Galsworthy character, is the link between the old order and the new.

John Galsworthy

Now, we have a theory that for a reviewer to disclose the story of any novel is unfair—both to the author and to the reader. "The White Monkey" has such an unusually worth while story that we shall not take the edge off it for you by relating what befell the fair Fleur, who did not want to be "possessed" in marriage (she being what is known as a modern gal), and her jolly young husband. But we can tell you that you will not be disappointed in "The White Monkey." There is ever a pleasant flavor to the writings of Mr. Galsworthy, a sound and gentle philosophy, an engaging irony, and a superb value of the telling of a tale. He writes like a patrician, yet he is never a snob Henry James, who was an American, though it pained him to admit it, and who, through the efforts of the Scribners, Ashton Stevens, and others, has come to be something of a figure in American letters, was a snob—a most appalling snob. But Mr. Galsworthy is not. There is small room in the world today—not even in literature—for snobs; that is one reason why Michael Arlen will never be a great novelist. His writing has style and wit and sophistication, but his point of view is somewhat astigmatized. He dearly loves a lord, and is never so happy as when he is telling you, however lightly, that he has just come from dining with Lady So-and-So.

However, to get on: John Galsworthy stands as one of the great writers of our day, and "The White Monkey" is, though perhaps not his best, one of his best novels.

Twenty years ago the Graustark tales of George Barr McCutcheon (famous brother of the famous John T.) were best sellers; and his newest one, "East of the Setting Sun," is a best seller today. Here is a brisk and entertaining yarn of the Graustark of the present, that charming little principality, somewhere in the Balkans, after the tornado of war has swept over it. The story tells how young Pendennis Yorke, handsomest and most brilliant of all foreign correspondents, journeys to Graustark in the service of his newspaper, and of what befell him there in the way of adventures, and particularly in the way of a beautiful princess, whom he had met before—under amazing circumstances If you enjoy romance, and if you would be entertained, read "East of the Setting Sun"; it seems to us the best of all the Graustark novels. George Barr McCutcheon is a talented story teller and, like port or sherry, he improves with age.

Last season there came a book called "Bunk," by a certain W. E. Woodward, which was greeted on all sides by enthusiastic laughter and applause. Comes now Mr. Woodward's new one, "Lottery," wherein he sticks pins in a great array of American credo balloons, in relating the career of an uninspired boob who becomes a millionaire, and in consequence a tall American hero. If you enjoyed "Bunk," you will enjoy "Lottery." If you did not discover "Bunk," take a chance and procure a copy of "Lottery." Laughs are not overplentiful this season.

One author, forsooth, who almost never fails to cause us mirth and merriment, is Harry Leon Wilson. Mr. Wilson, if he be not the middleweight champion of the Pacific coast, is at least one of the first three American humorists, and to his credit belong such laughing successes as "Ruggles of Redgap," "Bunker Bean," "Merton of the Moves," et al. His latest book, "Professor, How Could You!" is a salty and comic chronicle of an eccentric educator who runs amuck in the wide, wide world, and becomes educated, via a "medicine show" playing the hick hamlets. A remarkable series of adventures kick the professor along through the book, and high humor, reminiscent of the "Ruggles" treatment of slang, abounds.

No more delectable piece of biography has come to light in recent years than "Mark Twain's Autobiography," and it is having a much merited success, even in this scurrying crossroads community, where the natives seldom read anything but the illustrated daily papers that tell all in pictures. There is so much twaddle being written today under the head of biography that this work of Mark Twain's stands out as one of the most lively, direct, and genuine chronicles of a man's life ever published.

Mrs. Blair Niles appears to be writing her way through South America and enjoying her travels as much as do those who read about them. Some time ago Mrs. Niles brought Ecuador out of obscurity into a book, and now "Colombia, Land of Miracles," appears in the shop windows—and on the library tables. It is one of those green jacketed travel books that the Century company does so well, following in the wake of the works of such worthies as Frederick O'Brien and Charles Hanson Towne. And Mrs. Blair puts much charm into her book of Colombia, that sunny land with a romantic Spanish glamour, now, alas, becoming modern.

Rex Beach has returned to New York from Alaska or Hollywood, or wherever his journeys have carried him, and is stalking about the lobby of the Algonquin each day, smoking enormous cigars—bigger but not better than those cigars which have made Col. A. H. Woods and Senor Corona famous. Somehow Rex Beach always reminds us of a football coach, and consequently of his hero in "The Ne'er-Do-Well," one of his best novels. We wish Mr. Beach would cease, at least temporarily, staging hirsute chested cinemas and write another novel like "The Ne'er-Do-Well" or "The Auction Block."

Man-Made Lumber

When man's requirements surpass the provisions of Nature, he improves upon Nature's products. When new problems in building for comfort, health and economy confronted him, he produced Celotex, a man-made lumber with many of the structural qualities of wood but with other qualities no wood ever could have.

SOME years ago a group of men foresaw a new need coming in the building world. Economic conditions and advanced thoughts on building were forcing the issue.

With mounting fuel costs came a deeper scrutiny into the ability of walls and roof to withstand the passage of either heat or cold. Just as high ice prices result in demands for better insulated refrigerators, so high fuel costs resulted in demand for better insulated houses.

New ideas on health were stressing the relation between house and health. A damp-free, draftless house, cool in summer, quiet, easily kept warm in winter, was assuming a new importance in the minds of those responsible for the health of their families, the greatest possession of mankind.

Great as lumber always would prove to be in the building of homes, these far-sighted men saw a demand arising that no lumber could meet.

They set themselves the task of making a lumber—a lumber of sufficient structural strength, a lumber that heat and cold can not easily penetrate, a lumber that deadens sound, a lumber that is weatherproof, windproof, waterproofed.

After years of research they found a suitable raw material for man-made lumber of the desired qualities. It is the long, tough saw-edged fibres of the sugar cane.

Then came the problem of manufacturing this new lumber on a commercial scale at reasonable cost—a cost within the reach of every home builder.

A mammoth plant was erected in the heart of sugar cane land, and Celotex—the man-made lumber—was offered a ready public.

Rapidly, millions of feet went into the new homes of the country, through the channels of the retail lumber dealer.

Sheathing—Plaster Base

In every section, as fast as Celotex became available, home owners bought it as sheathing and as roof insulation. A house so constructed uses a fourth to a third less fuel than a non-insulated house. It is cooler in summer. It is more rigid than a house sheathed with wood—many times as rigid.

The cost usually is no greater because Celotex is in large units and goes on rapidly without waste and does away with the need for wood sheathing, for building paper, for any other form of insulation.

Celotex has the insulating value of cork.

Home builders bought Celotex as plaster base because it formed an ideal bond with any standard gypsum plaster, replacing lath and adding its qualities of insulation and of sound deadening.

Many who wished to break away from the conventional plastered walls used Celotex, paneled, on the walls and ceilings of their rooms. And admired its texture, wondered at the quiet of the rooms due to the sound absorbing qualities of the material.

These uses are all demonstrated in the Celotex House now being finished at 645 North Michigan Avenue. Be sure to inspect this house.

Industrial Uses

Industries use Celotex by millions of feet. Factory roofs are insulated with it. Thousands of refrigerator cars are lined with it for insulation. Business offices are rendered quiet with it. Shipping boxes are made of it.

With the country so receptive to a lumber of such undreamed of character it has been hard to keep production within reasonable distance of demand. Other units have been added to the mill, until the Celotex plant is producing as much lumber daily as could be cut from fifty acres of an average pine forest stand, with a new supply of raw material available each year for Celotex.

Now dealers in this section can have Celotex. You can have it—for your home, your factory, your garage, your summer cottage.

We believe every dealer in this territory can show you samples, give you literature, quote you prices.

Every architect, we think, can talk with you about the advantages of Celotex and will specify it with confidence.

Any contractor can use Celotex satisfactorily. It is as simple to handle as wood lumber. Saws—chisels—nails direct to studs, headers and rafters. Celotex is unharmed by weather and ordinary rough usage.

See your lumber dealer. Consult your architect. Talk with your contractor. Write us for sample and literature. The Celotex Company, 645 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Celotex is a strong, rugged, weatherproof, durable building lumber made from the long, tough fibres of cane. It is better than wood sheathing—equals cork for insulation. Celotex is used for sheathing instead of wood; for plaster base, roof insulation, sound deadener and exterior finish. Stock sizes: Thickness 7-16 in.; width 4 ft.; lengths 8 ft. to 12 ft. Weight about 60 lbs. per 100 sq. ft.

NOTE:
Our advertisement in next Sunday's Tribune will feature an event of importance to every home-owner—the opening of the Celotex House. Watch for it!

SIMPLICITY GOES THROUGH ALL ITS PACES AT THE HORSE SHOW

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—'Way back in the '90s, I went to my first horse show. In those days Richard Harding Davis was writing his famous stories of New York life, and Brander Matthews was vignetting Manhattan. Smedley was illustrating, and "Floradora" was on everybody's lips. Women wore big hats set way up on fat pompadours, skirts with trains, and sleeves with puffed tops that their wearers were always pulling out to wider circumference.

I don't revert to these days because I think my personal reminiscences matter, but it does matter about the horse show; and for the purpose of contrasting today with yesterday I don't mind admitting I was well out of my perambulator in the 90s and able to grasp many of the most essential bits of knowledge. One thing I grasped was that in those days the horse show was an assemblage of fashion. Another was that fashionable women dressed beautifully and differently. Yes, in spite of the big hat that skimmed the head like an airplane, in spite of the fat pompadours and trailing skirts, women in those days managed to infuse something personal into their selection of these details. You passed one box and here was red velvet. You passed another and there was blue brocade. Ostrich plumes waved from those grazing hats. An essence of picture book charm, of romantic dressing, was left to us from previous centuries.

But now! You look into a box and you see a woman in a felt hat and a skimpy coat. After that you hardly need look elsewhere. What's the use? You'd simply see more women in small felt hats and skimpy coats or frocks.

As a preface to this remark, I may say that the horse show has more or less "got the gate." There are, to be sure, many fashionable persons who still attend it. On the other hand, there are numerous others who feel perfectly free to neglect it. All this is, of course, decidedly in contrast to the reverential spirit of the 90s, when everybody—no matter if she didn't know the difference between a wither and a gather—had to be seen at the autumn event in Madison Square Garden. The truth of it is that more and more the fashion center is shifting from New York to the smart country places around New York. The Piping Rock horse show is much richer in suggestions as to how "they" are dressing than is the New York event.

Nevertheless, there are still enough smart folks left to establish some style truths. This truth is, as I have said, that of simple and undifferentiated dressing. O, yes, minor differences to be sure! A new arrangement of fur, a new method of knee or hem flare, a sleeve rebellious against prevailing doctrines, a novelty of hat trimming—these represent a few of the changes that we manage, not to ring on but to wring from, the straight silhouette.

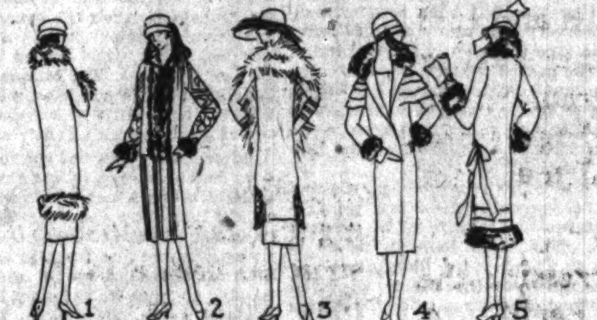
Among such changes, or rather such extortions, from the mode one may mention the cape. As the season advances we are more and more apt to assign an important place to this detail. First of all we find it as a part of the coat. Here, indeed, it is the busy little executive! Among its leading activities are those of the postilion shoulder cape in two or three tiers which the designers borrowed from coats and capes of the Directoire period. I have seen this postilion effect repeatedly, both at the famous polo games on Long island and at last month's horse show. It is not confined to any one type of garment. It appears just as effectively in a plaided sports coat as it does on a more formal model of broadcloth or satin, kasha, or ribbed silk. Also let it be mentioned that this adorable shoulder cape is used to grace some of the long capes for afternoon and evening wear.

In the sketch second from the right we have penciled this representative of the postilion family in a coat of shutter green kasha worn at the first day of the horse show. In this case the capes are triple, and they are sewed on so as to achieve a round yoke. The fur used is chinchilla, and you will note that a normal waist line is introduced in the back by three rows of shirring.



ANOTHER VIEW OF TODAY'S FIGURES.

But the cape doesn't shoulder all the responsibility for a coat finish. Far from it. I have just seen a white broadcloth coat that has come from Paris—one, by the way, which has excellent possibilities for Palm Beach success—and this adds to a garment of white broadcloth a hip length circular cape of matching material. Similarly eloquent of the spirit of the times is an evening coat of white velvet with a long sloping cape attached to the left shoulder in the back and going around to cover the right arm.

Nor does the cape need to be fused with some other garment—frock or coat. Away back last summer, when the French exposition was held in New York, I noted in a hotel one of the Parisian mannequins wearing a long circular cape of green kasha collared and lined in the gay plaid kasha forming her frock. Right then and there I began to make some forecasts. Knowing that Paris modes usually come to us by freight, I decided that in five months many of us would be doing likewise. Subsequent events show how right I was in trusting that French mannequin. For now one sees at the fashionable outdoor events certain leaders of the New York mode enveloped in plain colored capes trimmed with the plaid of their frocks. One especially modish example worn at Piping Rock was a brown kasha hanging to the waist line in graceful ripples and showing revers of the brown and red kasha frock worn beneath. From this we see that the cape, far from cap(e)sizing, is again on the point of riding fashion's waves. Even some examples of the fur cape are to be found in the offerings of famous French and American furriers.

Another fact revealed by the horse show and by other autumn events is the place retained by the two piece frock. This year it is Lanvin who has made the most notable success with this type of frock, and one of her interpretations of this mode which I am showing later in the week has scored a triumph in New York as conspicuous as that registered abroad. It is from Lanvin, I think, that the model second from the left on this page came to the woman wearing it at the horse show. At all events, it suggests Lanvin in its essential treatment.

Here we have the jumper section of a Lanvin green kasha extended all the courtesies of a coat, in proof of which we submit the front with its closing of chinchilla bordered by a stitching of silver thread. As for the sleeves, these betray a Lanvin weakness for tampering with familiar contours. For these are here a modified leg o' mutton, and their outline is rendered more arresting by an elaborate tracery of silver thread. In color this costume is delightful, for nature herself can't do much better than green, silver, and chinchilla.

Please note the skirt behavior of this frock, for it has an important bearing on the mode. The plaits are arranged in front and at the sides—the back is left plain. It's what every skirt ought to know this year, for no one can help but be impressed by the concentration of fullness in the front. And, by the way, one of the smartest separate skirts of today introduces that needed fullness through plaits arranged either solidly or in groups in a way that leaves the back perfectly plain.

As for the inverted plait, this cannot be diverted. It is today perhaps the favorite technique in gaining the flare of tunic or skirt hem.

At the risk of repletion, we point to the fine black broadcloth coat at the right. In this case the plaits are restrained to a narrow area—that of the apron—but they gain rather than lose by such concentration. This plaited apron forms a part of a model of finest black broadcloth which is banded in fur and trimmed with chinchilla.

The extent to which the tunic prevails is indicated in the central illustration. This frock argues also for another fashion trick played a thousand times this fall. The trick is of trimming your black frock with either red or fuchsia. When you're not menaced by the reds and the purplish reds, some touch of gold or silver is apt to catch you unaware. Sometimes, too, the red and metal are combined. That is the case here, for there is a heavy embroidery in purple red and gold massed at the skirts and sides, while unsupported red in the shape of georgette bands encircle the sleeves and define a vestee effect. With this is worn the season's most popular neckpiece, the scarf of silver fox.

The hat worn with this frock has even more significance.

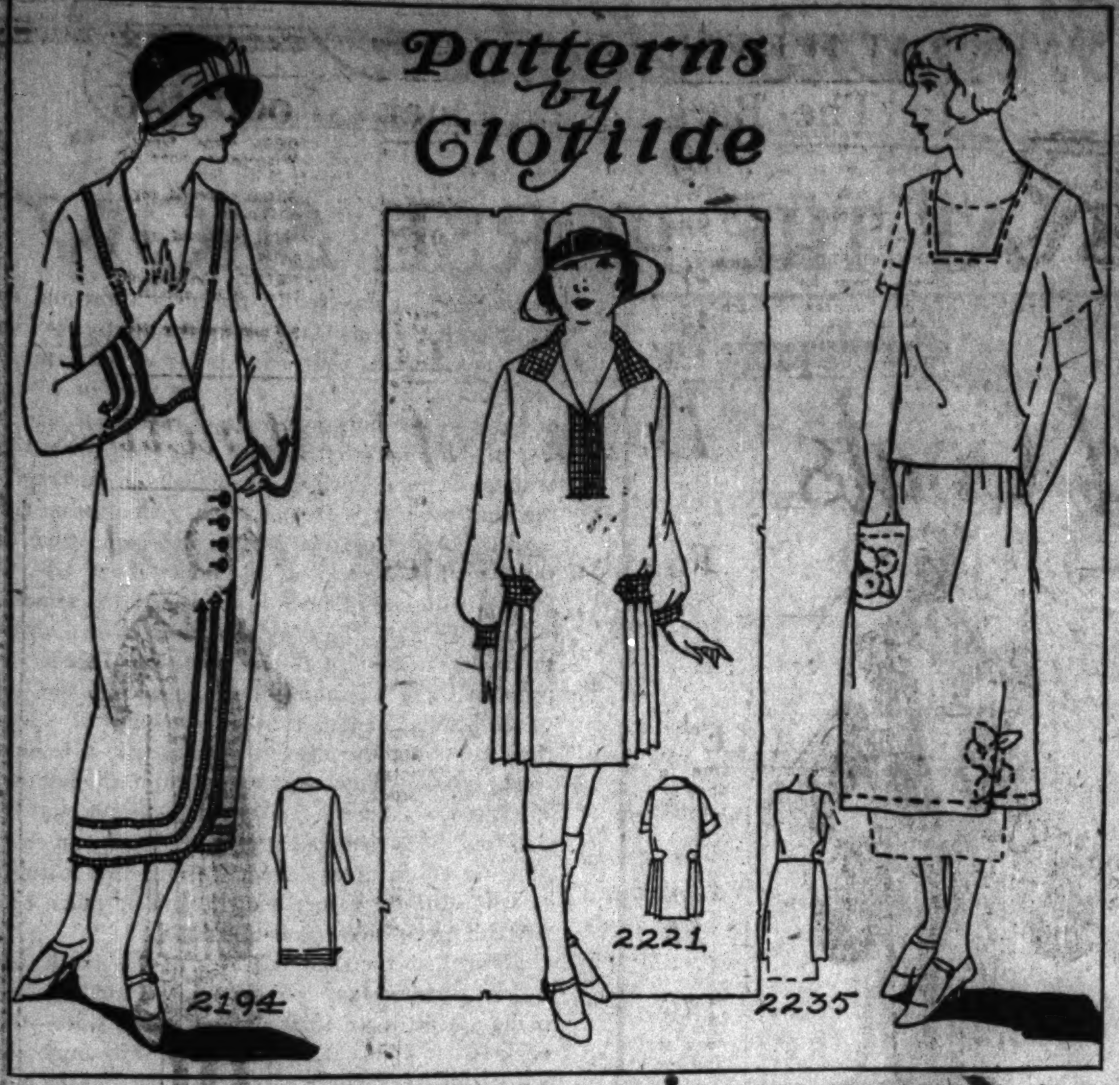
Patterns by Clotilde



2194—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 40 inch material.

2221—Girl's dress. Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 40 inch material with ⅜ yard of 27 inch contrasting.

2235—Woman's and misses' apron. Cut in small, medium, and large sizes. The medium size requires 2 yards of 32 or 40 inch material. The transfer pattern—700—costs 15 cents extra.

How to Use the Patterns

THE way the dress of pattern No. 2194 is cut will be becoming to many women and particularly so to women who have full figures. The lines are long and graceful and the manner of closing on the left side front helps to give long and slender lines.

The back is cut in one piece, the front in two, and the sleeves in one piece. The collar is cut in two pieces, and there are two styles of sleeves, one flaring, one close fitting—this last being accomplished by means of a dart seam up the outside from the wrist to the elbow.

The width of the dress at the bottom for size 36 is about 1¼ yards and no hem is allowed, so the front of the pattern should be held up to the figure to see what, if any, length is to be added or taken away from the lower edge.

One of the narrow silk braids will make as pretty a trimming as any for this dress, especially if it is made of any of the fine woolen dress materials. After the seams have been stitched, bound, and pressed open, the collar should be made, and it should be lined with silk. If the edge is bound with the braid that trims the rest of the dress the lower collar edges are not turned in, but the braid is basted in place on the collar edge and stitched close to the edge of the braid. Be careful in laying the collar pieces on the material to get the left and right sides placed so they will come right on the dress, and this same care must apply in laying on the dress fronts. For all dress materials should be made with the same side out. On some materials it is difficult to see much difference in the under and upper sides; but in weaving, if there are any little rough places in the threads they are thrown up on one side, and the material might shade differently if both sides were used. Generally when cloth is folded together the inside is the right side.

The collar facing, which covers the seam edge, must be cut long enough to come down to the edge of the curve. The fronts of the skirt should be faced with the dress material.

Most of the silk trimming braids have a thread along one edge that can be pulled up; and this will be necessary in rounding the curve at the bottom of the right front. Arrow heads will make an attractive finish where the braid ends on the skirt and sleeves.

Pattern No. 2221 is a pretty design for a serge or wool crêpe dress for a small girl. The front inset and facing that are cut in one piece may be made of a contrasting color and the same material used for the cuffs and belt. Besides this and buttons the dress will not need any other trimming.

The side plaited sections are cut separately and set in place. This will make them easy to work with. Perforations on the pattern show just where the plaits are to be, and these markings should be accurately transferred to the material with French chalk or tailor's tacks. Leave the bastings in until the dress is pressed and finished. Of course they will have to be ripped away at the bottom when the hem is laid, and put in again for the final pressing.

Pattern No. 2235 is for an apron that is cut in two pieces. The front and back of the top are cut in one piece and set on to the lower edge of piece and set onto the lower edge of the body. Perforations on the pattern show just where it is to be attached. The closing is under the arms and the patch pocket is stitched on the right side of the skirt—perforations on the pattern showing just where.

A transfer embroidery design is shown with the apron, and this will trim prettily, and with the addition of trimming braid or outside facing around the armholes and neck will be all the decoration needed.

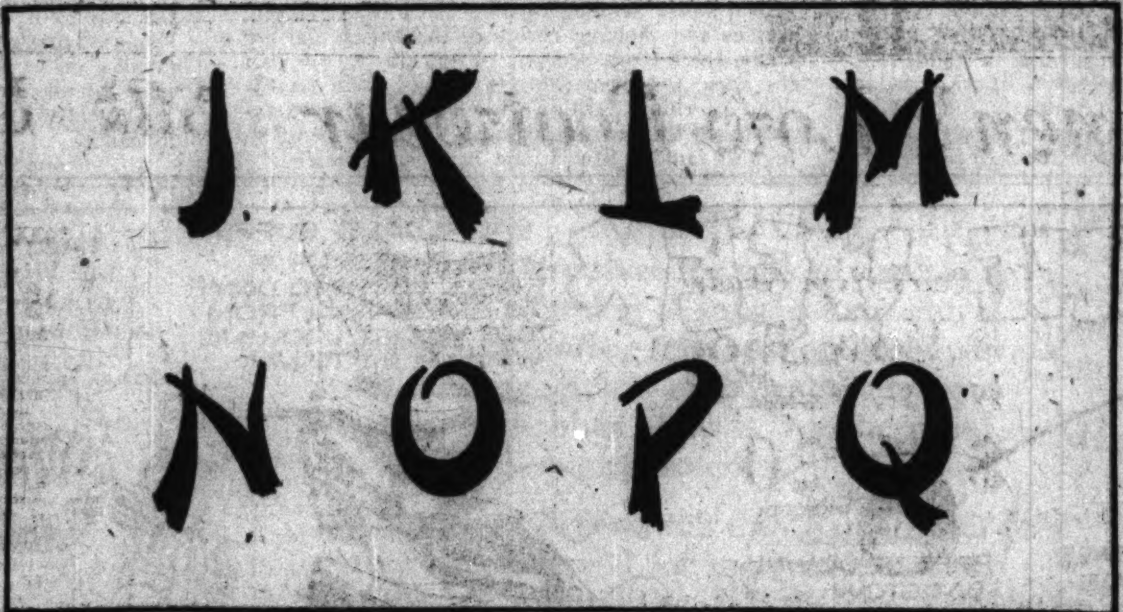
Practical and Fancy Needlework

By CLOTILDE



What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.

ALPHABET IN EMBROIDERY.

THIS is the second installment of the alphabet—the first part being shown last Sunday. It is one that can be used for many things, and should be especially useful just now, when Christmas gifts are being planned.

Initial letters should first be outlined in a close, even running stitch; then the spaces filled in with a chain or other padding stitch. Where a running stitch is used, the stitch should be longer on the upper side, and it is always heavier in the center than towards the edges—thus giving a curved or rounded surface when finished. The padding stitches must all be on the right side, having the stitches that come to the wrong side as small as possible, to keep the wrong side flat.

The embroidering should be done in a frame; and the stitch is a simple over and over one; taken evenly and close together, always running at right angles to the padding and taken as close together as possible, without overlapping.

Letters are sometimes outlined with the over and over stitch, and the enclosed spaces filled in with the seed stitch; but there is nothing more beautiful than plain laid embroidery, if perfectly done.

The last installment of the alphabet will be shown next Sunday.

NEW YORK. [Special Correspondence.]—It would require greater power of clairvoyance than I ever expect to possess to foretell the life of the bob.

Rumor comes from Paris that it is on the wane. A friend just returned tells me that only among Americans over there do you find loyalty to the shorn tresses. The Parisian women are abandoning it for the longer glory.

Inquiry among smart hair dressers of New York gives no hint that the American woman will early forsake her new freedom. They predict that bobbing will go on forever.

But a faint wail is heard from a number of those who have adopted the boyish cut in the last year or so, which may presage a revival of the more ornate coiffure style.

There is only one emphatic note to be gleaned from recent day investigation on the subject—that the bob must be individual in order to survive. No woman wants to look like every other woman, and if bobbing does suffer an early demise this will be the reason.

Thousands of Years Ago.

We have no reason to believe, however, that if it does suffer a temporary abandonment, it will not reappear again within the next 6,000 years. Research proves that bobs are no modern discovery. As many as 6,000 years ago the girls apparently were bringing home the castoff pigtails to rest in the parlor urns. We reproduce here some telling evidence that there is nothing new under the sun, taken from a recent edition of the Hairdressers' National Journal.

"In the Gizeh museum near Cairo," says the Journal, "there is a remarkable statue of the wife of an ancient prince. The style then in usage is shown in Fig. 1 of the illustration. It was confined to the highly educated and refined dwellers on the Nile at this period."

The continuity of fashion appears again in Fig. 2 which illustrates the head of a Soudanese Arab. These natives today take great pride in the adornment of their hair, plastering it with grease and dyeing it a reddish brown color with henna.

Ancient Mexico had a smart little hair bobbing style all its own, as you may judge from Fig. 3 and Fig. 4, reproductions from paintings of the Aztecs.

In the fifteenth century the bob was still going strong, with Fig. 6 as the dernier cri.

These illustrations are presented not with a view to your trying them out under your new cloche; simply as an interesting phase of beauty culture as it has been practiced since 6,000 B. C. was a baby.

Fashions Older Than Pyramids.

Dyeing hair has been going on for almost as many years. Born a brunette and "her man" of ancient times caught side-glancing at a ravishing blonde, the woman dashed back home and concocted a golden dye that put her rival to shame. Others washed their heads in wine to change the natural color which did not please.

Thinning eyebrows and plucking them is no modern novelty, either. Fashions older than the pyramids were eyelashes penciled with antimonial powder, finger nails tinged with henna's golden juice. The Misses Ninevah, Babylon, and Persia spent many hours between their little bronze mirrors and the skillful fingers of their slaves.

After 2,500 years the grave of Heliodora has been opened and there comes to light a lipstick and an eyebrow pencil, the little mirror she carried, and the linen bag she kept them in. This vanity case found in a tomb in a dead city on the Black sea would undoubtedly be able to trace its ancestry back 2,000 prideful years. Heliodora, like Maribelle on 5th avenue, undoubtedly on the boulevard in Olyva, paused between dabs of powder to marvel at the conveniences of her day; to wonder how the girls of twenty centuries before her managed without them.

History Tells the Tale.

They wore corsets in Crete 4,000 years ago. Beauty recipes for unguents and rouges antedated Cleopatra by thousands of years. Barbarous recipes—yes, but so will ours be looked upon with the passing of a few more thousand years.

Egypt wrought scent bottles for girls to wear on their fingers at banquets, and mirror cases that would make the modern girl green with envy. Their chains and bracelets, pins and jewels are copied by the women of today.

In China beauties were judged by pencilled brows long before blue willow ware was made. The shops kept little black bristled eyebrow brushes, like doll's tooth brushes. Carthage had beauty parlors. There followed in its ruin St. Cyprian, who warned the women of his time that those who used the lipstick would not be recognized when the last trump blew.

"The very devils first taught the use of coloring the eyebrows and placing a false and lying blush upon the cheek," he preached.

In the history of the race, one cannot find an age when beauty seemed content upon nature's simple plan.

BEAUTY ANSWERS.

ELIZABETH: IF YOU ARE TROUBLED with dandruff, the first thing to do is to wash the hair. Do so often. Every ten days is not too often when you are so afflicted. Mix sixty grains of sulphur with an ounce of vaseline, and rub into the scalp at intervals of a few days. You should also be particular about your comb and brush, keeping them perfectly clean all the time.

MARY S.: A BAD COMPLEXION may be due to one of many things. Care of the face alone is not the remedy. You must watch your diet, being careful to eat plentifully of fruits and green vegetables; drink plenty of water, eliminating candy and rich foods. The daily bath is important, and attention to the face. The latter information I have in printed form, which I shall be glad to send to you if you will furnish a stamped, addressed envelop.

HELEN: YES, BATHING THE face and neck with milk is good. After a thorough cleansing of the parts, apply warm milk. Put on with the finger tips or with a piece of absorbent cotton, and allow it to dry in. It is well to do this before going to bed.

HAZEL: I DO NOT FAVOR USING anything to sweeten the breath, as such measures would only be palliative. Bad breath is due to several causes. It may be nasal catarrh, disturbances on the inside of the nose, and often defective digestion. The thing to do, Hazel, is to find out the cause, and then proceed to remedy it.

C. E. M.: THE TEMPERATURE of the sleeping room should not be over 65 degrees F. The windows should be raised from the bottom and lowered from the top. Ventilators are good. A substitute for these is a screen before the window.

STELLA: FOR LARGE KNUCKLES, rub cocoa butter into them every night before going to bed. Swing Indian clubs for ten minutes two or three times a day. This tends to fill out the soft tissues around the bones.

FRUIT CAKE MAKING.

WONDER when the English plum cake became American fruit cake! An old English recipe for plum cake of 150 years back is as like a modern recipe for American fruit cake as possible, with one exception—the wet in those old recipes is always brandy, sack, or some liquor. Strangely enough, these old recipes say nothing about how to ripen or keep a fruit cake, and one might look through five hundred books and not find any directions about how to make the fruit cake keep, although you might find the statement that it would.

The business of washing the face of the wedding fruit cake with whisky, which some of our old fashioned cooks keep up to this day, having treasured the means for it, or the use of brandy in and on the cake, which is still considered an indispensable business in some quarters, seem to be things handed down by tradition and not by print.

A rather highly spiced sirup has been one of the substitutes for the face washing of cakes, and now one of the cooks who sells tons of fruit cakes each year has given us her formula, which, she says, will ripen a cake as well in two weeks, one-half cup of it being poured over it each day, as any of the real things of old. Perhaps it is wrong to mention this here, since it cannot be given wholly for the reason that it contains three trade marked articles, of the jelly order mostly, by means of which enterprising manufacturers have given us nalcoholic sherry and rum flavorings, etc.

Minus the Alcohol.

This sirup is that given out by Mrs. Mary A. Wilson, who adds to it two tablespoons each of three of the trade marked articles, but there is no reason why six tablespoons of one of them might not be a fair substitute for the three, and our grocers do carry some of these flavoring jellies and sirups. The sirup to which these are added contains one cup and a half of sugar and one cup and a half of water, boiled for ten minutes, with one level teaspoon of ginger, one level teaspoon of cinnamon, and a pinch of allspice.

But, really, is it not far better to make a cake that does not require ripening, or one that is palatable and even delicious the next day after it is made? There are many fruit cakes which are that, and yet they will keep a reasonably long time and be good at any time. As to using wine or spirits in the making, we are mainly adding what is recognized as a rich flavor, since the alcohol is dissipated in the cooking. There are good American recipes for fruit cakes made long ago which call for no wine or brandy. Grape juice is called for in some cases, and the use of grape juice to soak the fruits in makes a blacker cake.

A gay thesis could be written about the polite use of cake with wine. Dickens, in describing a wonderful closet, being perhaps a bit excessive in his gallantry about it, tells of a goodly fragment of fruit cake it contained and "various slender ladies' fingers, to be dipped into sweet wine and kissed." Other mentions in his novels of cake with wine, for the politest occasions, are too numerous to mention.

Preparations for Fruit Cake Making.

Since the surest way to get a black fruit cake is to have plenty of currants in it, the part of the preparation that consists in cleaning them should be done the day before, and it must be thoroughly done. Hundreds of fruit cakes, despite all the care required to make them, do not have that perfect flavor which comes only when every bit of the fruit used is immaculate.

Currants may be washed and yet retain some grit. They must be carefully picked over, washed, wiped and dried, even when they are labeled "recleaned." This is the one biggest job in fruit cake making, unless we consider the work of making home made candied citron. The only substitute for all this work is to pick them over and rub a pound of them in a tablespoon of flour, with the greatest thoroughness, throwing away the flour after. All fruit and nuts should be prepared before sugar, butter, eggs, and flour are brought out for the making of the basis of the cake. If ever a scale is imperatively needed in cooking, it is in making a fruit cake.

A Superior Fruit Cake.

Even without the brandy, I consider an adaptation made of Miss Parloa's "rich fruit cake" the best of any cake of the sort I ever tried out. Cutting her proportions down to one ordinary sized cake, they read: One-third cup of butter, thoroughly creamed; two-thirds cup of sugar, two-thirds cup of flour, three eggs, two-thirds pound of raisins, one-half pound of currants, one-fourth pound of citron, one-eighth pound of almonds, two-thirds ounce of cinnamon, one nutmeg, one-sixth ounce of mace, one-sixth ounce of cloves, one-third cup of brandy, or use water.

Miss Parloa's recipe of which this is but a fraction, does not have the ingredients written out in a column, which is really the only safe way to print anything with so many ingredients, besides its being more convenient to follow. It reads: "For four large loaves use one quart of sugar, one pint of butter, one quart of flour, eighteen eggs, four pounds of stoned raisins, three pounds of currants, one and one-half pounds of citron, three-quarters of a pound of blanched and pounded almonds, four ounces of cinnamon, six nutmegs, one ounce of mace, one of clove, and one pint of brandy.

Dredge the currants and raisins with one cup of the flour. Mix the spice with the remainder of the flour. Beat the butter to a cream. Gradually beat in the sugar. Add the brandy, a little at a time, beating until the mass is smooth and creamy. Add the almonds and beat well. Now add the well beaten yolks of the eggs, then the whites. Stir the flour in lightly, then the raisins and currants.

"Spread the cake mixture in layers in the pans, and spread thin slices of the citron on each layer. Bake for four hours in a moderate oven."

These were large loaves of about four pounds each, you can see by reckoning up the weight of the ingredients.

Dark and Sticky Fruit Cake.

A fruit cake with a light top, as dry as hard gingerbread, is not attractive and is likely to be too dry to be palatable, or deliciously so. The following recipe gives the other sort of top, and is excellent when quite fresh. It is an old twelve pounder reduced to a two pound cake: One-fourth pound of unsalted butter thoroughly creamed; one-fourth cup of sugar; two eggs; one-fourth cup of flour; twelve ounces of currants; eight ounces of raisins; five ounces of candied citron melon or substitute; two ounces of candied orange peel; five ounces of figs; four ounces of blanched and coarsely chopped almonds; three tablespoons of dark molasses; a pinch of soda; two tablespoons of cold water beaten with the egg yolks; a half teaspoon of salt.

Use a large bowl and a stiff long handled wooden spoon in mixing this cake, and then the hand. Plum puddings and fruit cakes need that thorough and complete blending mix which can only be done perfectly with the hand, and the larger the quantity the more need there is to use the hand. All fruits must be floured and for this cake the raisins, orange peel, figs, and almonds may be put through the coarse disk of the food chopper.

Baking a Fruit Cake.

The oven as slow as 250 degrees is perhaps best for baking a fruit cake, although some ovens with a thermometer registering 300 degrees are right for the cake baked in small loaves. The large loaves require four hours, but small ones will be well done in about an hour and a half even at 250, and surely at 300. When the temperature is about as low as anything can be baked the time must be long.

A fruit cake with a split in the top is usually one that has been baked in too hot an oven, and its texture cannot be compact. It is necessary to remember that hot steam inside anything tries to get out, and a lot of it ramping around inside a fruit cake will make it something that cannot be cut in slices without these breaking. And really hot alcohol or spirit trying to escape will riddle a cake. The ideal way is to bake a fruit cake so that it will swell equally, be flat on the top, and compact all through.

Taking Up a Cake.

Any well baked cake, even when the pan is paper lined as those for fruit cakes are, can stand in the pan until cool, but the pan would best be placed on a wire rack. If the cake came from too hot an oven, it may sweat too much, if left in the pan, but this fact should be a check on careless baking. A scorched fruit cake is of all things of the sort wrong, because the texture cannot be what it might be. Even when the cake tin is paper lined, it is best to allow the cake to cool before disturbing it, so allowing the steam to subside. A hot fruit cake will break easily, and that is a trial.

Some Old Cake Directions.

The garth, referred to below, is a hoop or ring which can be placed on a flat baking tin. These directions are something over 150 years old although they start out as though written yesterday.

"Before you begin to make any cake, take care that all your ingredients be got ready to your hand. Beat up your eggs well, and then do not leave them to go about anything else till your cake be finished, as the eggs, by standing unmixed, will require beating again, which will contribute to make your cake heavy. If you intend to put butter in your cake, be sure to beat it to a fine cream before you put in your sugar, otherwise it will require double the beating, and after all will not answer the purpose so well. Cakes made with rice seeds, or plums are baked in wooden garths. . . . All kinds of cakes must be baked in ovens heated according to the size of your cake."

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

COMPLEMENTARY ACCESSORIES SPELL THE SMART COSTUME.

By Bettina Bedwell.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—"It isn't the original cost, it's the upkeep," wailed the woman who appears smart on next to nothing a year. "I buy one of those charmingly simple little frocks that I can wear through the season without fearing the lifted eyebrow and the aside, 'She's wearing it again,' and I just settle down to enjoy it, when I realize that none of my carefully chosen accessories will do to companion it. That means more money and sacrifice to honor properly the newcomer to my wardrobe. I simply daren't appear in the most adorable costume without the necessarily harmonious trifles of hat, shoes, gloves, and bag to do it honor. Therefore, I buy fewer frocks and more accessories—it's the only way to be smart in these days of simplicity!"

This is the story of a woman who, with only a few hundreds of dollars to spend, uses it in the same manner as another woman whose clothes allowance is more than twenty-five thousand a year. It is, in fact, the tale of any smart woman today. Instead of indulging in a gorgeous orgy of gowns, she buys carefully, and expensively if necessary, a few well chosen outfits and then devotes herself seriously to making her clothes into tasteful and fashionable ensembles by means of the accompanying details.

The little Parisian midinette knows also this secret of the well-dressed, and apes them successfully with her one or two dresses and an indulgence of slippers, hats, and bag that actually belong thereto. This small person does even better than that—she refuses to go into places where her clothes will be conspicuous or out of place, so important does the Parsienne consider her appearance. That is probably one reason why she dotes so on black. The details are so much simpler and it is so much easier to get by in that shade than in most others.

American women are vying successfully with the Parisienne in the matter of a complete costume, and they really deserve the much discussed reputation they have for being the best dressed women in the world en masse.

Fashionable Paris is once more appearing on the boulevards and in the smart hotels, called in early this year by the consistent glowering unpleasantness of the weather man, and I have been watching their selections of fall fashions. I sought the perfect ensemble, and I found it—worn at the Ritz by an American woman, a wealthy Chicagoan who crosses the ocean several times a year and chooses her wardrobe both here and at home. There wasn't a flaw anywhere, either in her costume or in her fine unconscious way of wearing it, and if you look at the figure on the right and down the black column still farther to the right you may see it for yourselves.

The dress is one of the choicest of the new Drecoll collection, and is made of black marocain crepe, with a softly lustrous surface, fine and heavy in quality. It has been made colorful in a discreet and elegant manner by means of narrow dull gold piping of the high collar and the close fitting cuffs and by the row of small gold buttons down the front, sewed on with black thread. The gold is concentrated and heightened at the wide girdle, which is made of black grosgrain ribbon, embroidered in gold stitching, woven in and out about the flowers, which are cut out lotus buds made of gilded leather. The black crepe marocain jabot, which Drecoll has whimsically enlarged to reach the bottom of the skirt, passes beneath the belt, adds a large amount of grace to the narrow silhouette, and recalls piquantly the Directoire. To accompany this, the wearer chose, first, the scarf, a flat length of dull gold colored crepe marocain, patterned, as you can see, by cleverly arranged skins of the tiny chipmunk. There is a comfortable little pocket set in the ends to house the small handkerchief and vanity case, and the black markings of the fur are perfectly adjusted to create a charming effect.

The hat, which is shown below, is one of Reboux's fall fancies. She creates a beret from the finest and most supple felt, for the vogue of which this modiste is largely responsible, and ties it just above the lower edge with a tiny gold and black ribbon so that a small bandeau is achieved, which flares a bit to display the hair. Shoes to harmonize with this gown are trim affairs of black patent, banded by tiny strips of yellow lizard which lace at the sides and produce an enviable fit. The hose, of course, are yellow beige with narrow clocks of lace at the sides. For gloves the woman from Chicago chose dull yellow suede, gauntletted and stitched in black and gold, and her purse, of black silk, has a center of yellow, black, and gold. Thus is the smart dress trapped out to create an ensemble beyond criticism.

These same accessories, which are altogether attractive worn so, would scarcely do for the more rigorous occasion of a promenade on the drive after November sets in. Our other offering, with its all-powerful details, shows the hardier variety of sartorial blossoms that thrive best under such conditions. It is also a study in shading—a favorite way in Paris to add colorful harmony to your street clothes. The coat is a zibilkasha, the color of dead leaves—feuilles mortes—and has a double band of marron and brique woven into the border. This is cleverly placed around the interior of the rever and outside the collar, and is edged with seal. You can also catch a glimpse of it as the wind blow the skirt of the coat open, and the double band comprises the cuffs, topped again by fur. Diamond shaped buttons of marron and brique enamel are sewed on with black thread.

The hat, which is made of velvet, carries on the shading idea, the upturned brim being marron, the band above it brique, and the top the color of the coat. Even the umbrella keeps up the good work, with a double shaded band around the edge and a handle of carved wood set with rings of brique and black enamel.

This umbrella is designed as a boon for the forgetful, whose vanity case is always elsewhere when the nose becomes shiny, for it carries in its head a tiny case equipped with the essential powder, released by a spring and available at any moment without rummaging in the recesses of the purse or the pocket.

Shoes for this ensemble are of black suede, attached on the strap under two small buckles of brique and black enamel. They are of the simpler cut which has entirely replaced the many strapped slippers and sandals of last season.

The purse is one of those oversized flat ones which smart women refuse to part with and which still hold the supreme place in the duty of protecting the floating currency of the feminine world. It is made of lizard skin, in tones of brown, and edged with brique. The monogram, which is smartly large and flat, is of dull gold. With the single button gloves of brown stitched in a darker tone, the costume is complete, and a completely smart result is achieved.

Let Your Child Discover the World for Himself

Curiosity is the great Educator! Through curiosity Columbus discovered America. Every child has the capacity to discover a new world, if you will help him. He pipes all hands on deck in the morning, and starts out on his voyage of discovery. Whether he finds out anything new; whether he brings any real treasure into port at night—any cargo which is worth while, all depends upon you. He must not be allowed to drift aimlessly alongshore, but given some definite point to reach. Every hour of every day must be made to count in the education of your child, and he can take with him on his daily voyages no guide so valuable as THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE, no friend so wise or so helpful, no companion better loved. It is the world of knowledge, so successfully arranged, so beautifully explained, so fascinatingly illustrated that it never fails to capture the mind of a child or of an adult, for that matter. THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE IS THE ONE GREAT GIFT OF CHILDHOOD.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE

The Children's Encyclopaedia

10,000 Striking Educational Pictures 350 Colored Plates Complete New Index

A Work of Genius

What is it that makes all the children, little and big, and even the grown-ups, fall under the spell of THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE, so that they love it like a human companion? There are many reasons, but chief among them these: First, the 10,000 striking educational pictures, which arrest and hold the child's attention. Second, the plain and simple language in which the descriptions are written, whether of the pictures or the brief articles which explain them. Third, the three different ways of telling the same thing—by pictures, by articles, by summary. Fourth, the strong appeal to the child's heart and imagination, which is the best reason of all. It is the first work of reference which the children ever really enjoyed reading. It is a work of genius and a work of art as well as a little encyclopaedia which gives the important information of the world in the simplest and most delightful form. It is the simplest form of Universal Knowledge.

Opens the Doors of Knowledge

There is for every child some undiscovered country where he will be entirely at home, some open door which he will eagerly enter. The 16 Great Departments, Nature, Science, History, Biography, Astronomy, Physiology, Art, Literature, Poetry, Gardening, Carpentry, and Things to Make and to Do, are the open doors for his choosing. Place THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE in your home and watch which of them he will open first. Persistence and pleasure are the signs to look for here. You cannot "forcibly feed" the child's mind, but you can give it a chance to find its own natural food.

Let us take the breakfast table and see what we can find out about it in THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE. There are many striking pictures, such as "The Making of Bread and Butter," "The Manufacture of Knives, Forks and Spoons," "How We Obtain Coffee and Tea," and "Where the Fruit Comes From," or you will learn where that delicious codfish was caught, and how from a fresh fish it became salt and was packed up in barrels and packages. The brief but fascinating descriptions of such subjects as these, written in simple and plain language, hold the child's attention almost as strongly as the pictures themselves.

You Will Be Glad You Inquired

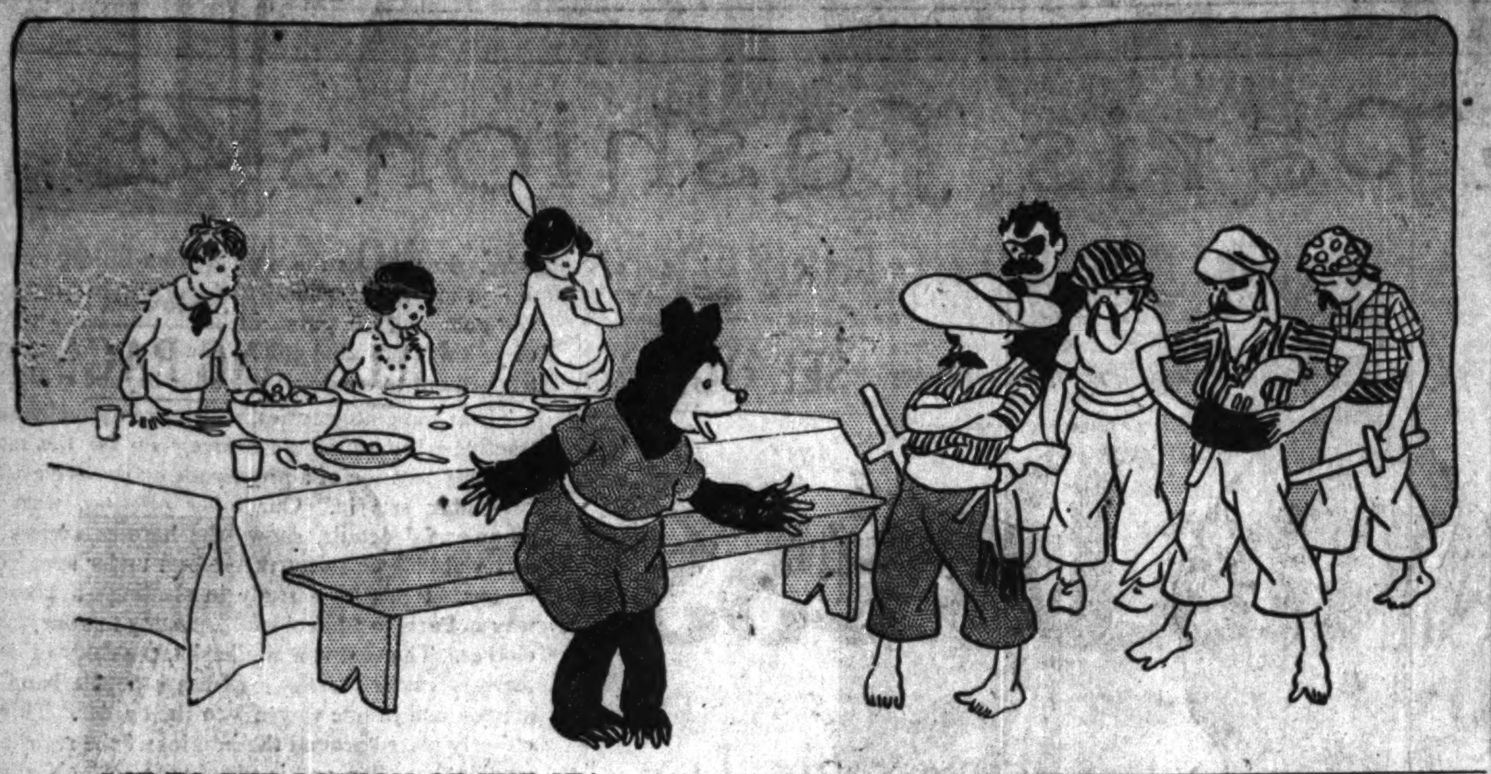
THE ADVENTURES OF FUZZY WUZZY



OFF TO THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA.

By Raymond Kelly

"PIRATES." That's a lovely word. Some of the most delicious shivers you've ever had came from just thinking about them when there wasn't a pirate in sight. Think, then, how delightful it was for Fuzzy Wuzzy and his friends, Hawk Feather, Betsy Ann, and Bobby, to say nothing of the mechanical frog and the crew, to have a whole crowd of pirates come in on them at breakfast.

They were really genuine honest to goodness pirates, too, for they had a Jolly Roger flag, and underneath the picture of the bones on it were the words, "Pirates of Public School No. 26." If that didn't prove that those pirates were the real thing, a look at them was enough to convince anybody, for each pirate had a wooden sword and pistols at his belt. They all had ferocious looking black moustaches, too, and each one wore a black patch over his left eye with a hole cut in the patch to see through.

Fuzzy Wuzzy was just as much scared as the others, but he liked that, because he didn't often get scared, not being afraid of the dark and, of course, not afraid of bears since he was one himself, or would be when he got over being a cub.

So he went right up to the pirate captain and said, "Good morning, Mr. Pirate. Have you had breakfast?"

"Why, come to think of it, I could eat a bite," said the pirate captain, sitting down to the table while all his followers did likewise.

"Piracy is an awfully hungry business," he explained. "It's not what it used to be. So few ships carry any worthwhile treasures, and lots of them don't have even enough for themselves to eat, let alone anything for us. And lots of them aren't as polite as you folks are either. They don't even ask us to eat with them. By the way, how are you fixed for treasure? Have you any jewels or doubloons on board? You needn't try to hide yours, madame," he added, looking at Betsy Ann, who was busy stuffing her beads into her apron pocket "I don't make war on women."

"O, thank you, Mr. Pirate," said Betsy Ann. "You're a very nice pirate, even if your moustache has slipped a bit sideways."

"It's always doing that," replied the pirate captain. "I'm unbelievedly hard on moustaches. I've used up about half an old sealskin muff cutting it up for them. But I was asking you how you were fixed for treasure."

"Well, as to that," put in Hawk Feather, "we haven't any yet. We're just sailing for the South Sea islands to dig for some. You should have waited and caught us on our way back."

"It's no use going there," replied the pirate captain as soon as he had swallowed his bite of doughnut, "I've dug them all up over and over again, and the treasure's all gone from them. There's only one place where you'll really find any treasure worthwhile nowadays."

"Where's that?" asked Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"The bottom of the sea. I'll tell you about it," and putting his moustache into his pocket, the pirate captain began to sing:

'Way down beneath the sea
There's a lovely, lovely land
Where gold trees grow,
Yes, row on row.
And there on every hand
You'll find just heaps of treasure,
Of nickels, pennies, dimes,
And quarters past all measure.
I've been there many times.
And if you'll go there with me,
Why, I'll go with you, too,
And every time we find a dime,
I'll give a cent to you."

"It's a fine idea," said Fuzzy Wuzzy, "but isn't it awfully wet down there?"

"Not if you get deep enough," said the pirate captain. "You have to go down to where the water stops and then a mile more or maybe a mile and a half."

"But I'd get my dress ruined on the way," objected Betsy Ann.

"Not at all," answered the pirate captain. "There's an entrance we can sail through nicely. Take the wheel, Bimbo, and steer us for there."

"Very well, sir," answered Bimbo, taking another doughnut and starting for the deck. So pirates, crew, and the four friends, too, set sail for the entrance to the bottom of the sea, while the mechanical frog hopped under the table to take another nap.

When she had eaten them she said: "Please, auntie, may I have some more groceries?" E. U. G.

ISN'T IT ODD?

By William Atherton Du Puy

ISN'T it odd that a cockroach with a touch of its antenna can detect the presence of poison in a bit of food as surely and much more quickly than can a chemist in his laboratory?

The antenna, or feeler, of the cockroach, which arches from each side of its head, is one of the most remarkable instruments in the world.

Its possessor comes out into the kitchen after the light is off to feed on whatever scraps have been left about. A bit of dough is to it a favorite morsel.

Stir a little poison into some dough, however, and the cockroach will approach it, will reach out critically with its antenna to examine it. Then it will pass on without so much as a taste. Man, with all his cleverness, is not smart enough to poison a cockroach.

This feeler sits on the head of the cockroach in an excellent ball and socket joint. It has a hundred hinges in it that will bend in any direction and can reach to a distant as great in proportion to the insect's size as ten feet is to a man.

Under the microscope the antenna is seen to have dots on it, particularly toward the end, which are sensitive spots. Some of these sensitive spots serve the purpose of the nose, do the insects's smelling. Certain of them are its fingers, used in feeling. This delicate whisker is most sensitive to any vibration and it is through vibration that animals hear. It is the insect's ear.

So does the antenna carry three of the five senses of the insect.

There are those who maintain that the idea of placing the nose or ear at the end of a long flexible member like the antenna is much more sensible than placing them on the sides of the head as are man's, and would make it easier to smell a rose in the garden or listen at the keyhole.

What a Pity

To sacrifice beauty and youth

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I was a plain girl, but I found ways to multiply my beauty. I became the rage.

Now I am old in years, but I've kept that beauty. And I look like a girl of 19. The thousands who see me daily on the stage wonder at my youthful bloom.

All because I searched the world for the utmost in beauty helps. I have kept up the search 40 years, getting the latest discoveries. I make frequent trips to France for her newest creations.

Now those identical helps are at every woman's call. They are combined in four preparations containing 52 ingredients. All druggists and toilet counters have them.

Send the coupon for a test of one. Learn what matchless products I have brought to you.

My Youth Cream

My Youth Cream is a remarkable creation, combining many factors. It contains products of both lemon and strawberry. Also all the best helps science gave me to foster and protect the skin.

It comes in two types—cold cream and vanishing. I use it as a night cream, also daytimes as a powder base. Never is my skin without it. My velvet complexion shows what that cream can do.

The cost is 60c per jar.

My Facial Youth is a liquid cleanser which I also owe to France. Great beauty experts the world over now advise this formula, but their price is too high for most women.

It contains no animal, no vegetable fat. The skin cannot absorb it. So it cleans to the depths, then departs. All the dirt, grease, grime and dead skin come out with it. My Facial Youth will bring you new conceptions of what a clean skin means. The cost is 75c.

White Youth Clay

A new-type clay, white, refined and dainty. Vastly different from the crude and muddy clays so many have employed. The final result of 20 years of scientific study.

It purges the skin of all that clogs and mars it. Removes the causes of blackheads and blemishes. Brings a rosy afterglow which amazes and delights. Combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores.

No girl or woman can afford to omit it. It multiplies beauty. And many women seem to drop ten years after one application. My White Youth Clay costs 50c and $1.

My Hair Youth

The cause of my luxuriant hair, thick and silky, finer far than 40 years ago. I have never had falling hair or dandruff, and never a touch of gray.

A concentrated product combining many ingredients. I apply it with an eyedropper directly to the scalp. There it combats all the stifled hair roots. It tones and stimulates. No man or woman will omit it when they see what Hair Youth does. The cost is 50c and $1 with eyedropper.

All druggists and toilet counters supply Edna Wallace Hopper's beauty helps. If you will send the coupon I will mail you a sample of any one you choose. Also my Beauty Book. Clip coupon now.

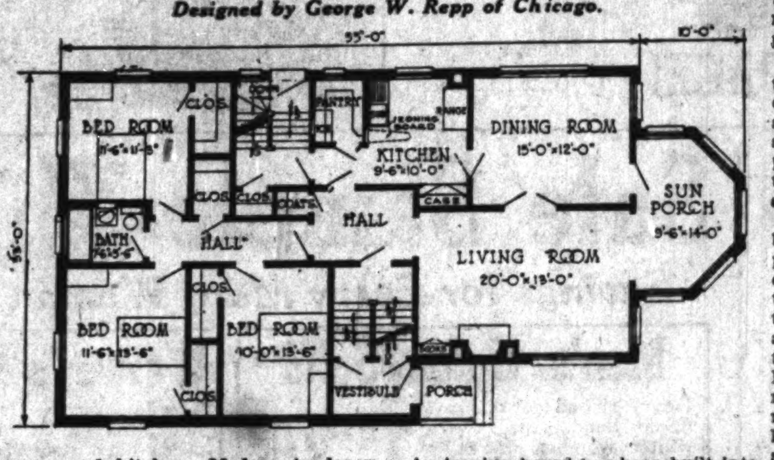
GEO. W. REPP - ARCHITECT CHICAGO

Designed by George W. Repp of Chicago.



A TWO FAMILY DWELLING.

IN the last five years duplex or two flat buildings have greatly increased in number, so it is not uncommon now to see quite a few of them, even in cities with as small a population as 25,000. The reason for this is that property, in small as well as in large cities, has rapidly increased in value. Desirable close in locations are too expensive for single family dwellings, and can be built upon to advantage only if they are rent producing. The two flat building is a direct result of this economic situation. Furthermore, more people are becoming acquainted with the many advantages of apartment home life, so that such houses are easily rented and, therefore, are a profitable investment for their owners.

The extra cost of building an additional story to provide a rentable apartment supplementary to the living quarters for the owner, is small as compared to the profits derived. The income feature, too, is always a strong selling point in its favor, if it be desired to dispose of the building.

George W. Repp is the architect of the house illustrated today. It consists of two six room apartments, and is an excellent example of what can be both a real home and a profitable investment.

It may be built on a lot as small as 40 by 80; the outside dimensions being 33 feet wide by 55 feet long. If placed on a corner lot, the value is greatly increased both in attractiveness and in the resultant ability to command higher rentals. Such a location is not necessary, however, if a space of at least three feet is allowed on each side for light and ventilation.

All exterior walls are of face brick. The roof is of slate, but if more color is desired, tile may be used in some tone to harmonize with the rest of the building.

It will be noticed that this building has a sloping roof, whereas most apartment roofs are flat and covered with tar and gravel. Such a sloping roof adds considerably to the appearance of the building. The attic thus formed greatly protects the upper apartment from the hot sun in summer. The attic may be floored and used for storage.

The entrance for both apartments is at the side. A front door of paneled glass leads into the tiled vestibule from which opens a door to the upper floors and another to the basement. Six steps lead to a landing and a door which opens into the first floor apartment.

Description of one apartment will suffice for both, as the layout of the second floor is practically the same as the lower one.

The apartment centers about an entrance or small reception hall. Doors lead from here to the living room and kitchen, and open on to a hallway leading to the bedrooms and bath in the rear. A closet for wraps is provided in this hall. The living room is truly large, being twenty feet long by thirteen feet wide. The plans call for a fireplace and built-in bookcases on the outside wall. A cased opening connects this room to the light and cheerful sun porch. Standing out as it does from the rest of the house, this room commands an uninterrupted view of and down the street.

Somewhat different from the usual apartment house arrangement is the placing of the dining room at the front of the house. This location will be found to be ideal, and, indeed it is one of the several features which take this building out of the commonplace

Double French doors connect the dining room with the living room, while a single door of similar design opens on to the sun porch. Triple windows on the side, a single casement on the front, and the flood of light from the sun porch give this room the bright, cheerful atmosphere so desired in every dining room. Ample space is provided for the china cabinet, buffet, and serving table between the doors and windows.

A swinging door connects the dining room and kitchen. Modern tendency among better architects has been to make the kitchens small and compact, thus saving as many steps as possible for the housewife. The kitchen of this house is a fine example of such efficient designing. A complete kitchen cabinet has been built into one wall, thus eliminating the necessity for a separate work table and at the same time providing space for all culinary utensils, staple foods, etc., within arm's reach.

Only a few steps from the kitchen cabinet the range is placed, with the sink directly opposite. The pantry is close at hand, and is provided with shelves reaching to the ceiling. The ice box is also located here, and is so arranged that it may be iced from the outside.

An ironing board has been built into the wall next to the sink and is provided with a shelf for the electric iron, as well as a socket for its connection. When not in use the ironing board folds into the wall, out of the way and out of sight.

Steps leading to the ground and to the second floor are just outside the pantry door. A closet is provided here for brooms, pails, mops, etc.

Another unusual feature of these apartments, and one that will appeal to every woman, is that the sleeping rooms are as isolated from the rest of the house as though they were on another floor, yet there is not the disadvantage of having to run up and down the stairs. This arrangement is accomplished by placing the bedrooms and bath in the rear of the house and separating them from the front by a short hallway. As mentioned before, this hallway leads back from the reception hall and may be closed off when desired. There are three good sized bedrooms, each provided with ample closet space. The two larger rooms, which are located in the corners, have two windows each, for cross ventilation. The smaller room has a single window, but in this instance is large enough to insure plenty of light and air. In addition to clothes closets in each bedroom a large closet is located in the hallway where surplus clothing, linen, etc., may be stored.

The bathroom has a built-in tub and other modern plumbing fixtures. Floor and side walls are tiled for easy cleaning.

To eliminate the unsightly plaster cracks and streaked ceilings so common in many otherwise beautiful homes, architects usually specify that metal lath be used on the ceilings of all rooms and on the walls of the living and dining rooms and in the bathroom. As a fire retarding measure, it is frequently recommended that the same material be used in the basement over the heating plant and completely around the front stairway.

The basement extends under the entire house and may be reached from either the front entrance or the back stairway. It is divided into two main sections, the front part for the heating plant and the storage of fuel, while the back contains the laundry and storage rooms for each apartment.

Many owners of two apartment buildings consider it advantageous to provide two separate heating plants—one for their own flat and one for the tenant. By such an arrangement there is never any misunderstanding about the temperature of the rooms, the supply of hot water, etc. Others, however, consider that both apartments may be heated almost as economically as one and prefer the single heating unit. As a rule, however, tenants prefer to pay a little higher rent and have their heat included. This feature possibly makes the building somewhat easier to rent.

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant, and send direct.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

THOSE LESS FORTUNATE.

HERE is a chance for the children to do a lot of good and bring great happiness to other children. The letter is from a neighborhood center.

"Dear Sally Joy Brown: Do you think you could interest children with an abundance of toys in helping some of our little ones? Cold weather is sending them inside, and we try to keep them amused with games, but so many of them never have learned to play. If we had a stock of toys and table games, we could get the shy boys and girls started with them and teach them gradually how to have fun, but we haven't the toys and games. I know there are lots of boys and girls around Chicago who have old dolls, trains, and games of various sorts. If they would let us have them we could do a tremendous amount of good. Won't you ask the boys and girls of Chicago to do this for their neighbors?"

Could anything be easier to do than that? Most of us have more toys and games than we use, tucked away in odd corners around the house. We may use them once a month or so, and we'd never miss them if we gave them to this neighborhood center, where they would be used every day. Many of the working mothers are forced to leave their little ones in care of free day nurseries or in charge of one of the older children. With what joy would one of these institutions receive your gift of toys, a box of blocks, an old doll buggy, a toy drum! And how thrilled would be the little girl who wrote to us just last week telling of the tragedy of a broken doll, to receive a new doll child to replace the old!

And then the happy times when the games are put into use—little children who have to be taught to play, so cheerless their lives have been—think how they will beam once they catch the idea that they are really intended to be happy for an hour, and can look forward to golden hours, all made possible by your gift.

Who Can Help Her?

"I wonder if you would ask some of the readers to donate from their store room or attic to me? We have just started to keep house in a small cottage, after rooming for two years. If I had some pictures, cushions, drapes, or small rugs to brighten up our plain furniture, it would seem more 'homey.' Am I asking too much? These are not necessities I know, but they held to make even the plainest of places homelike and I can't spare the money for them. I will pay the postage on anything. R. L."

Here is a call from out of town. It is an appeal which should touch a responsive cord in the heart of all housewives. Haven't you an odd pillow or some gay piece of drapery, no matter how small the offering, to add a little cheer to the humble home this thrifty wife is trying to establish?

Offers Back Rest.

"I have a back rest to offer to some one in need of one. It will, I know, lessen the suffering of some shut-in. "MRS. L. C.A."

Thank you, Mrs. A. You will make some one happier by your thoughtful gift.

Request for Infant's Bed.

"I am much in need of a bassinet or baby bed for my 6 months' old baby. He has never seen a well day since he was born. It is more than I can do to keep the other children clothed and fed, pay doctor bills, and buy the bassinet, too. I would be so grateful to any one who has a baby bed no longer in use and who cares to pass it on to me. MRS. F."

A worried mother with a tiny sick baby! It is a call from necessity and one that will receive a heart full of real gratitude if answered.

Shoes to Give.

"I have a pair of French heeled kid shoes, size 3½-B, and a pair of gray suede shoes, size 4½-B, in splendid condition, to give to any one who can use them. B. B. H."

B. B. H. is only too glad to pass these shoes on to some one who can wear them, so do not hesitate to write in if you need them and wear 3½ or 4½-B.

Dreading the Winter.

"My husband deserted us five months ago, and since that time I have done my best to keep my household together. I have been taking in washings, but my earnings have been barely enough to pay room rent and feed us. I have a boy 14 and a girl 12 years old, who are desperately in need of warm clothing for the winter. I dread the cold weather for them. Is there a reader who can pass on a few discarded articles? MRS. E. H."

A coat for the boy, a suit that your own son has outgrown—something that can be of use to Mrs. H. in dressing her little girl for the winter, a dress or two a sweater—any of these things will do a world of good.

Healthy, Happy Children Is Mother's Greatest Joy

New Way to Take Cod Liver Oil—Greatest Tonic and Builder of Firm Flesh and Sturdy Bones in the World.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets

Of course, all mothers—and grandmothers, too, for that matter—know that the greatest builder of firm, healthy flesh in thin, puny, run down children is cod liver oil, and especially where there are any signs of Rickets.

But here's something every mother doesn't know—Cod Liver Oil helps to make strong, healthy bones—and even helps to make better teeth.

Yes, it's true: Doctors know it.

Dentists know it—chemists know it.

And now here's another surprise! No more will the kiddies have to take the vile, nasty tasting, evil smelling oil that nine times in ten disturbs their sensitive stomachs and almost turns them inside out.

Never again! Thank goodness, will they even have to smell the vile stuff, for now science has given us—and people who keep up with the times are taking—McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets—sugar coated and as easy to take as candy.

So now you can go ahead and make the sickly youngsters strong and well—make the puny one sturdy and full of pep—make the skinny one put on good solid flesh—and if any one of them has Rickets, you can conquer that, too.

Mother: Try McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets for 30 days if any of your children aren't up to par. You'll be surprised at the quick help they will give them, and if you aren't satisfied with results, Buck & Rayner, Public Drug Co., Walgreen Co., MacLean Drug, Boston Store or the druggist you purchased them from will return your money. One New Jersey boy gained 11½ pounds in 7 weeks. Be sure and get the original and genuine McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets.

SAYING IT WITH STAMPS

by Doris Blake

Love Letters Today Are Like Modern Grandmothers—Not What They Used to Be.

ARE love letters seldom worth reading by any but the recipient?

So it is commonly claimed. Yet, we have our doubts, based primarily upon the voracious appetite exhibited by the reading public when there gets into print passionate outpourings from the pen of one or both of the persons involved in a sensational love suit.

Also, we have conducted love letter contests, and know them to be popular.

There's no denying that a love letter cannot mean quite so much to any one as it does to the recipient. Nevertheless, there is a secret lock in the average human heart which springs to let in the dreams on paper some other love distracted soul has set down.

Perhaps the popularity of the sensational love letter in the newspaper scandal is due to the comparative scarcity of letters inspired by passionate love and expressing that chiefly.

Women Less Restrained.

The majority of love letters available in book form contain well turned phrases and clever observations, but such self-censored restraint that they fall short of our general ideas of what a really genuine love letter should be. One does look for amative resourcefulness in a billet doux. Yet, reading the love letters of famous men, one finds that in his letter writing, as in his love making around home, man expects woman to take much for granted.

Woman, given a pen and a grande passion, leaves much less to her love's imagination.

It may be, too, that man learned long ago the folly of putting too much on paper. And suits are never instituted against women with their love letters dragged in as damaging testimony which may or may not explain their easier freedom of speech.

Gone Out of Style.

Be that as it may, one judges upon reading "Love Letters of Great Men and Women," compiled by C. H. Charles, Ph. D., that comparatively speaking, the love letters of today are like the modern grandmas—not what they used to be at all. Quite like them, in fact, since they both have gone completely out of style.

Dr. Charles regrets that "Cupid's quiver no longer contains those divine missiles which transfixed the heart of the stage coach era. Today people aim at the pocket," he says. "'I loves Annie; Annie loves me; give us a share in the business.'"

That is not it. Our young people say it with the telephones and not with postage stamps. And they manage to make themselves quite thoroughly understood.

In Dr. Charles' compilation there are a thousand varying shades of affection, esteem, playful tenderness, and conjugal duty, but few of the desperate lovers one might be excused for expecting from a world of such famous persons as Swift, Steel, Laurence Sterne, Samuel Johnson, Beau Brummell, Du Barry, Ninon de l'Enclos, Catherine the Great of Russia, Rousseau, Voltaire, Recamier, Madame de Stael, Napoleon, Browning, and perhaps a half hundred more.

Browning, from whom one would expect the ideal letter, with his poetry and rare insight into love, begs Elizabeth Barrett: "Help me and understand from the few words the feelings behind them."

Read This, and Weep.

We find another poet, Alexander Pope, of what is called the classic period in England, writing to Teresa Blount, daughter of a clergyman: "Madam—I write to you for two reasons, one is because you commanded it, which will be always a reason to me in anything; the other, because I sit at home to take physic, and they tell me that I must do nothing that costs me great application or great pains; therefore, I can neither say my prayers nor write verses. . . When my physic makes me remember those I love, may it not be said to work kindly?"

Napoleon in his letters to Josephine, in the early years of their marriage, is more the desperate lover:

"What do you do then all the day, madame?" he writes her. "What matter of such importance is it that takes up your time from writing to your very good lover? What affection stifles and puts on one side the love, the tender and constant love, which you have promised him? Who can be this marvelous new lover who absorbs all your instants, tyrannizes your entire days, and prevents you from being solicitous about your husband? Josephine, beware, one fine night the doors will break open, and I will be there.

"In truth, I am anxious, my good amie, at not receiving your news; write me quickly four pages, and say those amiable things which fill my heart with sentiment and pleasure.

"I hope before long to press you in my arms and shall shower on you a million burning kisses as under the equator. Bonaparte."

A decade later the emperor, on his way to Warsaw, meets with beautiful Mme. Walewska, the young 18 year old wife of an old Polish nobleman. After the state ball he writes her this billetdoux:

"I have seen only you. I have admired only you. I desire only you. A very prompt reply to calm the impatient ardor of N."

To an Unknown.

An idea of what a "mash" note of 100 years ago is like, is presented in an effusion from Stendahl, famous French author, to an unknown opera singer, Mme. Pasta. For two months, he tells her, he has argued with himself, how ridiculous, how improper it would be for an unknown individual to write to a celebrated woman.

"I am no Adonis," he confides, "although not an ugly man. Before I had the good fortune to know you, before my rebirth, which took place on that day, I fancied I was well built, respectable, and distinguished to look upon. Since then I have entirely lost that good opinion of myself. Everything about me seems banal, with the exception of the flaming passion, which you have set alight in me.

"How could I become acquainted with you? Whenever you were staying in Paris, I got into a cab, as if expecting some one, and gazed at your windows. But you are in the country, I hear, and I cannot get the porter to tell me the name of the place. I believe I am afraid of the man.

"I am 26 years old, dark, fairly tall, one can see that I am a soldier, as the people say, but after the incident with your porter I have had my whiskers trimmed as much as possible. Had it not been contrary to regimental regulations, I would have had them taken off altogether. O, if only you would not be afraid of my distressed appearance, if I ever should have the good fortune to be presented to you."

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possession you would like to enter the contest send it to Love Letter Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

DAWN.

DEAREST: Nights are so long, so long when I can't sleep. I hear the old clock tick off the minutes, which slowly grow into hours. I sit at my window and watch the dawn come up over the housetops. When I used to ride into Barrington on the morning train I'd watch the dawn brighten over the river I love so well. How like a dawn to a world have you been to me! Just as the golden rays of the sun flashed across the lead gray of the sky, and turned my river to flowing gold, so the gold of your love brought an answering gleam of gold to a life overshadowed.

Always there rode with me an unseen presence. I felt it and knew it was there, and it whispered to me. The face I never saw, yet somehow I always knew I would recognize it. The voice haunted me, sleeping and awake.

Now it is your presence that rides with me on lonely ways, and the same voice — your voice — whispers to my heart, and I forget everything but that I want to have and hold and keep you forever.

There is no one like you, dear. You are so wonderful. From the moment I first saw you I loved you. It is dreadful to be without you. If I could but put my arms about you I would find peace and rest. When I can get such pleasure from the memory of hours with you, how many thousandfold better would the reality be?

I am going to try to sleep now, dearest. Love for you is stored in my heart. Sometimes it almost breaks with the weight of my priceless secret.

DUNCAN.

ANSWERS TO LOVE PROBLEMS

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake care The Tribune Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped, addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Hasn't Much Faith.

"Dear Miss Blake: Recently I met a young man who says he cares a great deal for me. Shortly after meeting him he gave me a fraternity pin, which I have accepted. I am a bit puzzled as to whether he is sincere or not, but he shows a great deal of affection for me when we are out together. What should I do to test his love for me?

"PUZZLED."

You are not a trusting soul, are you, Puzzled? If he has been kind and thoughtful in his treatment of you, I think it rather foolish to question his sincerity, for after all it is by actions that we judge a person, and as he has given you no reason to question his attitude, why put him to a test, dear?

Better Not Try.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a man fourteen years my senior. I love this man dearly, but it seems as if he is not interested. Sometimes he makes violent love to me and then there are times when he seems too cold for words. Please tell me how I can win his affection.

"BROKENHEARTED."

I wouldn't try, if I were you, Brokenhearted. I am sure you can find some one with a more even disposition and one nearer your own age, dear, whose friendship it would be much better to cultivate, don't you think?

The Wrong Impression.

"Dear Miss Blake: I've always thought a certain fellow was in love with my most intimate girl friend. In fact, he actually told her so. He usually made the appointments with me, but of course under the impression he wanted to see her, I naturally included her in all of them. The other day I told him I felt that way, but his answer was that he had always wished to take me out. ANNOYED."

You have been most generous including your friend in all your invitations, but I do not think it is necessary for you to continue doing so. It may be he would be glad to have you accept for yourself only, and after your suggestion to drop out, which did not meet with his approval, let him be the one to include your friend in future invitations, dear.

Avoid Jealousy.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl, 18, and considered pretty. I would like to know how to keep a certain fellow jealous of me. I am popular in the city I live in, well liked by evrybody.

"SAL."

Sal, if you realized the meaning of jealousy and the sufferings and unhappiness it has brought into so many lives, I am sure you would not wish to incite it in any one, much less one you think you care for, dear. Better change your tactics, I think, and try to spread happiness wherever you go rather than misery.

If You Like.

"Dear Miss Blake: I met a fellow and my friends tell me he loves me. Shall I keep further appointments with him. Please advise me.

"E. S. G."

E. S. G., I think that is something you will have to decide for yourself, but if you care for the young man I see no reason why you should not continue to accept his invitations and go out with him. Do not place too much credence in the say-so of your friends—rather judge by the young man's attitude toward you what his real feelings are, dear.

Ask Her, My Boy.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a girl, 17, and I know she loves me. About a month ago she went to the country and promised to write me a letter which I never received. What is best for me to do? She is back from the country now but I never heard from her.

JIMMIE."

Well, Jimmie, the easiest way to find out why she didn't write that letter would be to call her up and ask her. It may be she was having such a good time she couldn't find time to write, or kept putting it off from day to day, as so many of us are inclined to do.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for coughs, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant—children like it.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for healing the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Celebrating The Addition of A New Building At Our North Town Store

EXPANSION SALE

Thousands of Dollars Worth of Seasonable Merchandise Greatly Underpriced

Stop and Think a Moment!

What big store in Chicago is much larger now than it was eight or ten years ago? What stores are providing the shopping facilities needed by the extra million people who have come to Chicago during the last ten years? Here is a good part of the answer—

"The Wieboldt Stores"

Seven years ago we completed our great North Store on Lincoln Avenue near Belmont. Two years ago we almost doubled the floor space of our Great North West Store on Milwaukee Avenue near Ashland. A year ago we bought a large warehouse to provide for our ever-growing stock of merchandise.

This Sale celebrates the completion of a large home furnishings building added to our North Store

Next Summer will see our third great store completed on Ashland, Monroe and Ogden Avenue. The foundation consisting of 2,000 fifty-foot piles and 23 caissons is nearly finished.

What's more, these stores are near you and easy to get to. You can drive and park your car near by if you wish.

Now for the reason for our Expansion Sale! We want more shoppers to know about the wonderful values and convenient service that are available at our stores every day. The belief that a good reputation means everything to a store, does not allow us to exaggerate our statements made to the public. We do know that most of the time, our every day prices are lowest-in-the City, and that most people who are in the habit of spending their money carefully, and who value their time spent in shopping, find what they want at a surprisingly low price. Don't be one of those who will say three or four years from now, "I never knew that you carried such wonderful merchandise at your Stores." Come now and find out! It will more than repay you during this sale, and the many times you will come back to us in the future.

The Greatest Phonograph Offer of the Year $37.65

In response to the earnest request by friends of those who took advantage of our previous sale of these Console Phonographs, we are once more making this phenomenal offer—a sale that is considered the greatest triumph in phonograph merchandising, such as only the Wieboldt Stores are capable of.

A two-tone finish in mahogany and English brown that is desirable because it blends so easily with the other pieces in the home.

Your attention is especially directed toward the feature radio-arm which transforms the instrument into a loud speaker. It is operated simply by a small knob which acts also as a tone modulator.

You must see it to know why this selling is one of immense importance.

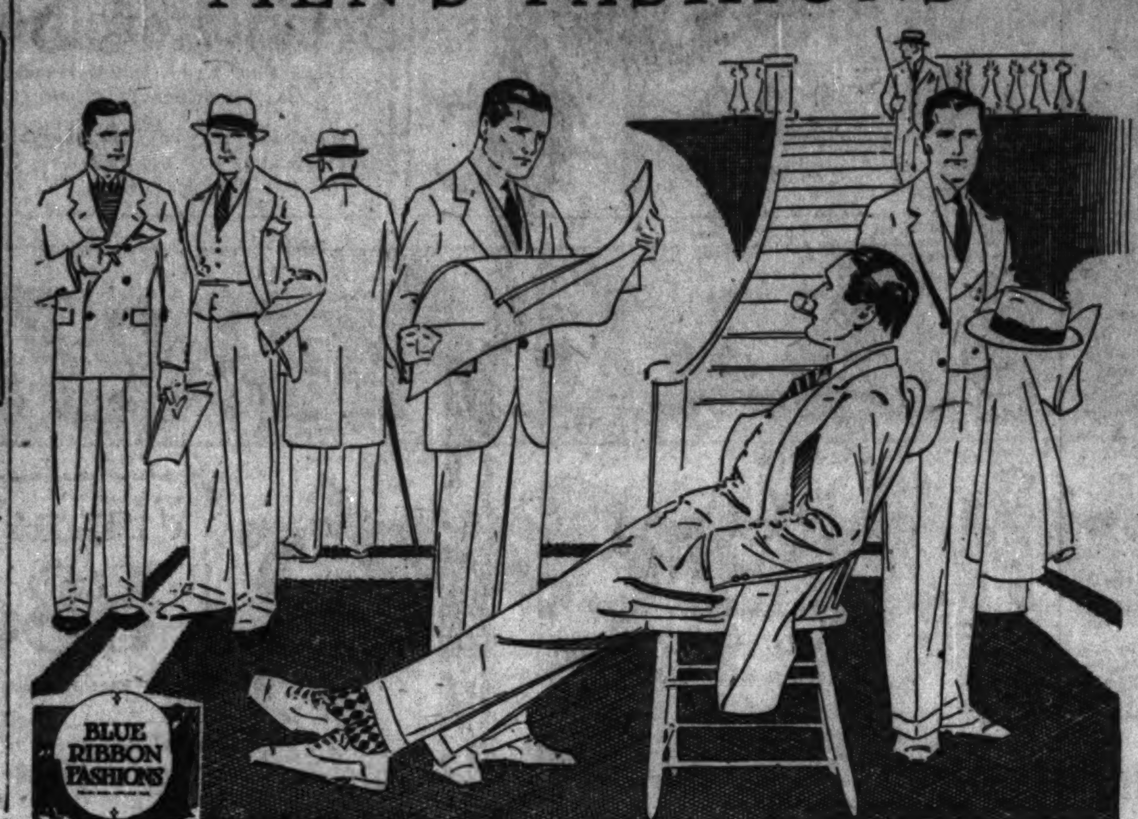
MEN'S FASHIONS



WHY MEN LOOK SMART THESE DAYS.

BY A. T. GALLICO.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The saying goes that styles for men never change. This is true in a way, as the conservative suitings for the average man vary but little from year to year and then so unappreciably that the change really appears to have been in vogue.

Nevertheless, any one who has observed nothing for the last five or six years must realize that if perhaps basic styles are still the same, the average man is better dressed and is a more distinguished looking animal today than half a decade ago.

The cycle of style is in a good measure responsible for this. A few centuries ago men were as gayly attired as macaws. They wore colored silks and satins, lace and jewelry and wigs. All of them powdered, some of them painted.

Now slide along the calendar and look at a picture of a group of serious male thinkers around the late eighties and early nineties. They are drably dressed creatures in black bowler hats and dark suits with little color relief. In fact, most of them looked like undertakers.

The swing back to gayer attire for men is under way. Not that we believe the modern male will ever approach the gayety of the courts of the French Louis, even if Charlie Ray does believe that men will soon be wearing satin knickers and silk stockings with evening dress, in the manner of foreign diplomats.

The trend away from drab clothing has expressed itself so far in the variety of men's wearing apparel, and bright colors, in articles which have heretofore been pretty plain.

Strange to say, it is the informal and lounge clothes that stand out these days as the smartest and the most different. The formal clothing for both day and evening has little that is new to offer. Unless, perhaps, there should be mention of the black coat and striped trouser combination, which lends itself to attractive harmonies with black and white checked ties, and the like. But there is no wholesale branching out into all the various and sundry colors of the rainbow, which is done in the more negligee attire.

It is this great diversity of colors, both bright and subdued, that makes the well dressed men of 1924 stand out as the modern Beau Brummels that they do. We have the smoke blue left over from last season. And we have the new lavender shades in suitings which bring along with them purples and lavenders in haberdashery. There is a great deal of light gray and tan in suits still to be seen on the streets. It is possible that the winter months will not succeed in banishing these light shades, even though fashion tries to tell us that in the fall and winter we shall wear dark colors, and in the spring and summer light colors.

As a matter of fact, there has been no hugely noticeable disappearance of bright and light colors from the neckwear field, which we have been accustomed to expect once the leaves begin to fall and the winter supply of coal is put in. The shop windows are still displaying gayly striped cravats, and the men are certainly wearing them. Except, of course, when they exchange their business clothes for the greater severity of a cutaway or a dinner coat or full dress.

Other present tendencies in men's styles that help to give the atmosphere of smartness of which we are speaking are the vogue for the striped or plain colored shirts with collars to match. There is so much variety in the colors of these popular shirts, and such a range of possible interesting color schemes with the rest of the haberdashery on the suit, that, given a certain amount of good taste, and assuming that one is not color blind, one cannot help but achieve a fair amount of individual smartness.

The turned down hat brim is another present style, which while entirely informal, to the extent of being out of place when anything but a negligee appearance is the object, should be listed with the articles of wearing apparel of this season which are responsible for the general air of good dressing.

Then there are the ties, mentioned above. Not only are there the brightly striped four in hands, but the dapper little bow ties of small but colorful patterns. When these are worn with wing collar, and a smart dark blue or gray suit, with some turned up felt hat of harmonizing color, you have a smart enough outfit to satisfy any arbiter of fashion.

Here are a couple of examples of what the man of today is wearing in the way of lounge clothes. They may not sound as gay and giddy as the satin pants and ruffles of older days, but along with being almost as colorful they are a lot more practical.

For instance, here is a man wearing a dark blue suit, striped with light blue and dark red, with which he combines a gray and white striped shirt, a gray foulard tie with red figures, gray and blue woolen hose, a blue gray top coat, and light gray hat.

Another combination is a rather light gray suit, solid color blue shirt, guards' tie of red and blue stripes, dark blue top coat, and gray blue hat, and gray and blue mixture hose.

WOMEN THE WORLD OVER

All professions which were formerly held exclusively for men are now open to women.

Under the Idaho law, women are not competent to act as jurors, according to a recent decision of the Supreme court in that state.

Miss Sarah Wamburgh, daughter of Prof. Wamburgh of Harvard university, has been recommended for appointment as a member of the league of nations special commission that governs the Sarre basin, pending a plebiscite to determine whether that region wants to go back to Germany or be annexed to France.

Frau Eugenie Schwarzwald, wife of the Austrian minister of finance, operates a chain of restaurants where 5-cent meals are served to the middle class Viennese.

What is said to be the record yield of strawberries in Pennsylvania has been reported from Schuylkill county, where Elsie Artz, a 13 year old girl, member of a strawberry growing club, raised 812 quarts of berries on one-twentieth of an acre. This is equivalent of more than 16,000 quarts to an acre.

Miss Margaret Goldsmith of New York has the distinction of being one of the only two women trade commissioners in the foreign bureaus of the United States department of foreign commerce.

Good Thing to Know about stopping a cold

At the first sniffle take a stiff dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, expel the congestion and avoid a cold

THE commonest afflictions of mankind are constipation and colds. Combined they indirectly cause the majority of untimely deaths. It is when constipated that you are most subject to colds, so keep the bowels open.

Sneezing is almost always the first warning of a cold. Don't wait; don't hope that it will go away of itself. Take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, cleansing the intestines of accumulated poisons, bundle up warmly and the cold will be gone by morning. Colds cannot "run their course" when stopped at the outset. That spoonful of Syrup Pepsin may stop it.

A good laxative is a necessity in the home. Since Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, over 10 million bottles being sold annually, the majority of families must prefer it.

And rightly so, for in the 30 years it has been on the market it has relieved thousands of people of those ailments it was designed to remedy, such as constipation, biliousness, indigestion, flatulency, sour stomach, dyspepsia, bad breath, fevers and colds. It will relieve any disorder associated with constipation. It is the safest, most gentle intestinal treatment you can get. Mr. J. C. Boney, 969 Main St., Biloxi, Miss., and Mr. Walter Duminske, 797 Wheelock St., Detroit, Mich., are never without a bottle in their homes. They attribute their uniform good health to having it handy when needed. You will find it in every drug store. A dose costs about a cent.

There is no secret about the contents of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and you will find it stated on the package, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant aromatics, free from narcotics and opiates. It is just such a laxative as is ideally suited to families, safe for the young and effective for the old. Make up your mind to buy a bottle, and if for any reason whatever it does not come up to your expectations, your money will be refunded.

Free Sample Bottle Coupon

Those are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, pin their name and address to it, and send it to the Pepsin Syrup Co., 515 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. Do not inclose postage. It is free.

GOOD MORNING!

And how are you this morning? And are you at all interested in reading about a motion picture or are you busy raking up leaves? Well, you can't rake leaves ALL day—so here's a little ditty about the new film at the Randolph—just in case you might be coming down town and feel in a movie mood.

VIRGINIA VALLI, playing the heroine of "K—the Unknown."

Most of us find ourselves on tiptoe, confidently expecting a treat when Mary Roberts Rinehart has a finger in the pie. We know it's sloppy weather when she doesn't turn out a good story. When a picture's made from something she's written, we have a hunch it SHOULD be a good picture.

"K—THE UNKNOWN" was adapted from the lady's novel "K." How good is it? By no means as good as the book. The adaptation strikes me as a slovenly one. The director rather lets the big issues of the story slide, dwelling entirely too much at length upon tawdry comedy touches that show a labored and quite apparent effort to imitate Griffith. Then, too much footage is given to the petty doings of minor characters. It's a long time before you've waded into the story proper. Once there, you're fairly interested—but by no means as intrigued as you might have been.

Busy Days for the Gossips.

"K" Le Moyne—as he gives his name—is a mysterious man who comes to a village and finds board and room in the home of pretty Sidney Page, who lives with her mother and aunt. All that anybody is able to find out about him is that he reads gas meters for a living. Clack, clack, buzz-zz-zz go the gossips—but all they can do is surmise. "K" keeps to himself, and Silent Cal has nothing on him for silence.

Because of a rare sympathy and magnetic personality, he becomes greatly beloved in the Page family and pretty Sidney soon goes to him with all her secrets and aspirations. Gently he advises her, and none is gladder than "K" when at last she attains her heart's desire and is admitted to the hospital as a nurse.

Once in the hospital, hectic times commence for Sidney. The brilliant and handsome young doctor in charge falls in love with her, and she agrees to marry him. Dr. Wilson, a divil with the ladies, has for years been carrying on an affair with a Spanish nurse, who goes with him wherever he goes and is his special nurse at the institution. He had known her first in another town where, in a hospital, he was assistant to a famous Dr. Edwardes whose "Ed-

HOLLYWOOD'S SHEIK DIVIDES HIS FAVORS

By Grace Kingsley.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Charlie Chaplin, the real sheik of Hollywood, seems to be dividing his attention between two young things these days. One is his lovely leading lady, Lita Grey; the other is Marion Davies, Cosmopolitan star.

Charlie's big car stands often and long before Miss Grey's door in Beverly Hills, where Lita dwells with her mother, and the two are seen dancing often at cafés. And recently, a month ago, when Miss Grey was ill, she received flowers and notes from Charlie every day.

Marion Davies seems to be smiling on Charlie of late, and the two have attended several big dinner-dance parties together. The last one was a Halloween party given by Elinor Glyn at the Biltmore, which included several bright stars besides Chaplin and Miss Davies.

Norma and Constance Talmadge were present, and both looked dazzlingly pretty in white chiffon gowns. Miss Davies wore white, too, as did also Elinor Glyn. White, by the way, is the prevailing color for formal evening wear among the picture stars. Norma Talmadge looked stunning in her white gown with diamond necklace.

Buster Collier has returned from Sacramento, where he has been working in a picture, in time to grab Constance back from his rivals. Johnny Harron was going strong when Buster came home, but now Johnny's nose is out of joint. Buster was Connie's dinner partner at the Glyn party, and hardly let anybody else have a chance to dance with her. Constance's white chiffon was made with a fairly tight fitting bodice, and she wore no ornaments, as usual. Constance always dresses simply in the best of quiet good taste.

Still Young Enough for Halloween.

The picture stars are a bunch of small town kids when it comes to Halloween parties. Harold Lloyd himself still delights in playing ticktack on his neighbors' windows; and he and Mildred Davis gave a Halloween party at their home for their closest friends, including Gaylord Lloyd and his bride. Mildred is getting thinner, and looked sweet in a pink evening dress. All sorts of old fashioned games were played.

Colleen Moore gave her Halloween party early, so as to go up to Mount Lowe and rest before beginning work on "Sally." Doris Kenyon and Ben Lyon, with others, were present. Colleen looked sweet in a white evening gown. The party was given at the Biltmore.

Engaged to Claire.

Bert Lytell missed Claire Windsor so terribly while he was away in Tahiti making a picture that he simply couldn't keep from telling the wailing world the minute he set his foot on the dock in San Francisco that they are engaged.

Claire was working, so she couldn't go to San Francisco to meet him when he landed, but she went, makeup and all, down to the train on Friday morning to greet him.

"We can't, of course, be married for a year," Claire said to me today, as she and Bert were preparing to take a motor trip to the beach at Ocean Park. "But our separation proved to us how much we care for each other. We have no definite plans, mind, but we do hope to go to Europe when

"Lucia" Chosen for Dal Monte Debut

By Edward Moore.

WITH the first steps of its annual journey safely taken, the Chicago Civic Opera company is now ready to turn its attention to some of the special features of its season. The most immediate of these, as far as those who go to the Auditorium by night are concerned, involves making the acquaintance of the soprano Toti Dal Monte.

TOTI DAL MONTE, making first appearance in America tomorrow night.

Of this same Antonietta of the Mountain much is being hoped. She is the most recent bearer of the banner with the device coloratura. It will be her first appearance in the United States; she will pause here for a time, and then go on to spread the same banner before the audiences at Gotham's Metropolitan Opera house.

Perhaps by coincidence, perhaps by sagacious planning, Miss Dal Monte's first pair of manifestations here will be in the two most popular bits of concerted music ever written. She will make her debut tomorrow night in "Lucia di Lammermoor," wherein the sextet is an important item; on Friday night she will sing Gilda in "Rigoletto," which has its quartet. There is a mad scene in the one opera and a "Caro Nome" in the other; altogether, it ought to be a pleasant week in coloratura circles.

All of Miss Dal Monte's reputation, which is considerable, has been gained elsewhere. She began as a pianist, and an injury to one of her wrists caused her to turn to singing as an outlet for melodic expression. First in lyric rôles, later in coloratura, she has sung through the length and breadth of Italy, also in South America, where they are accustomed to shout with approval when she is on the stage. During the summer just past she sang in Australia with the Melba Opera company, in which Frank St. Leger, also of the Chicago organization, was a conductor.

Polacco Speaks Well of "Lucia."

Giorgio Polacco, musical director of the Chicago company, thinks well enough of "Lucia" to consider it as an opera, and not merely as a personal vehicle for a brilliant singer.

He says: "While the score is old, it is not without its youthful beauty. It has been long performed only to emphasize the virtuosity of some soprano possessed of unusual register. When given, however, as a lyric drama, 'Lucia' still remains a strong opera. The great color of Sir Walter Scott in depicting the terrible tragedy has been most minutely grasped by Donizetti in his music. The popularity attained by many of the well known arias and the brilliant sextet are truly deserved. I would like, however, to call the attention of music lovers to the strength and expressiveness with which Donizetti treats the recitative portions of 'Lucia.' It is indeed so remarkably plastic, incisive, and dramatic that we can only find its equivalent in the classic 'Orpheus' of Monteverde.

"The public is more or less accustomed to focus attention only on the rôle of Lucia. I think the tenor rôle in this opera is equally great, if not greater. We seem to have the bad habit of thinking that the opera ends with the mad scene. There is still the final scene, which I consider a masterpiece of expression and beauty. Is it not significant that in a temple of

MR. CARROLL STILL CHAMPION OF NUDES

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Earl Carroll, producer of plays, gave bail and was released from his cell in the Tombs last week in time to vote. He is, he insists, as determined as ever to make a martyr of himself in the cause of truth and beauty and the right of the showman to exhibit both. But he also is a good citizen and he did not want to lose his vote.

Mr. Carroll, the telegraph dispatches probably have told you, went to jail to defend his right to exhibit the pictures of the shapelier of the nude ladies in his "Vanities of 1924" in the lobby of the theater. These, he said, would serve as both an invitation and a warning to the public.

If that was the beauty in stage art they were looking for they could find more of it on the stage each evening and at the regular matinées. And if the nude in art was what they were trying to avoid then they would be warned against attending.

The pictures were special paintings, for which the chorus ladies were supposed to have posed to an artist of some repute. They were mostly in vivid flesh colors. Some of the models were industriously rubbing their backs with long bath towels of chiffon. Others were bending gracefully toward fountains and vases and other objects d'art, as the auctioneers call them. A few were leaning forward as though adjusting their corn pads. None of them seemed aware of either her own nakedness or the curiosity of the gaping crowds.

Brought to the courtroom and shown to the judge, himoner allowed that these pictures might be art and again they might not be. He preferred to play safe, and he would therefore hold Mr. Carroll in $300 bail until the question could be settled judicially or at least by a jury.

Whereupon Mr. Carroll declared that inasmuch as some one would have to make a stand for the freedom of art in the theater sooner or later, he would go to jail rather than furnish bail. A Bougereau is to him, he intimated, a Bougereau and nothing more. And if it is proper for the Metropolitan Museum of Art to hang nude studies on its walls, then it is the right of a theater manager to hang them in his lobby.

He slept in the Tombs for two days, and had his meals sent in. No one seemed to worry much, except his friends and employés. They scurried about excitedly begging the young manager to reconsider and come home. The publicity wasn't worth it. But Earl stuck it out until he thought of the election. Then he weakened.

All Because They Will Outdo Each Other.

The nudes and their local defenders are really becoming a problem. And for the reason I mentioned some weeks back. It is not what one manager does. It is what another tries to do to outdo him. Followed by the effort of the first to reestablish his superiority.

In the old pre-war, pre-prohibition, pre-jazz period, when Florenz Ziegfeld started his "Midnight Frolic" on the roof of the New Amsterdam theater, he introduced certain tableaux devised and posed by Ben Ali Haggin, who is among the better known of the well regarded artists.

These tableaux were truly artistic, and while several of their female lay figures, so to speak, were covered mostly with rice powder and a slight confusion, the draperies were so arranged and the exhibition of them so brief that it was

Current Plays on Bringing Up Father

By Frederick Donaghey.

FROM a reader in Iowa comes a letter to aver that he is unable to discern a basic difference between "The Goose Hangs High" and "Bringing Up Father," the latter being, he explains, a drama of vast importance in the Iowa cities and towns not visited by entertainments like "The Goose Hangs High." . . . As I have not seen "Bringing Up Father," I have no reason to doubt that my correspondent is right as to the resemblance. There have been, there are, and there will be many plays having to do with the idea with which the piece in the Princess has to do: I've been looking at plays founded on that idea ever since, as a kid, I saw one called "Mein Leopold." . . .

MISS RUTH DONNELLY She will be prominent in "Cheaper to Marry"

"The Goose Hangs High" happens to be the best of the many recent plays having to do with the children in their attitude toward their begetters: that is, it is the best in the sense that it is the most effective. (For the last twelvemonth, I've had the notion that a good one was spoiled by Avery Hopwood when he made "The Best People" into a Chicago success; and I seem to know that it would have been a failure, here and elsewhere, if he hadn't spoiled it. New-York is said not to care for it; and that's no consolation.) . . . The first act is appealing and credible stuff in spite of passages of tedious twaddle, and it quickly puts the audience under a spell that holds through the two other acts, both padded to the guards with hokum that isn't always first-grade. Acted about as well as this play may be acted by Miss Grey and Mr. Trevor, that act of homely incidents and episodes is an actual adventure in the emotions of the theater. I am inclined to give liberally of the credit to James Forbes, who staged the comedy: left to themselves, actors could not fairly be expected to obtain like results.

And When They're in a Fix.

There is much in common between the Ingals family, in the Princess, and the Potters, in the Great Northern. Mr. Ingals has better grammar than Pa Potter, and, it is safe to assume, better table-manners; but his problems are fundamentally Pa's problems, and, although he and Pa might not be social pals if they resided in the same town, he, like Pa, has ever before him the prospect that he may lose his underpaid, white-collar job. Mrs. Ingals, like Ma Potter, "does her own work," although she indulges in the costs of help for the holiday home-coming of the children. Pa, a naif come-on who insists on regarding himself as sagacious, rashly puts his savings into a bevo oil-well; and Mr. Ingals, who has decency and self-control among his attributes, rashly puts his income into a letter of resignation while in a righteous but futile rage. . . .

Ethically, too, these fussed fathers function alike. Pa Potter disregards some of the celebrated Commandments when he discerns an opportunity to cheat the oil-shark who has cheated him; and Mr. Ingals, despite the fine line he draws when asked to propose a bounder in the self-respecting country-club, is a practical and an expeditious man when told that he may retain his imperiled job because the bounder, accepted by the membership committee, credits Mr.

THE OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

EDITED BY Professor J. ARTHUR THOMSON

A PLAIN STORY SIMPLY TOLD . . . . . . XLVII.—FLYING BIRDS

BIRDS share with mammals the distinction of being warm blooded; that is to say, having a high and constant body temperature independent of surrounding conditions. We may take this as an index of a high degree of vitality and of an advanced position in the evolutionary scale, and we shall indeed find many other features which lead toward the same conclusion. Birds are noteworthy for alertness of mind and body, for quickness of movement, and for their mastery of the air. They have highly developed habits and complex instincts; they are in turn combative, amatory, parental, cunning in pursuit and escape, and in many cases there is a surpassing beauty of plumage and voice which compels our intense admiration.

"Beast" is one of those words of variable and confused sense which drive men of science to use a language of their own, but the term "bird" scarcely needs to be defined, for its every day meaning is also scientifically accurate. This fact may perhaps be attributed to the existence of certain very distinctive characteristics common to all birds, and to a large measure of uniformity in general appearance among the nearly twenty thousand different species which are known to science; there are, it is true, wide differences in size, in coloration, and in manner of life, but there are no gross divergences in form comparable to those found, for instance, among mammals—between the tiger and the goat, the kangaroo and the elephant, or the bat and the whale.

This distinctiveness and this uniformity may both be accounted for in one word—flight. The whole body of the bird is adapted to this habit of flying. The bird's skeleton is a wonderful study from this point of view, but here it will suffice to mention the external features. Flight has brought with it feathers, and these are a unique feature; all birds have feathers, and nothing that is not a bird possesses any trace of them. Furthermore, the function of flight has secured a virtual monopoly over the fore limbs, and it has thus brought two other striking adaptations in its train—a bird is of necessity a biped, walking on its two hind limbs, and its mouth has had to take the place of a hand, thus leading to the evolution of a long, flexible neck, and of a hard beak which is often wonderfully adapted to the feeding habits of the particular species.

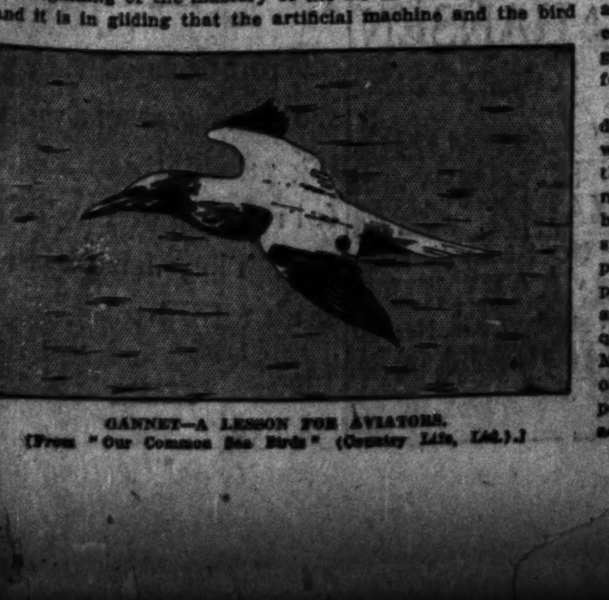
The Flight of Birds.

BIRDS are, of course, true heavier-than-air machines, and in former days man used to strive to learn their secret for the purposes of the flying machines which his heart desired; but within the last few years the main physical principles of the airplane have become so familiar that we may perhaps reverse the process by using them in the description of our present problem! Just as gliders preceded airplanes, so gliding flight may, as we have seen, have been the beginning of the mastery of the air in the case of birds; and it is in gliding that the artificial machine and the bird are most alike. In both cases advantage is taken of the resistance of the air, and of the consequent upward tendency imparted to a body moving horizontally and having a flat inclined under surface.



GANNET—A LESSON FOR AVIATORS.
[From "Our Common Sea Birds" (Country Life, Ltd.).]

When we come to active flight, a difference is at once obvious: the airplane propellers supply a motive force independently of the planes, while in the bird the wings are both propellers and planes at the same time. There is, indeed, a further difference in that the airplane's propellers, during level flight at least, exert force purely in a horizontal direction, the lifting force being wholly due, as in gliding, to air resistance. In the bird the wing strokes themselves supply part of the lifting power, as well as propelling the body forward. Nor must we forget the bird's tail, which plays a part in steering and balancing, as in the case of the airplane rudder; it is also often used as a brake, without which many a swiftly pouncing bird of prey would be apt to dash itself to destruction on the ground.

Some of the larger birds are adepts at soaring, and can remain in the air for a long time with motionless wings, and can even rise in low spiral ascent to a great height. The late Mr. F. W. Headley, a keen and exact student of the flight of birds, came to the conclusion that this feat was inexplicable except on the supposition that advantage was taken of up currents in the air, the bird's actual motion being merely a gliding one. He pointed out that gulls are adepts at this when flying above the edge of a cliff, but that they cannot do it at sea, where, as aviators and air travelers know, there are not the vertical disturbances caused by the varying ground level temperature and by the changing elevation of dry land. Another feat—namely: hovering—is familiar in the hunting methods of the kestrel, which maintains a stationary position for an appreciable time. Against a strong wind it would be easy to maintain a ground speed of nil, and it would be possible even with motionless wings. In still air, however, the ordinary gliding basis of flight is in abeyance, and altitude must be maintained by sheer vertical force of wing stroke, the bird being thus more nearly equivalent to a helicopter than to an airplane.

Speed and Altitude.

THE aviators of today compete to establish records for speed, for endurance, and for altitude. How do birds stand in these respects? As regards speed, in the first place one must remember the difference between ground speed and air speed. Both the airplane and the bird can, for a certain expenditure of power, attain a certain velocity in the body of air in which they are, but the velocity as measured from the ground may be a different thing. Thus an airplane traveling at 100 miles per hour in a 30 miles per hour wind may seem from the ground to be going at 120 miles or at 80 miles an hour, accordingly as it flies with or against the air stream; so also, of course, with the bird. All our speed records of birds, except a few made from airplanes, are necessarily in terms of ground speed, and in many cases the particulars necessary for a wind correction are unhappily wanting.

What are some of the actual figures? The available evidence has recently been summarized by Col. Meinertzhagen, with special reference to speed during migration; he concludes that a bird has an ordinary pace, which is the one used in migratory flight, and an accelerated pace of which it is capable for a short distance under stress of danger or in other special circumstances. Here are some of his figures: carrier pigeons, 30-36 miles per hour (over 60 has been recorded, but possibly only with a strong, favorable wind); crows, 31-45; small song birds, 20-37; starlings, 38-49; ducks, 44-59; he also quotes the case of a flock of swifts flying at 6,000 feet above Mosul, in Mesopotamia, which in their ordinary flight easily outpaced the observer's airplane when it was doing 68 miles per hour. The air speed of this astonishing flyer is, when accelerated, probably well over 100 miles an hour.

As regards altitude, it seems that, although birds have occasionally been recorded as high as 15,000 feet, they are indeed rarely met with above 5,000 feet, while the greater part of flight, including migration, probably takes place within 3,000 feet of the ground.

The power of flight has given birds the key to one kind of habitat after another that might otherwise have proved to be too dangerous or too inhospitable. To the conditions of these different haunts, and, in particular, to different modes of procuring food, we see a great wealth of adaptations: there are hunters and fishers, catchers of insects and harvesters of seeds, eaters of crustaceans and eaters of worms, plant eaters and honey suckers, scavengers of carrion, and many a "picker up of unconsidered trifles."

The Hunting of the Peregine.

PRIDE of place may be given to the hunters, and, as a type of them, to the peregrine falcon, described by the late Prof. Alfred Newton as "the most powerful bird for its bulk that flies." It is a strong, fierce bird with long pointed wings, spending no time on its comings and goings and dealing death in mid-air with relentless talons; in spite of game preserving it still maintains its place as one of the most splendid of native British birds. Its prey consists mainly of other birds, and these it attacks in flight, "stooping" always from above, and killing, not by force of impact, but by the sheer grip of its claws. "Having arrived within a few feet of its prey," wrote Audubon of the almost identical duck hawk of America, "the falcon is seen protruding his powerful legs and talons to their full stretch. His wings are for a moment almost closed; the next instant he grapples the prize, which, if too weighty to be carried off, he forces obliquely to the ground, sometimes a hundred yards from where it was seized, to kill it and devour it on the spot. Should this happen over a large extent of water, the falcon drops his prey and sets off in quest of another. On the contrary, should it not prove too heavy, the exulting bird carries it off to a sequestered and secure place." A peregrine can indeed carry a weight almost equal to its own, and a pair nesting on the Bass rock, in the Firth of Forth, have been known to bring grouse and pheasants from the mainland across two or three miles of sea.

THE GANNET—PUTTING ON THE BRAKE.—The instant fish are descried swimming close to the surface, the Gannet comes wheeling round; down go the brakes "hard all"; its depressing planes are tilted; it swoops downward, half closing its wings, and then falls like a streak of white light, plumb to the water—and there is one fish less in the sea.

The peregrine falcon belongs to the aristocracy of the bird world. It has a haughty stare, a regal dignity, is absolutely fearless, has great reserve power, and, as Mr. Hudson says, possesses a courage commensurate with its strength, and in hunting an infallible judgment. It is one of the most perfect of winged creatures, "so well balanced in all parts, so admirably adapted for speed, strength, and endurance." The lordly falcon is "the terror of the skies."

"Sooner or later the day always comes in early autumn to birdland when the peewits, feeding in silent battalions together, and the gulls, watching impatiently to rob the peewits of their worms, suddenly arise and wheel in wild disorder to the horizon; when the clustered partridge coveys crouch, like clods to the earth, and the flocks of small birds, feeding in the open, fling themselves like a shower of stones into the nearest hedge; when the blackbird issuing from cover turns before he has flown a yard, and darts back again with a chatter of alarm; when, save for the distant cawing of rooks perched on lookout trees, a parish apart, sudden, perfect stillness holds the landscape. Then the peregrine falcon passes, smiting her way from horizon to horizon, and spreading terror as she goes. Who gave the first warning of her coming it is hard to tell. Possibly it was a rook. But the marvel is that the majority of the birds, being young ones of the year, can never have seen a falcon before; yet they fling themselves wildly to right and to left long before the speck in the far skies reveals itself to human eyes as a bird of prey."*

The Golden Eagle is the largest of our native birds of prey. The well known lines of Tennyson spring to the mind:

He clasps the crag with crooked hands;
Close to the sun lonely lands,
Ring'd with the azure world, he stands.
The wrinkled sea beneath him crawls;
He watches from his mountain walls,
And like a thunderbolt he falls.

The golden eagle looks well after its young, feeding them at dawn and dusk each day. "The grouse that are brought to the eaglet are plucked and headless; the hares and rabbits are skinned and made ready in a larder distant from the nest; the youngsters get only digestible food, being unable for some weeks to form pellets." The eaglets are taught how to hunt and how to kill, as well as how to carry and skin their prey. When they are about five months old they are driven away.

* E. K. Robinson, The Country Day by Day.

The Fishing of the Cormorant.

VERY different from the habits of these birds of prey is the under water hunting of the cormorant, a bird of much less noble habits and aspect, which is notable for clumsiness in the air, and for uncouth appearance on land, as well as for the foul stenches of its untidy nest! Under the water, however, it is a thing of beauty, so perfectly adapted is it to the swift and dexterous pursuit of its active prey. In a tank with glass sides we may see this to great advantage, and note how the wings are kept close to the body—not used for swimming as in the case of penguins and auks—and how the air bubbles cling to the feathers like bright jewels or polished silver. We can see, too, how the strong hooked beak is used to seize the fish, which is then borne to the surface to be tossed in the air, recaught, and swallowed, for the cormorant does not swallow under water like a penguin. The Chinese train cormorants to catch fish for the market, a collar round the neck preventing the birds from swallowing their prizes; the same thing was done in Britain at one time, although only for sport.

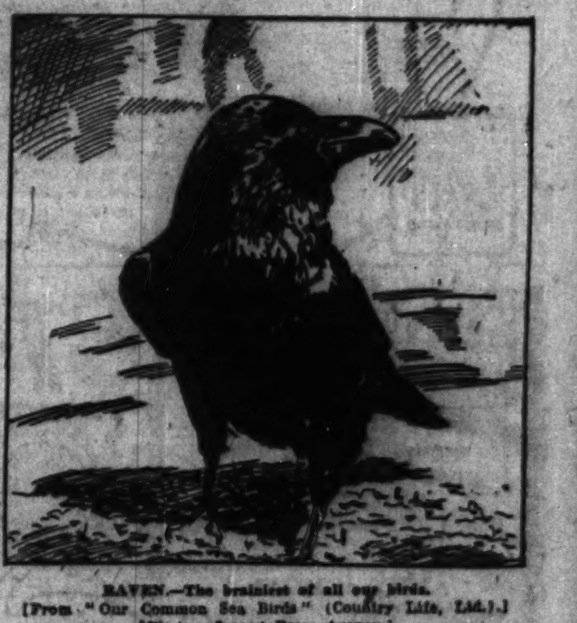
Different Fishing Methods.

IT is interesting to compare the different methods of fishing adopted by two of the cormorant's relatives, the gannet and the pelican, and the different forms of beak which go with each. The gannet, or so-called Solan "goose," nests in great colonies on several of the rocky islets around the British coasts, and it may also be seen at most times off many parts which are far from these breeding stations. It is a bird of fine white plumage and noble flight, which, soaring at a height and then suddenly dropping like a plummet, uses its long straight beak to transfix fish swimming near the surface.

The pelican, again, is a fisher of the shallows which wades through the water with its enormous gape at full extent, and the great pouch below its beak ready to receive what comes. A party may work in concert, sweeping the pool in a long line like a living seine net. "The cormorant pursues, twists, turns, and seizes; the gannet soars, plunges, and spears; the pelican sweeps and engulfs."



RAVEN.—The brainiest of all our birds.
[From "Our Common Sea Birds" (Country Life, Ltd.).]
[Photo: James' Press Agency.]

The Wisdom of the Raven.

WE may refer here to the raven. Like some of the larger birds of prey, the raven takes a wife for life, and they use the same nest year after year. As an inland bird the raven is now not so frequently met with, for it has been driven by persecution from many of its former mountain haunts. Luckily it is one of the hardiest of birds and can adapt itself to great extremes of temperature.

The raven, the biggest of our crows, is the brainest of all our birds. "His family are the great legal fraternity among birds; nimbleness of wit mingled with audacity characterize them all, so that the very first time that I observed the hoodie crow at home I was struck with his laughable resemblance to a barrister in wig and gown. There was the same keen eye for the shortcomings of others, and the general look of mental superiority to ordinary folk."*

The raven has the reputation of being one of the longest lived birds; it enjoys a reputation also for mimicry. If you climb to its roosting place on some mountain precipice you may hear "in the silence of the hills how the ravens croon themselves to sleep, uttering reminiscences of the sounds they have been listening to throughout the day." Mr. F. B. Kirkman, in "The British Bird Book," writes: "From the growing congregation on the ridge there descended through the thickening dusk the strangest of evensongs—a weird, wild medley of many sounds: the barking of dogs, the bleating of goats, the lowing of cows, the becking of grouse calling across the moorland, and now and then the deep bellowing challenge of the stag." Their intelligence is almost uncanny, and when we think that they are of savage character and have a deep, harsh, human like voice, we can imagine some explanation of the evil reputation of the bird, and the somber superstitions associated with it.

Current Plays on Bringing Up Father

By Frederick Donaghey.

Ingals with a good turn. . . . And the Ingals children differ in breeding rather than in kind from the Potter children. . . . Yet, I (who react to and enjoy both plays) doubt that "The Goose Hangs High" and "The Potters" will evoke cheers from the same audience.

Mr. Trevor, in the new comedy, gives better reasons for his eminence on the pay-rolls than in any other part I have seen him perform. I readily overlook even his trick of hanging on to his coat-lapels: somehow, it seems to be just the thing that this human, credible pater-familias of his would do in the crises of his full, spirited, and commonplace existence. (And Mr. Ingals really is what may be termed the la-gallant of the play.) . . . Miss Grey is flawless; Mrs. Whiffen does with ease what she is called upon to do; a stranger, Miss Lorna Elliott, is good in one of the excessive incidental parts; and the children are given in the right key, especially by Mr. Dressler, who was so good two years ago in a like part in "So, This Is London!"

Fun by a Clever Woman.

New in the book-stores is an amusing volume of light matter, "Distressing Dialogues," credited to Nancy Boyd, "with a preface by Edna St. Vincent Millay," dated last May in Tokyo. Miss Boyd is Miss Millay; and Miss Millay is a clever, cruel, and merciless writer of topical travesty and satire. She has written one play, in all of five acts, "The Lamp and the Bell," and another, in one act, "Aria da Capo," which the amateurs have made familiar, although they haven't yet managed to make it contemptible. . . . I found a hundred or more places for laughter in these Dialogues and some cynical little essays on one thing and another of interest to most of us as the days run into more days, and the task of kidding ourselves becomes less grateful. . . . Some of this matter, it seems, has been printed in Vanity Fair; and that's no reason for not reading it in a book.

Etcætera.

> Gilda Gray has no voice; but when she sings people listen.—O. O. McIntyre in the Evening Post.

As O. O. says, she has no voice; and most persons listen—listen good and hard—when she does the aria from "Wriggletto."

This, from the current issue of Life, is a good joke:

> If you are interested in dramatics, remember that, for your husband, a Little Theater goes a long way.

THIS-AND-THAT

When the Duncan Sisters go out of the Selwyn, a fortnight hence, their place in that theater will be taken by Miss Cowl, who is of the expressed belief that she will yet have Chicago fighting to buy seats for her revival of "Romeo and Juliet." At least, this was how she felt about it late Friday night. . . . And, as a consequence of her move from the Garrick to the Selwyn, she is to hold "The Depths" for the latter house, instead of giving it in the former a week from tonight, as was announced in THE TRIBUNE of Thursday. Whether she will use the new play for the opening in the Selwyn or hold it back for a week or two while observing the effect of the change on Shakspere is not made known. . . . And, of course, her plans may again be changed. As they stood Friday night, she is to remain in the Selwyn until Christmas-week, at least; and, if she leave then, Charlot's Revue will be brought in for a New-Year attraction.

The next play in the Garrick will be "The Outsider," a play by Miss Dorothy Brandon that was something of a sensation in London, as sensations of the theater go there. It was put on in New-York last March, and kept in performance until the strike of the actors' union, June 1. . . . Lionel Atwill, who was in it in New-York, will be in it here.

The Apollo engagement of the Greenwich Village Follies has been lengthened; and the expectation now is that it will last until Christmas-week. . . . The Passing Show, now current in the New-York Winter Garden, is indicated in succession.

Pinero's "The Enchanted Cottage," which hasn't been professionally acted in this neighborhood, is in performance by the North-Shore Theater Guild,—of which, by-the-way, Guy Stuart Bailey is again a member. This is the most recent piece by Pinero, who hasn't been writing much since "The Big Drum" and "The Mind-the-Paint Girl." The Guild's actors will appear tomorrow night in Winnetka and Tuesday night in Evanston. . . . Mrs. Laid Bell explains that the Guild's next play, to be done in January, will be "The Square Peg," by Lewis Beach, author of "The Goose Hangs High." "The Square Peg," like "The Enchanted Cottage," has not been acted here.

Another play by Mr. Beach is named "Chattels," and is announced for early production with Miss Blanche Bates in the most important character.

"God Bless Our Home!" is now the title of one of the two plays heretofore named "Poor Richard": this is the one by Philip Barry, author of "You and I," and is not the one of which Benjamin Franklin is the central character.

New things of the week in New-York will be "The Man Who Killed," "Attorney Hallers," and "Man and His Visions," to be acted in French by Firmin Gémier and the actors he has brought over from the Paris Odéon. "A Steam-Roller," by Lawrence Eyre, with Miss Janet Beecher, Miss Olive Wyndham, and Bruce McRae in the cast; "Simon Called Peter," a flivver of last season in Chicago; "Desire Under the Elms," one of Eugene O'Neill's uncounted new pieces, with Walter Huston in the principal part, "Silence," another Chicago failure, "Shipwrecked," an "effect"-piece; and "Madame Pompadour," an operetta by Leo Fall with an American "book" by Miss Clare Kummer. . . . Miss Hope Hampton, of the movies, has been let out of the title-rôle, and the well-known Miss Wilda Bennett has been let into it. Others in the cast are Miss Wanda Lyon, Frederick Lewis (of the Sothern-Marlowe répertoire), Florenz Ames (out of the two-a-day), and the veteran Louis Harrison, last here in "To the Ladies!"

Mrs. Fiske's revival of "The Rivals," with a cast swelling with "names," is to be made known tomorrow night in Pittsburgh.

"Dancing Mothers," which the critics said they didn't like, is the first new play of the season in New-York to click one hundred performances. . . . It is told that Channing Pollock's "Such a Little Queen!" is being performed in Prague, and his "The Sign of the Door" in Brussels, and that "The Fool," which seems to be a success in London, is soon to be done in Stockholm.

Miss Helen Hayes, who has been in "Dancing Mothers," goes out of it in order to co-star with Sidney Blackmer in "Quarantine," by Mrs. H. M. Harwood, who writes under the name of F. Tennyson Jesse. The play was acted some time ago in London. . . . Later, it is expected, Miss Hayes will go with the Theater Guild of New-York for its revival of Shaw's "Cæsar and Cleopatra." (This comedy is now held by many who know nothing about such things to be Shaw's masterpiece, and they are probably right about it.) When, in 1906, the piece was first done in this country by Forbes-Robertson, the Cleopatra was Miss Gertrude Elliott. When, in 1914, he revived it for a tour here, the rôle was given to Miss Laura Cowie. . . . It was on that tour that, saying he was incensed by Shaw's writings in favor of Germany, Forbes-Robertson made a ceremony of burning the settings and costumes—a gesture that is said to have made Shaw laugh out loud, although it cost him the royalties which he so dearly loves as a reward for improving humanity by means of the theater.

Dana Burnet, the story-writer, is reported to have withdrawn his play, "The Prisoner," after it had been placed in rehearsal rather than permit the management to make changes in it.

"Is Zat So!" is the name of a comedy by James Gleason and Richard Tabor; and Mr. Gleason and Donald Gallaher are to be in the cast. . . . The principal character is an American prizefighter; and the circumstance recalls the grotesque venture with a play based on Shaw's "Cashel Byron's Profession" with James J. Corbett as the star. Shaw, himself, afterward made a kidding stage-version of his novel, calling the play "The Admirable Bashville," and writing it in blank-verse, with the explanation that he didn't have time to write it in prose. . . . The most entertaining and logical prize-fighter I've seen in an American play was a character in Augustus Thomas' comedy called "The Other Girl": Lionel Barrymore acted the rôle in New-York, and was bully in it. I think Thomas W. Ross afterward made a mess of it in Chicago.

Miss Nora Bayes is back in the United States, after registering mightily in London. . . . Miss Mary Nash, out of a regular job through the quick failure of "Hassan," is in the varieties in a little piece called "Fear," and billtops this week in the Palace.

Miss Tessa Kosta is the star of "Tantalizing April," which has songs and things in it. . . . "Lass o' Laughter" is the name of a new comedy of Scotch implication for which imported actors are engaged.

Ed Wynn, in high prosperity in Manhattan with "The Grab-Bag," will, it is reported, have a theater of his own bearing his name, and all that. . . . Naming theaters for living actors is a foolish pastime. Lew Fields has had five or six in New-York named for him since he and Joe Weber broke up their prosperous partnership in 1904; and now, twenty years later, Fields is back with Weber in the varieties, and thinking well of the revenue therefrom. William Collier, too, had a theater named for him. Among the New-York playhouses is the Eltinge, and the performer for whom it is named has never acted in it. And there is the Jolson Theater, which, it is said, Jolson doesn't care for, preferring to appear in another house there.

OUT OF THE TWO-A-DAY

MISS NAN HALPERIN

SHE is known well as a songstress in Chicago's variety-halls, wherein she has bill-topped through a number of seasons. Also, three years ago, she was here in something that had Eddie Cantor as the star; and in New-York, last season, she had the title-rôle and large type in "Little Jessie James," a success here. . . . Mr. Ziegfeld has taken her from the two-a-day and put her into the roster of the seventeenth version of his Follies, now in the Illinois.

Mr. Carroll Still Champion of Nudes

By Burns Mantle.

quite impossible for the most worried of reformers to say, once the curtains had closed, whether or not he had been sufficiently shocked to demand the police.

Shock a la Ziegfeld.

This was the beginning. Each year since then the nude in stage art hereabouts has become nudier if not artier. Of this I was forcefully as well as visually reminded the other night when Mr. Ziegfeld invited us to come and see what he calls the fall edition of the current "Follies." To add interest to his show and meet the competition of the newer revues he has added two or three foreign vaudeville acts to the program.

But right in the middle of the bill now as formerly, is a Haggin tableau entitled "Pearl of the East." Save that the nude figures are more numerous than they were in the Midnight Frolic days, the display is still beautifully posed and lighted and no different from the way it used to be. But the boldness of the exhibit is entirely changed.

Now, just as you are expecting the curtains to be drawn and the picture shut from view, the naked lady, posed as a slave girl being auctioned to a Tartar prince, screened only by her hair and her blushes, steps out of the picture and runs for help. Down she dashes to the footlights, and cowers there. After her pile several ugly lads who are attendants upon the prince. One, who is her dancing partner, picks her up and casts her roughly from him. Then catches her again. And so on.

Meantime, all the other figures in the posed picture have come to life. Anxiously they look on as the struggle between the slave girl and her pursuers continues. Those ladies who are practically naked forget their drapes in their excitement. Those who modestly had turned their backs in the original grouping now turn interestedly around to watch the fun. And the audience, you may take it from this spectator, sees all sides of that picture before the slave girl is finally recaptured and returned to her purchaser in the frame.

Now some one is certain to try to outdo the Ziegfeld feature and, whatever the result, some authority somewhere is going to feel forced to take a stand against the expanding license.

The great pity is that it probably will be some police magistrate type who will sweep the stage of a great deal of beauty to save it from the sins of the dime museum boys, who are, as they insistently confess to you, not in the business for their health.

The Nugents Are Back.

The Kempies—or, rather, the Nugents—are back in town with another bright little play of the family and the good old fireside that deserves to do better than it probably will do.

This one is called "The Rising Son." In it Father Nugent plays a chap you are pretty sure to know wherever you live—the man who wants his son to realize all the things he missed.

This father, running away from his father, wanted to be a writer in place of a mill worker. So, when he finally does become a writer of humorous verse and such and has a son, he sends him to college and forces him to take all the literary courses that he may graduate among the writing geniuses of his time.

But son, perversely, wants to run hotels. He can't even write a want ad. Also he wants to get married. And when father finds him he is about to put over a chain of Ye Olde New England inns.

Father fights him for a while, but finally gives in. And gets his reward in discovering that the girl the boy is going to marry is a real writer. He is already planning literary careers for his grandchildren and the play ends.

The three Nugents—J. C. and Elliott, who collaborate on this play as they did on "Kempy," and Ruth, the ingénue daughter — play the principal parts, and play them well. The dialogue is sprinkled with bright lines, and every character is etched in with the skill of writers trained in the preparation of vaudeville sketches. Mary Shaw has also been revived for a part that she plays well.

Another Colored Revue.

What the old time minstrels were to father's generation the colored revue is to this. Another of these came to town last week called "From Dixie to Broadway." It is the usual lively romp of ivory tinted girls and snappy brown and black boy dancers. Florence Mills, a gifted colored soubrette who has entertained as many diners at the supper clubs as any of her paler and less talented sisters, heads the cast. Florence, as a matter of fact, is starred. And justifies the honor. She is a friendly, talented, fascinating performer. She sings in a flutelike soprano haunting songs of the mammy land she probably never saw.

OF THE YOUNGER PERFORMING SET

MISS IRENE DELROY

MISS JEAN SPURNEY

MISS DELROY is of the Greenwich Village Follies, wherein her business is what is known in the lingo of the shows as "leading numbers," although she has an opportunity or two independently of the choristers. . . . 'Tis said that she was, for a time in the ballet of the Chicago Opera; and that is possible. She is remembered by those who saw last year's Hitchy-Koo in the Garrick as a pretty girl; and the importance of her being here now is that she remains a pretty girl. Indeed, there isn't a prettier one in the current entertainments.

Miss Spurney's past, for the purpose of this biography, goes back all the way to last Monday night, when she helped, in an incidental rôle, to put across "The Goose Hangs High," wherein she is nice and acts sanely.

New Playbills

Bulletins on Changes in the Chicago Theaters as Far Ahead as the Managers Know or Care to Tell About.

2:00 THIS AFTERNOON:

Miss Ruth Draper in the Harris.—Second recital by an unique entertainer, with the bill changed from that of last Thursday. Miss Draper includes in this program "At the Court of Philip IV of Spain," "Vive la France!" and "A Class in Greek Poise." . . . The third recital will be Thursday afternoon, when she will revive "In a Railway-Station on the Western Plains."

NEXT SUNDAY NIGHT:

"Cheaper to Marry" in the Playhouse.—A play by Samuel Shipman that had a New-York showing last season. . . . Miss Ruth Donnelly, Miss Mona Bruns, Harry Mestayer, and Frank M. Thomas are of the cast.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 23:

"Plain Jane" in the Illinois.—A play with music shown last Summer in New-York. . . . Joe Laurie, remembered from "The Gingham Girl," heads the cast.

"The Outsider" in the Garrick.—A play by Miss Dorothy Brandon that has been the subject of much discussion and print in London and New-York. . . . Lionel Atwill heads the cast.

Miss Cowl in the Selwyn.—Continuation of her engagement, with "Romeo and Juliet" as the main offering, and with "The Depths," a play from the German, as a variant.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 30:

"The Love-Test" in the Central.—A piece about crooks by J. P. Judge. . . . Cast unannounced.

"The Hold-Up Man" in the Adelphi.—A play by Robert Conrad wherein Joseph Regan, who sang in the Hollywood Follies in the brief Playhouse career of that revue, will have the principal part.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 28:

The Passing Show (of 1924) in the Apollo.—The most recent issue in the Winter Garden series of that name, now current in New-York.

Nothing in the foregoing bulletins need be regarded as binding: changes in plans and bookings are made between-editions of THE TRIBUNE; and most of the managers are afraid to have news in print.

"K" as Photoplay Is Disappointing

By Mae Tinee.

wardes' operation" had made scientists sit up and take notice.

Because of certain things Edwardes has become discredited, disappears, and is believed dead. Dr. Wilson, who has mastered the technique of the operation, forges ahead in the ranks of the medicine men—and always—there is Carlotta.

These three, "K," and a jealous youth of the town who has always been mad about Sidney, become entangled in a miserable predicament that results in tragedy, almost death—and explanations that sure DO clear the air! The picture ends with rice, old shoes, and "We Are Just Married" signs.

WHO is just married? Well, it isn't Dr. Max and it isn't Carlotta. So who do you suppose the happy couple is? And who, do you reckon, is "K?"

Margarita Fischer, an old time favorite, is a convincing Carlotta. Virginia Valli, always charming, endears Sidney to you. Percy Marmont is by no means given the chance that should have been his to portray the fascinating "K" of Mrs. Rinehart's novel. However—he's just naturally a good actor, and makes the best of the rôle as it is.

Nothing unusual about photography or subtitles. Can't say much for much of the acting. I rather hope you haven't read the book, for something tells me "K—The Unkown" the picture will make a lot more of a hit with you if you know it just AS a picture.

See you tomorrow!

KICK KORNER

You're Quite Right.

Dear Miss Tinée: I wonder what type of mind conceives the ads such as one which illustrates "The Bedroom Window."

You probably saw the picture and know that it was a clever detective picture that had nothing salacious in it.

On leaving the theater I picked up the program and was disgusted to note the ad and cuts.

Had I seen the ad first, I should probably have passed up the picture.

Why do the movie concerns and theaters think that suggestive, filthy ads of this sort will appeal and attract?

They repel decent people, who are in the majority and they explain why more and more people are giving up the movie habit. A FAN.

[Editor's Note: That's a good, hard, well deserved kick!]

Hollywood's Sheik Divides His Favors

By Grace Kingsley.

we are married. We want to go to the Orient together, too, and visit the places where our romance began. O, I don't expect to work any more after we are married. But nobody can tell what will happen."

Claire looked stunning as she hopped into the car, with Bert gallantly assisting her. She wore a black silk ensemble suit trimmed in green and gold embroidery bands and with ermine collar and cuffs and a small black hat with a white pompon.

Bert arrived in Los Angeles on Friday morning, so they had a fine little Halloween party all to themselves that evening, dining together at a quiet café where they danced, and then taking a motor trip to the beach. They returned home at 11, however, as Claire is working, and must get her beauty sleep.

A Sheik All Her Own.

It isn't every pretty girl who can boast a private sheik all her own. But that's what Claire Windsor can do. This sheik is no mere desert nomad, either, but a finely educated Arab who is a professor in the college at Biskra, where Claire met him when she was abroad making a picture. The sheik has just written Claire a letter which, by and large, lives up to what a sheik is supposed to feel for his lady love.

"It is with a very great joy," writes this ardent young man, "that I have just received your so dear photographies. Never I have loved, and I shall love you as much as I do. You are my idol, and since your setting out from Biskra I have kept always your picture which haunts me. I feel happy only when I think of you. I am going to ask you to give me the license to write you in French or in Arab in order to be able to express all the feelings I experience for your fairy person."

Of course, Claire withholds her dusky admirer's name from a sense of delicacy. She says he is a handsome, accomplished person, and if it weren't for Bert——

Fun with the Flea Hop.

The newest dance is the flea hop. I don't know who invented it, but everybody in Hollywood is trying to dance it, and few can. It looks simple and easy, but just you try it! Those who can do it go around with their noses in the air refusing to speak to anybody for at least an hour after they have mastered the intricate step.

Leatrice Joy is talking about retiring from the screen and devoting herself to her little daughter. She expects to go abroad with the child within a few months. Papa Jack Gilbert, now being divorced from his wife, visits his baby almost every day.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Not a Bit Annoyed.

Dear Miss Tinée: I went to see "Feet of Clay," and, though I was a little skeptical about what to expect, I went away with a genuine admiration for Cecil. The usual De Mille trademarks were in the picture, but for once he has made a radical departure. The magnificent pearl stairway soaring up into the heavens was an awe inspiring spectacle. While it was purely fabrication, it was presented as only Cecil can do it. The sheer beauty of that scene will not be forgotten for a long time.

Rod La Rocque and Vera Reynolds were fine. The others in the cast were wonderful. And I must mention Theodore Kosloff and Robert Edeson, because I enjoyed them more than words can express. But the palm goes to Ricardo Cortez. He did not have the opportunity to show his prowess with the wicked waves. But that boy can dance! And he looks wonderful in a bathing suit. The only other man in a bathing suit I liked was George O'Brien. You ought to see him in "The Man Who Came Back."

Now, to defend myself against Elaine. No doubt the esteemed young lady thinks I'm gnashing my teeth and muttering, "Coises!" No such remark will be forthcoming from me and I want Elaine to know that I do not write my criticisms with malicious intent. So Sherman was "only another one of those French kings." It is to laugh. Elaine evidently didn't care to see him working upon a piece of embroidery. He hated that just as much as you did, Elaine. No self-respecting man would love to embroider. But if you didn't care for his acting, let me say right here and now that if that man were not an actor he wouldn't be a Broadway drawing card. And it was at Rudy's special request to play the king. So I think you should admire Rudy's taste, eh?

I'm glad you didn't pan Bebe and Doris. But you are unfair to Lois Wilson. Of course, she did not have much of a show, but, think, would any other woman play that part with such feeling? I can't find a thing the matter with her performance.

I hope you'll understand my point of view. I won't insist I'm right. Perhaps I'm wrong. But they say that what's one man's food is another man's poison. This ought to explain partly.

You also ask "If there were all stars, where would the sun be?" Nowhere; it would be an all star cast. The sun can shine too glaringly and hurt the vision. Well, the one and only affects me that way. But, honestly, don't you think the stars are wonderful, after all? I do. Or they wouldn't be in the movies. Of course there is another suggestion. Why not have Zukor and Lasky issue a twelve reel film with closeups of the one and only? Chances are you'd see enough of him to satiate your desires. ANNE CATHERINE.

Too Boyish.

Dear Miss Tinée: I saw "Lily of the Dust," and liked it all except Ben Lyon as the lover. Why do they cast him opposite Pola Negri? And Barbara La Marr? He may not be as young as he looks, but he surely looks too boyish to play lover to either of those women. I simply couldn't work up any sympathy for Pola in her loss of him as a husband. A son would have been more like it. It seems to me Milton Sills, Conway Tearle, or Frank Mayo would have been better in "The White Moth" and "Lily of the Dust." K. C.

Give Rose Ernest Torrence!

Dear Mae Tinée: Must write you a few lines regarding "The Side Show of Life." Mae, that picture achieves art. You can have your swarthy Rodolf, your gallant Rod La Roque, or even dependable Milton Sills, but, O, give me Ernest Torrence! His is a consummate art. The lift of an eyebrow, a quiver about the lips, and as if by magic the audience knows and feels and understands the torrent of emotion surging within him. He plays a marvelous part as the tragic clown who was a gentleman first, and portrays life grim and relentless under the tawdry grotesquerie of the cap and bells. He is sincere, and his sincerity "gets across." When that little dog of his died—well, I heard people all about me crying. His portrayal of Petit Pateo, I think, ranks with the gorgeous "Flick" of Lionel Barrymore's in "Laugh, Clown, Laugh." I simply cannot be convinced that Andrew Lackaday was only shadows and make-believe. To me he is alive. Torrence has limned that character with indelible hues and the somber greens and pale silvery grays will remain fast—long after the more brilliant reds and purples of other films have faded into nothing. Yes, Mae, that was a picture! ROSE A. K.

So Be It.

Dear Miss Tinée: Why do you insist on giving Mae Murray so many "raps"? Is it because she is so gay and such a clever actress? To me—when I read the writeups you give her—it seems you are envious, but then you know it makes no difference what you say—Mae Murray for me and thousands of others! N. B.

A Knock and a Boost.

Dear Miss Tinée: May I tell you of a couple of things that have been rankling in my mind for some time?

Why do the fans like Dorothy Mackaill? She has only two expressions, and those are not particularly charming. She may be a nice girl, but she is a bum actress.

And why don't we see more of Claire Eames in pictures? Her portrayal of Queen Elizabeth in "Dorothy Vernon" was the best thing in the entire film. Why not more of Claire and the queen? PURED.

"Lucia" Chosen for Dal Monte Debut

By Edward Moore.

art, such as La Scala in Milano, where the répertoire is of the most eclectic, that 'Lucia' could have been given seventeen times last season to capacity houses? It is all the more unusual since the public there is accustomed to hear all kinds of great works, including the ultra modern ones."

"Tannhäuser" on Tuesday.

The week will have other features than coloratura. "Tannhäuser," one of the limited number of German works in the season's list, will be sung on Tuesday night with Olga Forrai, Cyrena Van Gordon, Gladys Swarthout, Forrest Lamont, and Joseph Schwarz as some of the principals; Henry G. Weber, a young Chicago musician, making his America debut as conductor.

"Samson and Delilah" is up for Wednesday night, with Louise Homer, Charles Marshall, and Cesare Formichi as the chief parties in interest.

Mary McCormic will return to the company as Mimi in "La Bohême" on Thursday night. She used to sing Musetta, which this time will be done by another American, Louise Taylor.

Mr. Polacco will conduct the French work and Roberto Moranzoni the Italian.

Suggesting a School for Bands.

Time and space prevented a full report of Mr. Stock's speech at the birthday dinner of Lieutenant Commander John Philip Sousa a week ago, but he raised one point that deserves a little thought. In the course of his remarks he asked Mr. Sousa to go to the powers that be in Washington and ask for not a national conservatory of music, which, he insisted, he has never believed in and never will, but a national school for band instruments.

Mr. Stock thinks, and apparently he is right, that there are too many young pianists who can play all the sonatas and too many violinists who can play all the concertos, and that there are not enough audiences to go around for them. If, he continued, some of these musicians could be diverted into learning to blow the saxophone as it should be blown and to slide the trombone as it should be slid, they would be reasonably sure of an outlet for their activities and a well paying job in the bargain.

The idea is worth thinking about. Quite evidently the solo instrument field is overcrowded, Nor does the symphony orchestra reach the root of the problem, which is to give young talent a chance. The band is far more wide spreading. It covers communities and groups that do not get a symphony orchestra or an opera company once in five years. Moreover, there is a great deal more interest in band music around the country than most persons think, not only for Mr. Sousa's own superb organization, but for local bands that have evening rehearsals and make public appearances.

The chief difficulty with the plan, as Mr. Sousa indicated, is in finding bandmasters who are not only directors but competent instructors. For in such cases it is not only desirable but necessary to begin with first principles.

Hybrid of Many Ancestors.

An article by Geraldine P. Dilla of Waterloo, Ind., in the most recent issue of the Musical Quarterly, "Music-Drama, an Art-Form in Four Dimensions," grows pessimistic, hyphens and all, over the possibility of opera. The principal point would seem to be that, like a three ring circus, there is too much for the average spectator to take in. There is scenery, there is acting, there is a drama in words—though, in the manner opera is presented in this country, that consideration might as well be omitted—and there is music, vocal and orchestral.

These, she insists, do not make a real union. The four arts do not coalesce. "Psychology proves that the mind can receive only one appeal at any time. An artistic effect is not doubled because it appeals to both eyes and ears simultaneously."

This is all completely logical. The only trouble is, it does not go far enough. On the same basis ballet and musical pantomime should be abolished because they combine drama, acting, music, and scenery. There should be silent ballet on a bare stage. The art song combines music and poetry, two dissimilar arts. The poetic drama means poetry and drama as well as acting and scenery. For complete chemical purity of the arts, a number of other hybrids will have to be abolished. For that matter, in any musical performance, even so recondite as a Beethoven piano recital, then auditor's attention is continually being diverted. Part of the time it is on the composer, the remainder on the interpreter.

Elsewhere in the Musical Quarterly will be found the first complete account of Boito's "Nero," which was brought out at La Scala last May; a bit of Schumann history telling of his never realized plans for composing a Tristan opera; an explanation of the piano music of Nicolai Medtner, who is to make his first Chicago visit a bit later; something about Rabindranath Tagore; discussions of several other topics; and, the first item in the magazine, a review by the editor, O. G. Sonneck, of the publication's first ten years of existence just completed.

With the Melody Makers.

This looks like an ambitious attempt to link an antique art with present day conditions. J. P. McEvoy, who used to write pieces for this paper, has constructed a scenario for a highly modern ballet, and John Alden Carpenter and Leo Sowerby are writing the music therefor. One scene, so the story goes, will take place in a serve yourself restaurant, with metal trays, bowls of soup, and paper napkins as properties. Another will be in a railway station with trains departing every few seconds and a fortissimo but inarticulate announcer in the center of things. The work will be made visible about the first of the year and under the Ziegfeld production.

Charles Marshall, tenor of the Chicago Civic Opera company, and Manuel and Williamson, duo pianists, who have not before come into this department's acquaintance, are the attractions of the Uptown Civic Music series at Arcadia auditorium this afternoon. Mr. Marshall will sing arias and songs. The pianists offer a variety of compositions, short and long.

After the excitement attending Stravinsky and his "Sacré du Printemps" Mr. Stock schedules an orchestral program of somewhat calmer mood for this week. Alfred Wallenstein, first cellist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will be the soloist, playing the Schumann Concerto in A minor and the Tschaikowsky "Variations sur un Theme Rococo." The purely orchestra numbers will include the Chausson Symphony, Richard Strauss' "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," postponed from the first concert, and Glazounow's "World's Columbian Exposition March." A search of the records fails to disclose this last on any previous program, though it was apparently one of the numbers when Theodore Thomas was director of music at the Chicago fair in 1893.

Arthur Dunham is playing a series of weekly organ recitals on Friday noons at the Chicago temple, Clark and Washington streets. They are free to the public. It is planned that later they will be given more frequently than once a week.

Among the week's musical events, two will be for charity, and each of these will take place at Orchestra hall. Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink will sing on Tuesday night under the auspices of the Elementary and Home Education association. Ruth St. Denis, Ted Shawn, and the Denishawn dancers will appear on Wednesday night for the benefit of St. Joseph's hospital. Their program will be new here, including an Algerian ballet; a silent, musicless dance called "Tragica," a Spanish gypsy ballet, and a group of American dancers.

The Kinsolving musical mornings will begin an annual series at the Blackstone hotel on Tuesday morning. Claudio Muzio, soprano of the Chicago Civic Opera company, and Jerome Swinford, baritone, are announced for a joint song recital.

"The Bohemian Girl" in concert form is announced for the Chicago theater this noon. Louis Kreidler, Helen Yorke, Sibyl Comer, Themy Georgi, and others will sing the solo ballads. There will be a chorus of fifty from the Apollo Musical club and the Chicago Theater Symphony orchestra. Nathaniel Finston will conduct.

Something unusual in the piano recitals of this generation will take place this afternoon at the Playhouse, when Frederic Lamond plays a full Beethoven program. Three of the major sonatas are included, the "Waldstein," the "Pathetique," and the "Appassionata." In addition he will play the Fantasie in G minor, the Rondo in G major, and the "Andante Favori."

At the same hour, next door at the Studebaker, the lovely blonde violinist, Cecilia Hansen, will give what is announced as her only Chicago recital of the season. She will play a Vivaldi concerto, a sonata by Nicolaiew which has not been done here in the past to any striking extent; a Debussy group, and another group of selected short pieces.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headache, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

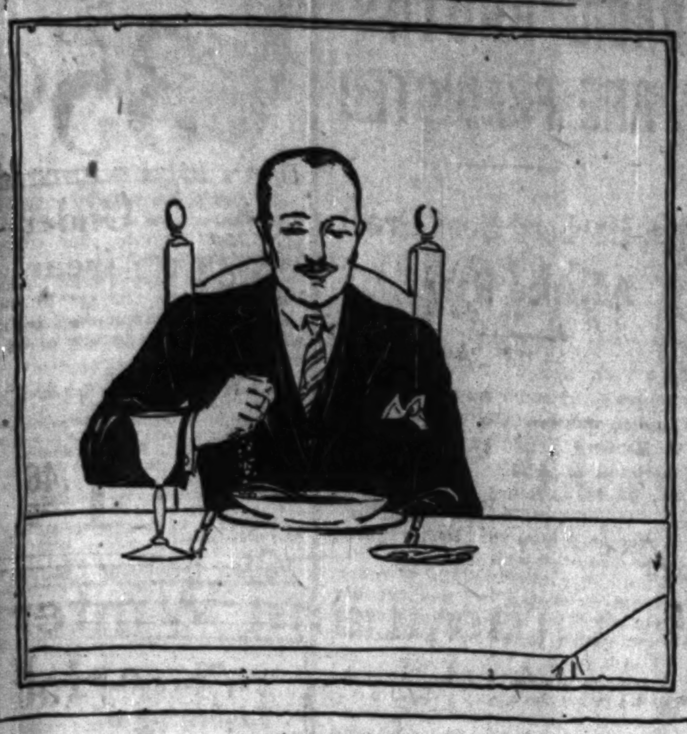
What's Wrong Here?



Answer below.

Embarrassing Moments

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, The Tribune, Chicago. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Reversed.

I have been in embarrassing situations at various times, but the worst incident occurred at a boarding school which I was attending some years ago.

I helped to pay my way through school by waiting on table, and had been assigned to the table occupied by a visiting basketball team.

One of the school girls was acquainted with a young man on this team and asked me to deliver a note to him. To avoid comment, I arranged to carry the note under a dish of ice cream so that, by releasing one finger, it would drop into his lap. I released the wrong finger and saw the dessert delivered instead, while I held the note conspicuously in front of him. I have as yet found no language capable of describing my feelings at the time.

G. J. A.

Up in the Air.

One day, while driving in the suburbs with friends, I spied a balloon man about a block away.

"O, I must have a balloon for the baby," I exclaimed, and called frantically to the fast disappearing vender, as I drove toward him.

At last he came running toward us. When he stopped, breathless, I decided to buy four balloons, one for each of my friends' children. The man had quite a time disentangling them, but at last I had them safely in the car. I opened my purse to pay him, and to my disgust found not one cent! My friends, also, after a hurried search, realized their bags were merely ornamental.

With much embarrassment, I returned the coveted balloons to the accompaniment of disguested mutterings from the vendor.

M. M. F.

Two Were Surprised.

One morning my cat failed to come to lunch. At the time my mother and I were living in a flat across the hall from which lived a young man who had paid a good deal of attention to me. I thought a mewing I heard came from his room, and feeling sure he had gone to business, I set a short step ladder in front of his door. I meant to see pussy if I could, before aking the janitor to let her out. Mounting the ladder, I peered through the transom, only to gaze into the upturned face of my friend just about to open the door, wondering what the noise could be. The thought of how he might construe my position almost made me fall from the ladder.

E. W.

Only a Duplicate.

One day as I was walking through a department store during my lunch hour, a woman rushed excitedly up to me, and demanded that I tell her where I had bought the dress I was wearing. I told her I had purchased it in the store we were in.

She beckoned a policeman, who had followed me all the way from the street corner. Fortunately for me, he was not as excited as my questioner was, and said department store dresses could be expected to have duplicates.

The woman made no apology, merely saying, "You see, my house was robbed recently," and then she walked off, leaving me, embarrassed beyond words, in the middle of that broad aisle.

VAUDEVILLE WIT

RIALTO.
Calvin and O'Connor.

"As my wife entered the room she looked all around."

"Is she as fat as that?"

"You can always tell a strong minded woman."

"Yes, but you can't tell her much."

"I understand you've had an addition to your family."

"No, multiplication. It's twins"

"I saw your brother in the police court this morning."

"What time?"

"Ten years, I believe."

"I dreamed last night that my brother spoke in his grave."

"What language did he speak?"

"A dead language."

"Do you miss your wife?"

"Yes, I can't seem to throw as straight as I used to."

"I read the other day that the mayor of a town in Arizona had been misappropriating public money."

"Did they suspend him from office?"

"No, from a tree."

Stutz-Bingham:

"Milton, will you hurry up once, yes?"

"Abe, don't force me."

"Milton, you're weak kneeded, I think."

"It isn't that, Abe, but we've traveled forty miles today without eating, and you know, Abe, I've got curableness of the spine. I must sleep and I must have something to eat!"

"Sleep! I'm surprised, Milton. Don't the doctor tell you not to sleep on a full stomach?"

"Well, I can sleep on my back, can't I?"

"Milton, for the love of Saint Patrick, come on and hurry along. We must get ready for tonight."

"Between you and me, Abe, I don't beleve I'll continue. I guess I'll take root here and grow up with the country."

"Milton, you're not going to quit now, just when fortune is within our reach! Why, Milton, I can feel the money in my hand!"

"Maybe you feel the money, but all I can feel in my hand is this young trunk."

"Milton, don't talk such foolishness! Do you remember when I first met you? Didn't I say there was money in you?"

"Yes, but you knew I swallowed a dime that day."

"Well, there is money in you yet."

"O, no. I was broke when I started off with you, but now I am entirely busted."

"But, Milton, I'm absolutely positive that money is close."

"Yes, but not close enough to reach."

Laugh at Father Time

If Hair is Turning Gray, use Sage Tea

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

So Much for So Much.

"I gave you a penny yesterday," said his mother, "to be good, and today you're as bad as ever."

"Yes," said the little boy, "I'm trying to show you that you got your money's worth yesterday." N. A. W.

Wise Boy.

Mother—If you wanted to go fishing why didn't you come and ask me first?

Johnny—Because I wanted to go fishing.

E. F.

Keeping It Dark.

"See here, you old rascal, why didn't you tell me this horse was lame before I bought him?"

"Wal, the feller that sold him to me didn't say nothin' about it, so I thought it was a secret." A. G.

Careful, Doc.

Doctor—Well, how are you feeling this morning?

Invalid—Better, thanks. The only thing that troubles me is my breathing.

Doctor—Ah, yes. We must see if we can stop that.

J. L.

Struck Both Ways.

The plaintiff was suing a taxi company for negligence on the part of one of the drivers. The case was going much against the company, and it was clear to all that the evidence of the plaintiff had favorably impressed the judge and jury. This did not improve the temper of the counsel for the defendant and when cross examining he waxed sarcastic.

"As a matter of fact," he said sardonically, "you were nearly scared to death and you don't know whether it was a taxi or something resembling a taxi that hit you."

"May I say then," the plaintiff replied calmly, "that I was forcibly struck by the resemblance?" J. B.

Question 1,078,192.

"Mamma, how much do people pay for a pound of babies?"

"Babies are not sold by the pound, dear."

"Then why do they always weigh them as soon as they are born?"

E. M.

Hard to Classify.

He—Is she progressive or conservative?

She—I don't know. She wears last year's hat, drives this year's car, and lives on next year's income. F. L.

Turning Away Wrath.

The stern voice of parental authority had made itself heard, and Jackie was forbidden to stay behind on the playground after school hours.

"You must come straight home," said father. "If you don't, well, you know!"

Jackie did know. But one day he forgot the order and arrived an hour late, dirty and tired.

"Look here," said his father, angrily. "Didn't you promise me you wouldn't stay out and play games in the evening?"

"Yes, father," was the meek reply.

"And didn't I promise to punish you if you did stay behind?"

"Yes, father," answered Jackie, still more meekly, "but as I didn't keep my promise I'll not hold you to yours."

J. W.

Well Defined.

"What's this word, pa?" asked Willie, pointing it out in his book.

"'Phenomenon,'" replied pa.

"Well, what is that?"

"That, my son, is what you would be if you never disturbed your father with questions."

SILENT HOURS PROPOSAL BRINGS WIDE APPROVAL

Interference Subject of Letters, Too.

BY STEPHEN GILCHRIST.
[Radio Editor.]

F. E. Davidson's proposal for silent hours to replace silent night has brought a number of responses, all approving, during the last week. Space forbids an attempt to review all of them, but the letter of R. V. Howard, 1035 Pleasant street, Oak Park, typical of others received, although more definite, is printed herewith:

"I was greatly interested in your articles on 'bloopers' and 'silent (?) night' in Chicago, and like the suggestion made by F. E Davidson. My idea is much the same as his, except that the stations should be grouped and each group should be silent for one hour each night, successively. For example:

"Stations below 300 meters, silent 7 to 8 p. m.

"Stations 300 to 400 meters, silent 8 to 9 p. m.

"Stations 400 to 536 meters, silent 9 to 10 p. m.

"This schedule to be effective every night except Sunday and on special occasions.

"The rule should include stations within fifty miles of Chicago, such as Elgin, Oak Park, Mooseheart, Zion, and others as they may come in."

This agrees wholly with Mr. Davidson's plan, the latter not having been accorded the justice it deserved in the attempt last Sunday briefly to outline—evidently all too briefly.

THAT INTERFERENCE

Letters continued to pour in on the interference problem outlined last Sunday in the letter of R. E. Frickey, 6413 Vernon avenue. Many of the writers had suggestions to make as to the cause, one going even so far as to attribute it to the generator hum of a recently opened broadcaster of the city. While I myself know that this station's hum often is disagreeably prevalent beyond the assigned frequency, I know also that the weird "tick, tick, tick" to which Mr. Frickey referred, existed long before this station went on the air.

Another writer suggests a railroad signal system as the probable cause. This is not the case, either. While a resident of Oak Park, located within a half block of the Lake street "L," I had that as a regular diet; so intensely, in fact, that it often took some fine tuning to prevent a good program being ruined. Added to that were the "bloopers," making life altogether unlovely, especially on silent nights. It was not, however, until spring when I drifted further westward, that I encountered the real thing in weird annoyance; and I feel quite sure it is the same as that dwelt upon by Mr. Frickey and other writers. Many letters were received on this subject, and and these will be touched on next week. In the meantime I should like to hear from others on that and subjects akin to it.

CALL FOR DIAGRAMS

Numerous letters lately have called for more comment, accompanied by constructional data, on circuit experiments, and for a resumption of Dialog's weekly review of reception conditions and of outside programs.

Regarding hookups: The effort has been mainly to keep this department free of circuit variations that are of dubious value or likely to bring upon home experimenters a needless round of expensive and disappointing labor. It is idle and unfair to lead the average radio enthusiast to believe that he can get a couple of spools of wire, a former or two, and then produce a radio frequency amplifier that will serve him as would the instrument which he fondly believes he is duplicating and which entails higher mathematical niceties in coil winding, co-efficient of coupling, elimination of electro magnetic parasitics, and a maintainence as nearly as possible of equal amplification over the wide band of wave lengths occupied by the broadcasters.

New Life for Regeneration.

Much space has been devoted to low loss tuner development, originating with the experimenters of the American Radio Relay league, because this is a product easily duplicated in the home and is certain of some kind of good results when constructed by the inexperienced.

Letters telling of splendid results from sets built on specifications outlined in this department have justified the viewpoint followed; and that has made me feel the policy has been worth while, especially in that letters from disappointed constructors have been conspicuous by their absence.

Regenerative receivers have gained a new grip on popularity because of low loss tuner developments—and will gain an even greater following as engineering ingenuity presents worthy methods of handling one or two stages of preceding radio frequency.

I have often been rather astounded by the complaisance displayed by some radio publications in printing diagrams of "untamed" r. f. stages to precede this or that circuit, and have wondered how many of the home experimenters who ventured to construct them had anything like success. My personal experience has been that more often than not such a preceding stage actually weakens a regenerative set.

"Untamed" Stage Nuisance.

Potentiometer control of oscillations is hardly worth the effort involved, but is far superior to a stage without control, simply because the "untamed" stage is a pestiferous nuisance. Resistance in other forms is idle, likewise. Astatic windings and feedback variations present the most likely means, and on these efforts have been bent for the last three months with the aim of hitting upon a method that would assure results even where inexperience is at the construction helm. Out of these has come a series of sets that promises to attain popularity. They are easy to construct, easy to assemble, and, while differing from the low loss tuner of typical primary, secondary, and tickler coils, give results that at least equal it.

There is no claim to originality in electrical principles employed, but because there is, to my knowledge, no receiver exactly like it, I have undertaken to designate it as "The Tribune Ranger." I believe the name to be appropriate in that its selectivity enables extremely fine tuning through locals—separation of WGY and W-G-N, WLW and WSB—six meters apart—and the logging of WCK (360), St. Louis, with WLS (345) and W-G-N (370) on, being oft repeated feats.

The set will be presented in a series of articles, the first dealing with the coil former, being presented today. The series will include: Detector stage for headphones; detector stage and two stages of amplification; detector stage and three stages of amplification, one of a third stage of straight audio and one of push pull, with comparative comments; one stage of radio, regenerative detector and audio stages.

If the set appeals, the home constructor may put up his detector stage with the audio and radio stages in view and try it out, adding audio and radio later.

CHRISTENED "RANGER"

Tests have shown that a single stage of radio will give results sufficiently gratifying to make two stages of radio really unnecessary, but addition of a second stage is easily within the province of the experienced experimenter.

I believe the Tribune Ranger to be a splendid set, especially for those who like headphones reception best. For these it may be either a one tuber or a two. I have heard KGO. KHJ, KLX, KFI, KOP, WOAI, WEEI (formerly WTAT, Boston), and fifty stations within their radius with one tube and the headphones.

Perhaps the best thing that can be said for the Tribune Ranger is that it faithfully reproduces music and voice.

Plan Two Broadcasters for Irish Free State

DUBLIN, Nov. 8.—Plans for construction of broadcasting in the Irish Free State include one station in Dublin and another in Cork. Their maintenance will cost, it is estimated, $75,000 a year. A general program will be broadcast and it is hoped to relay from London, Paris, and other centers.

CONFERENCE ON AGRICULTURAL RADIO CALLED

Scope of Farm Broadcasting to Be Subject.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—A conference to consider the scope, organization conduct, and support of agricultural radio broadcasting will be held in Chicago Dec. 4 under auspices of the department of agriculture, according to an announcement issued by the department.

The third national radio conference requested the late Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to call such a conference.

A general invitation has been issued to agricultural colleges, state departments of agriculture, estate bureaus of markets, farm organizations, farm papers, and broadcasting stations which emphasize the broadcasting of agricultural matter to send representatives. C. W. Warburton, director of extension work for the department, has been requested to take charge of the conference.

Problems to Be Taken Up.

"Some of the problems of radio broadcasting which have an agricultural significance are:

"1. The quantity, character, arrangement and time allotment of such agricultural broadcast material as weather forecasts crop and market information, agricultural news, agricultural educational material and entertainment.

"2. The development of a national program of agriculture material taking into consideration all state and local needs, thereby offering the widest distribution of agricultural information.

Elimination of Duplication.

"3. Through proper coördination to obtain the greatest economy and efficiency in handling agricultural material through broadcast stations and to eliminate duplication of effort.

"4. The development of suitable time schedules for radio broadcast material to meet agricultural needs and the division of time schedules among broadcasting stations."

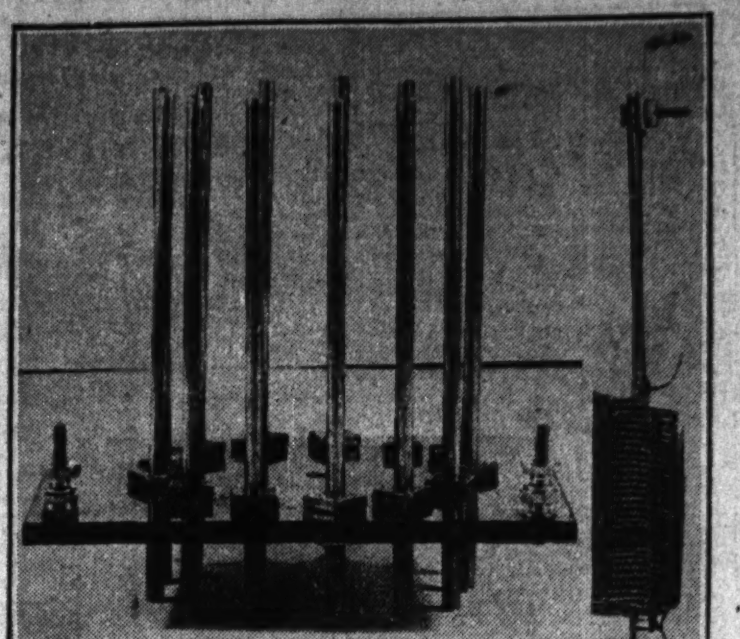
"All communications relative to this conference should be addressed to Mr. W. C. Warburton director of extension, U. S. department of agriculture, Washington, D. C."

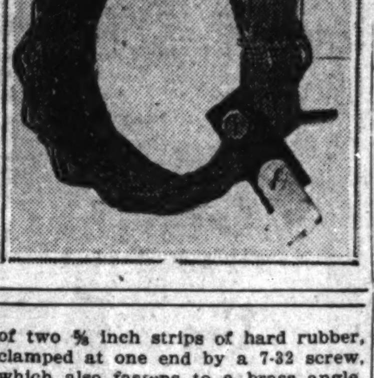
Hears KDKA on One Tube in British Guiana Jungle

There's a man in the jungle, 200 miles from the nearest habitation in British Guiana, who, when he asks his superiors off in Georgetown for a short vacation for a brief brush with civilization, is always told "You get more amusement out there than we do here in town." The reason is this:

H. Johnstone Smith, inspector of police at Morewanna, British Guiana, is constantly entertained by concerts broadcast from KDKA at Pittsburgh 3,000 miles away. He writes that his set has two stages of audio frequency amplification, but on account of static he finds he gets better results by using the detector valve.

EASY WAY TO WIND COILS.





Home Made Former Ideal for Coils for "Tribune Ranger"

Experience having developed that basket winding lends itself to construction at home of coils that are electrically efficient, without the need of lathe or winding machines, the greatest difficulty encountered lay in finding some method of preventing bending of pins during winding. This often destroyed the shape of the coil, and made for poor appearance, with likelihood of low loss qualities being upset. Finally, the idea presented in the accompanying photograph overcame all erratic tendencies of the pins.

While this is given as a prelude to the series on "THE TRIBUNE Ranger," the former should prove valuable for low loss coils for any kind of circuit. It consists of a 6x6 inch piece of bakelite (hard wood will do), drilled for 5-16th inch stove bolts. A nut is threaded to the smooth part of the bolt—be sure the bolt thread does not permit the nut slipping beyond—and the bolt slipped into its place, then secured by a second bolt on the bottom. These "pins" hold firmly, and tight windings result.

The former shown consists of thirteen pins, set in a 3⅛ inch circle. The stove bolts are 6 inches long altogether. This will permit of two kinds of basket windings—the over one peg, under two, and the over one, under one.

The larger of the two other photographs show a finished coil, with a low loss support. The latter consists of a brass angle—one standing three inches high is best—with a piece of bakelite tubing four inches long, taking a 6-32 screw clamped to it.

Those who contemplate winding coils for eleven plate condensers, to cover the entire broadcast range, should drill for fourteen pins, set in a circle 4⅛ inches in diameter. This will permit of a more compact coil. It can be wound only over one pin, under two.

The smaller photograph shows another method of fastening a coil to avoid dielectric losses. This consists of two ⅝ inch strips of hard rubber, clamped at one end by a 7-32 screw, which also fastens to a brass angle. This angle should not be more than an inch high. This is worth trying in radio frequency, as two coils, entailing as near to low loss as possible, may be properly angled easily.

In the issue of next Sunday, which will constitute a special show edition, constructional data for several types of coils, with comparative comment, and diagrams and photographs for the one tube "TRIBUNE Ranger," with audio stages will be given. Limitation of space prevents more data this week.

Station Helps Spread Fire Hazard Warning

New York, Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Radio filled an important part in putting into effect the proclamation of Gov. Alfred E. Smith prohibiting hunting and camping in the Adirondacks and Catskills during the dangerous fire hazard. The facilities of WGY, Schenectady, which is within 150 miles of the hunting country, were turned over to the New York state conservation commission. Early announcements, giving warning of danger were broadcast, and the proclamation of the governor, closing the woods to hunters, was also put on the air.

TRANS-OCEANIC RADIO PHOTOS ARE PREDICTED

Gen. Harbord Sees Great Advance Near.

New York, Nov. 8.—Transmission of photographs by radio from New York to London was predicted by Maj. Gen. J. G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America, in a speech at the National Radio exposition last night. He also prophesied the following developments in that field "in the not too distant future":

"An entirely new system of radio telegraphy developed by photography whereby a written transcript or a complete newspaper page could be flashed across the ocean.

"A system of ship to shore two way telephone conversation by radio.

"The exchange of musical programs between country and country on an international communication basis.

"A universal news ticker service by radio that would reach points not hitherto accessible by wire."

LANSING, MICH., MAKES ITS BOW TUESDAY NIGHT

WREO, Lansing, Mich., will go on the air for the first time next Tuesday evening.

WREO thereafter will go on the air daily, with evening programs on Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday. The wave length is 288.3 meters.

When test programs were broadcast from WREO, communications were received from thirty-three states assuring the men in charge that they were "coming in fine." It is believed that Lansing has a strategic geographical location for broadcasting so that even less powerful receiving sets any place in the United States will be able to tune in on the programs.

Electric Club to Hear Talks on Radio

The next meeting of the radio section of the Electric Club of Chicago will be held on Wednesday. William Hoskins, a chemical engineer and scientist of national reputation, will give an informal talk on "Genesis of an Industry." E. T. Flewelling will discuss "Short Wave Tuners" and John H Miller will talk on "Rheostats and Resistances for Filament Control."

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 8.—Danish radio fans, numbering 50,000, who have sent a plea to the government to do something to suport radio in Denmark, have received a polite reply that at the present moment the government has no intention of taking any action.

BEAT N. Y. SHOW, CHICAGO RADIO INTERESTS SHOUT

So They Boost Coming Coliseum Event.

The age old rivalry between New York and Chicago has been revived by the radio fraternity of this city, who appear to be strongly backed up by the wireless industry of the entire middle west.

Chicagoans are decidedly aroused over the fact that New York was selected as the site of the first radio world's fair, and they now seem determined upon upholding the reputation of Chicago as "the logical location for all American expositions of an international character" by making the coming third annual Chicago radio show bigger and better than the recent New York fair.

Beaten at Start.

From present indications their efforts are going to be crowned with success. More manufacturers' exhibits have already been booked here, the total number being 225, compared with 200 in New York. So, as one manufacturer said, "New York is beaten before we start." The novelties and special attractions here promise to be slightly more interesting and important and several intensive ticket selling campaigns now being conducted by radio clubs and business organizations throughout the northern Illinois district promise to bring the attendance up to the 200,000 mark, which will exceed the Madison Square Garden score by 25,000.

The exposition will completely fill the enormous Coliseum and all of its new and old additions. The floor space will be nearly 100,000 square feet, and with the possible exception of the New York fair the coming show, which runs from Nov. 18 to 23, will be the largest and most comprehensive trade exhibition of any sort ever assembled in the United States, its projectors claim.

Foreign Section Extensive.

The big spectacle will be open to the general public from 1 p. m. to midnight daily, including Sunday. The admission will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. There will be no war tax this year.

The foreign section here will be more extensive than it was in Manhattan. There will be a score of de luxe exhibits by the most famous radio concerns of Europe and the orient, including many startling novelties. The alien devices will be shown in the south annex and will fill the whole of the second floor.

MONTREAL'S NEW STATION SHOWS GREAT SUCCESS

Announcement is made by CKAC at Montreal that experiments made by their new high power station have proved successful beyond expectation, both locally and long distance, since the station went into operation Oct. 4.

Recently letters have poured in from amateurs in Europe, Central and South America, stating that concerts had been heard, in most cases, with sufficient volume to operate a loud speaker. French-Canadians scattered throughout Canada, the United States, Newfoundland, St. Pierre-Miquelon, Louisiana, and the New England states, have written most pathetic letters, saying that the broadcasting from CKAC in their maternal tongue had caused their very heartstrings to vibrate. Special programs will be regularly featured by CKAC for the benefit of listeners-in beyond the 3,000 mile radius. On Nov. 16 the first of these will be given.

Regular Broadcasting Across Atlantic Near

Heavy European correspondence of WGY, Schenectady, indicates that the day of trans-Atlantic broadcasting with a fair degree of reliability and with signals of good quality and loud-speaker volume, is not far off. Oct. 22, WGY received sixty-eight letters from fans in England, Ireland, Wales and Scotland. These letters referred to reception of the John W. Davis, campaign address of Oct. 6, the Remington bank concert of Oct. 10, a dance orchestra on Oct. 11, and the evening service of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Schenectady, Oct. 12.

W-G-N NOTES

Next Saturday's Notre Dame-Nebraska football game will be broadcast by W-G-N from Cartier field, at South Bend. The following week W-G-N is to broadcast the Illinois-Ohio State game at Champaign, with Quin Ryan again at the microphone.

Tuesday being Armistice day, W-G-N will not broadcast the regular forenoon market bulletins, as the Board of Trade will be closed. There will be no stock quotations at 5 o'clock.

"Sen" Kaney is to appear at the second Wisconsin radio exposition, at the Milwaukee auditorium in that city, on Sunday, Nov. 16. He will offer a program of songs and monologue.

The famous Policemen's Octette, eight lusty and mellow voices of Chicago's "finest," will sing next Sunday during The Tribune Master Artists' concert.

Claiborne Foster and Allan Dinehart, the stars of "Applesauce" at the La Salle theater, will offer another of their own comical skits during rocking chair time from W-G-N Tuesday afternoon.

COOLIDGE TALK HEARD EASILY BY LONDONERS

British Radio Experts Expect Expansion.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 8.—English amateurs were concentrating this week on attempts to pick up American election messages. E. J. Clark, London amateur, succeeded in hearing President Coolidge's preëlection address with a four tube high frequency set. The President's voice came in strong and every word was heard distinctly.

British experts believe English broadcasting is finally promised nation-wide development. The government, postal, and navy restrictions will be forced to give way within a few months, it is thought. An all afternoon program sent out from station 5-XX Sunday is seen as an indication of a new régime. It was the first time in the history of British wireless entertainment that a program was allowed before 7 p. m.

Spurred by inventions brought out by American designers, the British radio world is developing several young originators who are claiming attention as inventors of receiving sets.

HOMAGE PAID BRADLEY

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 8.—Celebrities of French science are gathering today to pay homage to Edouard Bradley, Brest wireless pioneer, whose eightieth birthday fell today. Members of the French cabinet and French academy are going to his modest home and laboratory, where during the last thirty or forty years M. Bradley has worked day in and day out solely in the interest of science. His incomes, despite all his great discoveries, is less than $1.25 a day. He has been offered important posts time and again to superintend the Marconi shops and as consulting engineer, but has refused them all, saying he is not a manufacturer, but a scientist. He has sacrificed the greater part of his life to wireless.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

VIENNA, Nov. 8.—After a belated start, the radio fever has caught Vienna, spreading to all classes of society. Within a week following the opening of a big new broadcasting station 25,000 subscriptions have poured in and the total is expected to reach 40,000 by Christmas. The daily programs are of a very high standard, the Viennese music lovers demanding the best orchestra work obtainable.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

WARSAW, Nov. 8.—A recently formed society, Radiopol, has undertaken to organize broadcasting in Poland, where wireless is comparatively unknown.

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—The Wolf Bureau reports that experiments in sending radio programs via cable are a pronounced success. Experiments were carried out with the high powered electric state cables, and reception was excellent in every respect. Listeners in Thuringen and Greiz report that they heard singers in Leipzig, Berlin, London, and Rome.

Police Detect and Stop Radio Confidence Game

VIENNA, Nov. 8.—A curious radio con game has been stopped by the Vienna police after a clever crook fleeced twenty-seven persons. During the summer months when the householders went to the seashore, leaving their houses in charge of caretakers, a young man appeared, depositing a box he claimed was a radio set ordered by the householder. It was C. O. D. every time. The caretakers forked up a considerable sum and paid the man, who left before the box was opened, disclosing six common bricks.

Watch for Tribune's Special Radio Edition

Next Sunday's issue of The Tribune will carry a special radio edition in which will be a vast amount of news and special articles of interest to radio enthusiasts, whether purely listeners or home constructors.

For the great army of Chicago listeners who are interested almost exclusively in local stations there will be amusing and instructive stories about these.

For the home builder there will be diagrams and constructional data on "The Tribune Ranger," with suggestions for variations by which comparative tetss of the efficiency of differing styles of construction may be made easily and inexpensively, besides other circuit material of build-at-home types.

A graphic insight into the radio work of the bureau of standards, written for The Tribune by the chief of the staff, a review of amateur history, and a story of the struggles of Chicago's first broadcast station will be among other features.

Contract Prevents Jackies' Farewell to Austria by Air

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

VIENNA, Nov. 8.—Elaborate preparations were made to broadcast the words of Jackie Coogan everywhere in Austria were sadly upset when it was learned that Jackie was completely tied up in a contract with an American broadcasting company and could not say a wireless word. Thousands of admirers were disappointed when instead of Jackie's voice at a fixed hour came an announcement of regrets.

SPAIN TO HEAR COLUMBUS TALE FROM MEXICO

That one of the results of International Radio week, scheduled for the week of Nov. 24 to 30, will be the cementing of the old world with the new is the confident prediction of F. J. Oro, director of station CYL, Mexico City, who said, in a letter made public yesterday, that station was preparing to broadcast for the benefit of listeners in Spain an account of the voyage of Columbus. This broadcasting will be done in Spanish, thus adding a program in another language to the several already promised radio fans for that week.

"I am deeply interested in the forthcoming International Radio week," said Mr. Oro. "I see in radio immense possibilities to unify peoples of all nationalities and to impress upon them the international good will brought about by this marvelous science."

NINTH LINK IN CANADIAN RADIO CHAIN OPENED

Moncton, N. B., Nov. 8.—The ninth link in the great chain of radio broadcasting stations which the Canadian National railways are flinging across Canada was opened here tonight by W. D. Robb, vice president of the system. The station, which will operate on a wave length of 435 meters under the call letters CNRA, will come on the air Tuesday and Friday of each week.

Shenandoah Transmits Signals 4,400 Miles

Lakehurst, N. J., Nov. 8.—When the Shenandoah was moored to its mast in San Diego, Cal., the code signals radiated by its fifty watt short wave transmitter was copied by the submarine tender Canopus, 4,400 miles away. The airship's transmitter was tuned to the ninety meter wave length. The aerial was about fifty feet long.

RADIO FOR BLIND APPEALS TO ALL WHO HAVE SIGHT

Drive Goes On to Put Set in Every Home.

"Let the sighted help the sightless!"

You who have your eyes and can see, who can enjoy the beautiful things in life, the landscape, the sunset, the woods, the river and the sea, the mountains and all the countless things that delight the eye in a day's ramble—have you ever thought of the drab existence of the poor and needy person who is deprived of eyesight?

Day in and day out, in most cases the blind man or woman must sit as one in the dark. The only cheer that comes is when some person tells him things or when he hears conversation about matters that have transpired in the world. Beyond that is darkness.

Can you imagine what it would mean to these to be equipped with a radio set that would bring them into touch with all that is best and beautiful in music, that would enable them to hear lectures on interesting subjects, stories of travel, speeches by men who have won fame in politics, science, art, and commerce?

The Chicago Tribune has undertaken a campaign jointly with the American Foundation for the Blind and the American Radio association to place a radio set in the home of every needy blind person in the United States. You will read about it and the progress of the campaign every day in The Tribune until the object is accomplished.

It is not the purpose to ask from any individual an amount sufficient to buy a set. Contributions of any amount are requested.

All subscriptions should be addressed to Radio Fund for the Blind, The Chicago Tribune, 7 South Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.

RADIO USED TO GET CHILDREN TO SCHOOL EARLY

Oakland, Cal., Nov. 8.—Radio is being employed successfully in California to induce pupils to be prompt in getting to school in the morning. Beginning last Monday morning at 9 o'clock a series of weekly programs furnished by the state board of education and broadcast by KGO, the General Electric Pacific coast station, proved so interesting throughout the state that invariably children will want to be on time at school to hear them.

Will C. Wood, state superintendent of public instruction, was the first speaker before the KGO microphone and opened the series. Prof. J. C. Bolton, history department head, University of California, also spoke. His subject was "The Vikings of the Pacific"—tales of the old pirates who put in at Californal bays and inlets to bury their treasure and repair their ships. Pupils in the Oakland public schools furnished the music, under the direction of Glen Woods, for the initial broadcast.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Tonight's the Night We Greet World Flyers

By Mme. X.

SOCIETY will gather tonight at the Auditorium to welcome two of the American air Magellans, Lieuts. Lowell Smith and Leslie Arnold, who circumnavigated the globe in the airplane Chicago in company with the other plane, the Boston. They have 7,000 feet of films taken on their historic tour, which will be displayed. These begin at the take-off in Seattle, and touch at the arctic scenes, showing snow, storm swept seas, fierce gales, and all the obstacles that encompassed them and made their start off perilous and unnerving.

They will then take their audience to the eastern edge of Asia, one of the most unknown regions on the earth. Japan and its picturesque people furnish the first touch of oriental civilization. A glimpse of China; strange, exotic views of India and its many different races; the vast intervening spaces which lie between Hindustan and the Mediterranean countries; then receptions in Paris and London will all be shown to us tonight, winding up with pictures of the greetings accorded the aviators in their native land in the cities from Boston and New York back to their starting out place, Seattle.

It will be a wonderful show and well worth your time and money. Just to look at these two youthful Americans, whose names will go down in our history, will be an interesting experience, something to tell your grandchildren about when aviation is as common as motoring is to us today.

For myself, I am glad that my life began in time to welcome telephones, automobiles, airplanes, phonographs, and radios, so that they are always somewhat miraculous. Those born latterly can never have the thrills and sensations vouchsafed their forebears when these epoch making inventions (most of which are the fruit of American genius) first appeared. Perhaps further discoveries and inventions of an equally amazing kind await them, but it does not seem probable, and the children of today and to come will accept these additions to our daily lives as commonplaces, not wonders. In any case, this evening's entertainment is bound to be out of the common in interest and merit.

Opera's First Night.

The opening strains of Ponchielli's "La Gioconda" last Wednesday evening found the Auditorium glowing with life and color. Chicago's beau monde was well represented there, and the two most complicated of modern institutions, society and grand opera, once more started on their annual three months' promenade arm in arm. Theirs is a forced and not entirely natural friendship, for society is made up for the most part of those who are not really especially understandingly artistic, nor do they much care to be so.

I do not mean this to apply only to Chicago's socially prominent, but to Anglo-Saxon society, which includes the socially inclined of Great Britain and her colonies, as well as the various social centers in this country. The artistic peoples are of different racial strains from ours. Many of the Mediterranean races have an innate, irrepressible love for music, paintings, sculpture, even for that highest expression of mankind, poetry. This esthetic quality is to be found in all the different strata of their composition.

With us Americans it is an assumed garment, and sometimes we wear it well. Here in Chicago it fits better than it did some years ago, and in time it may become a part of ourselves.

But that we are still some distance from that goal is evidenced by one or two recent communications to that forum of public opinion, the Voice of the People, in the W. G. N., wherein initialed critics have protested against grand opera because of its "vile sensualism." The same censors of an accepted art would doubtless for similar reasons protest against Shakespeare, Moliere, Goldoni, the Song of Solomon, Wagner, and Debussy's music, some of Rodin's sculpture, many of Zorn's canvases, and much of Swinburne's poetry. But a world designed and fashioned by such folk—what a deadly dull, drab, inartistic, and utterly unendurable place it would be for the rest of their kind! To them nature is horrible, art is immoral, and joy is abominable. Evil to him who evil thinks.

All Sorts and Conditions.

The brilliant combination of great artists, fine music, striking scenery, and a great assemblage of all sorts of persons—from the millionaires in their boxes to the Italian contingent in the far flung upper galleries—is one of the winter's high spots, and fills a place not occupied by any other of our cultural institutions. Samuel Insull might well be proud of his work, for our Civic Opera is his contribution to the city of Chicago. But for him it is hardly probable we would have it now. He stepped in at the moment when it seemed not unlikely that thus huge organization, made possible for eight years by two of our most generous and public spirited citizens, would be allowed to go to the wall by the withdrawal of this private support. When the enterprise seemed to be floating rudderless on the rocks he took hold and steered it to safety. So he might well have felt proud and pleased both at the show behind and that in front of the footlights. It was a handsome and prosperous looking gathering.

On the right or south side of the house, in the same box which she has had for the last—is it twelve years?—was the original founder of the Chicago Opera company, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, sitting supremely erect as is her custom, and giving the same calm and tranquil attention to the performance that she has done almost every night for all of those years that she has been in Chicago. She invariably occupies the same seat, which is the correct one for the hostess. In a box on the right side of the opera house the hostess sits in the left hand front chair; on the left side of the house she should sit in the right hand one. This is in order that she never has to turn her back on her guests to look at the stage. For them to do so to her is quite correct, but not for her to do so to them.

Some hostesses are apt to be confused when it comes to seating their parties in the proper manner in an opera box, but if they follow the rule here described they cannot go wrong. In the case of those boxes which face the stage the hostess should sit in the same relative seat as she does in her automobile if she be a stickler for form—namely: the right hand one. I am merely giving this information because several persons have asked it. Form and ceremony are a necessary part of social life, and will do no harm, provided you do not take them too seriously.

Taking It Seriously.

The recent elections evoked a greater interest than any in recent years. Much personal feeling smoldered in the well clad bosoms of the latest element in politics, the women, and it was as well that the strife ended when it did before sentiments grew any more acute. We women must learn to take our duties as citizens with greater equanimity and to let the other fellow vote the way he or she—especially she—sees fit.

That the gentler sex is taking its new duties seriously is certainly true. Mrs. William J. Chalmers has as a guest her niece, Mrs. Louis M. Gibbs of New York. Mrs. Chalmers was anxious to have Mrs. Gibbs arrive by last Tuesday, but the latter would not leave New York until after election day, she was so anxious to record her vote for President and governor. This was only one of many instances reported to this column of this sense of the duties of citizenship on the part of women.

Taken in connection with the recent change of parties in England, the American elections indicate a receding of the radical wave which rose up and swept the world after the great war, as if in protest against the holocaust which was laid to the rule of capitalistic classes. In Italy the communists and radicals nearly upset the beans for a time, and it was only the appearance of that remarkable movement known as the Fascisti that saved that country from something that might have rivaled the Russian catastrophe.

Like everything of its kind, this usurping of power in the name of good order has its dangers to the cause of orderly freedom. The story of Mrs. John Urie, a former Chicagoan and a sister of our well known fellow citizen, Mrs. James W. Morrisson, is a case in point. Some six years or so ago, on account of her husband Dr. Urie's health, they moved to Italy, where, after spending some time in Rome, they decided to buy a place on Lake Lugano near a little mountain village.

Three young women who are active in the numerous affairs of society at this, the busiest, season of the year are Miss Sarah Brewster and Miss Louise Tyler, who are among the group of debutantes to function in sundry capacities at the Billboard ball, to be given for the benefit of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society at the Coliseum on Nov. 25, and Mrs. Knowlton L. Ames Jr., who is a prominent member of the Junior league, which will begin its series of Saturday morning Children's theater performances this week with "The Wizard of Oz" at the Playhouse.

Mrs. Ames is in charge of tickets and advertising for the Junior league's Children's theater. The original tin woodman's suit worn when Montgomery and Stone played in "The Wizard of Oz" has been donated to the league by Mr. Stone, as well as his own scarecrow head with its engaging lopsided grin, which he has given to Miss Janet Pauling for her part.

Miss Sarah Brewster, whose garden tea last June gave her the distinction of being the year's first debutante, with Siss Sarane Otis and Miss Rosemary Gallery, also buds, will be given a luncheon by Miss Margaretta Otis of 2033 Prairie avenue at the Woman's Athletic club on Thursday of this week.

Mrs. Thornhill Broome of the Churchill will give a dinner at the Casino and a theater party for Miss Tyler on Wednesday evening. Miss Tyler's debut ball will be given on Dec. 6 at the Blackstone by her mother, Mrs. Ralph Martin Shaw of 1427 State parkway, and Mr. Shaw.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

MRS. RICHARD PROSSER WATTS.

MRS. AUGUSTINE A. FLICK JR.
[Edgewater Beach Photo.]

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Florence Hooker, daughter of Mrs. Herbert L. Hooker of Chicago and Douglas, Mich., to Richard Prosser Watts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Watts of Adrian, Mich.

Miss Ruth Buhl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Buhl of 4155 Sheridan road, became the bride of Augustine A. Flick Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Flick of 6807 Lakewood avenue, on Oct. 25. Mr. and Mrs. Flick are at Palm Beach on their honeymoon.

It was an enchanting spot, and they acquired one of those fascinating little villas and gardens that one finds nowhere else on the globe. It was right on the border of the lake with steps leading down to the water. A vine hung wall separated them from the rest of the community.

On Forbidden Ground.

Not that Mrs. Urie sought seclusion. She was immediately interested in her neighbors, the village people, not far away, and inclined to show them the same friendliness she had manifested toward their fellow countrymen in faraway Chicago on South Halsted street, where she was for some years an occupant of Hull House. That she was a so-called theoretical socialist was known, but at that time little or nothing was thought of it. On Lake Lugano she did not make a point of her political point of view. She merely wanted to show her friendliness to her new neighbors.

She visited the parochial school, and sought to introduce there some of our modern ideas of making education pleasant. She organized a Christmas tree, for instance, and tried to start community singing and dancing. But here she was treading on forbidden ground. The school was parochial, therefore the church felt its authority menaced by alien methods and ideas. The children were forbidden either to join in the festivities or to accept the simple presents she had gathered to cheer their bleak little lives. These gifts were daintily done up with red ribbons tied about the white paper coverings. Remember those red ribbons; they were part of the damning evidence.

Being a wise and reasonable woman, she understood the feeling against her and her doctrine of brotherly love and the bettering of local conditions, and accepted it without a struggle. But her reputation as a socialist continued, though nothing was done about it until a local politician with whom she had come in contact, and whose personality was not of the highest, took the matter up and made a complaint against her at the ministry in Rome. The chief proof of her socialistic tendencies as writ on the books at Rome consists in those red ribbons tied about the little Christmas gifts. This, and the intrusion in the school, though nothing in the way of preaching her doctrine could be laid against her. But the sentiment developed among the powers that were (and still are) was that she was a danger.

The nearest good sized town to her place was Lugano, which is in Switzerland, just over the border. She banked and did her important shopping there. On one occasion she found that the Italian customs officers had orders to prevent her return to her home on Lake Lugano. She overcame these, and through the American embassy at Rome secured a free pass to come and go as heretofore. One day, however, she was again stopped and this time apparently permanently. She was forbidden to set foot on Italian soil, and was not permitted even to return to pack up her things, dismiss her servants, and shut up her house. The task was left to her husband, who was ill, and such friends as were available.

Those red ribbons on the records at Rome had done for her. In vain she protested through our ambassador. She was prevented from even a day's sojourn, and obliged to await on Swiss soil the exodus of her husband and child.

The Uries are now living at Torquay in southern England, where Dr. Urie's condition, due largely to this Italian incident, is in a precarious condition. It is greatly to Mrs. Urie's credit that she still continues her benefactions in the little village where she had been for the last few years a sort of guardian angel to many of the utterly destitute that clog every Italian community, no matter how small it may be.

Girls at Hockey.

The match this afternoon between the United States hockey team and the local one, which will be played at the Stadium in Grant park, will be a lively affair and most interesting to watch. The players are girls, young and athletic. The public is invited by the contestants to buy tickets and watch the game. The money so raised will be devoted to training the hockey girls of this part of the world to compete with the national teams and ultimately with the English team, which up to now has been uniformly victorious over its American competitors. Mrs. Emmons Blaine Jr. is one of the most enthusiastic advocates of this sport among the girls of this region, and has done much to promote the game in Winnetka where she lives. Her mother-in-law, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, is entertaining at a Sunday supper tonight the members of the various teams and their hostesses (for the visiting players are being put up by people in Winnetka and Lake Forest).

That stadium is going to be a great factor in the city's life. It will now seat, I think it is nearly 20,000, and when completed, will accommodate five times that number. Situated as it is just south of the Field museum on the shore of the lake, it is an important part of the city beautiful plan.

"The Allied Arts, Inc.," as John A. Carpenter and Adolph Bolm have decided to call their combination of orchestra music and interpretative ballet, has its circular out now and presents an interesting prospect to the intelligently esthetic, or esthetically intelligent. Its opening paragraph announces that "For the first time in the history of Chicago, the richness and brilliancy of a modern orchestra will be united to the color and grace of the ballet in a representation belonging peculiarly to this city. The Solo orchestra, conducted by Eric DeLamarter, and the Ballet Intime, headed by and directed by Adolph Bolm, will combine their resources in a series of performances of unique charm."

It will be an entertainment of a Russian cast of countenance. Bolm is a Russian. Mme. Thamar Karsavina, who is generally considered as one of the world's greatest dancers, is also a Russian and was a member of the Imperial Russian ballet. Nicolas Remisoff, who is to have the scenic effects in charge, was connected with the Chauve Souris and other famous Russian artistic enterprises. Bolm was at one time a member of the Diaghileff ballet. So that in this new enterprise we may be said to have the essence of the latest Russian contributions to music, dancing, and scenic art. It certainly is a most remarkable thing for Chicago, and has not its like anywhere else in the world today. It does not and should not in any way conflict with our Civic opera. It is a thing apart and not a rival or competitor with any other undertaking to promote art in its many expressions.

The first performance is set for Thanksgiving day at Eighth Street theater—in the afternoon—and will be repeated the following Sunday afternoon. Its second is dated for Tuesday evening, Dec. 30, and Thursday afternoon, Jan. 1. Sponsors of the enterprise are alphabetically given in the prospectus, and start with the names of Arthur Aldis and Robert Allerton, following which are Mrs. Benjamin Becker, Mrs. John Borden, John A. Carpenter, Mrs. Kenneth Sawyer Goodman, Marquette Healy, Eames MacVeagh, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Benjamin Marshall, Augustus Peabody, Mrs. Charles B. Pike, George F. Porter, Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, Herman Waldeck, and Mrs. Albert Wolf.

Profits to Charity.

Tomorrow afternoon will see the opening of the little shop which those two extremely chic and clever young and fashionable married women, Mrs. Howard Linn and Mrs. William E. Clow Jr., have been planning and arranging ever since last spring.

It is to be called "Au Paradis," being named after a little shop which Mrs. Linn saw as she was motoring through France. The insignia for it, which heads their letter paper and is on the tiny seals, is a flying dove bearing in its beak a card with "I & L" (Isabelle and Lucy, the names of the two proprietresses of Au Paradis). The card of announcement informs the public that at Au Paradis you will find "antiquities, objects different and delicious" (it is a translation free and offhand that I offer here.)

After many uncertainties its final location has been definitely arranged in that charming old house at 710 Rush street so long identified with Mrs. John A. Carpenter's artistic ménage. There on the second floor back, in the large and gloriously, vividly, duskily blue room identified with so many a gay and wonderful party, musical and otherwise, these two up to date young women are offering to the public a collection of things which they gathered together in their visits to France, Spain, and other nearby countries last spring—furniture, ornaments, tapestries, etchings, books, and other things exotic and indispensable. As both of them have extraordinarily good taste and lots of imagination and courage, it ought to be a good showing of the latest in these lines.

I mention these things in this column because the two originators and perpetrators of the undertaking are going to give their profits to a charity, which one will be decided later when they see how much they have to give. They do not want to raise unfulfillable hopes in the breast of any needy philanthropic organization until they see what success meets their efforts. They expect to run their shop only until the end of February.

It is one more expression of that insatiable energy which is becoming more and more manifest among the well to do women today and which makes young girls of wealthy families take up professions and older women go into businesses of various kinds. This is one of the fruits of our inventive genius. So many labor saving appliances are now in use that almost unlimited time has thereby been created for women who used to do all the work now done by machinery. As long as most men work, women might as well find employment, too. In older communities, where there is or was more inherited wealth, there is more leisure, or idleness, as you choose to term it, so that social life is more absorbing than it is in a vigorously constructive place like Chicago.

Living Billboards.

The Billboard ball is making progress in its arrangements, all of which is duly recorded by its publicity chairman, Mrs. Aldis Browne, who is on her job twenty-five hours a day. From her I learn that quite a bouquet of debutantes is to advertise a well known packer's products. Miss Sarah Brewster and Miss Beatrice Michaelson are to represent Jack Sprat and his wife who could eat no fat, Miss Brewster to be Jack Sprat, while Miss Michaelson is to be his wife who could partake of no lean. Miss Brier Wright and Miss Emily Scott are to present in an irresistible tableau other contributions towards the sustenance of the world, like ham and sausage. A passionate Maxfield Parrish sort of background will further enhance this living billboard advertisement. The date of the ball, Nov. 25, is not far off. Already the signs are that it will be a record breaker in charity balls. All but ten of the billboards have already been taken for the background. Any one who wants to get space would better apply soon.

Dec. 22 is the date set for the Eli Bates settlement benefit, when the women's committee has taken over the Illinois theater for the evening, with the "Music Box Review" as the entertainment. Seats go on sale tomorrow. They can be obtained either by mail or by telephone. Mrs. J. Lawrence Houghteling is chairman of the ticket sales. Mrs. Lawrence Viles is chairman of the benefit committee. Mrs. Edward C. Crossett is at the head of the committee on advertisements for the program. Miss M. J. Rozet is in charge of the sale of boxes, almost all of which have been already bespoken. Among those who have taken boxes are Mrs. Arthur Farwell, president of the women's board; Mrs. E. C. Crossett, Mrs. Noble B. Judah, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. Lawrence Viles, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Mrs. George A. McKinlock, Henry Porter, and Frederick Rawson.

Eli Bates house is the oldest of Chicago's many and justly famous social settlements, having been founded before the words "social settlement" had been coined. It is on West Elm street, in the neighborhood of the gas works, where there are a great many of foreign birth who greatly need what such an establishment can give them in the way of friendship and counsel.

Red Cross Begins Annual Roll Call on Armistice Day

By Kate Webber.

THE annual roll call of the American Red Cross will have its start on Tuesday, Armistice day, and will continue through Thanksgiving day.

This year's efforts amount to more than a roll call, according to Mrs. Katharine M. Briggs, director of the home service department. It is a renewal of the pledge made to 100,000 disabled ex-service men throughout the United States, who are still being aided by the Red Cross.

"There has been a small increase in the number of men under our care," said Mrs. Briggs. "This is due to the Reed-Johnson bill, which extends the time in which a man may be hospitalized and may file his claim for compensation.

"Few persons realize how far their membership in the Red Cross goes. It reaches men in five contract hospitals in Chicago and Cook county. Chicago men in thirty-six hospitals in the United States; men in their homes, after discharge from twenty four hospitals; men at Evergreen, the school for the military blind in Baltimore; and men in hall bedrooms, who are perhaps among those most in need of aid."

The thousand dollars spent weekly on rent, fuel, and other necessities for the men and their families is not the most important part of the work of the Chicago chapter. Days and weeks are spent in searching for doctors and buddies who can establish claims for government compensation. The men have not the strength or the knowledge to do this work for themselves. Thousands of dollars have come to ex-service men as a result of this service performed by the Red Cross.

The personnel of the roll call in Chicago includes Mrs. William E. Dever, Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, Mrs. Howard H. Spaulding, Mrs. Harry Pratt Judson, Mrs. Morris Woolf, Mrs. Edward Ince, Miss Emily Napieralski, Mrs James A. Patten, Thomas M. Temple, H. Russell Ross, and Marquis Eaton.

P. T. A. to Meet Here Thursday

MRS. AARON LEVY, newly elected president of the Chicago district of the Illinois Council of Parent-Teacher associations, has called a conference of the ninety-three associations comprising that membership for Thursday at 1:30 o'clock in the Eleanor clubrooms, 17 North State street. Mrs. T. M. Kilbride, state president, of Springfield, will speak on "Individual Responsibility" Mrs Walter H. Buhlig will talk on "Junior High School and Platoon Schools."

The Chicago district is planning to concentrate its efforts toward promoting the state program planned in the convention last spring. "Better Parenthood" was the motto adopted, and with this subject and that of the endowment fund for the state work, just started, the local district expects to do great things.

In addition to these two aims, and that of promoting a better understanding between parents and instructors, the local associations carry on child welfare work by furnishing milk to the school children at recess periods and by bringing to the mothers experts who can instruct them in the proper care of children.

Some associations have student aid funds, thus helping less fortunate children to secure a little more schooling before going into the business world. Other clubs furnish restrooms or buy pictures or playground equipment. All this work is being done by women who receive no remuneration except greatly improved conditions which react to the benefit of the communities and the families therein.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans.

"MRS. WOODBRIDGE was at our meeting yesterday," the club member told her friend.

"Does she still retain her membership in your club?" the friend asked.

"Yes, indeed. Of course, with the many calls upon her time—she's on half a dozen boards, and on all sorts of special committees—she can't attend meetings often, but she's always interested in what we're doing, and always ready to help out in an emergency or on special occasions. What's more, she always refers to us as her club."

"She should," the friend claimed. "It was through you that she became acquainted with those who helped her to get into the larger club, and thereby into the larger field of work."

"She had the qualities of a leader or she wouldn't have gone far," insisted the club member.

"I'll admit it's decent of her to remain loyal to her first club. Some women forget the club that gave them their start as soon as they work up a little."

"Sometimes they try to forget us and can't," said the club member. "I remember one case in particular. The woman got into a larger club and proceeded to ignore us. When she met our members she'd tell them, with a superior air, how lovely the new club was, what worth while things it was doing, what superwomen the members all were. Six months later she came back to us. She didn't talk any more about the larger club, but she did tell a fellow member that she guessed clubs and club members were pretty much alike no matter where you found them, and that, after all, your first club was like an old friend, hard to forget."

THE MOTOR CRANKS THE CAMERA

Movies you make yourself

THERE'S something new in photography—a new pleasure and a fascinating one—motion pictures the Kodak way. With the same ease that you make ordinary snapshots you can now film and project "movies" of your family, your friends, your sports and pleasures.

The camera is the Cine-Kodak, and all you do is train the lens and press the button. A motor cranks the camera and gets the scene in action.

The projector is the Kodascope—also Eastman-made—it allows you to show professional releases as well as your own movies. Through Kodascope Libraries, Inc., you can rent famous feature films, Charlie Chaplin comedies, animated cartoons and travel scenes, and show them in your own home.

When you buy Cine-Kodak film you've paid for the finishing by Eastman experts.

You press the button; we do the rest.

Let us demonstrate the Cine-Kodak either in your own home or in our Projection Room

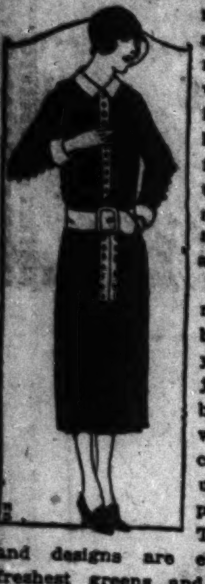
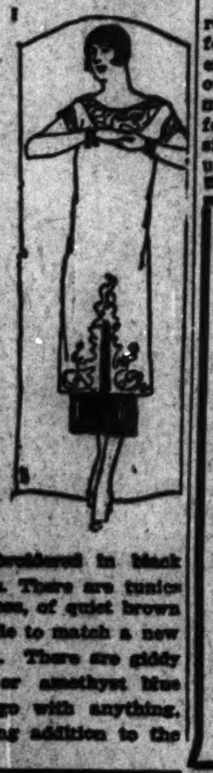
Smart Belts Are Taking On Width



Fashion finds many little quirks these days with which to usher in the new season. And among the most noticeable is the width lent to feminine belts. They have been narfor so long that the wide suede and silk affairs seen in the shops are a bit startling.

It's a complete reversion to the belts of yesteryear, when one joined one's blouse and skirt with a mammoth coverall effect, usually of shiny patent leather. The new colors and designs are enchanting, the freshest greens and blues and the most daring of plaids being much in vogue. One may use them today with ones' sweaters or beneath the jackets of one's tailleur—anywhere that one thinks a belt either necessary or ornamental.

Tunic Tendencies Are All Downward



Going down! It's not the cry of the elevator but of the waist line, especially concerning one's blouses. Gone are the short or hip length addenda to suits. This year they reach at least to the knee, and usually to within an inch or two of the hem of one's skirt, without any dividing line near one's middle.

The long tunic is here with a vengeance, and the variations of it are legion. There are gay tunics, long and less, of bright colored kasha embroidered in black or a series of colors. There are tunics also long and beltless, of quiet brown or black crêpe, made to match a new winter street outfit. There are giddy tunics of scarlet or amethyst blue which just don't go with anything, but make a fetching addition to the wardrobe.

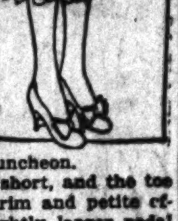
The Opera Pump Has Come Back



The strap is dead. Long live the strap! The opera pump, graceful and beloved, but not nearly so comfortable nor so easy to keep in position as the strapped and supported slipper, has come to reign at ball and theater, afternoon tea and gay luncheon.

The vamp is still short, and the toe rounded to give a trim and petite effect to even the slightly larger pedal extremities. And wide, snappy bows or gleaming buckles contribute to the modishness of the foot covering. Comfort is laughed to the four winds beside the important business of being up to date.

WOMEN THE WORLD OVER

The privilege of wearing knickerbockers on the street has been granted to the women of Reedy, W. Va., a referendum vote showing a majority of one.

According to the 1920 census figures 1,920,281 married women were gainfully employed.

Perfumed cigarets is the latest vogue among fashionable women in London.

Miss Elinor D. Gregg has taken over the work of supervising 100 nurses and matrons conducting health demonstrations and hygiene work on the Indian reservations of the country.

Half a million women in the United States have received instruction in hygienic home care of the sick by the American Red Cross.

During the ten years they have been employed in the United States treasury department in Washington Miss Belle Trouland and Miss Belle Lindquist have established a record of counting $1,000,000,000 apiece and without an error, too.

In Chile all universities are open to women on equal terms with the men, and nearly all professions are open to them. The women of that country have already distinguished themselves in medicine, dentistry, and literature.

Miss Kate Gleason, a construction expert of Rochester, N. Y., after experimenting for five years, has succeeded in perfecting a solid concrete house that can be erected at a marketing cost of from $3,600 to $4,500.

ITCHING ECZEMA DRIED RIGHT UP WITH SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.

·ART AND ARTISTS·

Modernists Give Us Pause at the Art Institute

By Eleanor Jewett.

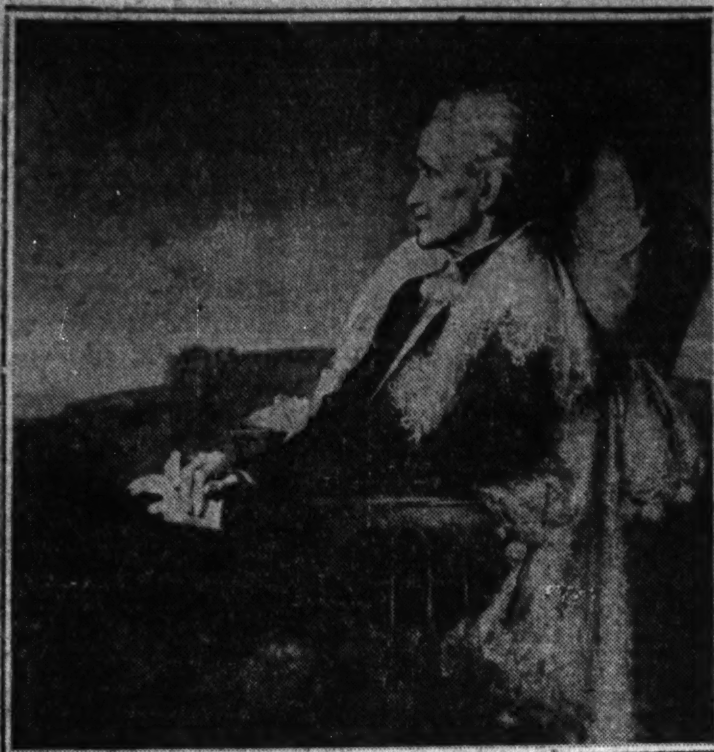
TEN days have passed since the opening of the exhibition of American paintings and sculpture at the Art institute, and those ten days have seen many hundreds of visitors pass through the galleries. They have also seen quiet hours when the visitor had time to catch his breath and realize by just what types of picture he was surrounded. For the most part the type is sympathetic. The adjectives and qualifying phrases that mean beauty and charm and loveliness and tranquillity and power in painting are the ones which rise most readily to mind at a casual survey of the exhibit. There is just one room of horrors.

Gallery 58 is the room of horrors. Two paintings redeem it and by redeeming it proclaim themselves out of place there. These two are "The Upper Vineyard" by Frederic M. Grant and "The Black Macaw" by Stark Davis. They should rightfully be hung in different company. For the rest they are birds of a feather and it is wise that the adage should be followed in their installation. Flocking is the most apt characterization of their grouping. Alone, the canvases might provoke ridicule, at least a smile would be permissible; together, they challenge any but a serious emotion on the part of the visitor and declare themselves, indeed, as part of a serious movement in the art of today.

However earnestly they may have been conceived and elaborated, heaven be praised that we do not have to like them. Pity may be akin to love, but the pity for the artists so tuned to this representation of their souls is not normal love. It is as distorted a sentiment as the work that calls it forth. To be explicit—what effect did the portrait by Edwin W. Dickinson of Secretary Hughes have upon your aesthetic sensibilities? Did you appreciate enthusiastically the purple aura that surrounds and emanates from him? Could you indorse with your approval that lavender tinged face, those lavender hands? Or was not rather your first emotion one of shrinking repugnance?

What was your reaction to the "Street Preacher," by George Luks? Random selections picked out these others also by which you might test yourself: "Portrait of Aileen Cramer," by Henry Lee McFee; "Chimney Philosophers," by Ross E. Moffett; "Claudia," by H. E. Schnakenberg; "Emma and Her Children," by George Bellows; "The Homecoming," by Anthony Angarola; "The Drinker," by Randall Davey; "Cabaret, No. 1 and Cabaret, No. 2" by Guy Pene du Bois, and "Tillers," by Cameron Booth.

Of course, it may be that the fault lies with you, if you do not care for these pictures. Certainly a number of them are stamped with the name of artists who have made important places for themselves and their work in the world of modern painting. You cannot help recognizing directly the names of George Bellows, Randall Davey, George Luks, Anthony Angarola [though he does not rank quite with the preceding trio], Ross E. Moffett, and the Hughes portrait painter, Dickinson. Such names stand for serious artists. Their number puts their intention above suspicion. So many artists representing such scattered parts of the country could not band together, surely, to perform a hoax upon an innocent public.



"Portrait of My Mother," by Malcolm Parcell, won the Norman Waite Harris bronze medal and $300 in the thirty-seventh annual exhibition of American paintings and sculpture now on view in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. The exhibition will remain open until Dec. 15.

They work from a standpoint, that perhaps is the simplest way of putting the matter, they work from a different standpoint from the men who create beauty and also from those, whom you might call their progenitors, who created distortions, and censored and sneered at the blind uninitiated who could not decipher the riddles they jumbled together in the name of simplification. These present modernists treat their subjects more crudely. The elemental is put blank before you. What the future will do to their ideals thus expressed, remains to be seen. For us, the room in the Art institute may truly be a room of horrors, or a room of revelation, depending on our reaction to this particular development of modernism.

The lecture courses offered by the Art institute are widening in scope. During the month of November every Saturday at 2:30 o'clock in Fullerton hall Dudley Crafts Watson will deliver a talk to the children of the members of the institute. Yesterday it was "Drawing Daddy's Picture"; next Saturday it will be "The Rainbow and the Dishpan"; then follow "Music and Masterpieces" and "Angel Food Cake or Popovers"—surely the titles are sufficiently tantalizing.

Mr. Watson is scheduled also for a series of lectures that he refers to as "Practical Talks on Interior Decoration" for Thursday afternoons in Fullerton hall at 2:30 o'clock, beginning with last Thursday. The fee for this course is $5 and advance registration should be made with Miss Helen Parker, museum instructor. The subjects for this series are "The Reception Room," "Living Room," "Dining Room," "Bedroom," "Nursery," and "Play Shop."

Lionel Robertson's course of lectures on "Interior Decoration," for members of the Art institute, proved so popular that the first four in the series are to be repeated for those who were not able to attend the first group. The lectures will be given on successive Monday afternoons in Fullerton hall at 2:30 o'clock. The second talk of the group will be given tomorrow.

Philip L. Hale will speak on "Composition" at 4 o'clock on Thursday afternoon in Fullerton hall.

Charles Fabens Kelley will speak on "Persian Pottery" in Fullerton hall at 4 o'clock on Thursday afternoon.

Lorado Taft will continue on Friday afternoon in Fullerton hall his series of lectures with a discussion of "Contemporary French Sculpture."

Raymond P. Ensign, dean of the School of the Art institute, is making a comparative study of the leading art schools in Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Boston, New York, Brooklyn, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Washington, and Cleveland. He is sending back each week instructive letters to the art school. A paragraph from Washington states that though Mr. Ensign waved to President Coolidge, motioning him to stop as he drove down Pennsylvania avenue and give him his ideas on art schools, the President paid no attention to the signal; probably, sighs Mr. Ensign, he had something else on his mind at the moment than to gather in random waves.

In Philadelphia Mr. Ensign found an old friend and fellow art student in Walter H. Dower. Of the other three members of their class, however, "one is making and selling pot boilers at a seashore resort, one is in an insane asylum, and the other was inspecting concrete in the New York subway the last we heard"—so goes the cause of art.

The lecture on Saturday at 2:30 o'clock by Dudley Crafts Watson for the children of members will be heard in Fullerton hall.

Nine modern French prints recently have been added to the Albert Rouillier Memorial collection in the Art institute. They may be seen in the first large room in the print galleries on the first floor. One is an unusual color etching by the great Frenchman, Auguste Lepere, and another is a wood engraving by him, entitled "La France" Aristide Maillot is represented by a wood cut and Edmond Kayser by an original dry point. "At the Piano," by Leopold Levy, is another of the prints. Felix Bruhot has a charming etching of a young girl. Completing the group we find a wood cut by D. Galanis and an etching by Gabriel Decamps.

An exhibition of water color drawings by Gordon Ertz is on view at the New Brownleigh club, 153 North Michigan avenue, and may be seen there until Nov. 20. Gordon Ertz is well known to most of us for his fascinating, slim dancing figures. He excels in graceful lines and delicate poses. It is almost, with some of his sketches, as though a butterfly had passed over his paper and left the shadow of its beauty on the page. If you want pure pleasure from an exhibit, go to this.

The eleventh annual meeting of the John H. Vanderpool Art association will be held in the Vanderpool school on Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Anna Lynch, beloved in Chicago for her exquisite miniatures and flower paintings, is at present in Spain. She writes that she is on her way to Seville after six happy weeks in Palma de Mallorca. "All Spain is paintable, but rather hard to travel in." I think the last applies to Europe rather generally in these after the war days.

The first exhibition of the season was scheduled to open at the Arts club on Nov. 1. Did it? No warning note has been sounded, if it did.

INSIDE DOPE ON THE MOVIE STARS

Beauty Contest Put Mary Astor on Road to Fame

By Julia Harpman.

MARY ASTOR bought her career for a 2 cent stamp. That is probably the greatest dividend ever declared on a 2 cent investment.

A baby show will always draw a crowd to a village fair. As sure as the robins chirp in the spring, proud mammas present their precious offspring in annual competition, each parent certain that her child, the fairest of the flock, will be awarded the prize.

Publications from time to time add to their circulation by featuring a beauty contest. Editors and village fair promoters must be psychologists if they would make money. They know a woman's belief in her own charms and in those she passes on to her children has not lessened since Paris, the sap, risked his peace of mind to become judge of a beauty contest back there on Olympus.

Beauty contests have caused many heartaches and much cattish hatred. Rash, indeed, is the man who dares to decide such a competition. Confidence in her own good looks is a universal femimine trait. It was this female characteristic that made Mary Astor a motion picture star.

If Lucille Langhanke had remained in Quincy, Ill., hiding her lovely features, her auburn hair, and leaf-brown eyes behind a hedge of modesty that paid her nothing at all no one in the world ever would have heard of Mary Astor, the beautiful actress.

Lucille Langhanke, the daughter of a college professor, was not always a beauty. They called her Rusty in Quincy, because of her red hair and freckles that stood out on her white skin like a rash.

Liken her to the ugly duckling that high hatted the others in the pond when she became a swan. Or to the lowly, fuzzy caterpillar that mysteriously becomes a gorgeous butterfly. Well, Lucille, of the unlovely surname, became first a beauty and then, via a beauty contest, Mary Astor, the movie star.

Her red hair had dulled to that copper color that is the despair of hairdressers who attempt to manufacture it. Her freckles had paled and blended with her delicate coloring. She had grown tall and slender. Lucille's education, which started in Quincy public schools, continued in Chicago.

Wins Beauty Contest.

Eugene V. Brewster, who has figured much in the public prints in other rôles besides that of wealthy publisher, is a stanch advocate of the beauty contest as a means of gaining circulation for his various magazines.

It was a beauty contest that brought Corliss Palmer, the gorgeous cigar counter girl from Georgia, into Brewster's life—brought him, he declares, the greatest love of his life. Corliss won a beauty contest which was sponsored by the Brewster publications and then she won the publisher's heart.

How unlovely Lucille Langhanke became beautiful Mary Astor forms one of the most interesting of Hollywood's romances. She won her career via a beauty contest, and after many struggles, reached the heights as Lady Margery in "Beau Brummel." Soon, encouraged by John Barrymore, she will appear on the stage.

Miss Palmer and Brewster have lived together in a magnificent house at Morristown, N. J., while Brewster's second wife, Mrs. Brewster, from whom the publisher is not divorced, and their little son live at Roslyn, L. I.

It was another Brewster publication beauty contest that Lucille Langhanke—now Mary Astor—won. Her picture, submitted among thousands of others, was selected as the most beautiful and she was notified to come to New York. The prize was a chance in the movies.

Mary had always wanted to go on the stage. With the realization that her life's ambition was about to be realized, she persuaded her father to resign his position and pool his interests with hers. She was the only child, and her parents agreed to take a chance. If she won out, they all would win. The father, it was planned, would become her business manager in the event that she became a star. And if she were unsuccessful the entire family would lose with good grace. They were game.

Discovered by Durant.

Soon after her arrival Mary met Charles Albin, a portrait painter, who assayed her beauty highly and arranged her meeting with Lejaren Hiller, the artist, who was interested in motion pictures. Mr. Hiller helped Mary to get work in the pictures. And then Mary was discovered by Harry Durant, an official of the Famous Players-Lasky company.

Mary became Durant's apprentice. Durant believed Mary had possibilities as a screen star. His connection with the motion picture company prevented his acting openly as her manager, so, out of his legal knowledge—he was also a lawyer—he evolved the plan to bind Miss Astor, who was then only 14 years old, by an apprenticeship indenture, under the provisions of the old "master and man" act.

The apprenticeship indenture provided that Durant instruct Miss Langhanke in dramatic technique and provide employment for her as a motion picture actress. In return for which he was to receive 25 per cent of all salary over $100 a week earned by Miss Langhanke, whose name Durant said he himself suggested be changed to Mary Astor.

In 1922, when Mary was 17, an attempt was made by Miss Astor and her parents to have the indenture contract set aside. During the time between the signing of the agreement and the time of the lawsuit Mary Astor had become a star and had been offered a contract for $1,000 a week. Mary and her parents resented Durant's contention that, under the terms of their agreement, he was entitled to one-fourth of $90 a week out of her weekly salary.

They went to law. It was the first case of its kind to be tried since 1804, and, in accordance with the antiquated master and man act, Supreme Court Justice McCook of New York decided that Mary Astor was legally the indentured apprentice of Durant.

Mrs. Langhanke declared that the agreement had been signed by Mary's father, who was under the impression that it was a form of managerial contract. Their daughter was a minor at the time and, therefore, any contract had to be signed by her parents, who were her legal guardians.

Miss Astor and her parents admitted that Mr. Durant had sent them to several producing managers who were engaged in selecting casts, but they claimed all credit for securing engagements for the youthful actress.

Lose in Court.

Following her indenture to Durant Miss Astor starred with Tri-Art Films in "Beggar Maid," with Reginald Denny, "The Young Painter," and "Hope."

Durant claimed he taught Miss Astor what she knew about the motion picture profession, whereas her parents declared that all he ever told her was not to blink her eyes while she was acting. She had been trained in dramatic art before she met Durant, they said.

However, the court ruled that the contract was valid unless it could be proved that Durant was incompetent to teach dramatic art or had failed to instruct his apprentice. Miss Astor continued bound to Durant.

Once, however, she went without work for a long time. The family funds ran so low, says Miss Astor, that they were compelled to move nine times within a year, each move being to a cheaper flat.

Mary then worked in several two reelers and after some discouragement got a part in "John Smith," which Selznick was producing. Eugene O'Brien was the star and Miss Astor was given the leading feminine part. She was then paid $300 a week—three times the salary she had made up to that time.

While John Barrymore and his sister Ethel were in Paris, they saw "John Smith" on the screen. Barrymore, at that time, was contemplating an offer to appear in picturization of "Beau Brummel" for Warner Brothers.

"If I ever do make 'Beau Brummel,' I want that girl!"—nodding toward the filmed Mary Astor—"to play the part of Lady Marquery Alvanley," said John to Ethel. That was how Miss Astor came to be selected for the feminine lead in Barrymore's delightful film version of the great play.

But before Barrymore made his decision that brought so much glory to Miss Astor she had another siege of hard times and a disheartening search for work.

Then Came Contract.

That ended when she got a part with Dick Barthelmess in "The Bright Shawl," a First National picture. There followed a part in "Scarecrow," in which Glenn Hunter starred, and after that came a contract with Famous Players-Lasky, for which company she played the leading feminine part in "The Fighting Coward," which was directed by James Cruze, Betty Compson's husband.

Miss Astor and her parents who have adopted her screen name, live together in a pretty Hollywood apartment. They also own an apartment in New York. The actress has a charming singing voice and is quite adept at modeling in clay. Encouraged by John Barrymore, she is contemplating an appearance on the legitimate stage.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Churches Back Armistice Drive for World Peace

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

International justice and world peace will be the theme today in a majority of the pulpits not only in Chicago but throughout the nation. The federal council of the Churches of Christ in America and a dozen other organizations have combined in making Armistice Sunday the preëminent day for this positive drive for peace as compared with other efforts which may be called protests against war. In keeping with the plea for the cessation of war, today will be recognized as Red Cross Sunday when the organization which ameliorates the consequences of wars already held and prepares for all future possible emergencies of either war, fire, famine, or other national calamity will have its claims stated.

The enrollment for membership in the Red Cross begins on Tuesday, Armistice day, and continues over Thanksgiving day, Nov. 27. In backing up the call for making Armistice Sunday a day for peace, the opinions of several governors, Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Morgan of West Virginia, Sweet of Colorado, Hunt of Arizona; and among others Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan, who commanded the 27th regiment in the world war, are quoted as saying that the world war was fought to end war and, therefore, a drive for world peace is the most fitting way to celebrate Armistice day.

New Nerve Oil Ends Rheumatic Pain

The Actual Pain of Rheumatism, Neuritis, Gout and Lumbago, is due to an Irritation of the Nerves of the Muscle or the Joint. End Muscle or Joint Pain by Treating Inflamed Nerves.

Pain in all forms of rheumatism, neuritis, lumbago or sciatica, is always due to an irritation or inflammation of the nerves of the muscle or joint. When you feel pain in the muscle, it is the nerves of the muscle that hurt. When the pain is in a joint, it is the nerves of the joint that are affected. As everyone knows, in a toothache, the pain is in the nerve of the tooth. Just as a dentist treats the nerve to end toothache, so must a remedy stop the pain in the nerves of the muscle or joint before it can give you relief.

German science has now produced a remarkable new nerve oil known as BUHLER OIL, which when applied to the painful joint or muscle, penetrates right through the skin and reaches the inflamed or irritated nerves—no matter how deep seated—so that relief from pain is quickly obtained from the first application.

BUHLER OIL can be had from any of the druggists named below with a written guarantee of sure relief or money back. Buck & Rayner [6 stores], Public Drug Co. [205 State St.], Walgreen Co., Arrow Drug Co., Home Drug Co., Economical Drug Co.

STORING VITAMINS

The average healthy person stores up within the body several days' supply of essential vitamins. This explains why a well-nourished person of any age is less susceptible to germ-infection than those who are malnourished.

Scott's Emulsion

is a safety-factor that helps keep you well-nourished. A very little used daily to complement the regular diet, activates with essential vitamins and helps build resistance.

Store up a reserve of essential vitamins—take Scott's regularly.

Falling Hair Stopped

Our Experience Shows Falling Hair Due to Infected Sebum. Now Overcome!

These two pictures show a cross section of the hair root or bulb and the cap which encloses each hair from the root to surface of scalp [greatly magnified]. Germ infected Sebum causes 90% of falling hair. Remove it and hair will grow. Illustration A shows Sebum infected hair, and B healthy hair.

Written Guarantee to Stop Falling Hair—to Grow New Hair in 90 Days This New Way

Now a way to stop falling hair. To revive thin, lifeless hair. New hair grown in 90 days or money back.

A new method of reviving hair roots! We offer it to you under a written guarantee, given by your own Drug or Department Store. No cost if it fails.

That Infected Sebum in Your Hair

We have discovered that 91% of all falling hair, thin hair, dull hair—is due to infection of the scalp oil (Sebum). Sebum forms at the follicles of the hair. Its natural function is to lubricate the hair.

But often it becomes infected. It cakes on the scalp; clogs the follicles and plugs them. Go to the mirror, and you can see it in your hair in the form of an oil, or when accumulated and dried with other ingredients, as dandruff.

Germs by the millions breed in the Infected Sebum. Then they feed upon the hair. Soon it begins falling. You note too how lifeless your hair appears. In a short time, all the natural lustre and beauty are gone.

Now Overcome

Remove the Infected Sebum and the hair comes back to life—to the softness and brilliancy of your schoolgirl days.

The Van Ess treatment accomplishes that result. We know you will doubt it. So we guarantee it.

New hair grown in 90 days. Falling hair stopped. Your own Drug or Department Store gives you our guarantee to do these things. If we fail, we refund your money without argument.

Go to any Drug or Department Store today. Ask for the Van Ess Liquid Scalp Massage. Written guarantee accompanies it.

VAN ESS LABORATORIES, INC.
28 E. Kinzie St., Chicago, Illinois

Van Ess is not just a "tonic," as you can see. It combines massage and medicament in one treatment. You rub it in with the rubber massage cap. The nipples in the cap automatically feed medicament down to the follicles of the hair—the vital spot—at the same time massaging the scalp.

No Cost unless we grow hair. The Van Ess 3-bottle treatment is absolutely guaranteed. You are the sole judge. The warrant is given by your own dealer. All we require is his signature showing you have purchased a ninety-day treatment. If it fails, we refund your money. Hence you assume no risk. Over 300,000 women have made this test.

17,447 PUPILS

were registered and taught dancing at The National during the 12 months ending Oct. 31, 1924. This speaks for itself. Every course is absolutely guaranteed.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Executives and Managers.

SALES MANAGER, $12,000 A YEAR.

Somewhere in Chicago there is a man who is both a salesman and a capable executive, who has the ability to build up an organization of "green" men and get the most out of it; who is not a "slave driver," but who has the quality of getting new men to work because they want to work. Enthusiastic example is the only whip needed.

The man we want has the ability to sense constructive selling points and convey them effectively to his salesmen in a way that is possible only for a man of character and integrity.

He must be a man who has a record for accomplishment. His every appearance should be suggestive of a successful, capable business executive. He must have sufficient confidence in himself and his ability to tackle this proposition on a strictly commission basis, which is so liberal as to assure the man we select over $12,000 a year.

We are not seeking a man who has had actual experience in our business but rather a capable executive who can command the respect of a high powered sales organization.

I have seen many men who possess these qualifications make a big success in this business in a comparatively short time.

To this type of executive I have an opening which should appeal to the man who is vitally interested in his own business success.

Our business is real estate. We are one of the largest and a most reliable Chicago firm. The opportunities in this business today are greater than they have ever been at any other time. I doubt if there is one person in the city of Chicago, who does not plan to some day own his or her own home. Never before have we had so great a volume of building as at the present time. The man entering this business now should be independently wealthy in 10 years.

I have tried in this advertisement to reach only a man who has had considerable experience in the hiring and training of salesmen. He should be over 40 years of age and possess an abundant amount of energy.

If you feel that you are qualified to tackle this proposition phone for an appointment.

State 4423.

SALESMEN. HERE IS THE KIND OF JOB ANY MAN WOULD BE HAPPY IN.

I know what you are looking for; I know how hard it is for a man to find just what he wants in the way of a selling position—and the kind of pay that he wants to go with it. The position that I want to tell you about has everything that is necessary to make a man perfectly comfortable and happy. The pay is big and the position is highly dignified. The nature of the work is tremendously appealing, and we count our prospects by the thousands. The firm you will be connected with is very large, doing millions in volume annually. The position is not mechanical. You have plenty of freedom, and you are practically your own boss. Lack of experience in our line will not disqualify you for the position if you can show that you have had general business experience. The man who owns this business is a wealthy Chicagoan. He has a reputation for being a live wire and is a good man to work for. He spends money to make money. He will spend money on you if you have anything tangible and worth while to offer as a trustworthy and qualified salesman. SALESMEN.

We have opened the greatest subdivision in the Calumet steel district. Our property is located in the heart of Hammond where the greatest industrial boom the district ever experienced is now in progress. Without a doubt we have the most attractive proposition ever offered to the hard working middle class public.

The Hammond region is surrounded by 3 of the largest industrial corporations in the world, the U. S. Steel, Standard Oil, St. Clair Oil, and 64 other diversified industries employing many thousands of men, and paying millions of dollars in wages. These industries, including the Ford Motor Co., are located within 30 minutes from our subdivision.

Our salesmen are given unusual co-operation by our original system of operation. We are in a position to point the way leading to quick, ready sales. We pay more and are more liberal in our dealings than any other subdivider. Several managerial positions open to those with cars and experience.

This is an out of the ordinary proposition and we can substantiate every word in our ad. We want live salesmen with large acquaintance, living in Chicago and suburbs; those with cars preferred. This unusual opportunity is offered to real producers. Are you one of them?

If so, quick action is essential. For interview apply in person.

Smart Apt. Homes

are truly appreciated by only the most discriminating class of people.

THE REASON

why it is next to impossible to rent such an apartment is because in the speculative rental buildings the apartments are usually designed for the ordinary renter with average taste rather than with the idea of being the "last word"—excepting, of course, the huge apartments with rentals that are prohibitive except to persons of great wealth.

In a Building designed for co-operative apartment homes, however, things must be just right, because you are an owner and you would not buy in the first place unless by doing so you could acquire a real home of refinement and exquisite taste—at the same time making a very profitable investment.

The Devonshire

offers every desirable feature to one who requires six rooms and two baths. Paneled and painted walls throughout, tile baths, artistic treatment of lighting, abundant closet space, artificial refrigeration, and a delightful arrangement of rooms. Let us tell you of the advantages of this form of co-operative ownership.

Poetry and Facts

are not always the same.
EDNA ST. VINCENT MILLAY best beloved modern poet, says:
"Safe upon the solid rock
The ugly houses stand.
Come and see my shining palace,
Built upon the sand."

BUT MR. AND MRS. SENSIBLE PERSONS find that the fallacy precludes building their family future on a sound foundation, is the firm foundation of people who own something and who let dollars work for them instead of working for dollars.

THE SOLID ROCK

SHIFTING SANDS.

are what the procrastinating renter stands on, and about 80% of the people of Chicago seem to be in that class. What a lot of poets, and how nice for the landlord!

DECIDE RIGHT NOW

to locate permanently in one of the most beautiful locations on the North Side, with its beautiful park, golf course, gun club, yacht harbor, and ever delightful lake, an apartment home here, finished to your order, will cut expense to the absolute minimum and be the best investment you've ever made since you bought the ring.

ALDINE APARTMENT HOMES

are like that. They will suit you, satisfy you. You will be happy here. Offered on the 100% co-operative plan.

Come over to 507 Aldine-av. and let us show you.

Only $49.50 per month, including all interest, and a small cash payment, buys one of our new 4 room brick bungalows, which are now being completed, on Newland-av., between Grand-av. and Diversey-av. These bungalows are perfect in construction. A footing of concrete 2 feet thick supports a wall of concrete 4 feet high, on which are built the brick walls. Interior is of the best quality and finish. The trim is oak and Georgia pine. The floors are all oak and maple. The plumbing fixtures are A1, with a 5 year guarantee. The roofs are the best grade of Certainteed asphalt. Electric light fixtures, medicine cabinets, white enamel kitchen cabinets, shades, etc., make of these houses complete 4 room modern apts., with the additional feature of a large private lot, 30x125, private front and rear porches, and a basement as large as entire 1st floor, in which 4 more rooms could be built. And remember, while you are paying $49.50 per month for this beautiful home, which includes an average monthly interest of only $14, you are actually saving $35.50 per mo. towards paying for this home. The location, on Newland-av., between Grand-av. and Diversey-av., in which these houses are built, is very high grade. Houses in this vicinity are worth from $10,000 to $25,000. All streets are paved, gas, electric light, cement walks, and all modern city improvements are in. Transportation to the Loop is good. Steam trains make the Union depot in 25 minutes. Grand-av. surface line transfers to all crosstown lines. These houses are priced at $5,395, which includes cost of all improvements excepting paving. The saving tax amounts to about $80 per year for 5 years. It would be impossible to build such perfect houses on these valuable lots to sell at such a low figure were it not for our large organization, which brings all the material in immense quantities needed in the construction of these houses direct to the buildings without a dealer's profit added. About one-half of these houses were sold while under construction. They will surely sell quick.

See this beautiful property, covered with forest trees; sites 100x200 ft. each, with 50 ft. building line and other restrictions that will make this development one of the largest and most attractive we have ever attempted. The improvements include sewer, water, sidewalk, reinforced concrete pavement, gas, electricity, telephone, and ornamental lighting posts which are already in and paid for. The McGUIRE & ORR standard of developing will be as rigidly enforced in "Deerfield Heights" as in any of our North Shore developments; just a few sites in the first unit remain, which will be sold to approved purchasers at our opening price of $4,000 each. Those who have purchased are from Rogers Park, Evanston, Wilmette, Winnetka, Hubbard Woods, and Glencoe, and in nearly every instance purchasers plan to build within one year. ANOTHER
GOLF CLUB SUBDIVIDED.

During the last 31 years Elmhurst has grown up to and around the Elmhurst Golf Club Grounds. Sewer mains, water mains, and street paving have been put in around and through this property. The beautiful Elmhurst College joins it on the east. The new million dollar high school joins it on the south. It is less than 5 minutes' walk from the C. & N. W. Railroad depot and business district, 2 minutes' walk to the I. C. depot, and 9 minutes' walk to the Aurora and Elgin depot. This beautiful golf course is open as a subdivision today. The stately clubhouse now serves as our local office on the property. This subdivision is in the very heart of Elmhurst and in the center of the best residential section.

Do you remember what happened when the Evanston Golf Club was placed on the market? Do you recall the Kenilworth Golf Club subdivision? We are conducting an extensive newspaper advertising campaign [see yesterday's and today's papers], and without question we will pay $75,000 in commissions to live wire salesmen between now and Christmas.

This is the biggest and best subdivision selling proposition in the Chicago district today. Come in and let us arrange to show this property to you. We have room for several go-getter salesmen and 2 hustling field managers. Call after 10 a. m. Monday.

CLEAN-UP SALE

We have just a very few of these famous Light Six Models left.

They were Current Models six weeks ago—the same splendid cars that thousands of people are driving with so much satisfaction all over this country.

And Perfectly New Never Driven a Mile

New tires, top, paint, leather; everything just as it came from the factory a few weeks ago.

And they have a new idea in side curtains. There is a "weather valance" between the curtains and the top which shuts out the cold and wind perfectly, and the curtains are hand fitted, no trouble to put them on, they fit. Of course they open with the doors, on a steel upright support.

No used car in the world can equal the bargains we are offering in these new cars—never driven a mile.

Buy a New Car at the Price of a Used Car

A PERMANENT INSTITUTION

The reason for buying used Cadillacs from Cadillac.

Five years, ten years from now the Chicago Cadillac organization will be just as vitally interested in the Cadillac on the street as it is today.

Consequently, to protect its reputation and enlarge its business, the Cadillac Chicago Branch must be concerned in the welfare of all Cadillac motor cars sold in Chicago all the time.

It must sell its used Cadillacs with the same scrupulous care that it has in the past. The prices must be fair. The cars must be in the condition represented. Every buyer must receive full value for his money.

From no other source can the buyer of used Cadillacs receive such a guarantee of protection for his investment and active interest in his car.

We invite you to visit our Used Car Department and to inspect our Cadillac Maintenance Dept. You will be pleasantly surprised at the values offered. A visit incurs no obligation.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

PA DEARBORN IS $501,543,000 SHY ON BUILDING

Uncle Sam $4,000,000,000 Behind Normal.

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago is facing a building shortage of $501,543,000, New York $855,000,000, and the country at large $4,000,000,000, according to S. W. Straus & Co., who have just completed a survey of all American cities of more than 10,000 population. Studies were made in 528 municipalities. In 148 cities no shortage was reported, thus indicating that in those places the amount of building requirements now rests on the normal demands of growth and improvement.

Of the twenty-five leading cities, New York leads, and then comes Chicago in building shortages. Gotham's prime need is for residential types of buildings. Philadelphia reported a $240,000,000 shortage; Milwaukee, $130,000,000; San Francisco, $78,500,000; Pittsburgh, $77,000,000; Los Angeles, $51,000,000; Denver, $45,500,000; Cincinnati, $42,000,000; Portland, Ore., $35,000,000; Cleveland, $29,750,000; St. Louis, $16,000,000; Detroit, $7,000,000; Buffalo, $5,250,000; Newark, $5,000,000; Indianapolis, $3,000,000; Seattle, $2,500,000; Rochester, $1,800,000.

No Shortage in 7 Big Cities.

No shortages were reported in Boston, Baltimore, Washington, D. C., New Orleans, Minneapolis, Kansas City, or Jersey City.

The survey in Chicago disclosed the greatest need in Chicago is for buildings of the commercial and public types. It is estimated that $235,437,000 worth of commercial buildings, including hotels, wholesale and retail stores, theaters, warehouses, and industrial buildings, is needed to meet the requirements.

It is pointed out that $185,970,000 is needed for federal, state, and municipal structures, including bridges.

Some Sections Overbuilt.

A shortage of $80,135,000 reported needed for residential types, it was explained, was confined almost entirely to one and two family dwellings, as some sections of the city show sufficient and in some instances more than an adequate supply of large apartment buildings.

The construction value of churches, hospitals, charitable and educational institutions, and public buildings to be erected within the next two years, and not included in estimates of shortages noted above, was placed in the neighborhood of $61,000,000.

$500,000 Bond Issue Made on Chicago Riding Club

Negotiations for financing the new Chicago Riding club building, which is nearing completion on McClurg court, between Ontario and Ohio, were completed yesterday.

S. W. Straus & Co. announce that they have underwritten a first mortgage 6 per cent bond issue of $500,000 secured by the land, building and equipment. Besides this bond issue, the club building is being financed by a guarantee fund raised among club members.

The project, when completed, will represent an investment of considerably more than $1,000,000, according to Straus & Co.

Buehler Bros. Buy Site for $200,000 Packing Plant

Buehler Bros., Inc., with headquarters in the Drovers National Bank building, have bought from Miller & Hart, packers, for $85,000, the northwest corner of 46th and Loomis, through Chandler & Montague.

This is the site for the once contemplated plant of the Consumers Packing company. It fronts 325 feet on 46th and 125 on Loomis. The buyers will erect a $200,000 concrete building for curing, storing and shipping meat products, for their outside of Chicago chain of retail meat markets.

Will Tell 'Y' Students How to Manage Loop Buildings

John T. Redmond, manager of the Corn Exchange Bank building, will talk on "Managing Office Buildings" before the class in property management of the Chicago Real Estate board and Y. M. C. A. school of commerce on Tuesday evening.

As already announced, Louis T. Jamme will talk on "Selling Industrial Property" before the class in real estate practice.

More than 2,000 Families Own Co-operative Flats

There are now more than 2,000 families in Chicago who own their own apartments in various coöperative projects, according to Arthur E. Curtis, secretary of the Coöperative Apartment Association of Chicago.

Steel Official Plans $100,000 Glencoe House

Emanuel Block, vice president of the Inland Steel company, bought 183 feet of frontage on Longwood avenue, Glencoe, running 650 feet to the lake, from R. H. and R. H. Stafford for a reported $65,000 and intends building a $100,000 residence. Alexander Clifford of W. A. Pridmore was broker.

SIMMONS COMPANY LEASE.

A. H. Lance, vice president of the Simmons company, has bought the warehouse at the northeast corner of Roosevelt road and Washtenaw avenue, 538x264, from the Simmons company for $200,000. He then leased the property back to the Simmons company for fifteen years at a term rental of $300,000.

WILL REMODEL FLAT BUILDING.

Vincent Campos has leased the six flat building at 838 Eastwood from Charles W. Nelson for ten years at a reported net rental of $54,000, through Ham & Sherwin. The lessee expects to remodel into one room kitchenettes.

RADIO SHOP FOR NORTH SIDE.

Rudolph Fractman, who operates the Rialto Music shop at 330 South State, has leased a store in the new Butler building, 168 North State, for a radio and music store. Edgar H. Snow & Co. and M. H. Stein of L. L. Jacobs & Co. were brokers.

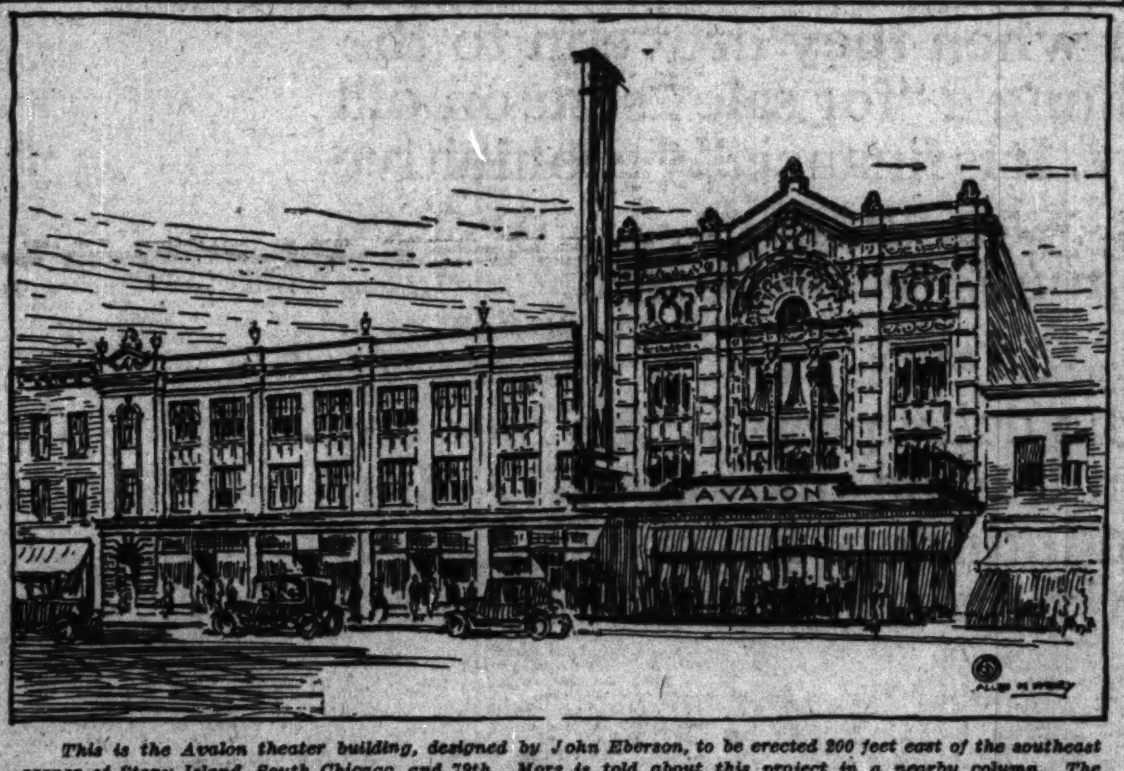
Wellington Arms Apartments

Excavation has begun for the above $3,850,000 kitchenette flat building at the southwest corner of Sheridan road and Wellington avenue, to be known as the Wellington Arms apartments. Hooper & Janusch have designed a structure to be fourteen stories on the front and side, with an extra story on the court elevation which will contain a large playroom and lounge.

Anton Wille, president of the Wellington Arms Building corporation, owner of the project, deserves a word of commendation, we believe, for playing fair with his neighbors by making all four sides of his skyscraping apartments of face brick. F. W. Janusch of Hooper & Janusch is secretary and treasurer of the corporation, and it's our guess he had something to say about making the Wellington Arms the same on all sides and not a "shirt front building." He has provided a symmetrical structure to house the roof pent houses which will harmonize architecturally with the rest of the building. A word of thanks is due Mr. Janusch for that.

The building will have 394 suites. There'll be a second playroom and a lounge on the ground floor as well as a large dining room. George M. Forman & Co. have underwritten a $2,100,000 bond issue. The site fronts 148 feet on Sheridan and 160 feet on Wellington. The above picture was made by Chester S. Danforth.

2,000 Seat Cinema for Stony Island and 79th



This is the Avalon theater building, designed by John Eberson, to be erected 200 feet east of the southeast corner of Stony Island, South Chicago, and 79th. More is told about this project in a nearby column. The above rendering is by Allen M. Weary.

$650,000 MOVIE FOR 79TH AND STONY ISLAND

Theater to Be Called "The Avalon."

Work is announced to start this winter on a $650,000 theater, store and flat building on the south side of 79th street, 200 feet east of Stony Island and South Chicago avenues.

The National Theaters corporation is having plans drawn by Architect John Eberson which call for a theater to seat in the neighborhood of 2,000. It will be called "the Avalon" and will have a completely equipped stage.

The three story building occupying the front part of the lot will contain four stores in addition to the theater entrance with two and three room apartments above. The auditorium will be in the rear with the stage at the east end.

The property fronts 150 feet on 79th and is 125 feet deep. It was purchased through John R. O'Connor.

The National Theaters corporation, of which J. J. Cooney is president, now operate the Stratford, Chatham and Hamilton theaters, and will open the Capitol at 79th and Halsted about Jan. 1.

Elmhurst Residence Has Radio Set Built in Wall

A built-in radio is the novelty installed in a house just being completed in Elmhurst. According to George F. Chase of the firm of Chase & Johnson, designers and builders, this will be done in several houses they intend building. The radio is incased in the wall above the fireplace and screened from sight with a panel. Their first house is at 367 North Addison avenue, in Elmhurst.

According to Stephen Gilchrist, TRIBUNE radio editor, the built-in radio for homes is no novelty in other cities, but is in the Chicago district.

BUYS ACRES AT MOKENA FOR "SUB."

Arthur T. McIntosh has bought the 365 acre Maltby farm at Mokena, Ill., from William F. Colvin for a reported $60,000. Part of the property lies in the town of Mokena and will be subdivided. J. Allen Lauren of Newton B. Lauren & Co., represented both parties.

PLAN 1,200 ACRE 'SUB' AROUND NEW MEDINAH CLUB

Biggest of Kind Ever in Du Page County.

What is probably the largest subdivision project in the history of Du Page county is to be put on the market soon by a syndicate of members of the new Medinah Country club. Approximately 1,200 acres of land, surrounding the club's grounds at Medinah, formerly known as Meacham, have been acquired by the syndicate through T. R. Heman, broker and also a member of the syndicate.

City planners will lay out the entire 1,200 acres with winding roads. Lots will be put on the market from time to time in fifty acre tracts. Although it is supposed that most of the buyers will be Shrine members of the new country club, nonmembers will not be barred.

It is expected that eventually there'll be residences on all sides of the club grounds, with the houses overlooking the three golf courses. There'll be about thirty lots on one side of the proposed fifty-six acre lake. The other side of the lake is club property.

It is stated that an eighty foot ski slide and a toboggan are planned by the club. Provision is made for the club eventually to have 400 acres.

START ON NINETY ROOM HOTEL ON NORTH DEARBORN

Work has started on a four story ninety room hotel at 1504-08 North Dearborn parkway from plans by Architect Raymond Gregori. It'll be called the Hotel Calsin. Edward M. Levine bought the 50x150 site from Isaac M. Mills for a reported $51,000, subject to a $30,000 mortgage, through B. C. Rose. I. B. Perlman and Anderson & Anderson were attorneys. The new hotel will cost approximately $150,000. Completion date is set for next February.

Beg Your Pardon

In telling about the $100,000 apartments to be built at 7437-43 Colfax by Sidney Frisch the name of Roy F. France was given as architect in this department last Sunday. This should have been Franz Roy of 9046 Commercial avenue.

TWO BIG MOVIES FOR LAWRENCE, NEAR WESTERN

Lubliner & Trinz House to Seat 3,000.

Lubliner & Trinz yesterday completed the purchase of the site for another huge cinema—to be the twenty-fourth in the chain of local movie playhouses operated by that firm.

The newest film theater will be on the south side of Lawrence avenue and cover the entire block of frontage between Artesian and Campbell avenues. This is in the Bowmanville district and is one block west of Western avenue.

By moving back the east and west alley the theater site will have a frontage of 269 feet on Lawrence and 155 feet on both Artesian and Campbell avenues.

Plan "One Floor" House.

Although no architect has yet been engaged, Leo Spitz of Hall & Spitz, attorneys for Lubliner & Trinz, says the theater probably will have in the neighborhood of 3,000 seats and will be a "one floor house," with no balcony but a large mezzanine.

There'll be a three story store and flat building along Lawrence, with the main entrance to the playhouse half way between Artesian and Campbell. The auditorium will be laid out east and west, probably with the stage at the east end.

Why Not Something Different?

As most of our movie magnates firmly believe that the front of a cinema must look as much like a jumble of cross word puzzles as the architect can design it, and must be made of terra cotta, it's safe to predict that this playhouse will live up to standard and look exactly like all the other movies in the middle west. We'll show a picture of it in a few weeks—and we hope our prediction is wrong. Maybe Lubliner & Trinz will put up a Bedford stone structure of dignity and beauty.

The site was purchased from several different owners, and according to Dan A. Meyer, broker, approximately $180,000 was paid. The new theater will cost in the neighborhood of $2,000,000, according to Mr. Spitz.

$1,000,000 Movie in Next Block.

Another big movie for this same district was announced last night. S. N. Crowen is drawing plans for a theater, store, and restaurant building for a 183x157 site on the north side of Lawrence, 100 feet west of Western.

It is claimed by Clinton B. Yarnell of James J. Redding & Co., manager of the construction of this project, that the theater will seat approximately 3,000. An oriental café will occupy the second and third floors of the building. There'll be nine stores on the first floor.

Tribune Want Ads Are Indispensable in the Fulfilling of Your Wants

A WANT AD'S function is essentially one of intercommunication. In a city of three million people it is obviously impossible to trade directly, as our grandfathers did when they drove in to the county court house and hung a "for sale" sign on old Bess and the one-horse shay. It is financially prohibitive to address every citizen, who may be a prospect, through the mails, by phone, or in person.

The Want Ad Section of the daily press is the modern and up-to-date inheritor of the old market place. But the Want Ad Section is an infinitely larger market, in which every offer is neatly printed and arranged for ready reference.

A Tribune Want Ad can serve you in countless ways. Whatever you want—a house, a car, a radio, or a lost relative, a Tribune Want Ad can be made the ready instrument of that want's fulfillment.

Of course we cannot guarantee to mend broken hearts or bring about the millennium. But as most men's desires are for some material object that can be bought and sold, we can promise that a well-worded Tribune Want Ad will find for you a buyer or a seller of a marketable object, rightly priced, quickly, reasonably, conveniently.

Think of Tribune Want Ads as a market place. It is no more difficult to write a good Want Ad than it is to tell a prospect personally the good points of your house, your realty properties, or your auto. Tell him what you would want to know if you were the buyer. When you have written your Want Ad, merely call CENtral 0100 and ask for an Adtaker. If you are a telephone subscriber, we will run your ad and bill you later. "CENtral 0100."

Automobiles

The effectiveness of The Chicago Tribune as a medium for the sale of used cars is attested by the fact that, during the first six months of 1924, it ran 54,669 individual Auto Want Ads.

Musical Instruments

During this same period the classification known as "Musical Instruments" ran 6,871 individual Want Ads.

Vacant Lots

Although Vacant Property is only one subdivision of the great classification "Real Estate—For Sale," it carried 13,129 Want Ads.

Apartments

The classification "Apartments—To Rent," during the first six months of this year, carried 61,607 separate Want Ads.

Pets

This small, but useful classification, during the same six months, carried 4,571 Want Ads.

Homes

Think of the enormous number of real estate sales presented by the 18,789 Want Ads in the "Houses—For Sale" classification.

Lingette

Everybody thinks its silk

Once you had to choose between silk's beauty and muslin's wear —Now you find Both in Lingette!

BUT—until Lingette was created—you could not have both beautiful underthings and freedom from laundry worries! Silk was exquisite—but the effects of warm, cleansing suds, of hot irons, had to be worried about—guarded against. Muslin was durable but not exquisite!

Then, with the creation of Lingette, the beauty of silk and the sturdiness of cotton were combined—for this fabric meets the test of modern laundry methods and comes back with its shimmering loveliness unimpaired!

You must make sure, however, that what you buy is Lingette, and see that the word Lingette is on the selvage, or that the Lingette label is stitched in the ready-to-wear garment!

A Lingette Label may read: Slip, Bloomer, Vest, Step-in, Garment, Chemise, Shirt, Lining, Pajama, Quilt, Gown, Camisole, Creeper Brassiere. The Garment label is shown below.

COLUMBIA'S GREAT FOOTBALL COACH, Percy Haughton, who died suddenly last month at the peak of his career. He won fame first at Harvard and then went to the New York institution, where the end came almost at the moment he had convinced the football world that he could transplant successfully the system he used when he put Harvard in the forefront of the game several years ago. On the Saturday before he died Columbia had piled up an overwhelming victory against Williams, the conqueror of Cornell.

PARIS DOES HOMAGE TO ANATOLE FRANCE— Vast crowds thronged the streets along the route followed by the great French author's funeral cortege on the day the last rites were performed in his memory. This scene shows the bier resting under the gaze of the statue of Voltaire, near where France was born. Under the canopy at the left were the writer's widow, his grandson, and President Doumergue of France. Winding through the foreground may be seen a little section of the procession of people which filed continuously past the coffin.

SELDOM SEEN in pictures since her husband's death, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt overcame her disinclination to be photographed the other day when she was visited by a delegation of girl scouts and made honorary vice president of their national council. The ceremonies took place on the lawn of the Roosevelt home at Oyster Bay.

MRS. GEORGE STEELE, wife of the commander of the dirigible Los Angeles (the ZR-3, newly arrived from Germany), is regarded as one of the most beautiful women in Washington society. Steele superintended the construction of the giant Zeppelin.

LIKE A CHAIN OF FAIRY ICICLES, SUSPENDED IN MIDAIR—or, if you prefer, like a magic carpet extending from nowhere to nowhere—this strange apparition materialized the other day off Bay Shore, Baltimore, Md. Lady DIANA MANNERS the most beautiful woman of English Aristocracy praises this care of the skin

Hori

LADY DIANA MANNERS

the daughter of the eighth Duke of Rutland, granddaughter of the twenty-fourth Earl of Crawford. Above she is dressed as she may often be seen in New York where she is filling a second season's engagement as The Madonna in "The Miracle."

"Beauty is the touchstone of life. Without it we might as well live on the burnt-out Moon! So, for her own, for everybody's sake, it's every woman's duty to foster her beauty. She can effectively accomplish loveliness by the Pond's Method."

Diana Manners

LADY DIANA MANNERS is the most beautiful woman of her generation. Her beauty is fabulous. It sets the pulses racing, the imagination afire.

The delicate modeling of her face, the proud lift of her head, the graceful dignity of her figure, declare her "the daughter of a thousand earls." But the glint of gold in her hair, the starry blueness of her eyes, these touch the heartstrings, being heaven-sent.

And the lily's own petals are not more snowy-white than Lady Diana's skin. Sculptors and painters have begged her to sit for them, for, as a great English painter said, "she has the most beautiful complexion in the world."

How Lady Diana keeps her beauty

Lady Diana knows the need of keeping all her beauty untouched by wind and cold, late hours, the harsh lights and make-up of the theatre. So she literally bathes her face and neck in cold cream and protects them with the delicate finish provided by a second cream.

For, like so many of the beautiful women of England, of America, Lady Diana Manners has found the Two Creams that keep the skin its exquisite best no matter how it's taxed. She has learned the Pond's Method of skin care.

The first step in the Pond's Method is a thorough cleansing of the skin with Pond's Cold Cream. After exposure, at the end of a long day or just before retiring, smooth the cream over face and neck—let its pure oils bring up from the pores' depths the dust and grime, the powder and rouge that clog them. Wipe it off now with a soft cloth and see how much dirt comes too. Repeat the process, finishing with a dash of cold water or a rub with ice.

The second step in the Pond's Method is to smooth over your newly cleansed face a light film of Pond's Vanishing Cream. This you should do before powdering, never forgetting it before going out into the wind, dust or cold. This delicate cream protects your skin from the weather, gives it a soft finish and holds your rouge and powder evenly and long. And, used between the cleansings with Pond's Cold Cream, it freshens and rests the skin, too.

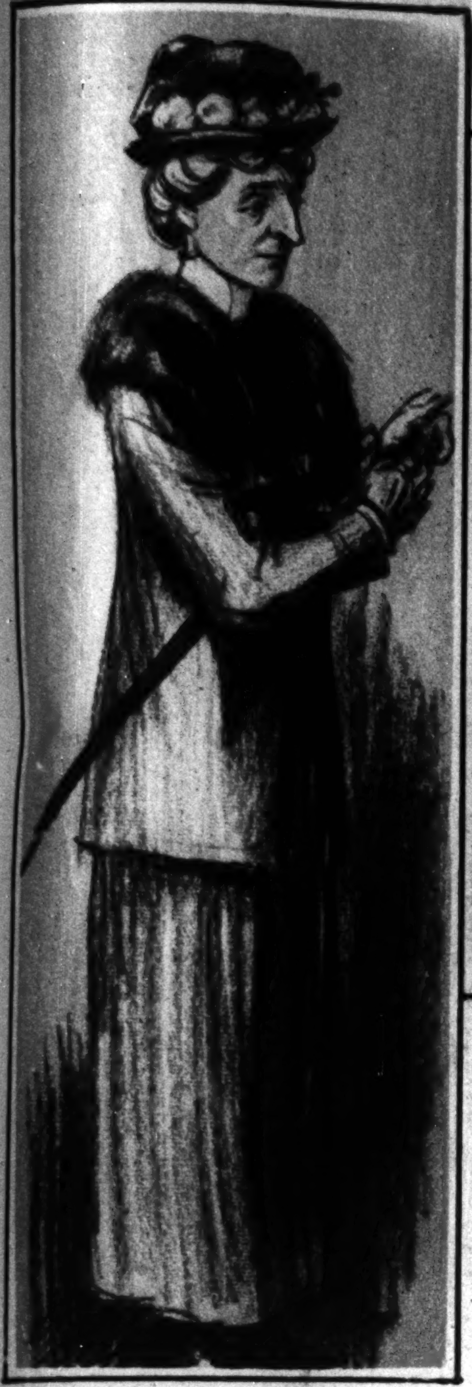
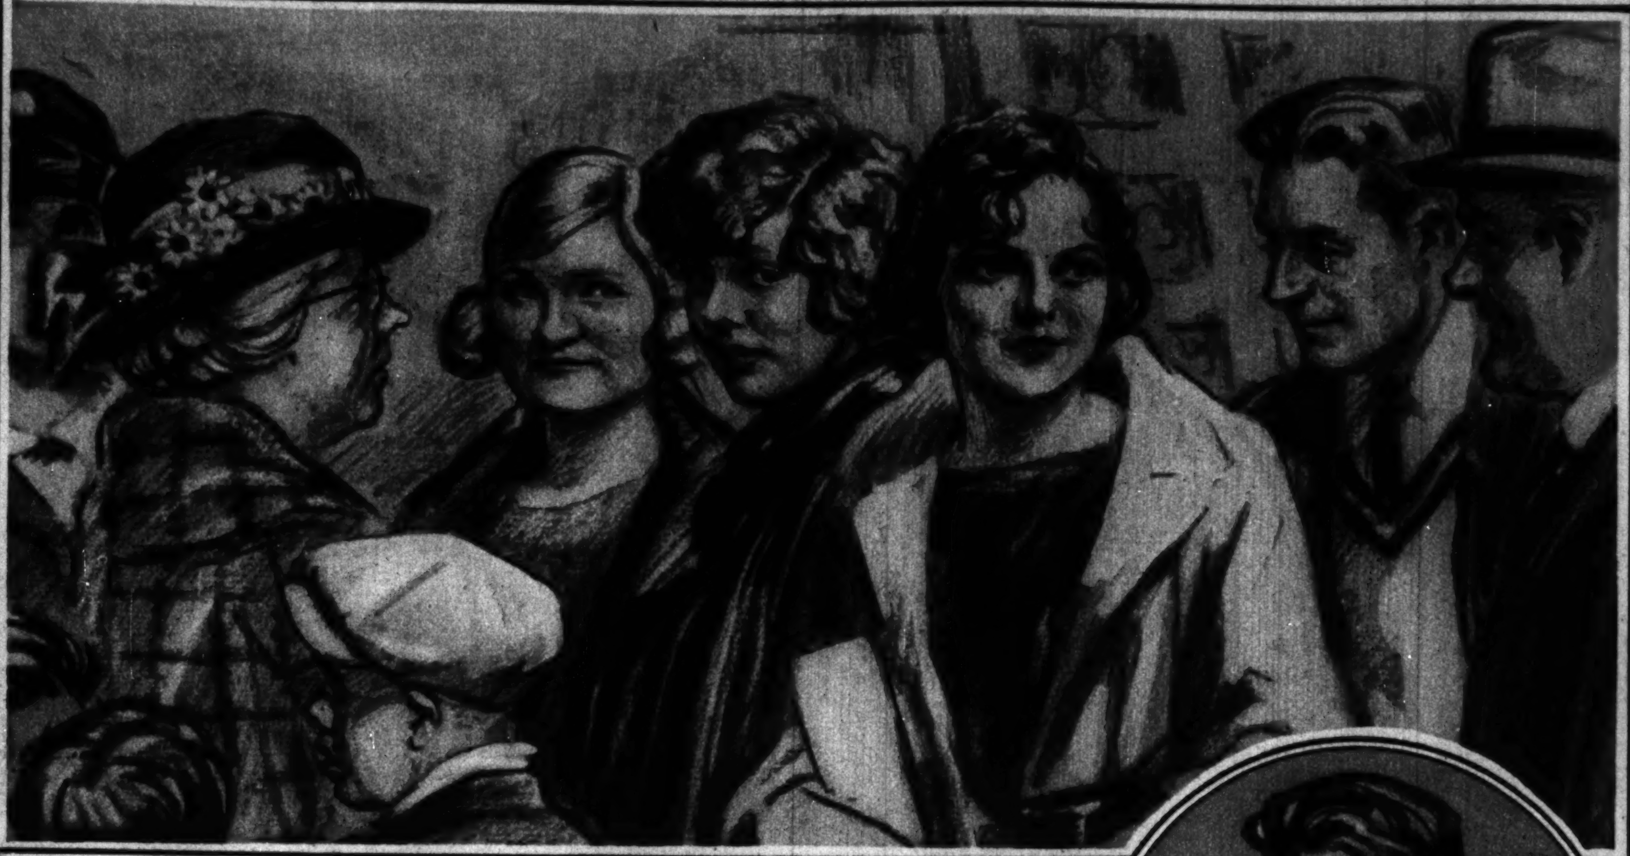
Saturday Night on Main Street

By W. E. HILL

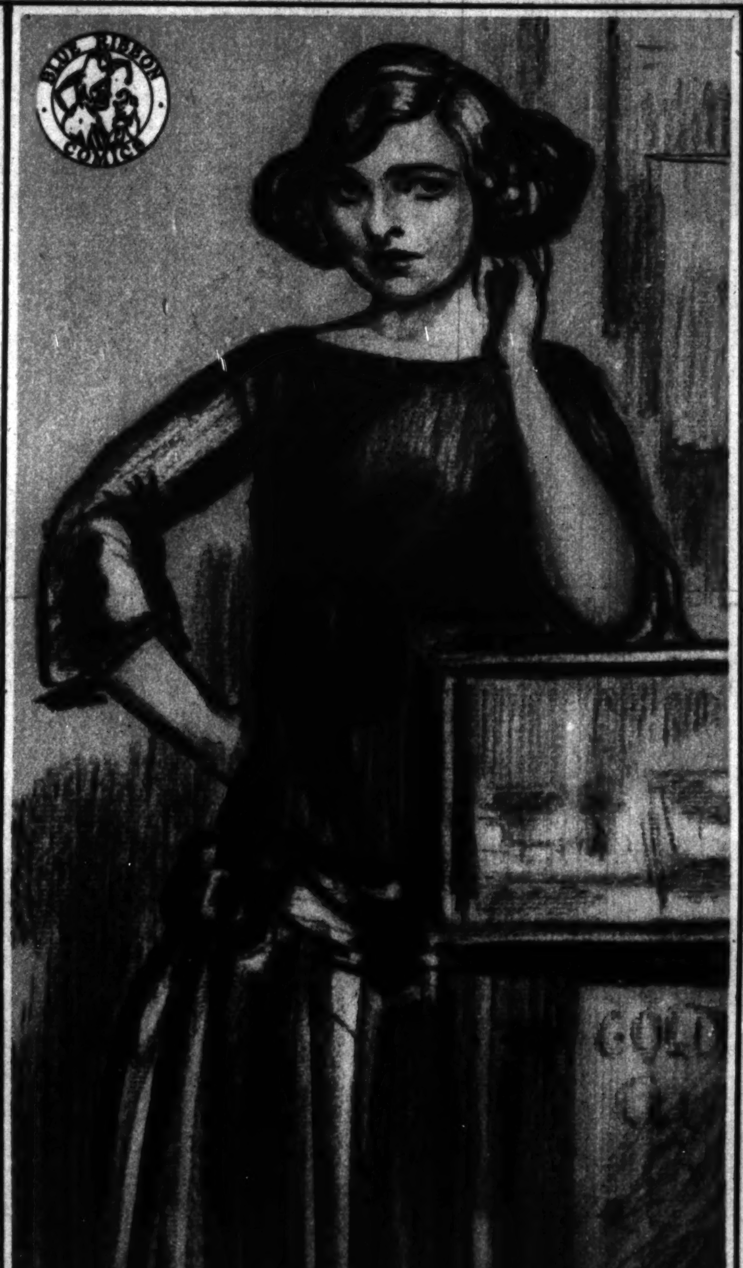
Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune



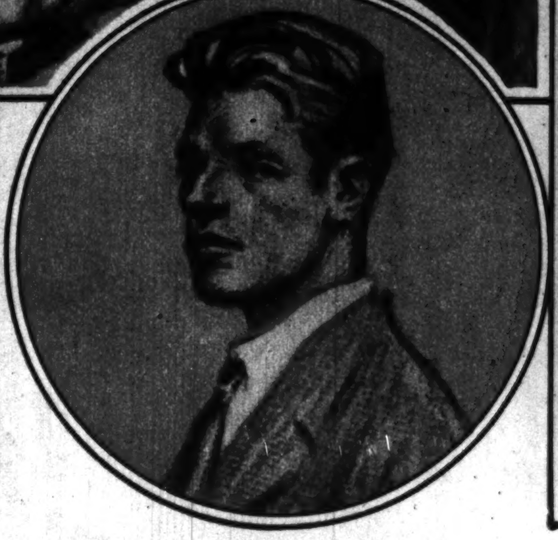
Meet Miss Hattie Beaver, who lives on Main street, but is not exactly of it. Miss Hattie still lives in the old Beaver place on Main street although business has crept up to its very doors.



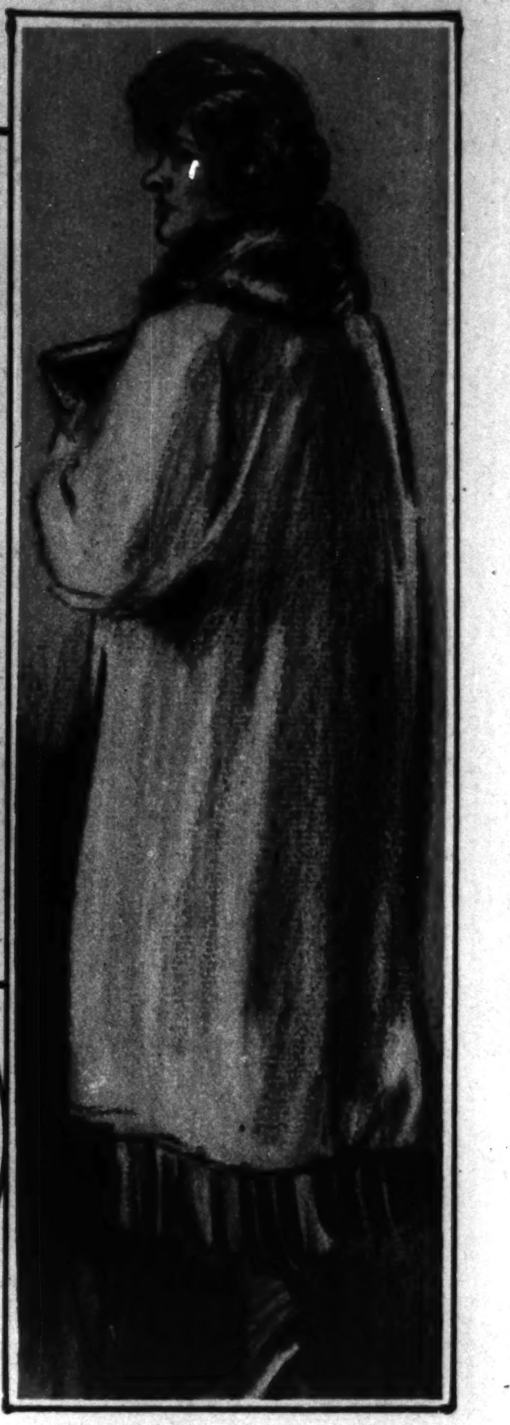
In front of the Blue Bird photo play theater, where all the latest pictures are shown, almost, it is claimed, before they are shown in the big cities. At the extreme right two gay young blades are being too fresh for words in the direction of Mabel Abbot.



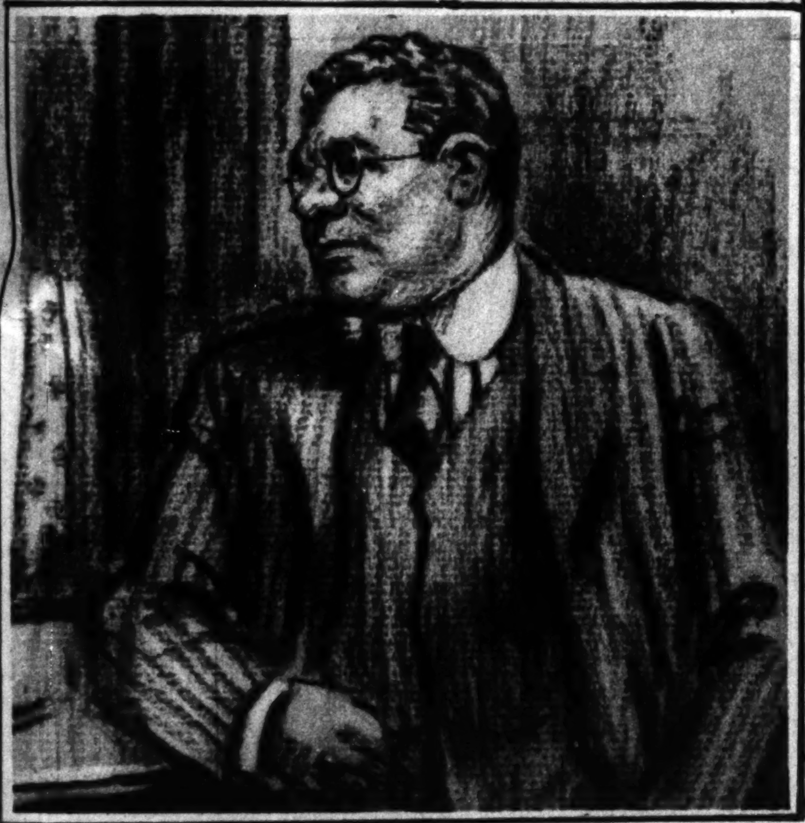
Miss Pagliaci is helping out in her papa's fruit, candy and tobacco shop while the Saturday night rush is on. Since the radio has been installed there's been as many as two dozen customers in the shop at once.



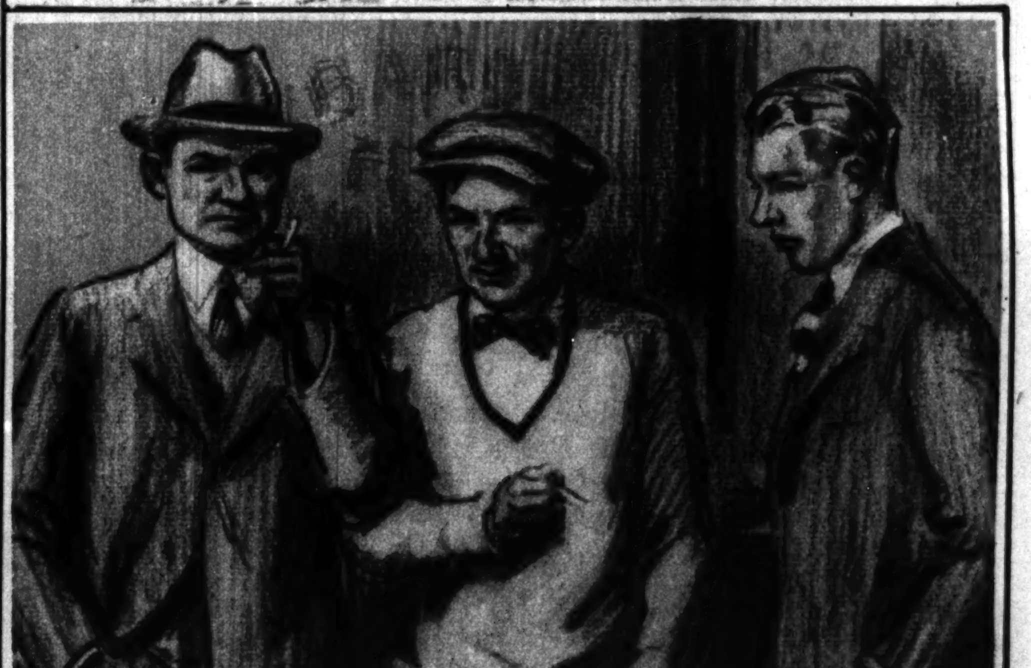
Not like other boys. Howard is out for a stroll to the end of Main street all by himself. He doesn't like Main street and wants to get away and be a great musician.



Mabel has stepped over to the library by way of Main street. She is going to get the latest Zane Grey if they have it.

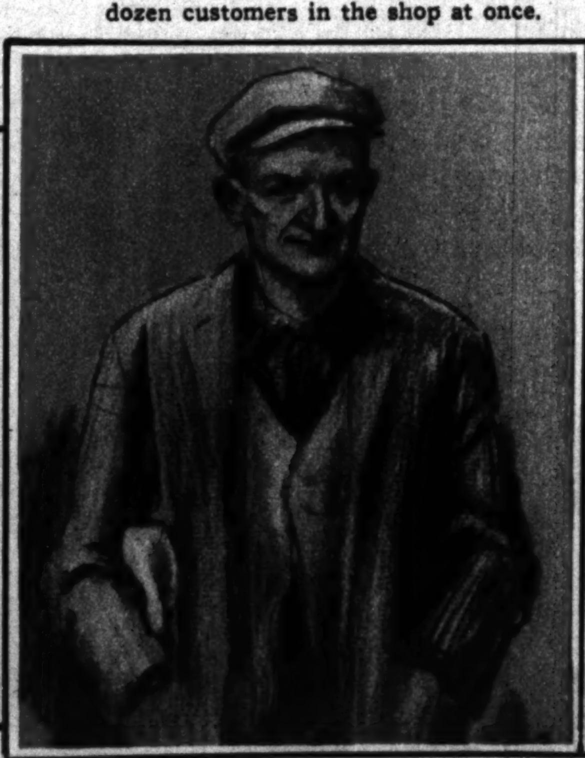


"How about some collars? Or a nice Batista silk cravat? Or a few shirts?" I. Goldstein of I. & M. Goldstein, haberdashers to the young bloods of Main street, urges a few extra purchases.



Looking 'em over in front of Harry Bolst's restaurant and billiard parlor down on the lower end of Main street, where the shops get fewer and much less imposing.

"My dear, why do you go tell your mother so much in the first place? Just go and don't say nothing, when you get invited!" Miss Cassidy, who clerks at the hardware store, gives Miss McNulty of the Five and Ten a little advice on the side.



Joe Purdy, genial brakeman on the D. & O., pauses at the corner of Main and Water streets to look over the gay Saturday night throng.

My stars! What an experience! And right on crowded Main street of all places. Mrs. Dr. Frank-Squires and Mrs. Albert F. Grummond are waiting for a jitney on the corner of Main and Beeman streets. A drunken man is waiting there also and, as Mrs. Grummond will no doubt relate, "The remarks he passed at us! Imagine—asking Julia how old she was!"

Build into your roof this rare new color the mellow tan of autumn fields permanently fixed in slate

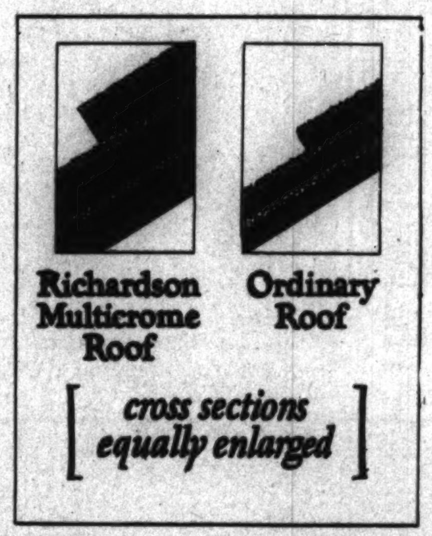
The day of the drab roof has gone. A beautiful roofing color in slate has recently been discovered which brings to the slate-surfaced shingle entirely new color effects.

This rare tone, weathered brown, gives to your roof the mellow tan of autumn fields, permanently fixed in slate. And only in the Richardson quarries of Georgia is this beautiful color found.

Such exclusive color in millions of tiny slate flakes not only gives new beauty to your roof, but also seals each shingle securely against weather and fire hazards.

The Richardson Multicrome Roof

This, however, is but one example of the beauty secured in the Richardson Multicrome Roof. Wholly new, for instance, is the opal effect secured from shingles on which weathered brown and jade green slate flakes are combined in endless variety. And a bronze mosaic effect, similarly formed with weathered brown and tile red. Many other color effects are possible—one to please every taste.



Richardson Multicrome Roof
Ordinary Roof
[cross sections equally enlarged]

The 50% greater thickness of this roof adds beauty of texture and years of endurance. Closely overlapping slate flakes further protect the sturdy Viskalt-saturated base against weather and fire hazards

The Multicrome Roof is built of Richardson Super-Giant Shingles, extra large, extra heavy—to give greater beauty, longer endurance. The high quality of its inner materials, too, assures lasting beauty for this roof. Its base is sturdy Richardson felt, for fifty years recognized as the best. And the water-proofing is Viskalt—unusually durable because 99.8% pure bitumen, especially vacuum-processed.

The Richardson Multicrome Roof represents the maximum roof value at a moderate price. It is economical to lay and equally good for new or over-the-old-roof jobs.

Prove the facts yourself.

Go to your nearest dealer in lumber, hardware or building material and ask to see the color combinations in Richardson Multicrome Roofs. Also ask him to show you the reasons for their unusual endurance.

Meanwhile send for our beautiful new booklet, Roofs of Distinction, showing the exclusive color combinations of Richardson slate surfacing. Or ask for our booklet, Roofing on the Farm. Mail the coupon now.

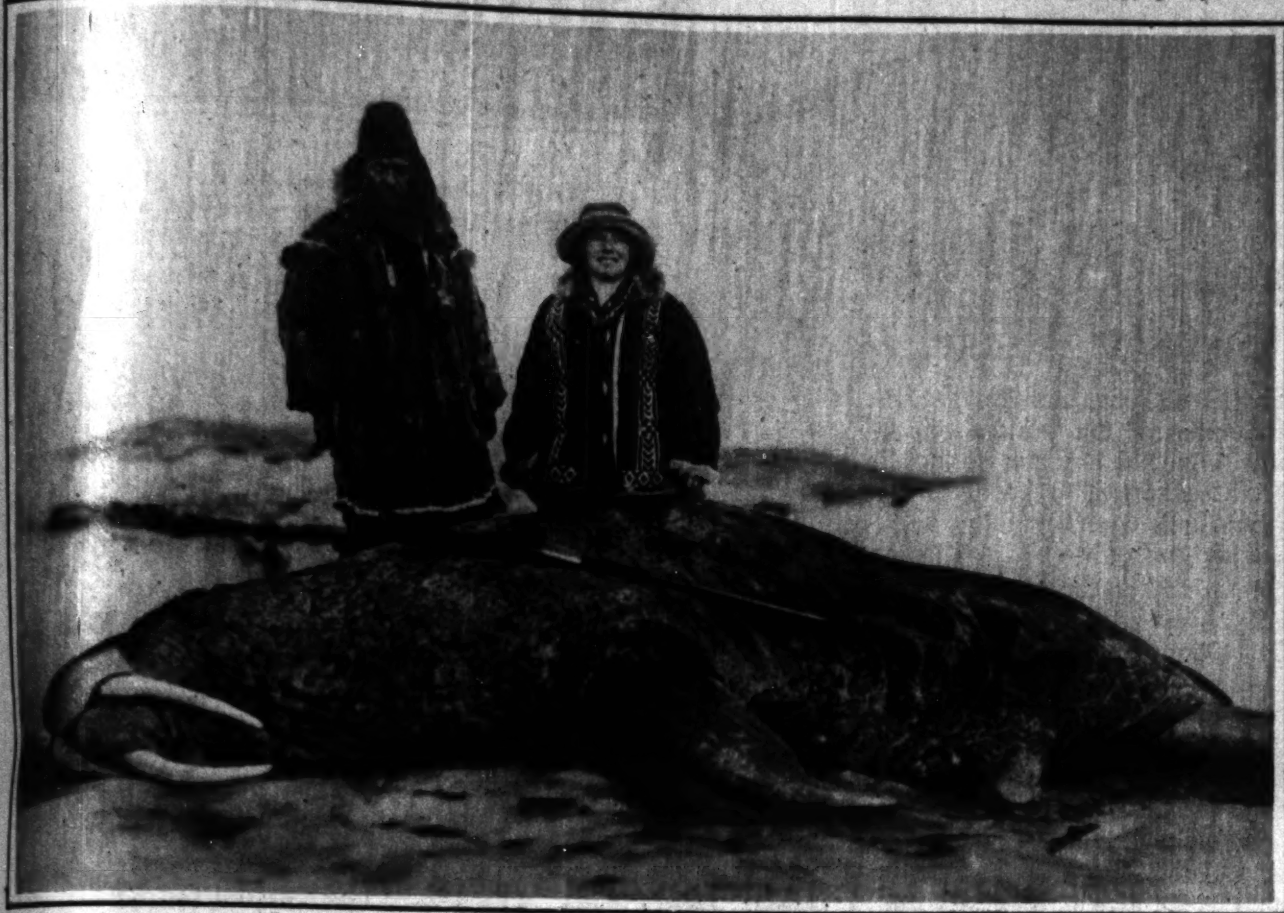
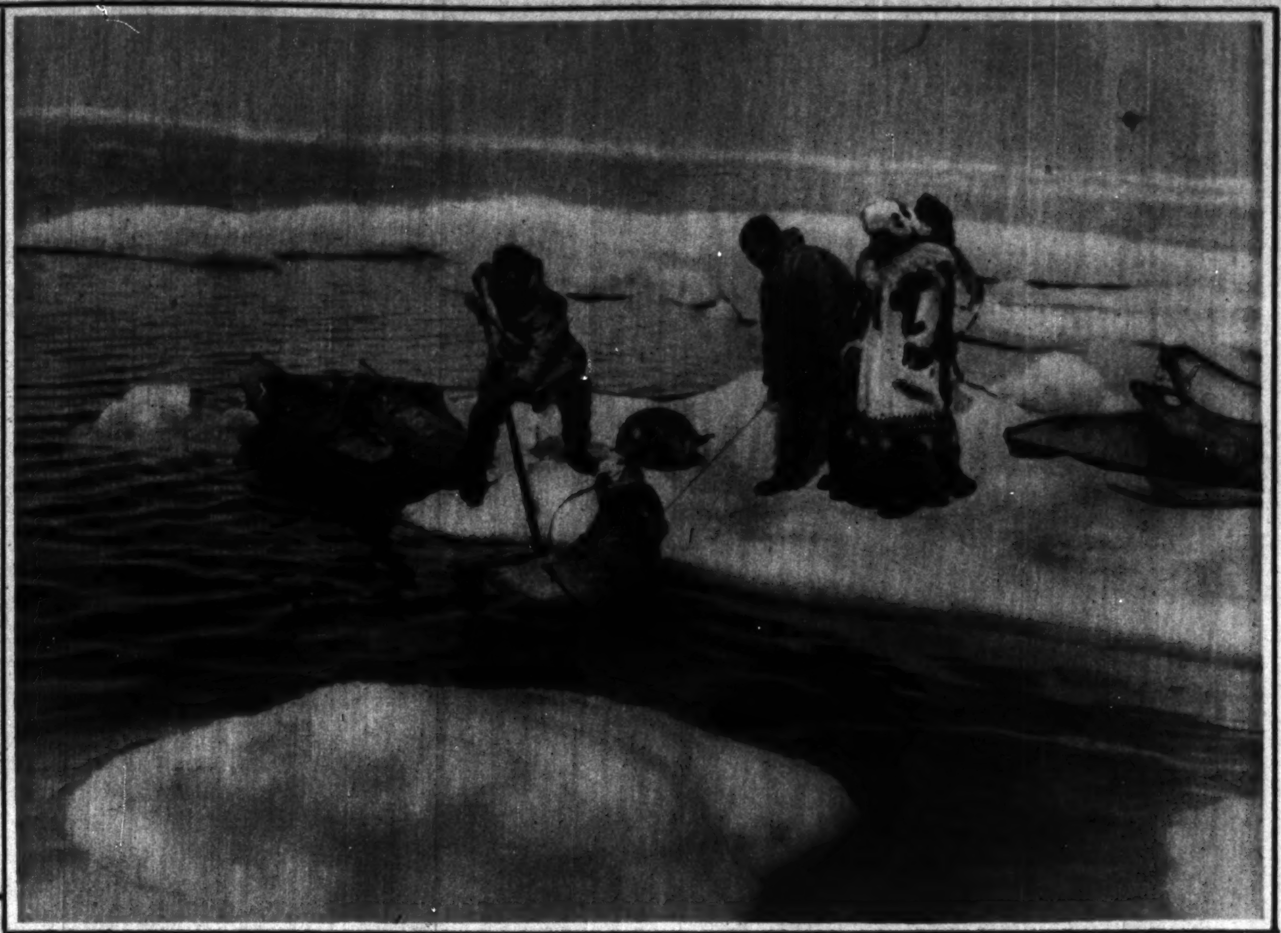
Camera Scouting in the Shadow of the North Pole

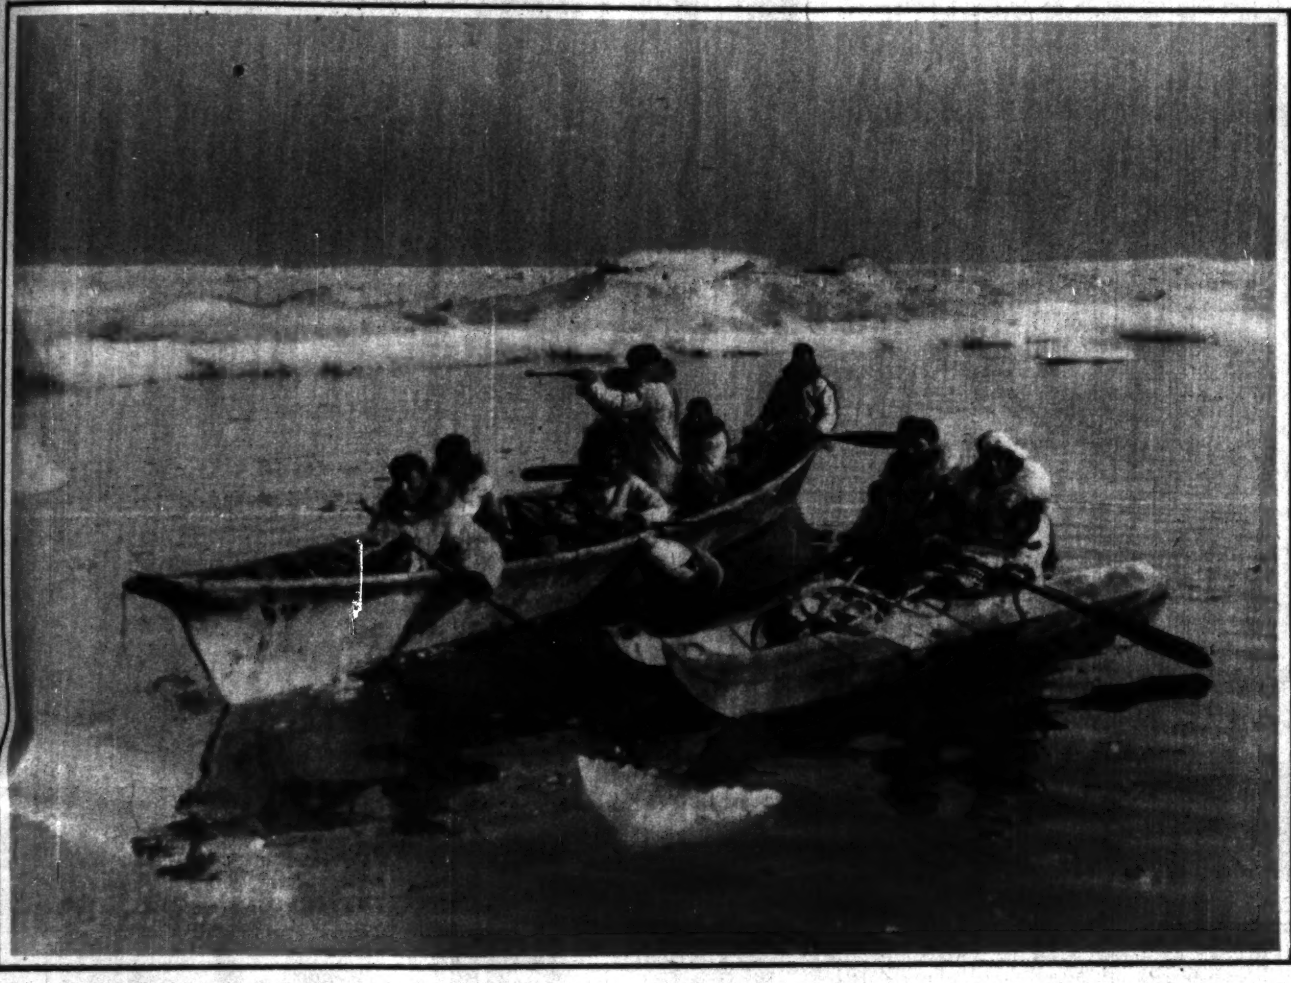
(All photographs copyright by F. E. Kleinschmidt, from Pacific and Atlantic)



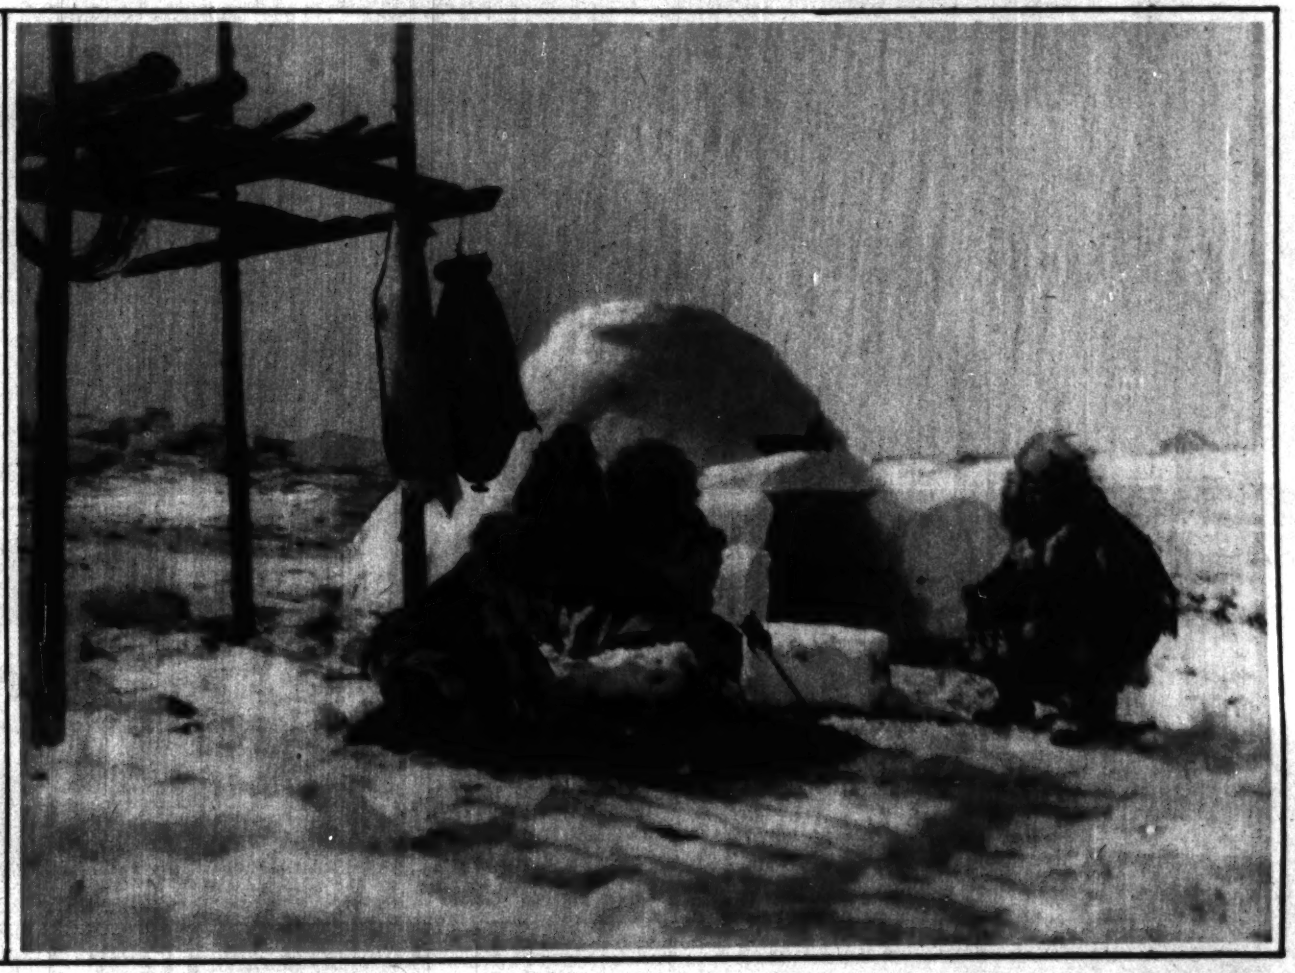
WHERE ASIA LOSES ITSELF IN ICE—along the north coast of Siberia—these two explorers, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Kleinschmidt of New York, have been seeking adventure and have returned to civilization with a remarkable photographic record of their travels. They were within about eighteen degrees of the north pole, and the bleak country they visited has been seen by only two other groups of white men, members of the Amundsen and Steffanson expeditions. The strange monster sharing the picture with Mr. and Mrs. Kleinschmidt is a walrus, a trophy of one of their hunts.



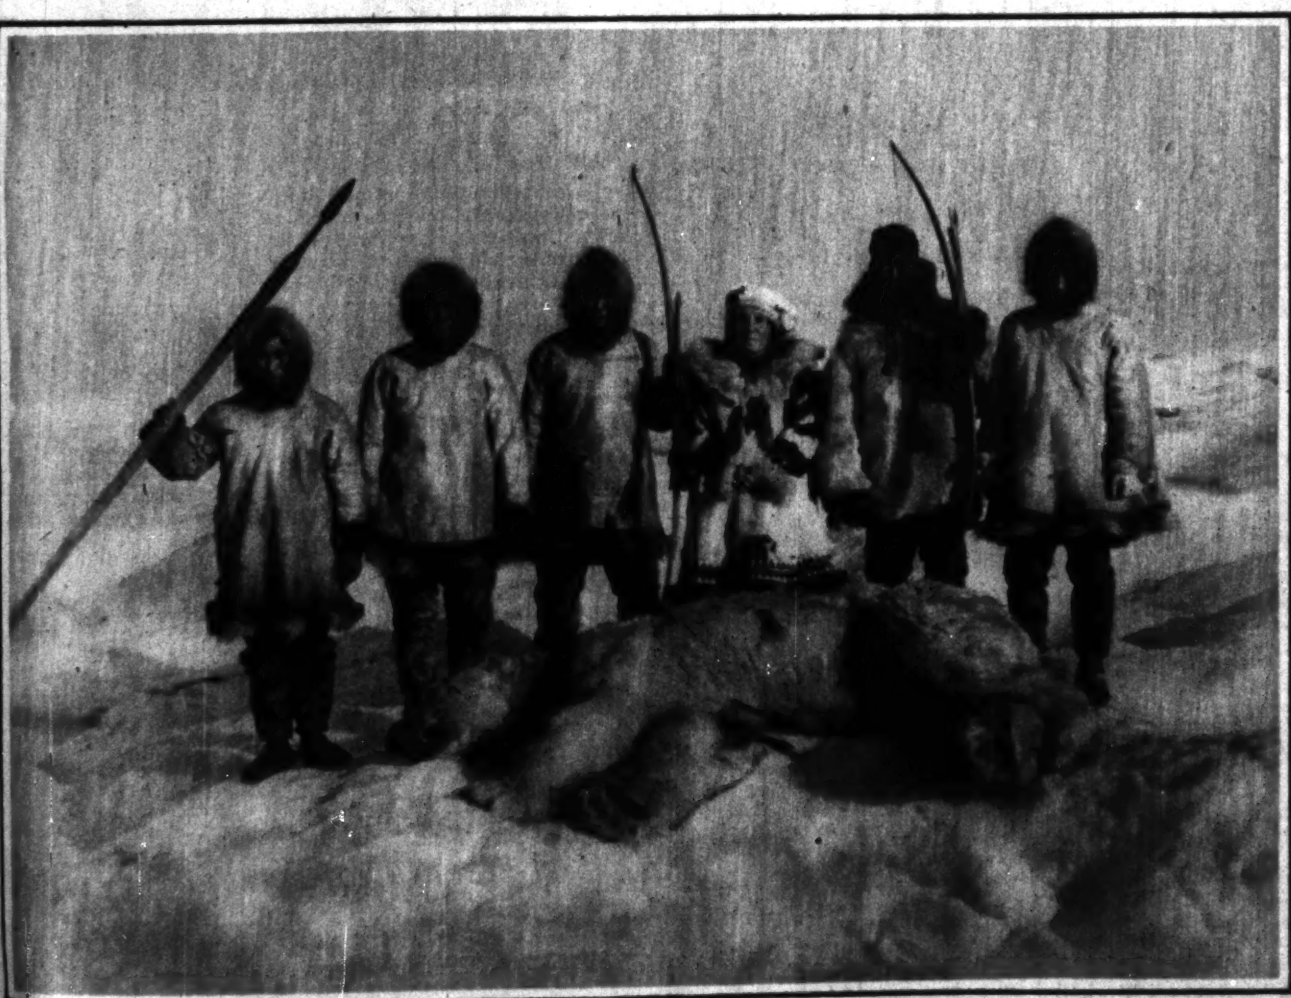
HUNTING AMONG THE ICE FLOES was a hazardous form of sport much practiced by the expedition. Here is a polar bear, brought down with arrows, being dragged out of the water by native retainers of the Kleinschmidts, with Mrs. Kleinschmidt looking on. The natives are Eskimos of the Innuit and Mozinka tribes, and their remote home is about 400 miles north of Nome, Alaska.



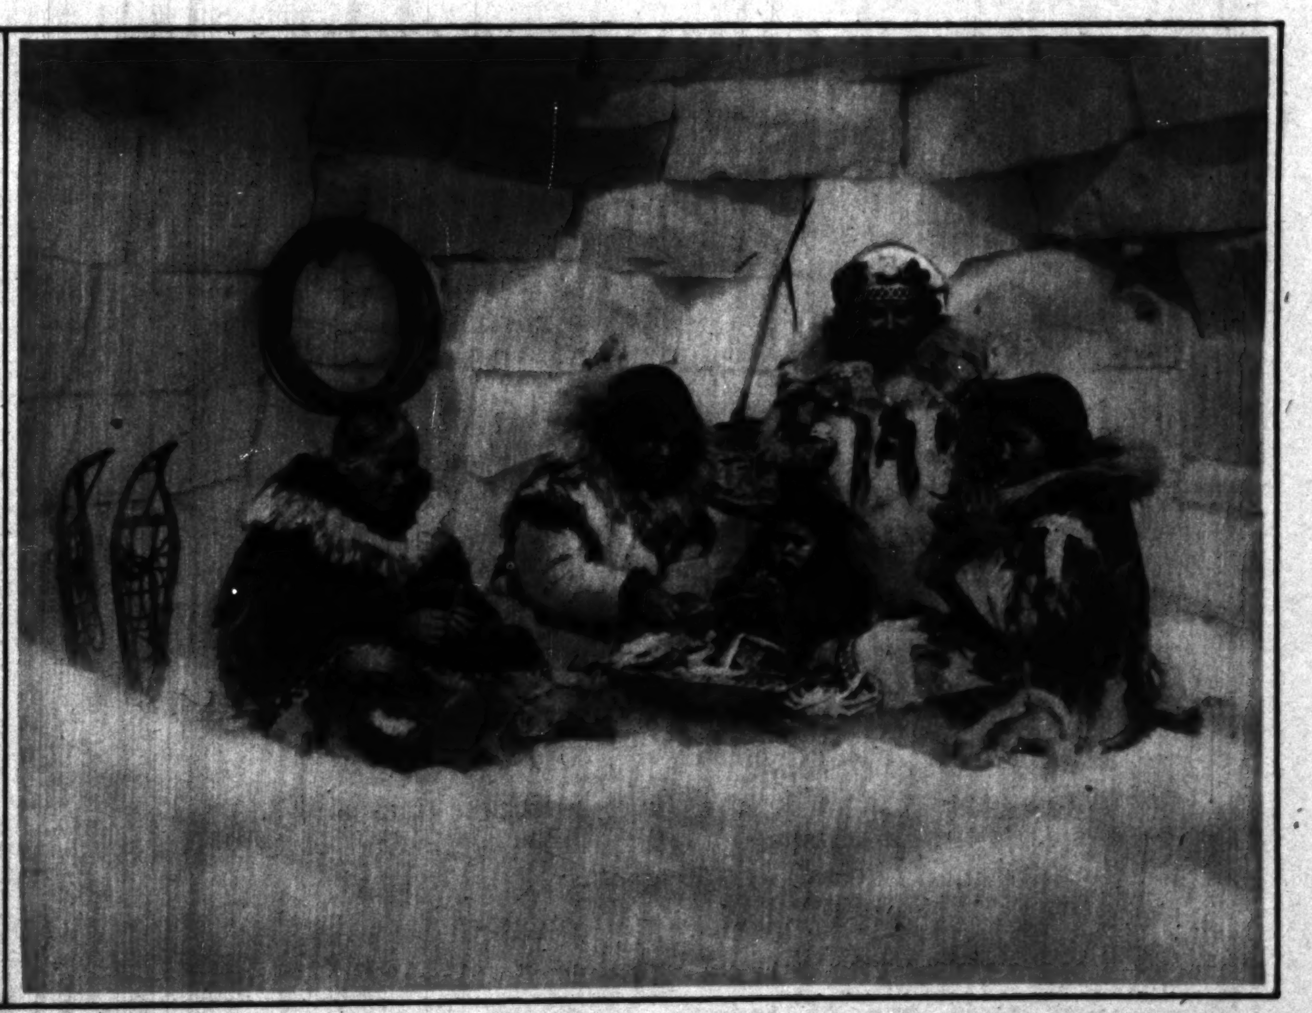
FANTASTIC CRAFT served the party for its hunting and fishing. Here is a section of the expedition (with Mrs. Kleinschmidt at the right) out for big game in two types of Eskimo canoes. One of the hunters has already spotted his prey.



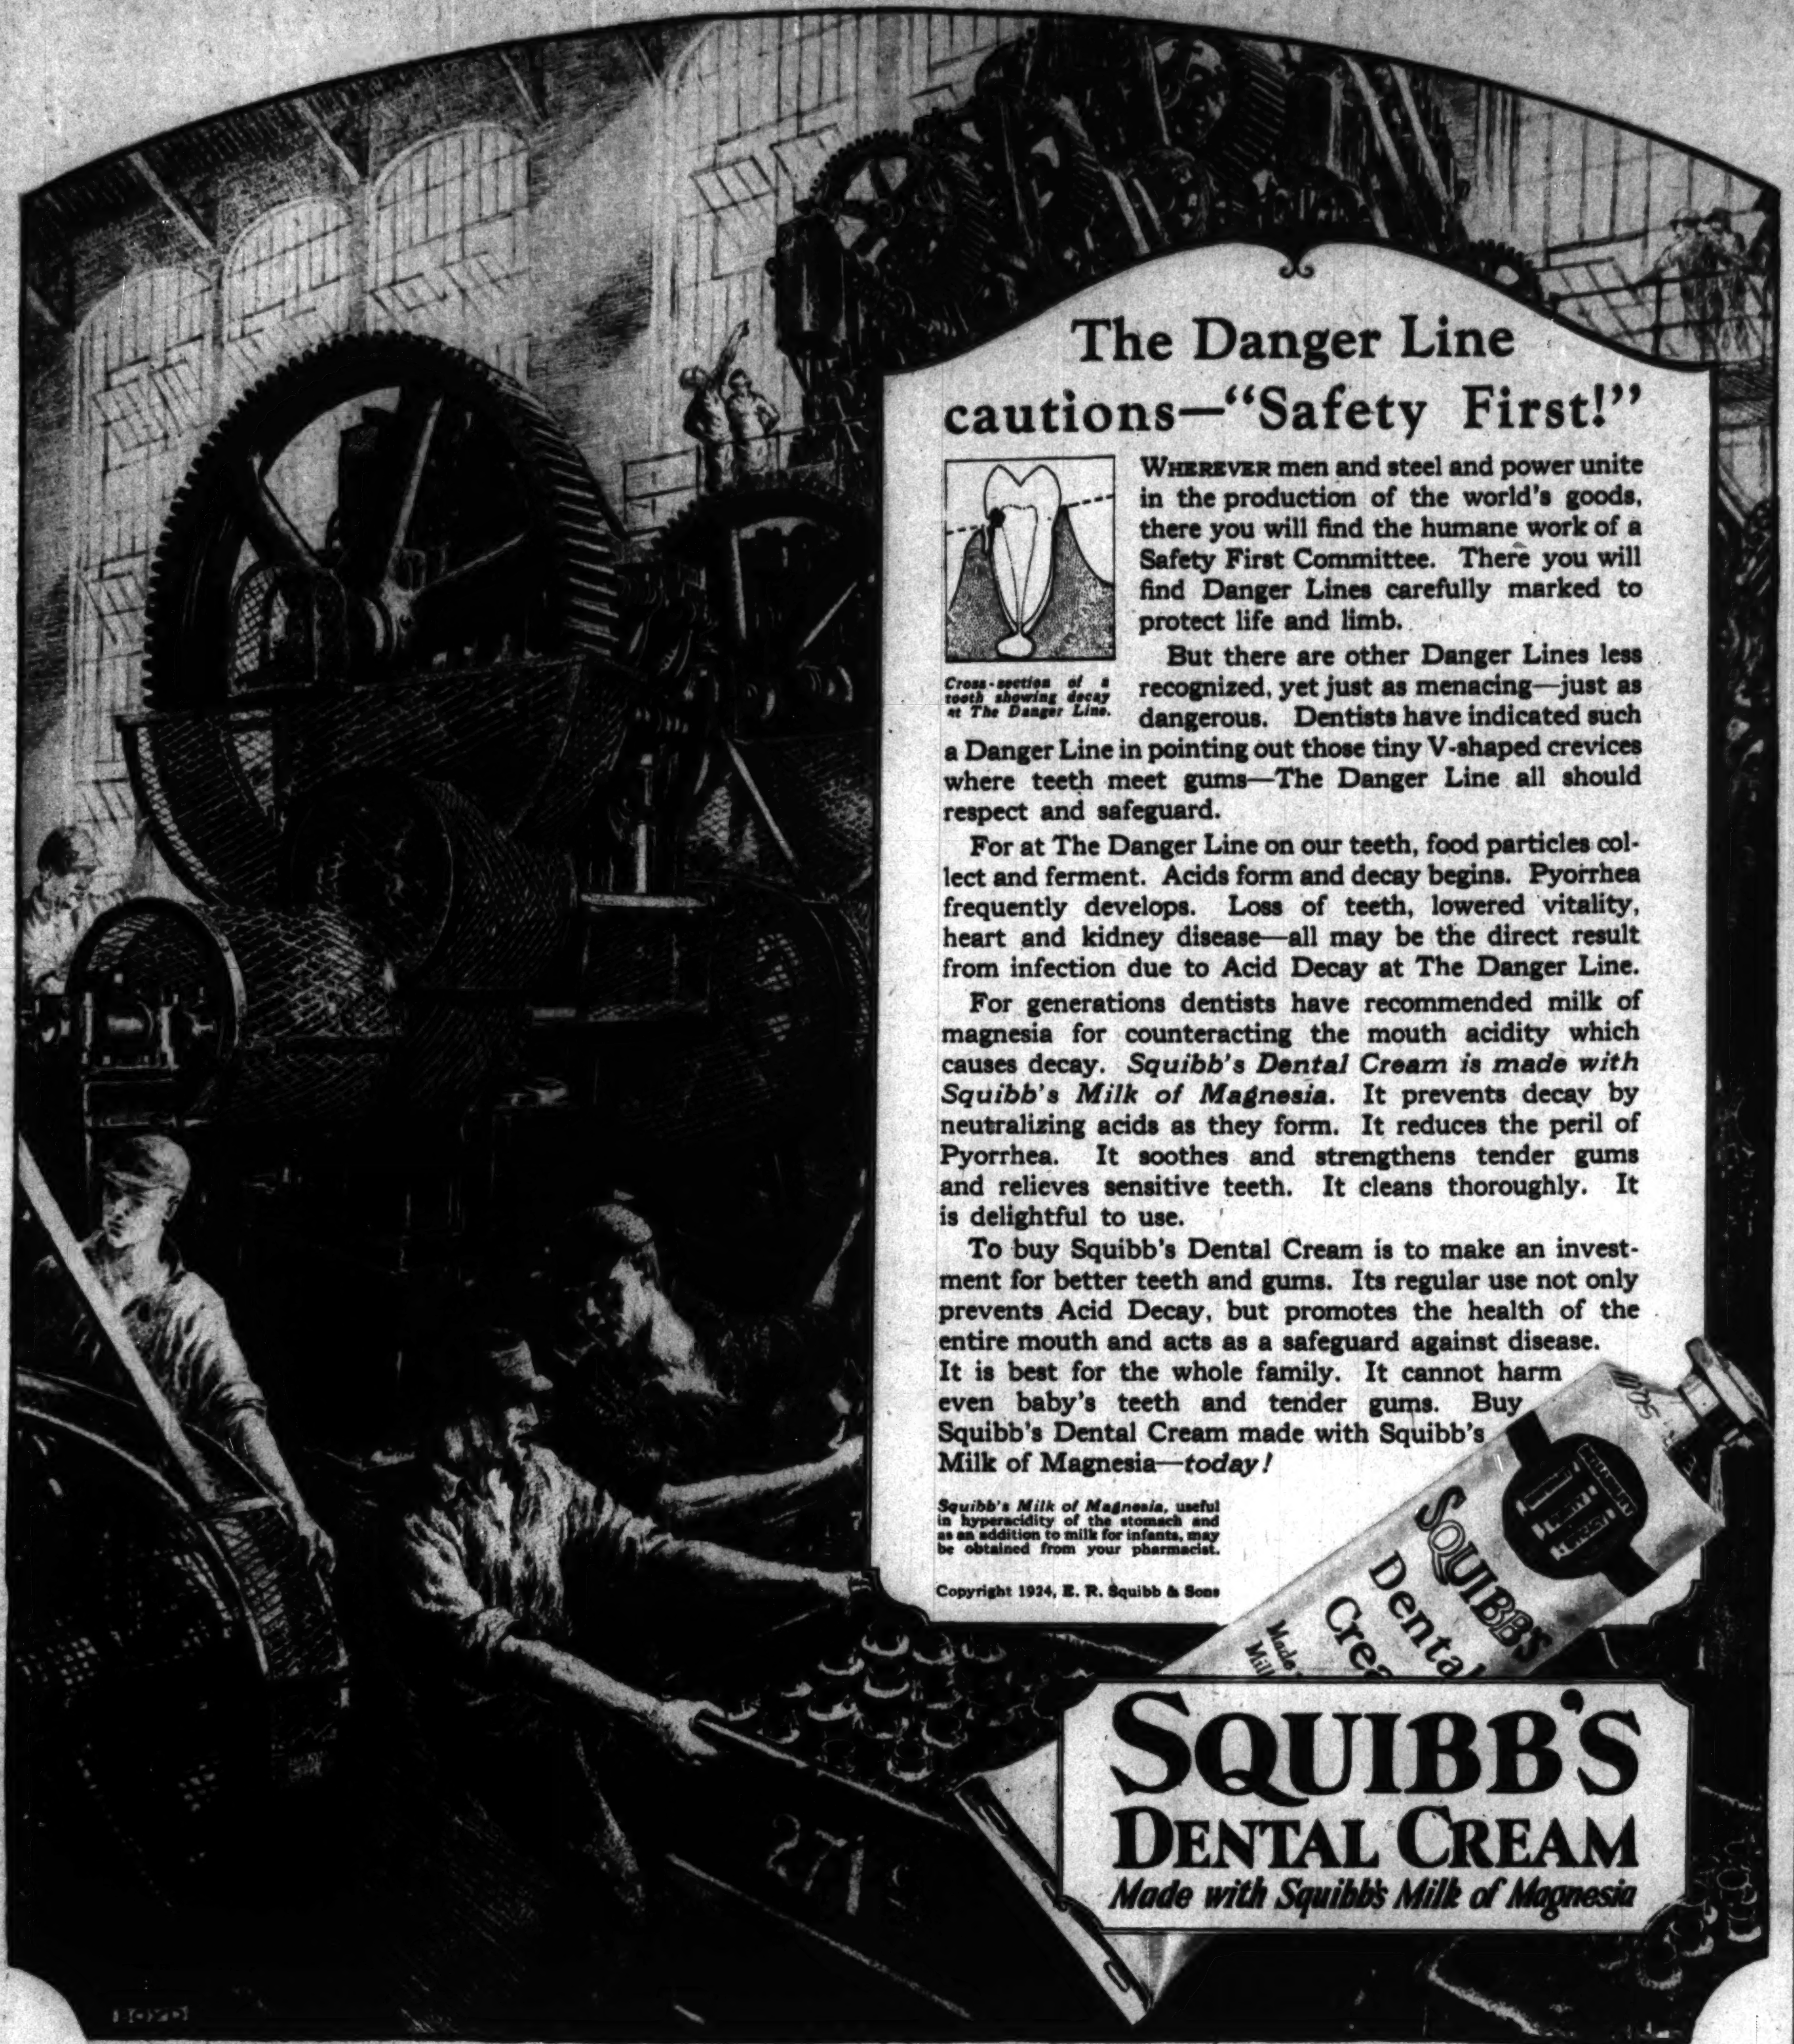
OUTSIDE THEIR IGLOO, after a day afield, these Eskimo hunters spent an hour in restful contemplation while one of their number prepared a meal in the snow. Note the rather stately architecture of the diminutive arched entrance to the snow hut.



IT TOOK A LONG CHASE to bring down this bear. There were rifles in the party, but much of its hunting was done with the primitive native bows and spears. Eighteen months in the arctic brought the Kleinschmidts many such trophies.



A FEAST OF CRABS provided the occasion for this pleasant party, at which Mrs. Kleinschmidt was the guest of honor in one of the larger igloos. The explorers found the Eskimo women and children particularly cheerful and friendly.



The Danger Line cautions—"Safety First!"

WHEREVER men and steel and power unite in the production of the world's goods, there you will find the humane work of a Safety First Committee. There you will find Danger Lines carefully marked to protect life and limb.

But there are other Danger Lines less recognized, yet just as menacing—just as dangerous. Dentists have indicated such a Danger Line in pointing out those tiny V-shaped crevices where teeth meet gums—The Danger Line all should respect and safeguard.

For at The Danger Line on our teeth, food particles collect and ferment. Acids form and decay begins. Pyorrhea frequently develops. Loss of teeth, lowered vitality, heart and kidney disease—all may be the direct result from infection due to Acid Decay at The Danger Line.

For generations dentists have recommended milk of magnesia for counteracting the mouth acidity which causes decay. Squibb's Dental Cream is made with Squibb's Milk of Magnesia. It prevents decay by neutralizing acids as they form. It reduces the peril of Pyorrhea. It soothes and strengthens tender gums and relieves sensitive teeth. It cleans thoroughly. It is delightful to use.

To buy Squibb's Dental Cream is to make an investment for better teeth and gums. Its regular use not only prevents Acid Decay, but promotes the health of the entire mouth and acts as a safeguard against disease. It is best for the whole family. It cannot harm even baby's teeth and tender gums. Buy Squibb's Dental Cream made with Squibb's Milk of Magnesia—today!

Squibb's Milk of Magnesia, useful in hyperacidity of the stomach and as an addition to milk for infants, may be obtained from your pharmacist.

"The rough boy among the critics"

BEGINNING today, the Magazine Section of this paper will include a weekly article on some literary topic written by H. L. Mencken, probably the best known literary critic in the world today. Mr. Mencken has been, successively and successfully, cigar maker, reporter, poet, editor of a big city daily paper, author of books and short stories, and, more recently, magazine editor. His latest and most notable venture, the American Mercury, has attracted more attention than any ultra-smart periodical in years.

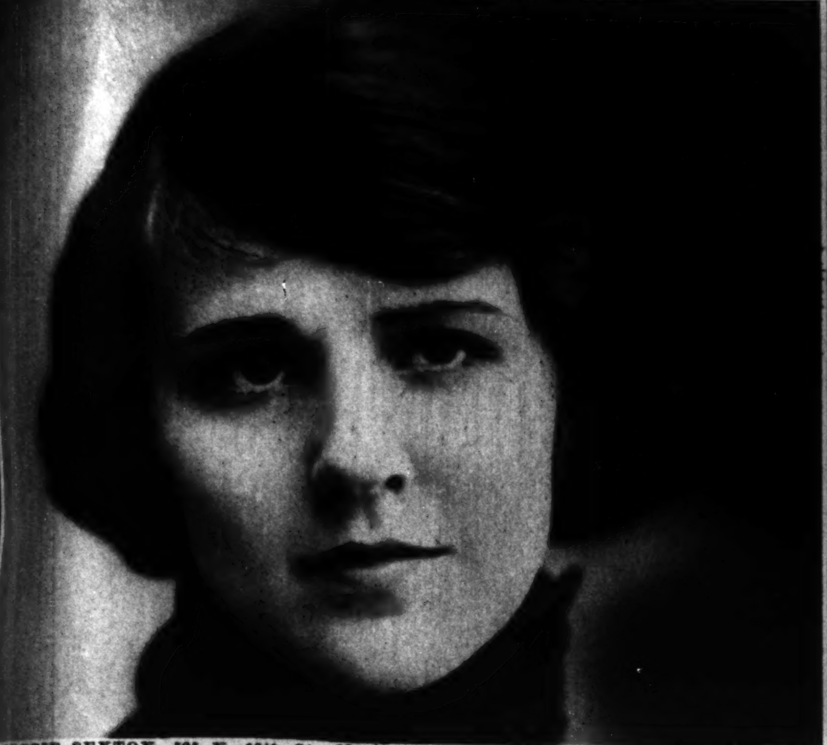
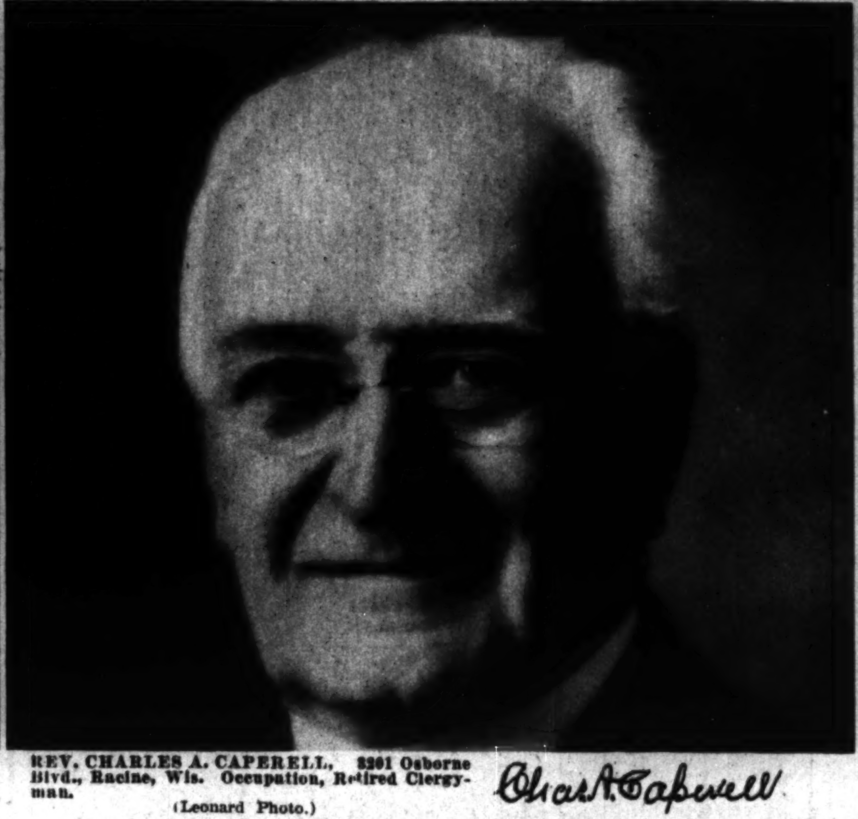
the eighth series of photographs with character and handwriting analyses, for which $100.00 each is being paid in our $15,000.00 offer.



PEGGIE SEXTON, 525 N. 10th St., Muskogee, Okla. Occupation, Office Worker.
(Dando Photo.)

Peggie Sexton

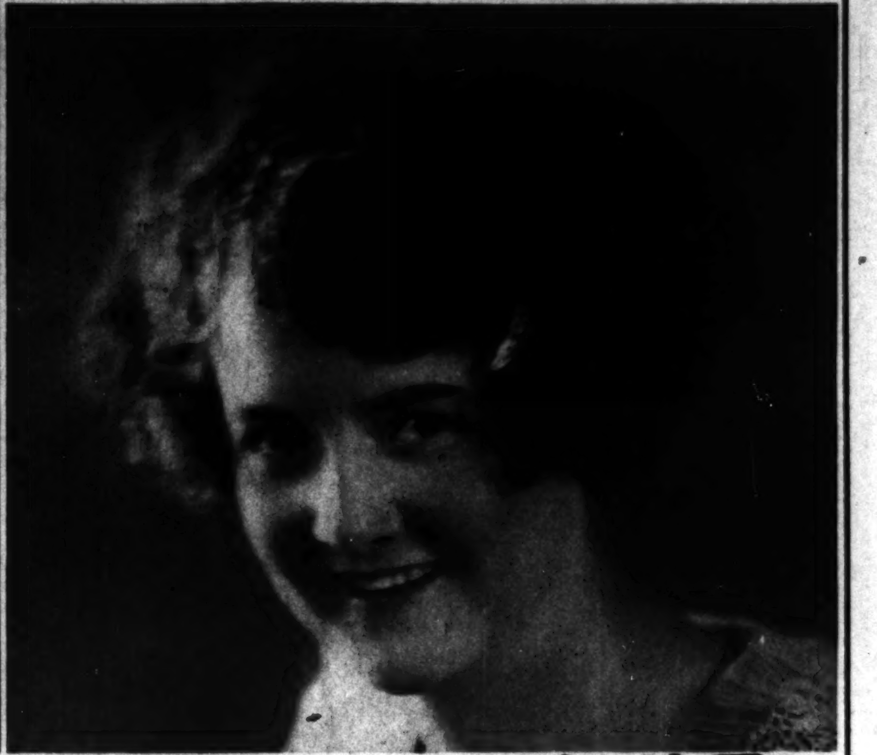
She is a genius. She thinks better than other people can on a few lines. Her writing indicates that she is a genius at understanding people. Her mind is practical. This can be told from her brows and forehead. She has tenacity, and once she sets her will to influence some person she keeps at it until she does. She has enough power of self analysis to know when she is being flattered. This trait appears in her nose and lips. She is matter of fact, emotional, and inclined to make the best of her opportunities.



REV. CHARLES A. CAPERELL, 3201 Osborne Blvd., Racine, Wis. Occupation, Retired Clergyman.
(Leonard Photo.)

Chas A Capwell

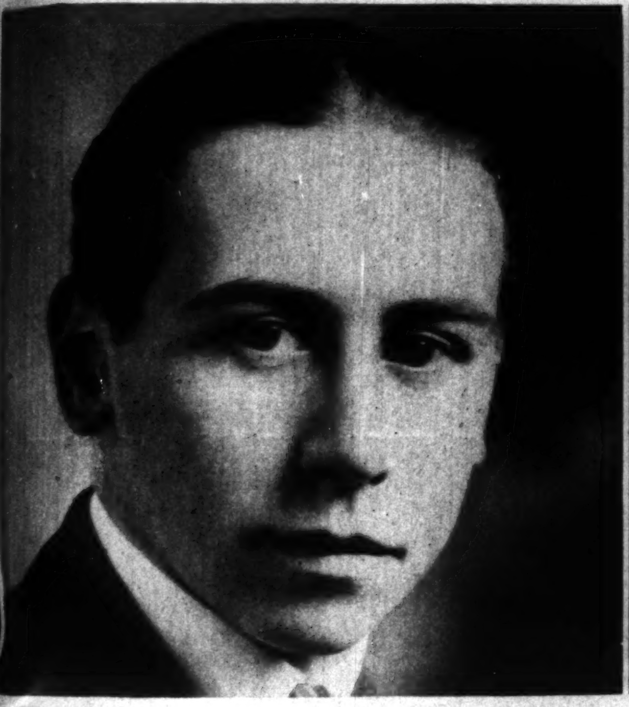
Here is a man whose acts are governed almost entirely by reason, modified by a great instinctive love of change. He likes to go, to travel, to have adventure, to experience new things. His ears show this. He is Cromagnon in blood. His mind is alert, but set, so that his opinions are not readily altered. His eyes denote a sure judgment of situations and people, and golden rule toleration.



HELEN NORTON, 5452 W. Ohio St., Chicago, Ill. Occupation, Office Girl, Stenographer.

Helen Norton

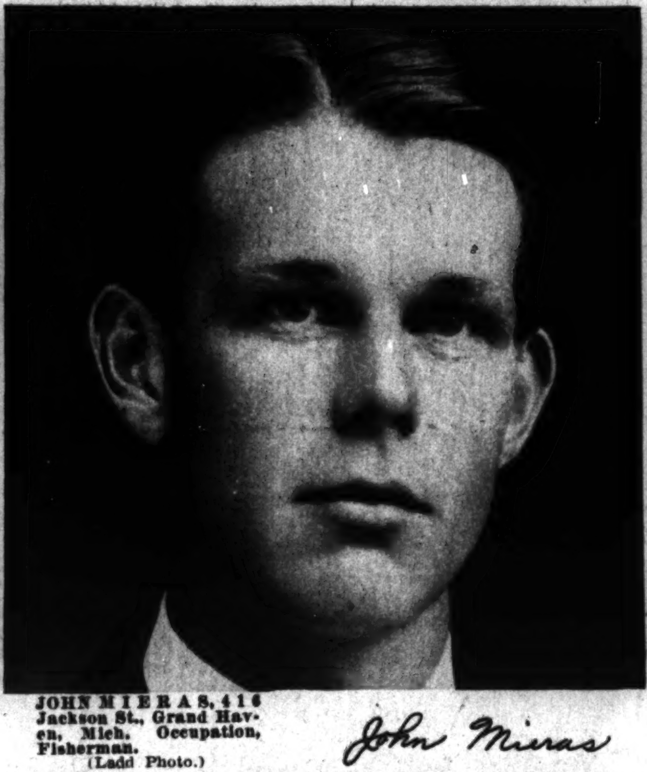
She is introspective, self conscious, an excellent mixer socially, and perhaps a misfit in things which require an understanding of mechanical subjects. She is a stenographer. The chances are that she does not know how her typewriter goes together. But she does know how the moods of the people she associates with go together, and she can anticipate them to some little degree. This is because she is Celtic in blood. She is quite feminine, as her writing shows, and is a lover of beauty for its own sake.



WILBERT SMITH PARKS, Bridge and 6th St., Hampton, Ia. Occupation, College Student.
(Porter Photo.)

Wilbert

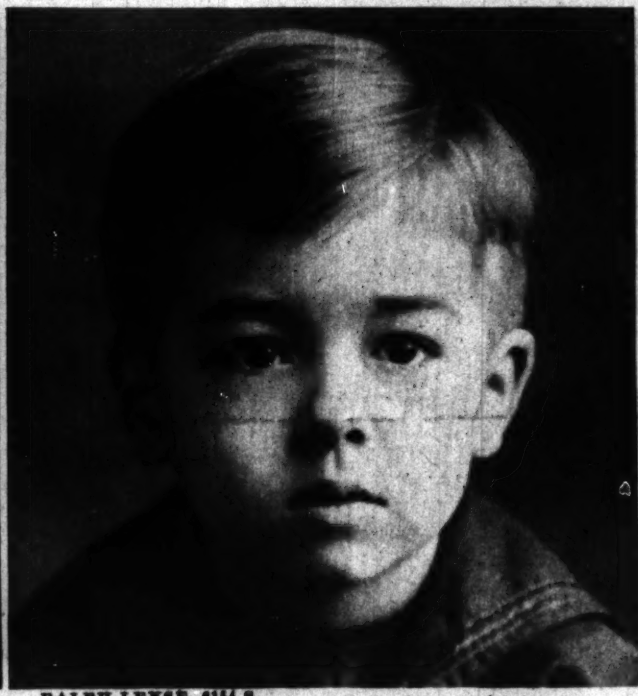
Here are two narrow faces side by side, this one and the one to the right. But two temperaments farther apart would be hard to find. A narrow face denotes a basic mildness of character. This man is a dreamer, a person who has ideals about how things should be. He likes to talk about his ideas. He is a fluent speaker, capable of setting forth his flamboyantly executed images. But he will always require a spur to make him go. He is friendly, generous, and emotional.



JOHN MIERAS, 416 Jackson St., Grand Haven, Mich. Occupation, Fisherman.
(Ladd Photo.)

John Mieras

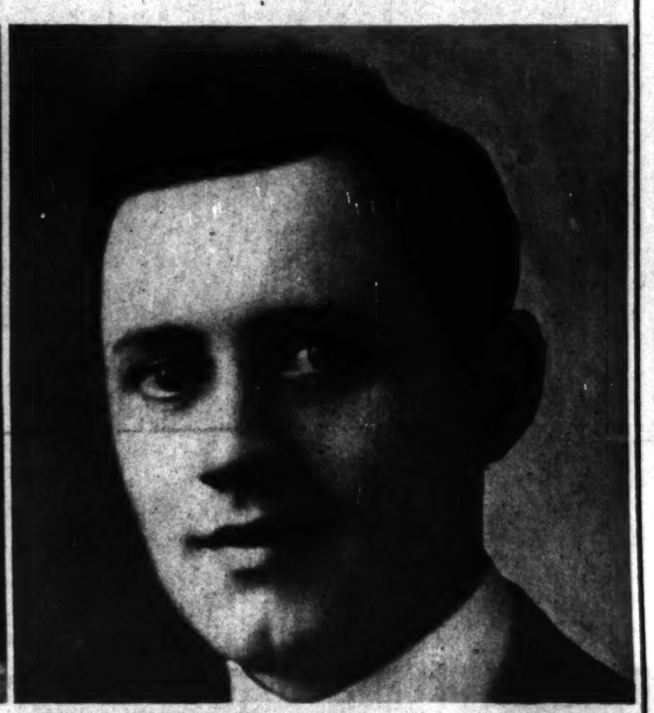
Now here, on the other hand, is a man who needs no spur. To attempt to drive him would only precipitate resentment or rebellion. He is a poor talker. His imagination moves slowly, in a mild, easy going manner, never hurried, never excited, but getting there safely and in good order every time. He is a Nordic of the motive build. He is fond of travel and adventure, in the literal sense. Emotions to him are pleasant happenings, but they seem detached, as though he stood off apart from himself.



RALPH LENSE, 6154 S. Maplewood Ave., Chicago, Ill. Occupation, School Boy.
(Wood Photo.)

Ralph Lense

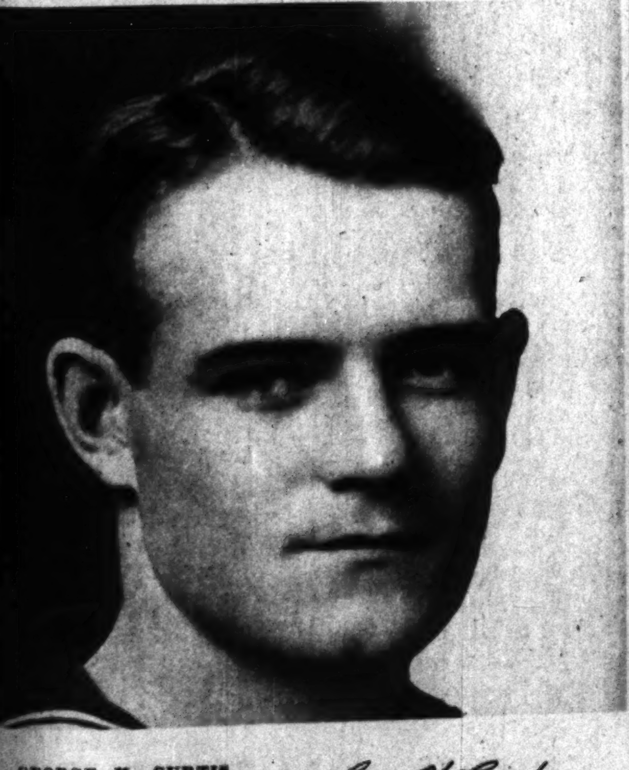
This little boy is built on the mental plan. He will grow up to be a thinker first and a doer second. He has initiative now, plainly showing in his temples and ears. There is a practical, matter of fact quality to his eyes and brows that will probably make him gravitate to mechanical things later. Perhaps he likes them now. When he sees something he does not let it pass with a few words and then forget it, but he holds the picture of it in his mind, to be brought forth days after, for fresh conversations.



WM. T. McCARRE, 910 Third Ave., Evansville, Ind. Occupation, Railway Mail Clerk.

Cousin Will

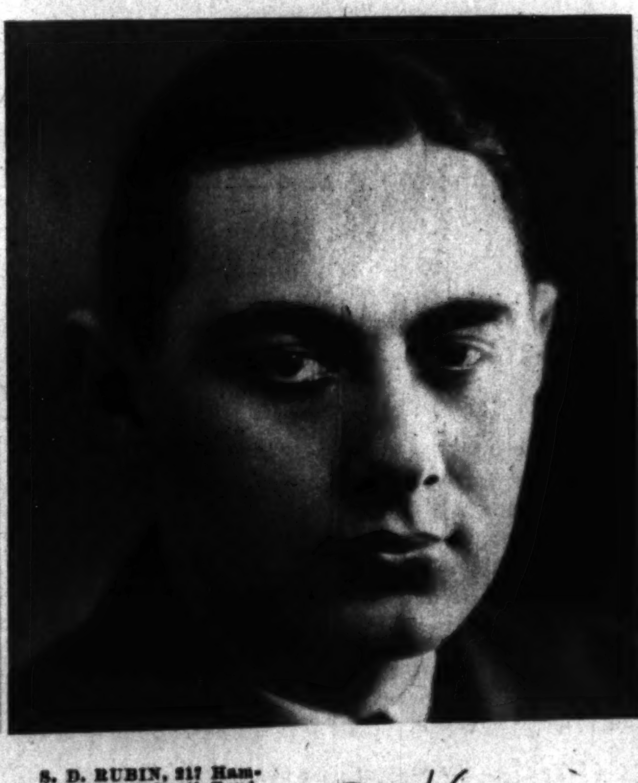
Emotions. Friendship. Good fellowship. This is what this Celtic face conveys. Here is a man who feels his problems out rather than thinks them out. He likes others, and can be led by them. He would rather have his judgment seconded by them and his thoughts passed on collectively than to go it alone. His ears show that he needs a constant spur; otherwise he would day dream his time away or spend it with friendly associates. He is exceptionally fond of his own people and they occupy a large part of his thoughts.



GEORGE H. CURTIS, 421 Central Ave., Decatur, Ill.

Geo H Curtis

This man is Celtic, too, but Celtic mixed with Nordic blood. He has a sly sense of humor. His writing shows that he can analyze people and situations readily, and there are laughing lines in his face. He has had many a quiet smile at other folks and their doings. There is plenty of calmness visible about his eyes and mouth. He will never be swept off by any emotional crisis. Neither will a tight economic place floor him. His brows show that he will somehow find a practical way to get affairs straightened out.



S. D. RUBIN, 217 Hammond Court, South Bend, Ind. Occupation, Bond Salesman.

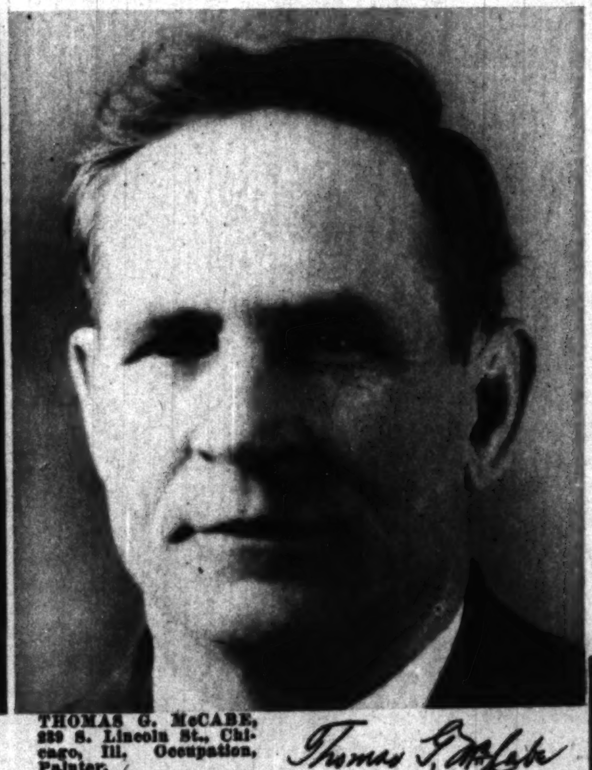
The build of this face is mento-vital. Here is a man who likes to think and who likes to enjoy the products that his thought brings. He is of Semitic blood. There is much sharpness visible about the eyes, and power of speech in the nose. The ears show push and aggressiveness, but they are lacking in the will to drive through material obstacles. The forehead shows too much introspection. This trait can easily blind his judgment.



THOMAS G. McCABE, 239 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill. Occupation, Painter.
(Hussagh Photo.)

Thomas G. McCabe

Here is the dynamic person of the page. He has a powerful will. He knows what he wants and he goes after it. But his going is no ruthless affair. He has the ability to see both big and little things, and so he gets his way by taking everything into account. His eyes show great caution, while his chin shows great energy. His nose shows aggressiveness, and his lips willfulness. His forehead and crown are distinctly humanitarian, idealistic and emotional. His only weakness is his inertia, his slowness in starting.

DEPARTING—The Duchess of Penaranda bestows a farewell smile upon the United States as she sails for Spain on the Mauretania. She came to see the international polo matches and visit Hollywood and such.

JUST WHY THE PRINCE OF WALES waited until he got to Boston to burst forth in this snappy topcoat seems likely to remain one of the international mysteries. But he did, and a photographic record of the incident seems necessary. Here, then, are the prince and his raiment as they appeared in the Massachusetts capital toward the end of the royal visit to America. The man with his cap off is Bayard Tuckerman, the prince's host in Boston.

MISS LILLIAN GISH has a rare charm of spirituality which places her above and beyond anyone on the screen. This picture of her as Romola accentuates that irresistible, indefinable something which always captures our sympathy.

DOROTHY GISH, Lillian's more hoydenish little sister, is to have the role of the peasant girl, Tessa, in the forthcoming picture, "Romola." Her never failing sense of comedy makes a delightful contrast to her sister's wistfulness.

RATHER A YOUTHFUL LOOKING COUPLE to be committing matrimony, don't you think? The proud groom is Richard Barthelmess, and his peaches-and-cream screen bride is Madge Evans, who played baby parts just a few years ago. According to the Studio Directory she is only 15 years of age.

GLENN HUNTER AND BESSIE LOVE make a very likeable pair of "young marrieds" in Frank Lloyd's new picture, "The Silent Watcher," adapted from "The Altar on the Hill," by Mary Roberts Rinehart.
